DEWEY'S FIERCE SIEGE OF MANILA.

Attack Made by the Squadron Just at Dawn Sunday.

Operations Suspended, Then Renewed With Vigor.

Fall of the City Not Compassed, but Victory Achieved.

Spanish Fleet Practically Annihilated—Two Vessels Burned, One Blown Up and Others Sunk to Escape Capture—Nothing Known Concerning the Casualties on the American Warships—Satisfaction In Washington With the Outcome—The Invasion of Cuba.

London, May 2.—The Asiatic squadron of the United States, Commodore Dewey commanding, yesterday engaged and completely defeated the Asiatic squadron of Spain in the harbor of Manila, in the Philippine islands.

All the news of the great naval battle thus far received is coming from Spanish sources. This shows conclusively that Manila has not yet been taken by the American forces, and that the cable lines are still under Spanish control. From the fact that even the advices received from Madrid show that the American warships fared the best, there is hardly any doubt that when complete details are obtainable it will be learned that it was a crushing defeat for Spain.

Commodore Dewey's squadron, leaving Subic bay, a few miles from Manila, about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, proceeded toward Manila. Under the cover of darkness he entered the harbor of Manila, the batteries located there announcing his arrival. Both fleets lined up for battle about daybreak, about 5 o'clock Sunday morning. The guns of the American warships began firing on the fortress of Kavite and the arsenal of Manila.

Under the protection of the guns of the Manila fortifications, the Spanish warships opened fire on the American fleet. For several hours the harbor resounded with the roar of guns, the crashing of steel and timbers, the shrieks and groans of the wounded. Thick clouds of smoke at times almost obscured the opposing fleets from each other. Soon a well directed shot reached the iron cruiser Don Juan de Austria, a vessel of 1100 tons. A terrific explosion followed and the ship was blown up.

All the time during the first engagement the American ships were under way, their maneuvering being intended to render the marksmanship of the Spanish gunners less effective.

There was heavy loss of life among the Spanish. Captain Cardase, commanding the Maria Christina, was killed. Commodore Montijo, commanding the fleet, shifted his flag from the Maria Christina to the Isla de Cuba, a much smaller steel protected cruiser, just before the Christina sank.

The naval bureau at Manila sends the following report, signed "Montijo," Admiral:" "In the middle of the night the American squadron forced the forts and before daybreak appeared off Kavite. The night was completely dark. At 7:30 the bow of the Reina Maria Christina took fire and soon after the poop also was burned. At 8 o'clock with my staff I went on board the Isla de Cuba. The Reina Maria Christina and the Castilla were then entirely enveloped in flames. The other ships, having been damaged, retired into Baker bay. Some had to be sunk to prevent their falling into the hands of the enemy. The losses are numerous, notably Captain Cardase, a priest and nine other persons."

What Governor General Reports.

Madrid, May 2.—The following is the text of the official dispatch from the governor general of the Philippines to the minister of war, Lieutenant General Correa, as to the engagement off Manila: "Saturday night, April 30, the batteries at the entrance to the fort announced the arrival of the enemy's squadron, forcing a passage under the obscurity of the night. At daybreak the enemy took up positions, opening with a strong fire against Fort Cavite and the arsenal. Our fleet engaged the enemy in a brilliant combat, protected by the Cavite and Manila forts. They obliged the enemy, with heavy loss, to maneuver repeatedly. At 9 o'clock the American squadron took refuge behind the foreign merchant shipping on the east side of the bay.

"Our fleet, considering the enemy's superiority, naturally suffered a severe loss. The Maria Christina is on fire and another ship, believed to be the Don Juan De Austria, was blown up. There was considerable loss of life. Captain Cadarso, commanding the Maria Christina, is among the killed. I cannot now give further details. The spirit of the army, navy and volunteers is excellent."

An official telegram received a later hour from the governor general says: "Admiral Montojo has transferred his flag to the cruiser Isla de Cuba from the cruiser Reina Maria Christina. The Reina Maria Christina was completely burnt, as was also the cruiser Castilla, the other ships having to retire from the combat and some being sunk to avoid their falling into the hands of the enemy."

The Herald says that Admiral Montojo changed his flagship during the engagement or between the two encounters in order to better direct the maneuvers. In this way he escaped the fate of the commander of the Reina Maria Christina. The second engagement was apparently begun by the Americans after landing their wounded on the west side of the bay. In the latter engagement the Spanish Mindando and Ulloa suffered heavily. Ministers speak of "serious but honorable losses."

EFFECT OF VICTORY.

Demonstrated That the Spanish Cannot Cope With Our Men.

Washington, May 2.—There is no doubt that the result of the first naval battle of the war will have an important bearing upon the future conduct of the struggle. It has demonstrated to the administration that the way to fight is to fight. It has shown that Spain cannot cope with the United States, and that the war can be brought to a quick conclusion by simply forcing matters.

The Spanish fleet at the Philippines was larger numerically than that of the United States, but the latter was better in armament and more modern in construction, beside which the efficiency of our men was evidently vastly superior to the Spaniards.

The enthusiasm with which the news of the victory has been received has also had its effect, and has shows that popular sentiment will approve a vigorous campaign. This being the case it is said to be extremely probable that the attempt to drive Spain out of Cuba will now be pressed in an emphatic manner.

It will not be surprising if before the week is ended there will be witnessed the bombardment of Havana without regard to the possible approach of the Spanish fleet across the Atlantic. This action was being seriously discussed last night, and the naval strategic board will undoubtedly give consideration to it.

The victory may also have the effect of an adherence to the original plan of speedily sending the 6000 regular troops into Cuba, a plan which was temporarily abandoned pending the uncertainty as to the whereabouts of the Spanish fleet. All of these matters will be more fully considered today, when the officers have an opportunity to carefully review the whole situation.

With the meager details at hand it is impossible to say exactly what has happened in Manila bay, but enough is known to indicate the probable sequence of events. The Spanish fleet seems to have been wiped out of existence. The vessels which have not been sunk or burned have either been captured or sought shelter close under the Krupp guns of the Manila batteries, where they will be taken later. From all accounts, it appears that two battles were fought, the first near the mouth of the bay and the second inside. It is probable that Commodore Dewey attacked the Spanish fleet in column formation and that they prepared to meet him in line of battle. By this maneuver he was enabled to cut the enemy's line at its center, and then turn all his attention to one of the wings.

That our ships have been damaged to a greater or less degree there is little doubt, for from the nature of the engagement as reported it must have been fought at close range. The American vessels are not armored and their sides could be easily pierced by the smallest guns. This fact is also borne out in the dispatches which state that the American vessels landed their wounded before beginning the second encounter. Naval officers hardly believe that Commodore Dewey put his injured men ashore, and if they were removed from the vessels at all they were probably placed aboard one or the other of the merchant vessels which accompanied the fleet as colliers and storeships. In the battle it

A FORMIDABLE FORCE.

Plans For Defending New England From Attack.

No Apprehension Felt In Official Circles.

Armorclads May Be Detached From Sampson's Blockading Fleet.

Washington, May 2.—Beside collecting a formidable force on the New England coasts, scouts have been sent to sea to ascertain the position of hostile warships. The San Francisco and the Scorpion, which left New York Saturday, are expected soon to arrive in Boston. The New Orleans will follow them today. Upon reaching his destination Commodore Howell will find awaiting him the ram Katahdin, the gunboat Machias and the cruisers Columbia and Minneapolis, which, while operating in northern waters, will, upon coming in contact with him, be under his command. The Minneapolis and Columbia, however, are still attached to the flying squadron, and are really on scouting duty. No surprise should be experienced if these vessels should suddenly leave the New England coast and proceed to sea, remaining away for several days.

THE COLUMBIA.

With Commodore Howell's force operating in New England waters, a force which will be reinforced in a few days by the converted cruisers Yankee, Dixie, Prairie and Yosemite, no apprehension is felt in official circles as to the safety of New England ports and of New York, especially as it will be possible to reinforce the squadron without delay by the flying squadron now at Hampton roads. It is not believed, however, that any of the Spanish ships are bound for the New England coast, and they will, it is believed, first proceed to Porto Rico.

In order to make more effective the naval campaign intrusted to Admiral Sampson for execution, the fleet under his command will be formed into two divisions. The commander of the first division and the fleet will be Admiral Sampson, and the second division will be in charge of Commodore John C. Watson. For some time past the intention of the naval administration has been to withdraw from the blockading force the six armorclads, New York, Iowa, Indiana, Puritan, Terror and Amphitrite, or some of them, for station at a central point on the Atlantic coast, if it became known that the Spanish fleet which left St. Vincent contemplated an assault on coast cities, or if there was absolute uncertainty as to the intention of the enemy. From this station the big armored craft could move north or south as circumstances would determine, either to rejoin the blockading force or to prevent the Spanish ships from bombarding forts on the New England or middle Atlantic coast. This withdrawal would leave the enforcement of the blockade to the numerous cruisers, gunboats and torpedo boats now under Admiral Sampson, and they would all be in command of Commodore Watson.

The aggregation of vessels under the command of Admiral Sampson is officially known as the North Atlantic squadron. There is a distinct difference between a squadron and a fleet, but both terms have been applied indiscriminately to the ships engaged in carrying out the provisions of the president's proclamation establishing the blockade of the Cuban ports. The distinction will be applied, however, when Commodore Watson is assigned to command the second division. Strictly applied, the term fleet means 13 vessels consisting of one flagship for the commander-in-chief and two divisions of six ships, each under a flag officer. Any aggregation of fewer vessels is called a squadron. Admiral Sampson will therefore have command of a fleet and its first squadron, and Commodore Watson will command its second squadron.

Under the division contemplated by the navy department the first squadron is to consist of the armorclads and some other vessels, and the second squadron of protected and other armored ships. The six armorclads mentioned will be augmented soon by the monitor Miantonomoh, now on her way to Key West. The unarmored vessels are the cruisers Detroit, Marblehead, Cincinnati and Montgomery; the gunboats Wilmington, Machias, Newport, Castine, Helena, Nashville and Indianapolis; the revenue cutter McLane, the torpedo boat destroyer Mayflower, five torpedo boats and several dispatch boats, including the Dolphin, supply vessels, and converted tugs and yachts. It is probable some of the torpedo boats will accompany the armorclads.

Said an excited individual in town the other night, as he waved his arms around him like a wind-mill. "Give it to 'em I say!" "Well, as far as I am concerned," said a calm, middle-aged, slow talking man, who had been listening to the excited man's talk, "they can have it. I don't know as we need it in our business." It's a funny idea that Americans have of always giving somebody something they don't want. A tramp once said that he could go hungry all day and have enough drinks and good advice offered him to last a month. But when he was real thirsty, even the water froze up.
The Quincy Clothing Co. is going to give you something you do want. We are going to give you the opportunity to buy a fine suit of Clothes for $7.50. May be you think you don't want one. You will when you see them. They're all wool and we have them in Blue Serges and Gray and Brown checks. They're cut in good style, have all wool linings and are made by first-class tailors, not overall manufacturers. They are made expressly for us, and with every suit is a written guarantee as to their durability and wearing qualities. If they are not perfectly satisfactory, you get a new suit in its place.
Bear this in mind, that if the war does take away from us a lot of young men who would be our customers if there was no Cuba, we will not advance the price on the rest of you to get even; for at the rate things started everyone that has gone will have enough prize money when they return to buy a good many suits.

Good Afternoon.

We have received by mail a notice announcing that cards are out for a marriage, but as the writer failed to sign his or her name we feel not at liberty to use it. All writers of items for the press should send their names with their articles for the protection of publishers. There would not always be the need of the names if everybody was honest; but editors find that there are frauds in the community and that they have to be on the lookout all the time.

The United States is now shipping steel rails to Russia as well as to Australia. A recent announcement from Australia shows that American bidders were successful in obtaining a contract for the delivery of a large lot of steel rails for use in that country even against bids coming from England and Germany, and now come reports that the new Siberian railroad is to be metalled with American steel.

No section of the country is furnishing stronger evidence of loyalty to the flag and the Nation than that which was the theatre of the late Civil War. Men who were thirty-five years ago engaged in deadly strife against each other are now vying with one another in evidences of affection for the reunited country, and the men who wore the gray are clamoring to enter the service of the country under the command of one who then wore the blue.

VETERAN AT HEAD.

That's Why Fifth Should Have Been Selected.

The selection of the four regiments of infantry to represent the State's quota in the volunteer army now forming has, as undoubtedly was expected by the military advisory board, brought out some criticism, says the Herald.

Every regimment in the State service wanted to go, and all were equally ready to volunteer. The board had to pick four out of five commands and, had the decision been different from what it was, still criticism would have been hurled at the board by the organization left out.

The only strong criticism that can possibly be made over the selection is that it would have been better military policy to chose a regiment whose commander had seen actual service than one whose commander was a militiaman, pure and simple. Had this policy been followed, the 5th infantry must have been chosen, being the only regiment in the state commanded by a veteran soldier, excepting the 2d, Col. Clark. Neither Col. Pew of the 8th nor Bogan of the 9th are veterans.

Now that the choice is made there is nothing for the 5th to do but to grin and bear it. It is more than possible if the views of the correspondent of the Army and Navy Jounrnal at Washington are correct that another call may come, and then the 5th will be in it with both feet, so to speak.

AMONG THE YACHTS

New Flyers Enrolled Nearly Every Day Now.

Another large jib and mainsail boat which has been enrolled in the Quincy Yacht club's fleet this spring is the Edith, owner by Mr. Alfred L. Lincoln of Hingham. She was built this winter by A. O. Higgins of Cohasset. The Edith is 27 feet 6 inches overall; 18 feet water line; 8 feet 6 inches beam, and draws 2 1-2 feet of water.

The Little Peter, owned by Mr. Henry Moebs of the Quincy Yacht club, has been put into the water by Hanley.

Freyja is the name of Mr. George D. Follett's 21 footer.

Capt Arthur J. Shaw of the Quincy Yacht club was out in the bay on Sunday taking a trial spin on the Moodyne.

Merritt & Hall's cat boat, Arbutus, is already to be shoved into the water. Her sail is bent. She is at Damon & Merritt's yard.

Mr. William H. Shaw's jib and mainsail yacht Vexer is being smoothed down this week at Damon & Merritt's yard, preparatory to being painted.

Mr. Chester C. Collins of the Quincy Yacht cub, has brought his new cat, Hustler, around from the Cape and has her moored off the club house.

Mr. Charles H. Aden has christened his new cat boat the Claytonia.

The Quincy Yacht club's floats will be hauled out of their winter quarters at Rock Island and shackled to the moorings next week.

Death of Former Resident.

Word has been received of the death at Providence, R. I., last Friday of Mr. Henry T. Horne formerly of Quincy. He was a son of the late Trueworthy Horne and was a stone cutter by trade. He left Quincy twenty-one years ago and went to Attleboro, where he was engaged in the granite business for a number of years. From Attleboro he went to Providence R. I., continuing in the same business. During the building of the subway in Boston he was a foreman of the stone work and had charge of the building of the subway stations on Boston Common.

When in Quincy he was prominently identified with Rural lodge of Masons and took an active part in the upbuilding of that lodge of which he was a past master. He was also a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen and the United Order of Pilgrim Fathers. He was about 54 year of age and leaves a widow and three children, one of the latter being a conductor on the Quincy & Boston street railway.

His body will be brought to Quincy Tuesday for burial; services to be held at Mt. Wollaston cemetery at 3 o'clock by Rural lodge of Masons.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued cases of Michael Milan and Andrew Selberg for druukenness at Quincy were called, and they paid a fine of $5 each.

The continued case of Thomas F. Heaney of Randolph for drunkenness was called, and he was defaulted.

Patrick J. Giblon of Weymouth was arraigned for keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell at Weymouth.

Officers Fitzgerald, Butler and Pratt, the two former Weymouth officers, were prowling about Sunday in search of anyone who might be doing liquor business, when they saw Siblon near the river off Lake street. Siblon saw the officers at the same time and ran along the shore and when the officers were near he threw a bundle into the water. As the officers grabbed him he pulled a whiskey glass from his pocket which he threw into the water. The officers succeeded in recovering three of the bottles from the river. He was fined $50 for keeping with intent to sell.

Adams Academy Put Up Good Game With Brookline High.

Adams Academy played the postponed game with Brookline High Saturday in place of the game with Teck 1900. The wind was blowing at a great rate and the errors that were made were excusable. Donaher pitched for Adams and put up a fine game, and was supported well in the field. In the seventh inning Bennett caught a foul fly, that was one of the prettiest catches made this year. In the eighth inning, Brookline was three runs ahead and Donaher made a two base hit tieing the score. This game was one of the best played this year and by the showing Adams made they are again in form, and when Boyd is playing the team will probably be stronger than ever.

AT CITY HALL.

In and Out Among the Officials of Quincy.

The assessors started out on their annual tour this morning. They have a good day to begin on.

At the request of the Boston police department, Chief Litchfield has detailed special officer Henry O. Dawson for day duty at Moon island, and J. P. Landers will do night duty until June 1. Their duties began today.

Present indications are that there will not be a very long session of the City Council tonight, unless the Councilmen debate the appropriation order which comes up on its second reading. Aside from this there will be two public hearings, one on the acceptance of Payne street and another on the acceptance of Putnam street. The Committee on Licenses will report on a number of minor licenses and the Committee on Streets will probably report an order for a public hearing on the petition to widen Hancock street. They may also report on the petition of the Weymouth and Braintree street railway for a location on Franklin street and Presidents avenue. As the town of Braintree has refused to grant the company the desired location on the Braintree end of the proposed line, the committee report, if made, will probably be leave to withdraw, for without the connecting link in Braintree the line would not be operated if built. In the calendar is the new ordinance concerning wires, and a transfer to meet bills of the Public Burial Places department of 1897.

Honest Cycles at Honest Prices.

Realizing that this is a $50 Year in the Bicycle trade, the IVER JOHNSON ARMS AND CYCLE CO. of Fitchburg, Mass., have reduced the price of their wheels to meet the popular demand. These wheels have never sold before for less than $100, and while there are a few other makes that are as good, there is certainly nothing better.

Sharp Competition induces unscrupulous dealers to push and advertise an inferior wheel for the sake of greater profit. A cheap western wheel with a good coat of paint and a high sounding name may sell as well if the dealer allows $25 on an old wheel that is worth about $10. This is a great trade. After riding it for a season, however, the rider changes his mind and thinks of an o'd adage, "You can't get something for nothing."

You can't get a "trade" (?) of this kind on an IVER JOHNSON, but you do get an Honest Cycle at an Honest Price.

The Cruiser San Francisco off Boston.

Spain Admits Its Defeat off Manila.

Provincetown, May 2—The United States cruiser San Francisco arrived here this morning.

Quiet at Havana.

Key West, May 2—The blockade of Havana continues. No excitement up to the present time.

Rout at Phillipine Islands.

Madrid, May 2. The news of the American victory at Manila is accepted in all quarters here. It is conceeded that the Spanish fleet was utterly routed. Some of the armored cruisers were burned and others were sunk to avoid capture. The entire Spanish fleet at the Phillipine Islands is wiped out. It is expected that the bombardment of Manila will begin today, as the American fleet has taken a position of blockade. The people of Manila are fleeing to the country.

Bombardment Necessary.

London, May 2.—A semi-official despatch giving an account of the engagement between Admiral Dewey's fleet and the Spanish fleet, says the engagement lasted two hours and that at the end of that time the Spanish fleet was completely annihilated. What Spanish vessels that were not burned during the engagement by our fleet were sunk by the Spaniards themselves to prevent their capture.

At the close of the engagement Admiral Dewey sent word to the officials of the city of Manila through the British consul at that place, demanding the immediate surrender of the city, and if not complied with he would bombard the city.

The reply received was a refusal to surrender, accompanied by a threat if bombarded, the cable would be cut. As no news has been received from Manila, it is presumed that the Spaniards have carried out this threat.

Attacks Tomorrow.

Miami, Fla., May 2.—An officer of the Puritan says that another attack will be made on Montanzas Tuesday. Both Ports will be shelled, and when reduced landing parties will be sent ashore. It is also reported at the naval station that Havana will also be attacked Tuesday.

Spanish Subjects.

Washington, May 2—President McKinley will immediately issue a proclamation fixing the status of the Spanish subjects in this country. This is probably due to the charges that the blowing up of powder mills in several places were caused by them.

Within 24 Hours.

London, May 2,—The Daily News publishes a dispatch saying that Manila is expected to capitulate within twenty-four hours.

Co. K to Act.

An important meeting of the "noncoms" of Co. K has been called for this evening. Members have also been ordered to be present to a man. It is said that all the companies of the Fifth regiment are holding meetings to ascertain whether it is the intention of the men to remain loyal to the Fifth, or join other regiments which have been called to the front.

—The Beacon says, the people who are afraid Boston is going to be bombarded have little idea of the disadvantages under which the war vessels of an enemy would operate on this coast, or of the really effective condition of our present harbor defenses.

ATTACKED BY CAT.

Wollaston Park Man Has a Desperate Encounter.

Mr. James L. Smith of Wollaston Park had an exciting experience with an enraged cat on Saturday night which may prove serious for that gentleman. About 10.30 P. M. Mr. Smith heard a racket in his cellar and upon investigation he found a large gray cat in the coal bin. The cat jumped upon the wall beneath the floor boards and as Mr. Smith grasped him by the tail, to draw him out, he savagely sprang and caught Smith by the right wrist and hung on like a bull dog. Unable to shake the cat off, Mr. Smith carried him out into the cellar where a desperate struggle ensued between man and cat. By getting his knee on the cat's throat, and frantically tearing at his mouth with his left hand, he succeeded in freeing his hand after a battle of ten minutes. Mrs. Smith being asleep did not hear the cries of her husband though he called loud for help. Being faini and unable to continue the fight he made no further attempt to drive the cat out, Mrs. Smith was quickly aroused, and Dr. Record summoned, and arrived in twenty minutes, during which time, Mr. Smith suffered excuriating pain. The doctor found the wrist badly lacerated. Strange to say Mr. Smith was not scratched. After having his wound dressed he retired, but not to sleep. Sunday morning Mr. John MacIntyre a near neighbor was sent for and going into the cellar he quickly despatched the animal with a bullet through the head. As the cat was not recognized, and being larger than the ordinary house cat and having short ears and a short tail, he was pronounced a wild cat, by many who examined him. Whatever the species, Mr. Smith declared he was wild enough to more than suit him.

THE SCHOOL LEAGUE.

The Gridley Bryants Drop from First Place.

The Saturday ball games in the Schohl league resulted in victories of the Adams over Quincys, John Hancock over Gridley Bryants, Coddingtons over Massachusetts Fields, Lincoln over Willard, and Wollaston over Washington.

It was the first defeat for the Gridley Bryant nine, which leaves only two clubs, the Adams and John Hancock tied for first place. The Coddington has made a grand rally in the last three games and is now tied with Gridley Bryant. The Willard and Quincy lost in ber cent. while the Wollaston and Lincoln increased; it was the first victory for the last named.

The Spanish gunboat, Tomerario, is at Ensenada, on the La Plata, undergoing repairs to a portion of her machinery, but it is expected that she will leave within a week.

Lord Salisbury returned to London yesterday afternoon. He appeared bronzed and robust; and his private secretary said he had never seen the premier looking better.

Governor Grout calls an extra session of the Vermont legislature for May 5 to provide funds for the subsistence and transportation of Vermont troops. The legislature will also be asked to provide state compensation in addition to regular pay, as well as to consider a plan for further organization.

The Alaskan Commercial company of San Francisco is in receipt of advices from its agent at Dawson city confirming the report of a rich strike at the mouth of Ainslee creek, 18 miles up the Yukon from that place. The whole country in the vicinity of Dawson is crazy with excitement.

HOSE 2 HOUSE.

A Small Expenditure Needed to Make It Healthy.

From a sanitary point of view the building occupied by Hose 2, Wollaston is in a filthy condition, especially as regards to ventilation. The city keeps a horse in a small shed attached to the hose house proper. So far as fire department horses go this horse is a valuable animal but he is kept in this small shed without the least particle of ventilation. It is a miracle that the air which he is compelled to breathe has not killed him long ago. His hay and grain are kept on the same floor, there being no loft, and within a few feet of the stall. The hay becomes so permeated with ammonia that often times he refuses to eat it. If a private person kept a horse in such a place and with such unsanitary surroundings he would be brought before court by the society with a long name and fined.

The quarters of the two men who are on duty there nights, one being a permanent man, are not much better off. The stench pervades the whole building.

It is through no fault of the men or of the department that this state of affairs exists. The building is kept as clean as water and brooms can keep a place.

The building is wholly unadapted for the use to which it is put, but the Council at a small expense, within $75 at the outside, can have it properly ventilated if it so desires. A large ventilator erected on top of the shed and another one on the house, would, in a large measure, furnish ventilation and make the place more habitable. Undoubtedly if the matter is called to the attention of the Council through the proper channels, it will speedily remedy this state of affairs.

A Hundred Reasons.

Can be given why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the best and most effectual cure for every form of indigestion.

They are in Tablet form which retains their good qualities indefinitely, while liquid preparations become stale and useless with age.

They are convenient, can be carried in the pocket and taken when needed. They are pleasant to the taste.

After each meal dissolve one or two of them in the mouth and, mingling with the food, they constitute a perfect digestive, absolutely safe for the most sensitive stomach.

They digest the food before it has time to ferment, thus preventing the formation of gas and keeping the blood pure and free from the poisonous products of fermented, half digested food.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets make the complexion clear by keeping the blood pure.

They increse flesh by digesting flesh-forming foods.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the only remedy designed especially for the cure of stomach troubles and nothing else.

One disease, one remedy, the successful physicain of today is the specialist the successful medicine is the medicine prepared especially for one disease.

A whole package taken at one time would not hurt you, but would simply be a waste of good material.

Over six thousand men and women in the state of Michigan alone have been cured of indigestion and dyspepsia by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

DEWEY'S FIERCE SIEGE OF MANILA.

's likely that the forts also received some attention from the American gunners, and casualties ashore as well as aboard the enemy's squadron will undoubtedly be heavy.

It is stated that the administration adheres to its purpose of sending in the first military and charitable expedition to Cuba. This will land east of Havana by Thursday or Friday, to make a junction with General Garcia, commanding the extreme eastern wing of the Cuban army. All the arrangements are certainly based upon that line of purpose. Their consummation could be postponed at any time before the sailing took place from Tampa.

Warships That Fought.

Washington, May 2.—The following is a list of the American ships: Olympia—first class protected cruiser; launched in 1892; speed, 21 knots; battery, four 8-inch rifles, 10 5-inch rapid-fire guns, 14 6-pounders, six 1-pounders and four machine guns.

THE BALTIMORE.

Boston—second rate, 3189 tons; speed, 15 knots; battery, two 8-inch, six 6-inch rifles, two 6-pounder (rapid fire), two 3-pounders, two 1-pounders, two 1-point 8-inch rifles, two 1-point 6-inch and two machine guns.

Raleigh—second class; speed, 19 knots; battery, one 6-inch, and 10 5-inch rapid fire rifles, eight 6-pounders, four 1-pounders and two machine guns.

Concord—third rate, 1700 tons; speed, 17 knots; battery, six 6-inch, two 6-pound (rapid fire), two 3-pounders, one 1-pounder and four machine guns.

Petrel—fourth rate, 890 tons; speed 13 knots; battery, four 6-inch, two 3-pounder (rapid fire), one 1-pounder and four machine guns.

McCulloch, revenue cutter; Nashaun, collier; Zafiro, supply vessel.

Baltimore—second rate, 4600 tons; speed, 20.6 knots; battery, four 8-inch, six 6-inch rifles, four 6-pounders (rapid fire), two 3-pounders, two 1-pounders, two 1.3-inch, two 1.4-inch, and two machine guns.

In the dispatches from Madrid, the statement was made that Admiral Dewey effected a landing on the west side of Manila bay for the men of his fleet who were wounded in the engagements. It was suggested in official circles that this landing had a two-fold purpose. It was not only that the wounded might have better care than they could receive on shipboard in the face of other probable engagements, but also to carry out what was known to be Admiral Dewey's purpose—to effect a junction with the insurgents as soon as possible. The insurgent forces probably surround Manila on the land sides of the city and, with the intention of securing control of Manila as soon as possible, the admiral was to obtain a footing on the island at the earliest possible moment. As soon as the junction of the American and insurgent forces, the one on sea and the other on land, is effected, a demand is likely to be made for the surrender of the city, and in the event of a refusal, a combined attack would be made upon it.

No news of a definite character is given concerning the loss sustained by Admiral Dewey's squadron, and it is scarcely likely, in the opinion of the experts of the navy, that authentic information will be received until he has an opportunity to communicate officially with the department. It is regarded as probable that immediately after the engagements Admiral Dewey sent the revenue cutter back to Hong Kong with dispatches, and that the first information from him will come from that point. The distance from Manila to Hong Kong is a trifle over 600 miles, and it will take the McCulloch about two days to make the trip.

Schofield's Reserve.

New York, May 2.—General Schofield, president of the national volunteer reserves, reports that the reserve movement is meeting with unexpected success all over the country, the governors of several states taking great interest in it. The enrollments have become so numerous that the main office here is unable to handle them, and it has been found necessary to call upon the state officers for assistance. General Schofield is unable just now to tell the extent of the movement, but he said that thousands and tens of thousands of men are being enrolled.

People Lamented Loudly.

London, May 2.—Dispatches from Madrid say that at the theatres, cafes and in front of the newspaper offices last night the people loudly lamented the unpreparedness of Manila to resist the American warships whose attack had long been expected. The Madrid authorities are determined vigorously to suppress all street demonstrations.

Of Course They'll Protest.

Havana, May 2.—The French and Austrian consuls have protested against the bombardment of Matanzas by the American fleet as a violation of international law in that no previous notification of the intention to bombard the place had been given.

The following version of the bombardment was received last night under date of April 28: "At midday on the 27th three American cruisers opened fire at a short distance on the Morrila battery and the Matanzas fort. The battery replied, and the cruisers retreated to some distance. The fleet fired 32 shots and the battery 14, but all were without result. The fleet fired over 40 shots at the Sabanilla battery and the city, but none exploded; and the only casualty reported was the killing of a mule. Some of the shots from the American vessels fell in the outskirts of the city. One projectile landed in the Sabanilla station and several more around the new sugar refinery. Others fell in the harbor near the brigantine Vigilante, and one dropped into the water close to a house on Bautista street. The Sabanilla battery fired only four shots before the fleet got out of range. The bombardment lasted an hour. One of the ships, a vessel with three smokestack, was damaged in the rigging. The receipt of the news produced an outburst of enthusiasm; many houses were decorated and processions headed by bands of music marched through the streets to national and Cuban airs."

Spaniards Fought Splendidly.

London, May 2.—The Madrid correspondent of The Financial News says: "The Spanish ministry of marine claims a victory for Spain because the Americans were forced to retire behind the merchantmen. Captain Cadalso (or Cadarso), in command of the Reina Maria Christina, went down with the ship. The Spaniards fought splendidly, the sailors refusing to leave the burning and sinking Don Juan de Austria. There is the greatest anxiety for further details."

Invasion Next Week.

Tampa, Fla., May 2.—General Shafter told the reporters last night that he would not assume command for a week or 10 days, as he would be busy with other matters and would take up the subject in ample time. This practically settles two very important matters, first, that General Shafter will command the army in Cuba, and second, that the troops will not leave here for Cuba for 10 days at least.

One of the principal reasons for the change in the program is the fact that the ships now on Cuban blockade may be needed to meet the Spanish fleet, assuming that the latter is moving in this direction. It had been the intention to use Admiral Sampson's squadron to convoy the troops to Cuba, and after making a pathway for them to the shore, to remain as a protection to them while military operations were in progress. If during this period the Spanish fleet should appear, the American vessels would be compelled to meet them, and this would leave the soldiers on shore at the mercy of the Spanish soldiery and without a base of retreat.

Hermejo's Joyful Emotions.

Madrid, May 2.—The news from the Philippines has produced greatly increased enthusiasm, especially in view of the fact that the American squadron was obliged to retreat. Notwithstanding the severe damage the Spanish ships sustained, naval officers here consider that further operations by the American squadron will be conducted under great difficulty owing to their having no base where they could repair and recoal, or obtain fresh supplies of ammunition.

Admiral Hermejo, minister of marine, joined the cabinet council last night and informed his colleagues that the Spanish forces had gained a victory in the Philippines. He asserted that he found difficulty in restraining his joyful emotions.

The offical dispatch does not mention the destruction of any American vessel, although it says that the United States squadron finally cast anchor in the bay behind the foreign merchantmen.

Intensely Interesting Question.

London, May 2.—While it is quite clear that the Spanish squadron has suffered a crushing defeat, the dispatches leave unclear the intensely interesting question whether the American squadron has suffered material damage. All news thus far comes from Spanish sources, but it seem evident that Commodore Dewey has not captured Manila. Unless he is able to make another attack and capture the town, he wil be in an awkward position, having no base upon which to retire and to refit. Probably, therefore, the United States squadron will be obliged to make for San Francisco, as the entrance to Manila bay was heavily mined with torpedoes.

Commodore Dewey displayed great pluck and daring in making for the inner harbor. According to private advices received from Madrid, the United States cruisers Olympia and Raleigh and two other vessels, the names of which are not given, entered the harbor. No dispatches give details as to the vessels actually engaged on either side. It appears to be incorrect that the American ships finally anchored behind the merchantmen on the east side. It should be the west side.

Probabilities point in the direction of the second engagement having occurred through the Spaniards trying to prevent the landing of the American wounded.

Reliable details cannot be had until the commodore's squadron is able to communicate with Hong Kong. There is, however, a suspicious frankness about the Spanish dispatches that savors of a desire to break unpleasant news to the Spaniards. It is not unlikely, therefore, that Commodore Dewey may be able to renew the attack.

The Point of Honor.

London, May 2.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "The sitting of the house of deputies Saturday was extremely interesting. The Carlists and Republicans had bitterly criticised the action of the governments of the regency and the monarchy with persisting during the last 24 years in a policy of too systematic neutrality and isolation in Europe, which now, in Spain's hour of trial, has deprived her of anything but platonic sympathies. The foreign minister, in the course of his reply, remarked that this was a positivist epoch, in which alliances were founded upon interest alone, and as Spain could offer but little, other powers could only give her little.

"Mr. Silvela, in a speech which made a profound impression and is regarded as marking a turning point in Spanish politics, declared that as the Cuban problem was now reduced to a question of 'honor for the Spanish arms,' it behooved ministers to assume without hesitation the responsibility of deciding when the point of honor had been sufficiently satisfied. When that time had been reached, he said, it would be time to appeal to the European powers so that they could decide what ought to be done to restore peace and determine the fate of Cuba, because all the powers were interested in Cuba's future."

Maine's National Guard.

Augusta, Me., May 2.—The Maine national guard mobilized here this afternoon. At the homes of the various companies there were magnificent demonstrations, and their arrival here was observed by the general suspicion of business, ringing of bells, cannon salutes, a grand display of the national colors and the gathering of citizens from miles around. They went into camp at Camp Powers, on the state grounds, and will undoubtedly volunteer to a man to enter Uncle Sam's service.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 2.—"If the Spanish government acknowledges these terrible losses of its fleet," argues The Journal, "it is certain that the real truth lies far beyond and that the world has yet no measure of the completeness of the American victory."

"The American people have taken a solemn vow," declares The Globe, "that the evil deeds of the Spanish government shall follow it on every sea, even if the globe must be girdled by the battle line of humanity."

The Advertiser does not regard it as "strange that a financial panic has already been reported from the different cities of Spain, or that confident predictions are made that when the taxes on food are collected there will be bread riots throughout all the provinces."

Maine Has a Mystery.

Mars Hill, Me., May 2.—The recent destruction of the law office of H. W. Sanford of this town by a bomb, made of powder, wrapped up in cotton and saturated with kerosene oil, has developed into a mystery of startling proportions. It is evident from discoveries which have come to light since the explosion that a determined plot has been formed to destroy the lives and property of several of the most prominent citizens of Blaine and Mars Hill.

Safe Blown Open.

Fall River, May 2.—The postoffice at North Westport was broken into during Saturday night and the safe blown open. A burglar was wounded, as blood stains were found. The office was kept by Arthur M. Reed, who reports a loss of $150 in money and stamps.

MANILA ACCEPTS INEVITABLE.

Dewey Crowns His Rout of the Ships by Taking the City.

Unofficial Advice to That Effect In Washington.

All Circumstances Establish Credibility of the Report.

Eagerness In Military Circles For the Immediate Invasion of Cuba—Time For the Expedition Dependent Largely on the Whereabouts of the Spanish Fleet That Left Cape Verde Islands—Scouts on the Lookout—Spanish Authorities Take Steps to Prevent a Demonstration by Declaring Martial Law.

Washington, May 3.—The president received word yesterday afternoon that the Spanish forces at Manila had flung out the white flag, indicating their willingness to capitulate at once. This statement is made on the authority of a member of the cabinet. No further information than this is given, and it is supposed that the news came originally from the British consul general at Manila, by way of London., In the absence of additional details the administration is waiting for a full official report from Commodore Dewey before making its dispatches public.

The president is assured of the surrender of the capital of the Philippines, although, so far as known, he has not been definitely informed that Commodore Dewey has taken possession.

There is authority for the statement that the president has dispatches which have not yet been made public through the press in any form, indicating that, while Commodore Dewey saved his ships with marvelous success, he was not equally successful in sparing his men, and that the Spaniards did not quail in battle until they had made the Americans suffer.

The effects of Commodore Dewey's victory will be far-reaching and immediate. Already every branch of the military and naval establishments feels its quickening impulse, and the belief is strong that by swiftly following up with a demonstration in Cuba, the advantage gained at the antipodes, the United States can quickly bring Spain to her knees and the war to a close. Had it not been for the premature publication of the day on which the American troops were to leave Tampa the decisive blow in Cuba might have been struck this week, and it might have been that within a fortnight Blanco and his army of occupation would have capitulated. The publication ahead revealed to the enemy the plans of our military authorities and necessarily invited a change in program, and, although the strictest secrecy is maintained at the department with regard to the movement of forces from Tampa under General Shafter, it is understood that the day of departure has been deferred.

It is disclosed today that Dewey carried out a carefully prepared plan which he had submitted some time ago, and which had the approval of the navy department, and that the constant movement of his ships reported in the dispatches was an important part of that plan and enabled him to break the range of the shore batteries, even though he had to ignore torpedoes and mines in his maneuvers around the bay in the darkness. All the facts of the battle will be of importance, because it is really the first in which modern ships have been engaged on terms which were favorable to the naval critics since the battle of the Yalu.

Incredible as it seems that the Spanish would send the four armored cruisers, towing three torpedo boat destroyers which left the Cape Verde islands to Porto Rico, much less to our Atlantic coast, the administration cannot afford to assume that the Spanish fleet is not on its way over. It has, accordingly, made its preparations to have its approach detected by its scouting cruisers and to have Admiral Sampson engage the fleet, if it does come, with our fighting fleet, made out of the two squadrons, with which he would be expected to overwhelm the Spanish ships.

The navy department hopes that he will have the opportunity to do so, and that before the end of the week it will be known that the Spanish fleet is on this side of the Atlantic, and that in one week from the battle of Manila, Rear Admiral Sampson may be reporting the second naval victory, which will end the war.

As this would make land fighting in Cuba unnecessary, the president, after an hour's conference with Secretary Alger and General Miles, late yesterday afternoon, determined to postpone for a few days, at least, the sending of our military expedition until the whereabouts and destination of the Spanish fleet can be determined.

It appears that Admiral Montojo was taken altogether by surprise, and that the Spanish authorities generally were in a state of utter unreadiness. The forts were not completed, the harbor was not mined, there were no searchlights and the American squadron was only sighted after it had already passed the outer and principal forts.

The moral influence of the first great victory is incalculable, and, though it is practically certain that Spain will not yield till she has tried conclusions in the Atlantic, where she hopes for better luck with her really first-classfighting squadron, it is believed that a similar victory in Cuban waters would produce signs of revolution in Spain, compelling an endeavor to come to terms.

The greatest anxiety is felt as to the casualties sustained by the American fleet. From the stubborn defense made by the Spaniards it is feared that before they burned, blew up or sank their ships they managed to inflict severe damage upon Commodore Dewey's squadron. All of the ships engaged were vulnerable in their lack of protection to life. There was not an armored ship in Commodore Dewey's fleet, the nearest approach being the flagship Olympia. She had some coal protection around the sides and an arched steel deck calculated to protect the vitals of the ship. The other vessels, save those recently added to the navy, like the McCulloch, have light steel decks, but in all cases, with the exception of slight protection in the shape of gun shields, the personnel of the ships was exposed to the fire of the enemy. If Commodore Dewey has lost a considerable portion of his men, it is feared he will be much embarrassed in the work of maintaining possession of Manila for lack of a sufficient force. United States naval vessels are always under-manned, according to European standards, and it will not be possible, having regard to the safety of the ships, to spare any considerable number of men to keep the city, especially if the engagement has disabled many of them. There was some talk of sending troops from San Francisco to aid in this work, but it is likely that the department will wait to hear from Commodore Dewey himself before taking any action. It may be, and in fact it is expected, that by a combination with the insurgents, he will succeed in having his men relieved of the task of garrisoning Manila.

As to the future of the island, it is likely that the government will retain possession of at least one port, such as Manila, for a coaling station and base of supplies during the remainder of the war. There was understood to be a considerable Spanish force in the Philippines, and a large number of natives are said to be loyal, meaning in that sense attached to the Spanish fortunes. With this material on one hand and the insurgents on the other, the latter stimulated by the overthrow of the Spaniards at Manila, it is probable that civil war may rage in the islands for sometime outside of Manila proper.

It is believed that officials here have not decided what to do with the islands at the end of the war, but in their possession the United States will have a powerful weapon in enforcing terms of peace with Spain. Supposing Porto Rico shall next be seized; it would seem that Spain will have little to encourage her in further resistance, particularly as the fall of Porto Rico would mean the loss to her of her ironclad fleet, should it cross the Atlantic.

There is no talk yet of European intervention, but one of the most beneficial results of Dewey's victory is that a deep impression has been made upon European statesmen, who can now no longer blind themselves to the fact that man to man the American navy is equal to any in the world. There was no exhibition, such as was sneeringly predicted in the European press, of weakness in the American fleet caused by the fact that it was of heterogeneous composition. The impression produced is likely to deter the Europeans from hasty intervention and the present indications are that we shall be left to settle our affairs with Spain at our own pleasure, providing we do not get involved in the eastern question through obtaining possession of the Philippines.

Martial Law in Spain's Capital.

Madrid, May 3.—The civil governor of Madrid has posted on the walls of the home office the customary proclamation intimating that the civil authorities consider that the circumstances justify their handing over to the military authorities the mission of keeping order.

Lieutenant General Daban, captain general of Madrid, has assumed charge. The measure has been taken in consequence of the attitude of the political parties. The whole garrison is ready in barracks.

Considerable surprise and disappointment has been caused by the destruction done by the American fleet, as it had been officially stated that the authorities at Manila had received 60 torpedoes and heavy guns to strengthen the coast defenses, particularly the defenses commanding the two channels on the right and left of Corregidor island.

Combat of Four Hours.

GAMES ON MONDAY.

Nichols Increases His Percentage of Victories.

Senators Saw the Home Plate From a Distance Only.

Brown Was Sent to the Bench For Talking Too Freely.

Washington, May 3.—The Bostons won yesterday's game by consecutive batting in three innings, and they shut out the "senators" to boot, by fielding without an error behind "Kid" Nichols' superb pitching. The truth of the matter is in spite of this good playing they ran bases at all times in a manner that was decidedly amateurish. Long, Lowe and Yeager were the culprits. Had these men been on the alert at all times the Bostons would have run up a much larger score. The loss of the runs amounted to nothing, but the pity was that these men should be guilty of such bad baseball.

When the Washingtons had their really only chance to score, they were similarly guilty, and they took their gruel with such bad grace that Tom Brown was put out of the game for unnecessary kicking and abuse of the umpire. The crowd took the cue from the Washington players and opened up a fusillade of abuse before the game ended.

There were a number of close decisions, but Snyder used good judgment. The Washingtons were merely caught napping, and they wished to shift the blame upon Snyder instead of standing before their "rooters" as being outplayed. The incident came in the sixth inning. With one out Leahy hit a fast liner to left, which Duffy misjudged with some excuse, and the stroke yielded two bases. Doyle followed with a hot grounder to Nichols, who turned quickly and caught Leahy off second on a close but sure play. There was a kick and Doyle joined in the wrangle, and another quick throw from Nichols to Tenney caught him napping. The scene was hot for a minute, but Snyder very quickly put a stop to the trouble by benching Brown, who lost his head.

Nichols had the senators at his mercy. Not a man reached third, and only twice did they get as far as second. Once this was due to a passed ball on a third strike. Collins, Lowe and Tenney did some sharp fielding. Score:

The baseball season opened yesterday in Taunton with a victory for the home team, 8 to 7. The Pawtuckets were held down closely until the ninth, when they bunched hits and made four runs. Pitcher Verry of the visitors was taken out in the fourth, as he was unsteady.

The Fall River team administered to the Newports a similar dose as that given in the game at the spindle city Saturday. It was a pitcher's battle in which Flanagan excelled, the Newports only securing two hits, and losing, 3 to 0.

The Torontos outplayed the Springfields at every point yesterday and won with ease. Herndon's wildness cost several runs. Score; 7 to 2.

The Pittsburgs lost their third game on the home grounds to the Cincinnatis, 7 to 3. The visitors outplayed them at every point.

The Louisvilles played very loosely in the field against the Chicagos, and were outbatted. Isbell made his league debut, holding the Louisville team down to six hits and one run in the six he pitched. Score: 15 to 7.

What appeared like certain defeat of the Brooklyns at the hands of the Quakers was turned into victory in the eight inning. Score: 10 to 9.

The Montreals won from the Providences by superior dash and hustling more than anything else. Catcher Butler of the Montreals was severely hurt in the eighth inning. In trying to put the ball on Canavan when the latter was sliding to the plate, he made a quick turn and jabbed his hand right under Canavan's feet. It sprained the hand badly. Score: 3 to 4.

The Harvards defeated the Andovers in a close contest, 2 to 1. Ten innings were played, and the winning run was scored on an error and a scratch hit.

The first league game of the season in New Bedford was a gift to the Brockton team, 8 to 3. Sechrist, who started to do the pitching, was unable to put the ball over the plate, and in consequence the Brocktonians had a little picnic. The local team played well and but for Sechrist's work would have easily taken the game.

IDEAL FOR SUMMER USE.

The Barge Merriam has just arrived at Quincy Point with a cargo of

Said an excited individual in town the other night, as he waved his arms around him like a wind-mill. "Give it to 'em I say!" "Well, as far as I am concerned," said a calm, middle-aged, slow talking man, who had been listening to the excited man's talk, "they can have it. I don't know as we need it in our business." It's a funny idea that Americans have of always giving somebody something they don't want. A tramp once said that he could go hungry all day and have enough drinks and good advice offered him to last a month. But when he was real thirsty, even the water froze up.

The Quincy Clothing Co. is going to give you something you do want. We are going to give you the opportunity to buy a fine suit of Clothes for $7.50. May be you think you don't want one. You will when you see them. They're all wool and we have them in Blue Serges and Gray and Brown checks. They're cut in good style, have all wool linings and are made by first-class tailors, not overall manufacturers. They are made expressly for us, and with every suit is a written guarantee as to their durability and wearing qualities. If they are not perfectly satisfactory, you get a new suit in its place.

Bear this in mind, that if the war does take away from us a lot of young men who would be our customers if there was no Cuba, we will not advance the price on the rest of you to get even; for at the rate things started everyone that has gone will have enough prize money when they return to buy a good many suits.

THE FIFTH LOYAL.

Has Pride in Organization and Will Maintain It.

The following letter from Col. J. H. Whitney, commanding the Fifth Infantry, was read Monday evening at the meeting of Co. K and also to other companies of the regiment. Officers and men taking a manly stand and will continue loyal:

"It is believed by the commanding officer that a word of caution and admonition may not be amiss in view of recent developments in the military affairs of the State.

"The selection of the commanding officers of the First, Second, Sixth, Eighth and Ninth Reigments to raise volunteers for the United States service leaves this command as the only regiment not specifically designated for service in the present crisis and it is not to be overlooked that this action has caused disappointment to the members of this command.

"Realizing that every effort has been made by this regiment to be accepted as a part of the quota from Massachusetts, and that no proper miliatry method has been ignored to attain this result, recognizing also that subordination to constituted authority and loyal obedience to orders is a soldier's first duty, the commanding officer urges upon every member of the regiment a conservative and soldierly attitude in the present situation.

"Conscious of the rectitude of our position and the excellent record that has been and is held by the regiment, it is believed that no occasion exists for any feeling but pride in our organization, and that such record shall be maintained as a loyal organization of citizen soldiers, the commanding officer wishes to impress upon every man the necessity of refraining from expressing any criticism of any action that has been taken and the importance of devotion to the interests of the regiment by such attention to drill and discipline as shall maintain the command in a proper condition to respond to any future call that may be made upon it."

(Signed) J. H. WHITNEY,
Colonel.

Adams Chapter.

Adams Chapter met Monday afternoon at the John Adams house for their regular monthly business and social meeting. At the business meeting Mrs. A. H. Gilson, Miss Mary L. Hinkley, Mrs. George T. Magee and Miss Annie L. Prescott presented the chapter with $210 for the restoration fund, as the result of the historical pageant given by these ladies the middle of April. They also reported that there were a few more dollars to be given later on as soon as the money was collected on the programme which might bring the total result of the pageant to $220 or $225. This gift was received with much enthusiasm and accepted. A vote of thanks was extended to the givers. It was also voted to give a reception at some future date at the John Adams house to all who took part or contributed in any way to the success of the pageant.

Madam Arcan under whose direction the pageant was given presented the ladies interested in the affair with twenty dollars as her contribution towards the cause which swelled the amount to the total above stated.

There is some talk of having Madam Arcan giving another entertainment next winter for the chapter.

At the close of the business meeting Miss Annie K. Dyer of Braintree gave a short talk on old times, followed by an informal discussion concerning the chapter, its future work, etc.

Tea and refreshments were served and brought to a close a very pleasant afternoon.

Annual Appropriation Order Advanced Without Debate.

Discussion Over Adverse Report on Common Victualler's License.

The debate on granting a common victualler's license to J. P. O'Brien was the one matter that served to lengthen out Monday night's meeting of the City Council. Councilman Badger and Owen were the only absent members.

FIRE STATIONS.

A communication was received from the Mayor inclosing another from the Chief Enginneer calling attention to repairs necessary at the central fire station where alterations to the stairways were needed to provide more horse stalls; at Wollaston where a new floor, bath room and grain chest were needed; at Quincy Point, grain chest and closet; and at West Quincy two closets. To Committee on Fire Department.

CO. K'S THANKS.

The Mayor forwarded a communication stating that he had authorized Capt. Kincaide to purchase 61 blankets for the members of Co. K in behalf of the city inclosing a letter received from Capt. Kincaide thanking the city for the same. Placed on file.

PETITIONS.

A large number of petitions for licenses to sell fireworks, common victualler etc., were received and referred to the Committee on Licenses.

A petition for a common victuallers license from M. R. Sparrow was laid on the table until later when Councilman Poland offered an order for the same. After some debate the petitions was referred to the Committee on Licenses.

Councilman Newcomb presented two petitions, one that a sidewalk be built on the west side of Chubbuck street and the other that a street light be maintained on Chubuck street. Referred.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing on May 16, on the petitions to widen Hancock street at the corner of Granite and between Music hall and School streets. Adopted.

The committee on Streets reported an order granting the New England Telephone Co. a location for one pole on Washington street between Edison and Mill streets. The order was passed to be ordained under suspension of the rules.

The Committee on Streets reported leave to withdraw on the petition of the Braintree & Weymouth street railway for a location on Franklin street and Quincy avenue. Adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting a number of licenses which were adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the petitions of Frank Purpira of 64 Hancock street and Mrs. McDonough at 136 Willard street, for common victuallers' licenses. Adopted.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

A public hearing was held on the petition that Payne street between Franklin and Phipps street, be accepted as a public way.

Michael Burns of Burns & Cormick, granite dealers, on that street spoke in favor. There was a large traffic on the street going from Braintree across to Quincy avenue and Quincy Point. The property there was all built upon except one or two lots. He did business on the street and had put out a good deal of money to make the street passable.

Welcome J. Blake said that he lived on the street and would like to see it accepted. They had no lights or sidewalks except what they paid for themselves.

There was no remonstrance and the hearing was closed and the order recommitted.

PUTNAM STREET.

A public hearing was also held on the acceptance of Putnam street as a public way.

Herbert T. Whitman said the street was laid out by the late Dr. Woodward thirty years ago. It was in fairly good condition except for about 150 feet. If the grade was lowered for this 150 feet it would be of great advantage to the city.

Henry B. Brown opposed because nothing is said as to what it is proposed to do. The puddle in the street was in front of his house and the street for a distance was out of repair. It was in good repair until Mr. Whitman took off the gravel for his own use. The teamster was told to stop, but did not stop until I told him I had a gun in the house. Mr. Whitman does not tell us what it is propsed to do. The city had once refused to accept the street because it was not in good repair but it was better then than now. He understood it was proposed to lower the grade three feet which would be of great damage to his property.

Mr. Whitman replying said the last speaker had spoken the truth as far as he went. When the Greenleaf Land Associates had built the lower end of the street they took the gravel and built the street to a uniform grade. The plan proposed a little cut in front of Mr. Brown's house at the upper end, which would not damage his property.

The hearing then closed and the order was recommitted.

REPORTS ON LICENSES.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the petition of J. B. Raymond for a pool table license at 6 1-2 Washington street.

Councilman Cain asked the reason of the report.

Councilman Merrick replied that the committee had found the place was not a proper one for the business.

Councilman Cain said there were many employes of the street railway who would patronize the place when off duty and he moved to lay the report on the table.

Councilman Merrick said the Committee had carefully considered the matter and were of the unanimous opinion that it was not a proper place for that business.

Councilman Sidelinger thought a pool table and barber shop a poor combination.

Councilman Cain withdrew his motion and the report of the Committee was accepted.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the petition for a carriage license at the Atlantic depot by Thomas & Deasy. Adopted.

The same Committee reported leave to withdraw on the petition of Ciriaco Tarese for a common victualler's license at 97 Water street.

Councilman McGrath asked why.

Councilman Merrick said it appeared that a license had been refused another party at this same place. It seemed to be a place more for the sale of fruit than meals. Report adopted.

The same Committee reported leave to withdraw on the petition of J. P. O'Brien for a common victualler's license.

Councilman Packard said this place was opposite Grand Army hall and if open on Sundays would be very handy for anyone who wanted something to eat. It was handy. The tables were there and he had food enough for a lunch. It was clean and no complaint had ever been made. It was also a good place to wait for the electric cars.

Councilman Merrick said there was no doubt about the place being neat. A member of the committee went there and asked for a meal but there was no food there. This does not comply with the law.

Councilman Little asked if the law required that he must have all appliances before license was granted.

Councilman Newcomb read the law which required them to have the place fitted up to sell food. This man did not even have the sign required over his door.

Councilman Clark hoped report of the Committee would be adopted. A common victualler's license was simply a blind to keep stores open Sunday.

Councilman Sidlinger hoped the Committee would be upheld. There were many places that carried on common victualler's business illegally.

Councilman Jameson thought there were too many of these places in the city now.

Councilman McGrath thought the Committee were drawing the line rather close in this case. If a man wants a dinner he will go to a hotel but if he wants a lunch he will go here.

Councilman Packard said it was foolish for a man to ask for a $1.50 dinner when he had but five cents in his pocket.

Councilman Prout thought a license should be granted in this case. He now has a license and wants it continued for another year.

The report of the Committee was adopted by a vote of 11 to 9.

A. J. Meyers and others at Houghs Neck petitioned for lights on Sea street especially at Mosquito woods. Referred.

Councilman Newcomb offered orders for the printing of 100 copies of the Rules of the City Council for 1898, and 150 copies of the Ordinances and City Charter revised and indexed to date. Referred.

Councilman Jameson offered an order appropriating $25,000 for concrete sidewalks with granite edgestones. It provides for 6,524 feet in Ward One, 2,100 feet in Ward Two, 2,700 feet in Ward Three, 4,730 feet in Ward Four, 3,950 feet in Ward Five, and 2,400 feet in Ward Six, a total of 22,404 feet, according to following schedue, one-half the cost to be assessed upon abutters:

WARD ONE.

Washington street, from Coddington street to Elm street (east side), 1480 feet.

Hancock street, from Saville street to Dimmock street (west side), 742 feet.

Granite street, from R. R. Bridge to Quarry street (north side), 2620 feet.

Hancock street, from Music Hall to School street (west side), 623 feet.

Miss Abby C. Nutting who for thirteen years has been employed as bookkeeper by E. H. Doble & Co., severed her connection with that firm on Saturday night to enter a life partnership with one of New Hampshire's sturdy sons. That the breaking of th leasant relationship that has so lon continued between Miss Nutting an the other clerks should not pass unnoticed, they prepared a little surprise for her. As the store was about to close Saturday night she was sent out for a minute and upon her return was surprised to find that the store had been improvised into a dining room around whose tables were gathered all of the clerks. In the centre of the table was a large gift cake banked by a cluster of pinks and roses. Refreshments were served after which the clerks took an affectionate leave of their friend, wishing her all happiness and prosperity in the new sphere of life she is about to enter.

A Bite of Meat.

While Officer Burns was riding upon his bicycle this morning, opposite the Hardwick residence, a bull terrier belonging to Mr. O'Neil in Main street, Dublin, seized him by the leg, and bit a hole in his thigh and pants. Mr. Burns made a powerful kick at the brute and she let go. It was lucky for this dog that Mr. Burns did not have his "barker" with him, for if he had the dog would never bark again. This dog is a ferocious beast, and a good many complaints have been made about O'Neil's dogs.

FLAG RAISING.

Badger Bros. and Employes Celebrate the Victory.

West Quincy people thought they were in for it this morning. That either the bombardment of the village had begun, or else the heads of the people had been turned by reading so much of war. Assistant Engineer Ripley hustled out expecting the services of the firemen would be needed. Badger Bros. seemed to be the objective point, and such a din. The firm and patriotic employes had taken West Quincy by surprise and they surrendered willingly. It was all over a flag raising at the works of Badger Bros. over the victory at Manila, and the noise was the cheers of the men, whistles, etc. The new flag is a beauty, being a 25 footer.

A PRETTY MESS.

Several of the Plumbers May Get Into Trouble.

The hearing before the Board of Health on the charges made against Inspector of Plumbing Keniley by Jules Johnson will be continued tonight, when the Inspector will be given an opportunity to give his defense. In view of the testimony already gone in, the question that appears to the front is what will the harvest be if the Board of Health find Mr. Keniley guilty and dismiss him. The Board of Health will be in duty bound to take all of the plumbers of the city into court upon their own testimony, for section eight of the ordinance concerning plumbing reads: "Any person violating any provisions of this ordinance shall be subject to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars for each and every violation thereof, and his license may be revoked by the Board of Examiners of Plumbing."

If the board of Health does take this course, the city may receive $1500 in fines and have a new set of plumbers. Other sections of the ordinance provide that the stacks shall be of a certain height and no lead pipe shall be used unless exposed to view.

The charges made against Mr. Keniley in brief are that he has passed stacks under height and lead pipe that was concealed behind sheathing. To support of these charges, the plumbers of the city came forward and testified that they had used lead pipe and concealed it in violation of the law, and they also admitted, upon cross-examination that they knew that they were violating the ordinance when they did so. This being the case, they, by their own admission come under section eight of the ordinance above quoted. If one man is to be punished for violating the ordinance, the Board of Health might as well make a clean sweep at one time and summon the plumbers and carpenters into court and fine them.

Another peculiar fact about this hearing is that when asked by counsel why the charges were made Mr. Johnson and others said they did it, not because they had any hard feelings against Mr. Keniley, but because they had the good of the city at heart. This wonderful statement was made after they had admitted that they personally had violated the ordinances and knew they were doing so when they did it. It is therefore, well to ask, what will the harvest be?

ADAMS VS. HIGH.

The Academy Boys Have an Easy Thing—Full Score.

Adams Academy played their first game with Quincy High School on Monday, and defeated them by a good margin. Adams has improved but the strength could not be ascertained as Quincy High put up a weak game.

The umpiring was rank and although the umpire is a local ball player it was evident that he had forgotten what a ball and a strike really were. Six men were hit by pitched balls but this was the fault of the umpire and only two were eligible to their base. Quincy High made only two hits with the exception of the men that were hit by pitched balls, while Adams made several. Taylor pitched a fine game and was well supported by Manning. Taylor struck out nine men and Porter three. In the ninth inning one of the Adams players was obliged to leave and team had to be changed somewhat and owing to the change the Quincy High school got three runs.

Friday Adams will play Thayer Academy at Quincy and the Adams boys will try to avenge the defeat they met at Braintree.

T. R. & S. DANCE.

A Large Party at Music Hall, Atlantic.

The dance given by the T. R. & S. A. A. at Music hall, Atlantic, Saturday evening was largely attended. By 8.30 the hall was well filled with the friends of the association, and the merry dance, mingled with laughter and social conversation by the pretty girls, continued till they were reminded that in fifteen minutes it would be Sunday.

Before twelve o'clock the hall was dark and showed no evidence to the late passerby that one of the most successful, social dances of the season had so recently become a matter of pleasant memories.

Robinson's orchestra furnished the music, Mr. Wilson, prompter. The floor was in charge of Mr. Thomas Raiche, aided by Mr. Martin Cunniff, Mr. W. N. Eaton, Mr. Joe Mullen, Mr. Wallace Todd and Mr. Samuel McKay. The following were present:

New Hardware Store.

The new hardware store of George Ames in the Adams building was opened to the public Monday night and there were many callers. The store is a very attractive one and Mr. Ames deserves success in his new enterprise. In the show windows are samples of hardware and plumber's supplies and at the right of the entrance a handsome bath room with tile floor has been fitted up. Next to this is a handsome counting room or office with black walnut furnishings. On the shelves upon the walls are boxes displaying samples of hardware and plumber's supplies of all description. For the opening night the store was prettily decorated with potted plants and ferns, while in one of the show windows was a beautiful floral horse shoe in red, white and blue, emblematic of good luck.

Honest Cycles at Honest Prices.

Realizing that this is a $50 Year in the Bicycle trade, the IVER JOHNSON ARMS AND CYCLE CO. of Fitchburg, Mass., have reduced the price of their wheels to meet the popular demand. These wheels have never sold before for less than $100, and while there are a few other makes that are as good, there is certainly nothing better.

Sharp Competition induces unscrupulous dealers to push and advertise an inferior wheel for the sake of greater profit. A cheap western wheel with a good coat of paint and a high sounding name may sell as well if the dealer allows $25 on an old wheel that is worth about $10. This is a great trade. After riding it for a season, however, the rider changes his mind and thinks of an old adage, "You can't get something for nothing."

You can't get a "trade" (?) of this kind on an IVER JOHNSON, but you do get an Honest Cycle at an Honest Price.

MANILA ACCEPTS INEVITABLE.

cord, Petrel and the Monicacy entered the bay under cover of darkness by the smaller and safer Bocachica channel. The forts of Corregidor island gave the alarm by firing on the intruders, but they seemed to have inflicted no serious damage. The American squadron moved up the bay, and at 3 o'clock in the morning appeared before Cavite. Here, lying under shelter of the forts, was the Spanish squadron.

"Admiral Montojo, a few days before, went to Subig bay to look for the enemy, but, learning that they were vastly superior force, had prudently returned and placed his ships under the protection of the forts. This was his only chance of meeting the enemy on something like equal terms, and it did not suffice.

"Soon the Americans opened fire. The Spaniards replied vigorously, and the combat continued without interruption for four hours, during which time the Don Antonio de Ulion was sunk, the Castilla and Mindanao were set on fire and the Reina Maria Christina and the Don Juan De Austria were seriously damaged. One or two smaller craft were scuttled by their crews to escape capture. Others took refuge in a neighboring creek emptying into Baker bay, where presumably the American ships were not able to follow them; but not one surrendered."

Will Not Intervene.

London, May 3.—The Vienna correspondent of The Times says: "In well-informed circles it is positively denied that the powers will intervene at this juncture; nor has any agreement been arrived at for mediation at any future time. The disparity of views is considerable enough to render highly improbable the co-operation of all six powers in any diplomatic step, either in Madrid or Washington."

German papers do not comment upon the American victory at Manila, but opinion prevails in political quarters that the United States has gained the prize it had in view.

A Delusive Hope.

Havana, May 3.—Yesterday was the Spanish national holiday in commemoration of the victory 90 years ago at Madrid over the French; and it passed off with considerable enthusiasm. The Spanish are confident that "soon will occur another glorious deed of valor against the stranger, thus perpetuating Spanish renown."

Martin C. Duarte, a Portugese, has presented to Mr. Gollan, in the latter's capacity as representative of American interests, a claim for $50,000 in gold and bank paper of the bank of Madrid, together with a claim for jewelry, clothing and other merchandise which he declares was taken by the crew of the American warship which captured the Spanish passenger steamer, Argonauta.

ANOTHER PRIZE.

Spanish Steamer on Which Were Soldiers and Lots of Ammunition.

Key West, May 3.—A colonel of the Spanish cavalry, eight lieutenants, a surgeon, and 10 privates and non-commissioned officers, and the steamer Argonauta have been added to the list of captures by the blockading fleet. Besides her passengers, the craft had a large cargo of arms and ammunition.

Her capture was exciting and occurred in this way: The Nashville, Marblehead and the Eagle left the station on the north coast last Monday to blockade Cienfuegos, arriving at the latter place on Thursday. They spent the day reconnoitering, and the next morning, in order to get better information, steamed close to the mouth of the harbor of Cienfuegos. The Eagle was to the eastward and in the van; the Marblehead was slightly in the rear and the Nashville to the westward. All were cleared for action.

At about 10 o'clock in the morning smoke was seen rising on the western horizon, and the Nashville, because of her position, put on all speed and steamed in that direction. Twenty-five minutes later she put two shots across the bow of the coming steamer, which promptly hove to. Ensign Kuenzli was sent with a prize crew of nine and took possession of the Spaniard. Learning that Spanish soldiers were in board, word was given to send them to the Nashville immediately as prisoners of war, and this was done. Arrangements were then made to transfer the passengers and non-combatants to the shore. The women and children were placed in the first boat and, under cover of a flag of truce, were soon bound toward the entrance to Cienfuegos. A second crew took the other passengers and landed them about 12:10 o'clock.

The Eagle hoisted a signal conveying the intelligence that she had been fired upon by Spanish boats coming out the river. The Eagle immediately returned the fire with her six pounders and held her ground until the Marblehead came up. Both vessels then fired broadside after broadside up the entrance to the river. The boats coming down were two torpedo boats and one torpedo boat destroyer. After 20 minutes' firing by the Eagle, the last two of which were participated in by the Marblehead, the Spanish boats ceased firing, and it is considered certain they were damaged. The Nashville brought in the prisoners of war, and the Marblehead convoyed the prize.

Japan's Friendliness.

Washington, May 3.—It turns out that while Japan has given notice she will declare neutrality, a decree is not yet actually issued, so that Yokohama and other advantageous ports of Japan continue to be open to the American fleet. This is looked upon by the authorities as an evidence of the friendly disposition of Japan toward the United States. It leaves both ports of Japan and China still open to our ships.

When the Japanese decree of neutrality is issued, there is a strong hope, based upon reliable information, that it will contain what is known as a "hospitable coal clause." This would afford ample facilities to warships to lay in necessary coal at Japanese ports to carry them to the next home port. While the privilege could be enjoyed by Spain as well as the United States, yet the effect would be of distinct advantage to the United States, as it is in Asiatic waters that the United States most needs hospitable ports for recoaling.

To Be Major Generals.

Tampa, May 3.—Brigadier General J. F. Wade and J. R. Shafter received telegrams from Washington last night informing them that the president would send in their names as major generals of volunteers today. Both will, it is said, accompany the troops to Cuba. It is the general belief in army circles that the command of the expedition will devolve upon General Schafter.

Blow at English Trade.

New York, May 3.—The British consul at Mexico City thinks that in the course of a few years the cotton mills in Mexico will be able to furnish the whole of the coarser cotton goods required by the country, thus striking a severe blow at English trade with the republic. As import duties constitute the backbone of Mexican revenue, the possibilities that the purchases of English goods may be reduced by at least half of the 42 percent of their total, which is now represented by cotton manufacturers, may not seem comforting to Mexican bondholders, but the government no longer holds the indigenous cotton industry to be in need of special protection, and no hardship would be entailed on the consumer were the fiscal burdens now borne by imported cottons to be transferred to those of home make as the latter replace the former in the market.

Thanks of Congress.

Washington, May 3.—Representative Grout of Vermont, of whose district Commodore Dewey is a native, has introduced this resolution: "That the thanks of congress are due and hereby tendered to Commodore George Dewey and the officers and seamen of the Asiatic squadron by him commanded for the heroism and skill displayed by them in the total destruction of the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Manila and the capture of the city and the planting of the American flag in the capital of the Philippines."

Rhode Island's Quota.

Wickford, R. I., May 3.—The first detail of the Rhode Island quota of 1000 volunteers arrived in camp at Quonsett point, North Kingston, last evening. The detail numbered 250 men, and arrived from Providence. The troops will be quartered in a building formerly used as a mess room by the state militia, and everything will be done for their comfort. The camp is in command of Colonel Rose, formerly of the state militia.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 3.—"One nightmare is lifted from American commerce," remarks The Journal. "The Manila fleet—now a tangled mass of charred and shattered hulks—can never be used to prey upon American shipping in the Pacific. It can never be transferred to the Atlantic to harry our shores or break the blockade of Cuba."

The Advertiser emphasizes the fact "that it is not the desire of President McKinley to have any needless slaughter or suffering result from the present war. The destruction of the Spanish fleet was practically necessary, but it will be found that no unnecessary war has been waged on defenseless people with the president"s approval or consent."

The Post says: "Our sailor boys at Manila seem to have very effectively 'remembered the Maine,' and the chances are that the Spaniards will remember Manila to the end of time."

The Globe says: "We have met the enemy on the other side of the world and he is ours. The Maine has been remembered 10,000 miles from Havana harbor, and the angry roar of cannon at the antipodes sinks to a murmured song of peace in the desolate valleys of Cuba."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 3.—In the house Monday the petition of Walter L. Ramsdell, mayor of Lynn, and others was offered, asking for legislation to authorize the formation of military companies other than the militia in time of war, such companies to be organized in such numbers as the governor and council may deem advisable.

A resolve to provide for representation of the commonwealth at the Paris exposition was ordered to a third reading after the adoption of an amendment cutting the appropriation from $20,000 to $6000.

A bill relative to voting in caucuses was engrossed. It prohibits a person voting in the caucuses of more than one political party in "the same calendar year" instead of "within 12 months," as at present.

The taxation committee reported a bill to provide for the election of assessors in towns and cities one-third for one year, one-third for two and one-third for three years, and providing for uniformity in assessments.

The anti-co-insurance bill was passed to be engrossed without debate.

The bill for the construction of a channel from Osterville bay to Vineyard sound was amended so as to provide that the channel shall be kept clear without expense to the commonwealth, and was then passed to be engrossed.

At an early hour this morning a fire was discovered in the law office of E. L. Guptill on the second floor of a 3-story brick building in Portsmouth, N. H., owned by John J. Pickering. The department were successful in extinguishing the fire after a damage of about $7000 had been sustained.

The efforts which have been making for 20 years to induce the Haytian government to accord the same trade and labor rights to Americans as to natives have at last proved successful. An agreement has been arrived at that there is to be no difference in the licenses. Americans are also admitted to the retailing privilege, heretofore restricted to the Haytians.

When a Japanese girl marries, she blackens her teeth, thus to a great extent marring and spoiling her beauty. American husbands would not dream of such barbarism, but on the contrary, want their wives to remain beautiful and attractive just as long as possible. In fact, every woman owes it to herself and society to preserve her beauty, attractiveness and amiability to the very end.

Thousands of women fail of this for one great prevalent reason. While they resort to every device to preserve their beauty of complexion by external applications and possibly take the best care of their general health, they are too frequently utterly neglectful of their health in a special womanly way. No woman can remain beautiful, attractive or amiable, who suffers from weakness and disease of the delicate and important feminine organism. A woman who suffers in this way will lose her clearness of complexion, her eyes will become dull, worry and pain will mark her face with wrinkles and she will become nervous, sickly, fretful and despondent. There is a sovereign remedy for all troubles of this description. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"My illness was caused by lack of medical attention during childbirth. It lasted for a period of three years, during which my suffering was almost indescribable," writes Mrs. Edith Petty, of Texanna, Cherokee Nat., Ind. Ter. "Owing to the injuries received—rupture, internal displacement, etc., I became a physical wreck. I was in a constant state of pain and nervous collapse. I became so nervous I feared insanity. My heart was affected and I had spells of palpitation and smothering. Was reduced in strength and could take no solid food. The doctors told me that recovery was impossible without a surgical operation. My monthly periods ceased entirely. My mother bought a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took twelve bottles. Thanks to an All-wise Providence and Doctor Pierce's medicines, the symptoms have all disappeared. I can now do a hard day's work, eat anything and everything I wish. I regard my recovery as permanent, for it is nearly two years since I stopped taking Dr. Pierce's medicines."

A Peculiar Accident.

Haverhill, Mass., May 3.—Arthur Sylvester, aged 25 years, employed in West Boxford as a farmhand, went to his work Monday and took with him a heavily loaded gun and placed it in an apparently safe position near a tree. Soon afterwards he had occasion to drive a wagon in that vicinity. The hub of a wheel knocked down the gun, which was discharged, the contents entering Sylvester's leg above the knee. A terrible wound was inflicted, and amputation of the limb was deemed advisable. The unfortunate man died before the work of the surgeons had been completed.

Work of a Cyclone.

Humansville, Mo., May 3.—At Jerico, Cedar county, a tornado killed 13 persons outright and fatally injured five or six more. The Methodist church and several houses were destroyed.

Twelve houses were blown over at Walnut Grove and one woman fatally injured.

Waubleau, a village in Hickory county, suffered seriously from the same cyclone.

"LET US HAVE CONFIDENGE IN GOD"

Words Used by Queen Regent of Spain In a Statement.

Hoping For Intervention by the Powers.

Says Every Humiliation Was Heaped Upon Her Country.

Critical State of Affairs at the Spanish Capital, Owing to the Manila Disaster and Political Intriguing—No Further News From the Successful Commodore—Probability That Supplies of Men and Munitions Will Be Forwarded From the Pacific Coast Very Soon.

Madrid, May 4.—"Everybody here is ready to shed the last drop of his blood to defend his country. Everybody is ready to do his duty to fight like a hero on the battlefield," the queen regent remarked yesterday despite the many mutterings of discontent to be heard throughout the nation. "The Spaniards are fighting for their country. The Americans are fighting, each for himself. That is why we are proud of Europe's encouragement. We have firm hope in the future. God knows that we did not desire war and did everything to avoid it."

"I can say that every kind of humiliation was heaped upon us by the United States, but everything has an end. The United States government said to itself: 'We can demand anything we choose from Spain, and, after some recrimination, we will obtain satisfaction, because Spain is poor and will never dare to face war.' Reasoning thus, they pushed us till we could go no further. Finally the rupture took place, to the great astonishment of the Americans themselves who had fallen into their own snare. They were so sure of holding us in their power through what they consider our great poverty that they were not ready to go to war. They are not ready now."

"They say, your majesty," said the correspondent, "that the real reason of the American minister's departure was not the one announced, that is, the Spanish government's refusal to receive the ultimatum."

QUEEN REGENT MARIA CHRISTINA.

"The reason given was, nevertheless, almost the correct one," was the queen's reply. "But previously, the United States minister had delivered this verbal ultimatum: 'Either Cuba must be pacified within 48 hours or else a rupture of diplomatic relations, that is war, will ensue.' Under these circumstances the reception of an ultimatum had become unnecessary. The American government gave way before the pressure of public opinion. That is the explanation of an otherwise inexplicable situation, because we had agreed to everything which we could. They knew that on the day the Spanish government granted autonomy to Cuba it was practically abandoning its very rights over the island. But now it is too late to argue. The time has come for acts, not words. Let us have confidence in God, confidence in the future. Who can say that Europe will not intervene after the first serious battle?"

The lower house assembled amid scenes of wild excitement unparalleled during the last 20 years. There were great crowds long before the deputies came together, and the galleries and lobbies were thronged. Intense excitement prevailed, and so fearful were the authorities of a public outbreak of violence that the full police strength of the city was put under requisition and the troops kept in barracks under arms. Scandalous incidents occurred during and after Premier Sagasta's speech, scenes that filled the moderate members with shame. The Republicans and Carlists shrieked abominable and insulting denunciations.

In the senate, Admiral Beranger, after an eloquent eulogy of the seamen who had died at Manila, offered his services to the government unconditionally.

Sanchez Toca violently protested against the breach of international law involved in the capture of Spanish ships by the United States warships before war had been declared, and characterized America's conduct as amounting to piracy.

The minister of the interior explained that a state of siege had been declared because certain elements had sought to turn the misfortunes of the country to their own advantage by trying to arouse political passions.

Marshal Campos offered the government his unconditional support.

Mgr. Herrea, cardinal bishop of Santiago de Compostel, said he spoke because he desired to "stir up the public mind against the cowardly Americans." He declared that the Spanish nation was the "victim of the power of gold."

There is no longer any doubt that the internal situation is causing the government almost as much uneasiness as the external. Monday night's demonstration was one of the most serious in some time, since those participating showed their revolutionary tendencies. Cries were raised of "Down with the Bourbons." "Long live Don Carlos," "Long live the republic" and "Long live Weyler." The first move of the demonstrators, over a thousand strong, was to the house of General Weyler, with the object of cheering him. He did not appear, and the crowd then went to the residence of Sagasta, where the ministers were in conference, and shouted in favor of his resignation. Aguilera, the civil governor of Madrid, broke up the procession with the aid of the police, who were badly stoned and had to charge the crowd. The authorities thereupon met Aguilera, who announced his intention of resigning, saying that it cost him great trouble to repress such manifestations, and that he was not able to answer for order with the powers at his disposal. Thereupon the edict was issued placing Madrid upder martial law, and the military governor, General Daban, received stringent orders from General Correa, the minister of war, for the preservation of peace.

The proclamation of martial law has caused much dissatisfaction, it being declared unnecessary unless the government has information of a secret conspiracy. The newspapers particularly are discontented with the state of affairs, as the mere mention of military operations is punishable severely.

Groups of people which gather around the spots where the proclamation is posted promptly disperse, laughing when they read the article prohibiting public gatherings.

The proclamation is couched in warlike language, beginning:

"Whereas, Spain, finding herself at war with the United States, the power of the civil authorities in Spain is suspended.

"Whereas, it is necessary to prevent any impairment of the patriotic efforts which are being made by the nation with manly energy and veritable enthusiasm:

"Article 1—A state of siege in Madrid is hereby proclaimed.

"Article 2—As a consequence of article 1, all offenses against public order, those of the press included, will be tried by the military tribunals.

"Article 3—In article 2 are included offences committed by those who, without special authorization, shall publish news relative to any operations of war whatsoever."

Then follow the articles which prohibit meetings and public demonstrations.

In the mob Monday night were many officers in uniform, who were foremost in inciting the people to attack the minister's residence and were loudest in calling for cheers for Weyler. There is no doubt these men desire to provoke the government into firing upon the mob and so to pave the way for its downfall. Some of them were arrested, but were subsequently released, the government fearing to let it become known that officers of the army formed a part of the mob.

While the streets were thus occupied great unrest was manifested at the various barracks and the soldiers were only prevented from joining the mob by the personal pleadings of the officers. The Republicans were even more busy than the officers in egging on the crowd and shouting: "Down with the queen regent." More than once they led the mob toward the royal palace, but each time the police drove them back. There is a general belief that a cabinet crisis is imminent and that it will probably end in a considerable modification of the present government, possibly in the formation of a national ministry under the presidency of Marshal Campos. In any case parliament is certain to be closed shortly.

Meanwhile the cabinet council is discussing the political situation in Spain. Admiral Bermejo, minister of marine, and General Correa are strongly in favor of an immediate suspension of the constitutional guarantees, a step which requires the closing of the cortes. The other members of the cabinet, however, consider this inconvenient at present.

DISCHARGING A DUTY.

Ex-President Harrison Talks Eloquently of the War.

Why God Makes a Man or a Nation Strong.

Nothing Selfish In the Movement In Behalf o the Island.

Indianapolis, May 4.—Now that the issue has been made up as to Cuba, General Harrison is no longer chary about expressing himself. Tuesday afternoon he spoke in the presence of 5000 volunteers at the camp in presenting a flag to battery A, and committed himself unreservedly to the policy of the administration.

BENJAMIN HARRISON.

"You have as a trained and organized militia a great advantage over the volunteers of 1861-2," said the ex-president. "Our foes now are not, thank God, those of our own household. That was a war for the life of the Union; this a war for humanity. That for ourselves; this for the oppressed of another race. We could escape this conflict. Spanish rule had become effete. We dare not say that we have God's commission to deliver the oppressed the world around. To the distant Armenians we could send only the succor of a faith that overcomes death and the alleviations which the nurse and the commissary can give; but the oppressed Cubans and their starving women and children are knocking at our doors—their cries penetrate our slumbers. They are closely within what we have defined to be the sphere of American influence. We have said: 'Look to us, not to Europe,' and we cannot shirk the responsibility and the dangers of this old and settled American policy. We have, as a nation, toward Cuba the same high commission which every brave hearted man has to strike down the ruffian who in his presence beats a woman or a child, and will not desist. For what, if not for this, does God make a man or a nation strong?

"We have disclaimed in the face of the nations of Europe, who are now dividing continents much as hungry boys might divide a melon, that we have no purpose to seize and appropriate Cuba. We go to set her free, to give to her people that which we have claimed and established for ourselves—the right to set up and maintain a government suitable to their own necessities, controlled by their own suffrage.

"We covet from her, as from all the nations of Americans, only the good offices of good neighbors and the fair and natural exchanges of commerce. We do not deny dominion to Europe in order to seize it for ourselves; but we may justly, I think, in the West Indies and in the far eastern sea, where our gallant navy has won so splendid a victory, hold some little unpeopled harbors where our cruising warships may coal and find a refuge when in distress. I do not doubt that speedily—though no man can set the times which God plans—this great work to which the United States has addressed itself will be completely and permanently accomplished."

The Divided Democracy.

Washington, May 4.—What promised to be an uneventful and uninteresting session of the house was changed suddenly after three hours' consideration of private bills into a session of spirited speechmaking among Democratic members that savored much at times of acrimony. The storm was precipitated by Mr. Lewis, who referred in the course of a speech to the recent vote of Mr. Cummings of New York in support of the war revenue bill with its bond feature. He made reference to Mr. Cummings' assertion that this period was a time for placing the country above the party, intimating that the New York member had served the Republican party and perhaps contributed to the satisfaction of unpatriotic monopolists and capitalists.

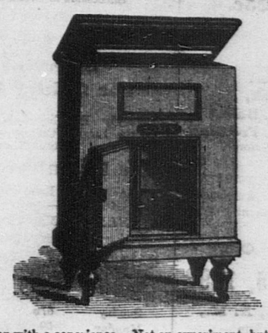

This brought an impassioned reply from Mr. Cummings, interspersed with sarcastic comments that intensified the interest and called an outpouring of members from the cloak rooms.

Mr. Clark entered the lists and criticised unreservedly the six Democrats who had voted for the revenue bill on its final passage and questioned their Democracy.

Messrs. Fitzgerald and McAleer, two other Democrats who voted for the bill, were heard in defense of their votes and in refutation of the imputations of the Missouri member. Just before the recess until the night session was taken, the leader of the Democrats, Mr. Bailey, spoke in depreeation of the speeches of the Democratic members as being subject to misconstruction, indicative of more serious difficulties within the party than really existed. He reviewed the record to show that no appreciable ground for such construction existed.

Honest Cycles at Honest Prices.

Realizing that this is a $50 Year in the Bicycle trade, the IVER JOHNSON ARMS AND CYCLE CO. of Fitchburg, Mass., have reduced the price of their wheels to meet the popular demand. These wheels have never sold before for less than $100, and while there are a few other makes that are as good, there is certainly nothing better.

Sharp Competition induces unscrupulous dealers to push and advertise an inferior wheel for the sake of greater profit. A cheap western wheel with a good coat of paint and a high sounding name may sell as well if the dealer allows $25 on an old wheel that is worth about $10. This is a great trade. After riding it for a season, however, the rider changes his mind and thinks of an old adage, "You can't get something for nothing."

You can't get a "trade" (?) of this kind on an IVER JOHNSON, but you do get an Honest Cycle at an Honest Price.

Good Afternoon.

It is gratifying to note that an attempt is being made on the part of the City Council to give the people sidewalks for which they have long been clamoring. They are needed if Quincy desires to keep up appearances with other cities about Boston. They are needed for the health and comfort of our people, especially the women and children that they may walk dry shod; that baby carriages may be pushed with more ease and with greater comfort to infants. They are needed to enhance the value of property on the street. No sum of money could be appropriated where it will make such a show for the expenditure as upon sidewalks.

The order calls for an appropriation of $25,000 and it is estimated that this will build 24,404 feet of continuous concrete walk with edgestone, according to the schedule found in the report of the City Council meeting. The order apportions the work fairly among the wards, providing for 6,524 feet in Ward One, 2,100 feet in Ward Two, 2,700 feet in Ward Three, 4,730 feet in Ward Four, 3,950 feet in Ward Five, and 2,400 feet in Ward Six.

This with the sidewalks voted by the Council of 1897 would give the city continuous sidewalks for several long stretches; one from Hancock street via Granite and Copeland streets to the West Quincy depot; Washington street from Coddington street to River street; one from City Hall via. of Hancock, School and Franklin streets to Independence avenue; and others at Wollaston and Atlantic.

A feature of the order which ensures an extension of the good work, is the provision "that such sum as will be returned to the city by said abutters be reappropriated for construction of such sidewalks and edgestones in the city as may be ordered by the City Council."

All About Hens.

Mrs. Blank of Wollaston Park has been annoyed by her neighbors' hens lately and while "shooing" an army of them from her yard one day last week, she having lost her patience somewhat, said, "I wish people would keep their darned old hens at home." The remark fell upon the ears of her little three year old, who was playing near by. The little one immediately assumed the role of special messenger and boldly walked into the yard adjoining, where the gentleman who owned the hens was workIng in his garden, and said, "Mamma says she wishes people would teep ar darn ole hens at home." Satisfied she had done her duty, she ran off to play. The lady hearing of it was obliged to employ considerable Spanish diplomacy to square herself with the owner of the hens.

There are in the United States, it is stated, 200,000 machinists, 10,000 toolmakers, 25,000 boiler makers, 10,000 pattern makers, 750,000 carpenters and joiners, 200,000 masons and bricklayers 50,000 contracters and builders 50,000 plumbers, gas and steam fitters, 150,000 stationary engineers and firemen, 100,000 locomotive engineers and firemen, 50,000 electric railway and light employes, 50,000 cabinet makers, carvers and woodworkers, 50,000 civil,mechanical, electrical and mining engineers.

"Honors of war" is the privilege allowed to the enemy on capitulation of being permitted to retain their arms. This is the highest honor a victor can pay a vanquished foe.

The many friends of Mr. Henry Chubbuck, will be pleased to learn that he is to be given a benefit by the Spiritualists of Quincy, at Faxon hall, on the afternoon and evening of May 5.

Although there is no oragnized society here, Mr. Chubbuck has worked untiringly for the cause, in the face of much opposition, for no financial consideration whatever; and the circle to be given on that date is a testimonial of the good will of those who have been benefited by his labors.

As this is the fiftieth anniversary of Modern Spiritualism there is to be a grand international jubilee at Rochester, N. Y., and the friends of Mr. Chubbuck hope to raise funds enough to send him as a deleagte from Quincy. The co-operation of all is earnestly requested in helping to make the occasion a pleasant one to all who participate.

PATRIOTISM.

Flags Displayed in All Parts of Quincy.

Everybody can not or does not want to go to war but everbody can and everybody should show their patriotism and arouse patriotism. One of the best ways to do this is to display the American flag and keep it displayed until Cuba is free and the blood-thirsty Spaniards are driven from American waters. Many people have already put out their flags but there are many as yet who have made no display whatever. In Quincy centre flags are displayed on City Hall, Coddington school, Quincy club, Bates block, Grand Army hall, stores of E. B. Souther, D. E. Wadsworth & Co., C. F. Pettengill, J. F. Merrill, G. F Wilson, Quincy Clothing store, T. L. Williams, Boston Bargain store and by Henry P. Kittredge, G. B. Bates, George Ames, Sanborn & Damon, Randall's hair dressing rooms and Orangemen's hall. Also at the High school building, residences of N. B. Furnald, John O. Hall, Jr., W. W. Adams, T. B. Davenport, A. G. Durgin, Dr. F. L. Jones, R. F. Claflin, J. D. Buckingham, Mr. Angell, the Public market, Patriot and Daily Ledger block, N. B. Furnald, H. E. Hardwick, Albert Keating, Thomas Kelly, Eugene Hultman, George Monk, C. Batson, J. Dorley, G B Pelos, Miss C S Hubbard, Quincy & Boston Street Railroad office.

The stone yard of E J. Qualey is decorated while another flag floats from the top of the derrick at the Quincy Adams depot. F. H. Crane & Sons have one on the top of their grain elevator and the windows at the Quincy Adams freight office are adorned with flags.

Other places to show flags are L. M. Pratt & Co. and J. D. Southerland's store at South Quincy. Adams, Lincoln and John Hanock school buildings, and the residence of Mrs. William Webb.

At Brewer's corner F. J. Pierson's store, and at the residence of Evan J. Evans.

At West Quincy flags are seen at Mrs. F. E Kimball's, and the Gridley Bryant school, and right here it might be asked what is the matter with the Willard school that it does not fly a flag?

At Wollaston and Atlantic many flags are flying including the Wollaston, Massachusetts Fields and Quincy schools.

At Quincy Point there are flags on the Washington school, Hose house, the residences of William Caldwell, Councilman Sidelinger, and many others.

At Quincy Neck flags are flying at the Albert A. Hayden's, B. F. Nay's, while several display small flags.

Of course the above list is in no way complete, as no special canvass has been made. Then flags are being put out every hour and it is impossible to keep up with the procession.

A New Assistant.

Mr. Richard Jones for the past two years the assistant at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. has left to accept an opening with the Tubular Rivet works. He was popular with the boys and will be missed at the Association. Mr. Victor Serberg, a member of the Association for some time, will succeed him.

BEAR IN MIND.

That the rents in Boston are enormous, from $2,000 to $25,000 a year, $40 to $500 a week, $6 to $85 a day, if you care to figure it down to that. This rent must come out of the profits. To pay big rents and big expenses, they must make big profits.

Bear in mind that our rent is just $2 a day, and that all our other expenses are correspondingly low.

Bear in mind that we will pay back money with or without reason.

That everything we sell is guaranteed.

We are selling clothing and furnishings 10 to 20 per cent. less than Boston stores simply because we are in a position to do business for less profit.

We have a variety of Suits, in Serges, Scotches and Plaids. These suits are marked in Boston windows, $10.00—made by the same makers, with the same cloth, the same linings, the same in every way but the price, $7.50.

We have better ones, too. Call and look them over and you may become our customer like many others who have lived in this city for years and years and always bought their clothing in Boston.

WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

The DAILY LEDGER now has correspondents in different parts of Weymouth, but solicits news from all citizens and invites correspondence on matters of local interest. News agents sell the Ledger.

A small party of Quincy people mounted their bicycles Monday afternoon and rode over to North Weymouth. Leaving their wheels in Mr. George Raymond's house they assended to the top of Great hill and enjoyed the grand view.

The concert given by Percy F. Baker, the well known baritone singer of this town, at the Baptist church, Tuesday night, was a grand success. Every seat in the main body of the church was taken and many were obliged to sit in the gallery. Mr. Baker was very ably assisted by Mrs. Eva L. Baker, soprano of the Nilsson Ladies' Quartette; Charles T. Grilley, humorist; Wulf Fries, celloist, and Lewis E. Tilden, Weymouth's accomplished pianist.

Each number of the programme was encored. Mr. Grilley captivated the audience at his first appearance, and Wulf Fries and his cello called forth a tumult of applause. Mr. Baker, Mrs. Baker, and Mr. Tilden are too well known in Weymouth to necessitate any comment. During the evening Mr. Baker was presented with a handsome bouquet of roses. The church was tastefully arranged with chairs, tables and rugs.

The following ushers attended to the wishes of the audience: Robert Orr, Ernest Vaughn, Bertram Dexheirma, Leo Mann, Maude Tinkham, Elice Foster, Margaret Foster and Isora Hender.

W. F. Sanborn lost a valuable horse Tuesday.

A large number of the citizens of this town have decorated their residences and places of business with the American and Cuban flags.

Unhealthy Meats.

The summer months will soon be upon us and our citizens should be on their guard against green veal and fowl treated with carbolic acid. Our city has heretofore been fortunate in this respect but with increase in population comes an increase in the number of dealers in this branch of business until it is not difficult to find quantities of poor provisions hung out in our very path and under our noses, so that we must turn out to avoid them. One person has recently been made sick by partaking of this kind of traffic and the family house dog to whom was fed a small share also became a victim of the same disease. Upon complaint to the dealer by the purchaser he got no satisfaction not so much as an explanation or apology.

Where are our health officers. Let them wake up some business night and they will be repaid by a rich harvest. This business should not be tolerated in this city, such stuff could not be exposed in any market in Boston and why should we suffer it to be brought here to endanger the lives of the community.

A novel parcel for delivery by express post was recently handed in at the Birmingham, Eng., postoffice. A workingman, who had been out of town with his 3-year-old child, arrived at Birmingham in time to reach his place of business, but not in sufficient time to take the child home. He, therefore, walked into the nearest postoffice and tendered the youngster as an express parcel. The authorities, under the rule regulating the delivery of live animals, accepted the child, and duly delivered it at the charge of ninepence.

Monday Evening Club.

Monday night was held the meeting of the Atlantic Monday Evening Club.

The programme which was carried out until a late hour was extremely interesting. It was an evening of American poets and the first number was a paper by Mrs. Wilson Marsh of Quincy on James Whitcomb Riley, Oliver Wendell Holmes and Eugene Field," read by the secretary. The paper presented the interesting characteristics of the three poets, constrasted their early environments, dwelt on their attractive personalities, their originality and unique position among America's poets of the "brightest fancy." It wasa treament of the subject thoroughly enjoyed by the assembly.

A discussion including the men and women poets, their homes, the principal dialect poets, the American epic, the most intellectual American poet, etc., followed, succeeded by the fifteen minute intermission of sociability.

Miss Emma Curtin gave an excellent account of the life and works of the musical composer Gounod and "Easter Eve" by Gounod was sung by Miss Bessie Drew with violin obligato by Miss Thomas, Mrs. Edwin S. Bennett of Wollaston, accompanying brilliantly at the piano.

The musical performance was exquisite, both vocally and instrumentally, and drew forth a burst of applause from the appreciative audience.

Miss Thomas played "Cavatina" by Raff and the "Gipsy Dance" by Ernst in her own delightful manner, and responded to the encore she received with a charming selection.

Miss Carrie Small of the Woodward Institute gave an elaborate and highly interesting address on "Current Events" filled with bright and witty allusions, and in the latter parts, more seriously considered the subject matter to be read in the daily papers. Miss Susie Hall and Mr. Walter Young were the committee for the evening.

Retirement of Pauncefote.

Washington, May 4.—Cable reports from London stating that the British ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote, would be succeeded by Sir Thomas Sanderson cause general regret in diplomatic circles. It has been understood that Sir Julian would remain here until next September, as the age limit for diplomatic service does not operate against him until then. Moreover, his service has been unusually notable and his term has been twice extended by the British foreign office. The settlement of the Venezuela question, the arbitration of the Behring sea question and the signing of the general treaty of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain are among some of the notable occurrences during his career. It is the general feeling in diplomatic circles that if Sir Julian retires he will be honored for his service in Washington by becoming a member of the peerage. Under the British diplomatic system an ambassador upon retirement receives a pension of $8500 annually, as against $30,000 annually while in active service.

Came to Be Disappointed.

Washington, May 4.—Labor Commissioner Powderly called at the war department yesterday to see Secretary Alger in behalf of a friend who seeks an appointment in the volunteer army. While waiting the commissioner remarked that the prospects of the present war seemed to have had the effect of increasing the immigration to this country. Many of those who came believed that the enlisting of a great number of men in the army would cause vacant positions that would have to be filled by others and acknowledged they had come here believing more work was to be had because of the war. The figures for March show that the increase in immigration for that month over the corresponding period of the preceding year was 6000.

Killed His Children.

New York, May 4.—A house on Morton street was the scene of a bloody tragedy Tuesday afternoon for which two causes are given—one by the author and the other by his friends. Jacob Gramm 50 years old, murdered two of his children, mortally wounded a third and inflicted fatal wounds on himself.

The children had been frightfully slashed with an ax. Their father had used a breadknife to gash his throat. A note found beneath the bloody ax, written by Gramm, indicated that his act was caused by jealousy of his wife. His friends state that he was temporarily deranged by intense suffering from rheumatism.

Boston Enthusiastic.

Boston, May 4.—There was considerable enthusiasm in the city this morning when some of the companies of the Ninth marched from the East armory via the State House and City Hall to the Boston and Albany depot. All along the route there was a dense crowd of people—men, women and children.

Gov. Wolcott, Lt. Gov. Crane, Adjt, Gen. Dalton and staff reviewed the troops at the State House, and the Governor acknowledged the flag salute. At City Hall Mayor Quincy and Messenger Leary reviewed the companies.

At the depot the crowd was so dense that the column approached it with some difficulty. Some pathetic scenes were mingled with the cheers when the troops embarked.

The most remarkable case of a letter posted in the overcoat pocket of a man with a short memory lately came to light in North Carolina. The wonder is that the overcoat, the letter, the owner of the coat, the writer and the addressee all outlasted the interval of 32 years between the lapse and the restoration of memory in the oblivious custodian of the letter. It was written in 1865. When discovered, in 1897, inquiry was instituted as to whether the addressee were still alive, which being found to be the case the letter was duly forwarded.

"LET US HAVE CONFIDENCE IN GOD."

because it would wipe out many years of the history of the Liberal party.

The events of the last few days have undoubtedly increased the popularity of General Weyler, who favors an out and out war policy. At the same time there is no real ground for anticipating that he will come to the head of affairs. Weyler is notorious, but not a prominent person in Spanish politics. Politicians and the people at large have been paying but little attention to him recently. His party is composed of a few persons of no very high standing. Moreover, everyone recognizes that Weyler's cruelty in Cuba and his policy as to the reconcentrados largely contributed to bring about the present state of affairs, while his alleged notorious laxity with regard to public money has made him much disliked. Public opinion is always likely to mistrust him, and he is unpopular with the queen regent.

The country is opposed to the idea of a republic. The people prefer Pretender Charles, or anything to such a change. They had enough of the republic in 1873. The indignation which is felt at present is not against the dynasty, but against the government and the politicians in general. If a military dictatorship should come, it would most probably be under the queen regent, and possibly General Martin Campos. Even General Polavioja has more chance than General Weyler. Such a dictatorship would take the form of conferring the premiership on one of these generals, with full powers.

WAITING FOR DEWEY.

Nothing Received In Washington Concerning Affairs at Manila.

Washington, May 4.—Nothing official has yet been received from Commodore Dewey, and nothing, in all probability, will be received for at least another day. The commanding officer of the victorious fleet at Manila may not attempt to send any reports until he has accomplished everything he has in view. The bombardment and occupation of the city of Manila is unquestionably a fact, and by this time Dewey has coal, supplies and repairing facilities at hand. He is also in a position to attend to his wounded, who will be placed in the hospitals in Manila erected for the care of the Spanish soldiers.

Commodore Dewey has all told about 2000 men, and it will be necessary to dispatch troops at once to reinforce him and hold the island. The phase of the question was discussed at the cabinet meeting, but it was decided that until the official report of the engagement arrived nothing should be done.

Meanwhile, the plans of the Cuban campaign are being steadily developed, and there is no indication of a change of purpose on the part of the military authorities, who are expected to land an expeditionary force in Cuba in a very short time. Admiral Sampson, so far as the navy department knows, is steadily maintaining the blockade of the Cuban coast and this is not likely to be abandoned for the present, though two or three of his ships may be sent away temporarily to meet the Oregon on her way to Cuba from Rio de Janeiro.

While the officials of the navy department naturally feel a warm interest in this race of the magnificent battleship around the continent, they profess to feel little anxiety as to the outcome, notwithstanding the current talk of an effort on the part of the Spanish flying squadron to cut off the Oregon. The vessel sailed on a course known only to the captain, and the chances of being overtaken on the high seas are very small. Even should the Spanish vessels fall in with her, it is by no means certain, notwithstanding their numbers, that she would be defeated by the combined Spanish force, as her magnificent armor and ordnance are superior in every respect, size and quality to those of the Spanish ships.

Adjutant General Corbin had a conference with the president yesterday concerning the nominations of major generals and brigadier generals. It is understood to have been decided to name General Shafter, who has been designated to lead the army of invasion into Cuba; General Fitzhugh Lee and General Wheeler, of confederate cavalry fame, as three of the major generals. It is regarded as probable that the president may also nominate General Woodford, former minister to Spain, to be a major general. Concerning the appointments of brigadier generals, it is said to be the purpose of the president, so far as possible, to take the candidates from the ranks of colonels in the regular army. This will disappoint some of the candidates for important commands. The exceptions, if any, are made, will be in favor of those states which furnish one or more brigades of troops. In such cases, it is believed the president will appoint as brigadier generals officers recommended to him by the governors of the states from which the troops come.

The Unspeakable Weyler.

Madrid, May 4.—An article written by General Weyler has appeared in a newspaper at Palma, capital of the island of Majorca, where Weyler was born and where his home is situated. The general expresses the opinion that if the government had been prepared Spain would now be covered with glory, for the "Spanish army and navy are superior in discipline to the Yankees, whose lack of discipline was manifested in the loss of the Maine." General Weyler accuses the Spanish government of weakness and concludes with making pessimistic predictions regarding the future.

First Heavy Artillery.

Boston, May 4.—The majority of the men of the First heavy artillery, now at Fort Warren, are ready for the United States service. Few of the men have been rejected for physical reasons, and those who are not to enlist are sidetracked for causes best known to the captains. It has been decided not to muster in the regiment until the whole number necessary has been qualified before the surgeons.

It is expected that two-thirds of the original regiment, as it was organized in the militia, will enlist. The one-third that will probably not enlist are men who have wives and families, and whose earnings are necessary for the support of their homes.

Related to General Weyler.

Key West May 4.—It appears that Colonel Vincent de Cortijo of the Third Spanish cavalry, who, with 19 other army officers, was taken on the Argonauta, is a brother-in-law of Lieutenant General Weyler. Colonel de Cortijo denies this, but it is learned from good authority that he sustains this relationship to the former governor general of Cuba. His captors are measurably elated. The Argonauta herself is no mean prize, being of 1000 tons burden; but the value of the capture lies mainly in the prisoners of war and the mail matter going to General Blanco. Her cargo is general merchandise, with a large amount of arms and ammunition intended for the Spanish troops in Cuba. The only other prize yesterday was a fishing schooner.

While the New York was lying at Matanzas, a sergeant of marines dropped his pistol, which exploded, the bullet striking William Taylor, first-class apprentice, and passing through his stomach and lungs. Taylor's condition is serious, but he has a chance of recovery. While the crew of the Cincinnati were drilling in the harbor a ball got mixed with dummy cartridges and J. Scomax, gunner's mate, was shot through the jaw.

At a Moment's Notice.

Tampa, May 4.—It is now almost certain that Brigadier General Wade will have active command of the United States troops in Cuba. Both Generals Wade and Shafter will, it is thought, accompany the expedition, but the latter, although the ranking general, will not direct the movements of the troops in the field. Arrangements for the embarkation of the troops are being pushed with the utmost vigor. Nearly every regiment in the camp had a rigid inspection yesterday, and instructions were given to have everything in shape for breaking camp on short notice.

It is hardly possible that the forces will be actually en route for Cuba before the first of next week, as but four of the necessary transports are as yet on hand.

War Revenue Bill.

Washington, May 4.—When the senate's finance committee adjourned last night there was no certainty when the work on the war revenue bill would be concluded. The Democrats had not offered any of their propositions, and the bond question had not been taken up with a view to disposing of it. The Democratic members of the committee do not appear to have yet agreed upon a substitute for the bond provision, but the present indications are that it will be a tax on corporations.

There is a suggestion favorable to removing the entire tax on beer. The only points of importance which are regarded as settled are that the tonnage tax will go out and that the tobacco tax provision will be so modified as to exempt stock on hand.

News of Boston.

Boston, May 4.—The annual session of the Massachusetts grand lodge, Loyal Orange institution, was held yesterday. The following officers were elected: S. G. M., John Shaw; first D. G. M., George Stewart; second D. G. M., Arthur Bentley; secretary, James Chambers; treasurer, John Turkington; chaplain, Charles S. Duncan; lecturers, M. A. Campbell and Charles F. McPhee.

The grand encampment of Odd Fellows of Massachusetts held a reception and banquet last evening and entertained the deputy grand sire of the sovereign grand lodge and representatives from all the New England jurisdictions. Grand Patriarch C. C. Fuller of Worcester welcomed the guests. Grand Patriarch Barr of New Hampshire brought the greetings of the patriarchs of the granite state, and Grand Patriarch Fish of Rhode Island spoke for the smallest state in New England.

The upper floors of a building in Fort Hill square were considerably damaged by fire last evening, and Kingsbury & Davis, dealers in electrical supplies, suffered a loss of about $6000.

The 15th annual session of the grand council, Home Circle of Massachusetts, was largely attended. The grand leader's report showed that during the past term two new councils had been instituted. Grand officers were also chosen.

At the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Hotel association these officers were elected: President, Albion T. Brownell, New Bedford; vice president, Herbert H. Barnes, Boston; secretary, William W. Davis, Boston; treasurer, J. W. Smith, Boston.

Another Banker Skips.

Carthage, N. Y., May 4.—E. H. Myers, president of the First National bank, has been branded as an embezzler and absconder by his colleagues in the directorate. Myers had always been identified with the best interests of the village, serving several terms as village president.

It seems that a depositor notified the bank last week that he would draw $3000 yesterday. Myers has not been seen since, but the books do not show such a deposit. Depositors in the savings bank are drawing out their money as fast as possible, but Cashier Peck has enough money on hand to meet all demands.

It is said that Myers placed fictitious names on the coupons and only deposited small amounts. It is also said that on Saturday a deposit coupon was presented calling for $3000. On looking into the books it was found that there was no such name. On that day there was a record of $100 being deposited, but a fictitious name was used. The defalcation amounts to $110,000.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 4.—The long expected debate on the adverse report of the committee on taxation on all recommendations of the special tax commission came off in the house yesterday, and resulted in a signal victory for the committee, as the only matter held up is the adverse report on the inheritance tax.

A determined effort was made to procure reconsideration of the inimical action on the petition of the Eastern Cold Storage company, but, while reconsideration was allowed, the necessary quota to secure suspension of the rules, a four-fifths vote, could not be raised.

The house bill prohibiting any deduction from the pay of women and children during the stoppage of machinery was passed in the senate to a third reading after considerable debate, and with an amendment fixing the fine for violation at $20 instead of $50.

The committee on rules is rather in a quandary what to do with the many and varied petitions that have been received looking to the maintenance of the salary of state, city and town employes who have rallied around "old glory."

TUESDAY'S BASEBALL.

Another Victory For the Beaneaters Over the Honorable Senators.

Washington, May 4.—Amole was wild at the beginning of yesterday's game and this, together with errors gave the victory to the Bostons. Reitz was Earned runs—Washingtons, 2; Bostons, 4. Stolen bases—Long, Duffy, Brown. Home run—Doyle. Double play—Tenny to Lowe. First base on balls—Off Amole, 3; off Willis, 5. Hit by pitched ball—Collins. Struck out—By Amole, 2; by Willis, 3. Wild pitch—Amole. Time—2 hours. Umpires—Curry and Snyder.

The Brooklyn and Philadelphia teams started to play two games yesterday afternoon. The first resulted in a victory for the Brooklyns, 9 to 6, but only four innings of the second game were played, when Umpire Connelly called the game on account of darkness. The score at that time stood 12 to 0 in favor of the Philadelphias.

The Cleveland and St. Louis teams played two games before about 100 people, and the Clevelands won, 5-2, 3-2.

The Louisvilles pounded Briggs of the Chicagos all over the field in the sixth and eighth, and pulled an almost lost game out of the fire by one run—10 to 9.

Gardner pitched a good game for the Pittsburgs and fielded his position well, but his support was slow. The men behind Dwyer of the Cincinnatis, on the whole, were snappy and quick, and they won by 5 to 2.

A Hundred Reasons.

Can be given why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the best and most effectual cure for every form of indigestion.

They are in Tablet form which retains their good qualities indefinitely, while liquid preparations become stale and useless with age.

They are convenient, can be carried in the pocket and taken when needed. They are pleasant to the taste.

After each meal dissolve one or two of them in the mouth and, mingling with the food, they constitute a perfect digestive, absolutely safe for the most sensitive stomach.

They digest the food before it has time to ferment, thus preventing the formation of gas and keeping the blood pure and free from the poisonous products of fermented, half digested food.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets make the complexion clear by keeping the blood pure.

They increse flesh by digesting flesh-forming foods.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the only remedy designed especially for the cure of stomach troubles and nothing else.

One disease, one remedy, the successful physicain of today is the specialist the successful medicine is the medicine prepared especially for one disease.

A whole package taken at one time would not hurt you, but would simply be a waste of good material.

Over six thousand men and women in the state of Michigan alone have been cured of indigestion and dyspepsia by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Sold by al druggists at 50 cents per package. 3t-2-4-6.

PREPARED TO MEET THE ENEMY.

Secrecy as to the Movements of Sampson's Vessels.

Most Powerful Detached From Blockading Force.

Belief That They Are Off to Do Battle With the Armada.

Plan Said to Comprise the Convoying of the Oregon and Sisters, a Fusillade or Two at Places on the Line and a Grand Sortie to Plant Old Glory In Porto Rico as an Incident to the Creation of a Second Manila—Future of the Regency Menaced In Many Directions.

Washington, May 5.—Spain's Atlantic fleet is not to be allowed to reach Porto Rico, or to approach the coast of the United States. Rear Admiral Sampson has perfected plans for meeting the enemy on the high seas, and giving battle at a time and place of his own choosing.

The successful issue of this battle may depend in large measure upon the Spanish admiral being kept in profound ignorance of the intention of the American commander, and being given the least possible time in which to escape or to prepare for battle. Consequently, the secretary of the navy and Rear Admiral Sampson have kept the details of the plan of operations a profound secret, and as the time for the movement against the Spanish ships draws closer, a censorship of telegrams from Key West has been established. This makes it impossible to obtain direct news of the movement of the armored ships under the immediate command of Rear Admiral Sampson.

All that is definitely known here is that the four most powerful ships in Rear Admiral Sampson's command—the New York, the Indiana, the Iowa and the Puritan—were ready for a prolonged sea voyage yesterday afternoon. Their coal bunkers were filled to their capacity, and additional supplies of coal were carried in bags on deck. Two colliers, carrying 8000 tons of coal, were ready to accompany them to sea. Reports that these vessels sailed eastward to meet the Spanish ships last night have not been confirmed. At the same time, Commodore Schley's squadron, at Hampton Roads, comprising the Brooklyn, the Massachusetts and the Texas, with two colliers, carrying 6000 tons of coal, is ready to sail at a moment's notice. Swift auxiliary cruisers are scouring the ocean in search of the Spanish fleet.

These facts all point to the theory that there is to be a union of the armored ships under Rear Admiral Sampson with those under Commodore Schley at a point in the ocean previously agreed upon, and that the scouts are to report to them there the location and direction of the Spanish ships. It is not believed to be possible that the Spaniards will be able to escape the scouts.

While everyone understands that Sampson hopes to do to Porto Rico and the Cape Verde fleet what Commodore Dewey did to Manila and Montijo's ships, stops may be made at Matanzas and Santiago de Cuba. It is believed that any repairs to the fortifications at Matanzas which the Spaniards have made since the bombardment of last week will be knocked to pieces.

Then the fleet may go around to Santiago, on the outskirts of which Garcia is pressing, and destroy the fortifications there. After that the warships are expected to pick up the Oregon, the Marietta and the Buffalo and go back to Porto Rico, the taking of which is considered a military necessity.

There are many hints of a landing party from Tampa, which will go on to Cuban soil under the guns of Sampson's detached fleet. The 800 marines on the Panther did not go with the fleet, but still are baking on their ship in the harbor. If troops are to be landed it is believed they will go from Tampa and join the detached fleet off the landing place. It cannot be guessed where that is, unless it is Matanzas, Mariel or Caibarien.

The warships are prepared for an unusually long cruise. Their magazines are overflowing with ammunition. They will be in fit condition to round up the Cape Verde fleet next week if it be that the Spanish warships are coming to Porto Rico at all.

It is believed here that the Cape Verde fleet cannot come on to Havana without a long stop in Porto Rico for coaling and outfitting. So there seems to be plenty of time to carry out the full program outlined for Sampson, including its grand finale of a second Manila.

The navy department has secured two vessels, the Australia and the City of Pekin, in San Francisco, which will be loaded with coal and supplies and rushed off to join Commodore Dewey's fleet. Whether or not they will carry troops will be determined positively when the commodore is heard from upon this matter. An exceptionally large stock of ammunition will go on the City of Pekin. The first shipment of projectiles left New York Tuesday and additional shipments will be made until the full quota of powder and shot will be in San Francisco. There will be a total of more than 20,000 projectiles of various caliber and weight. For the four big eight-inch guns of the Olympia there will be 500 eight-inch steel armor-piercing projectiles, weighing about 900 pounds each. For the six-inch guns of the Olympia, Baltimore and Boston and other ships, there will be 1000 projectiles. The other shipments will include about 10,000 six-pound rifle balls, 2000 five-inch shells, 3000 three-pound balls and 3000 one pound balls.

Are Now Major Generals.

Washington, May 5.—The senate, in executive session yesterday, confirmed the nominations of General Lee, General Wheeler, General Wilson and Senator Sewall to be major generals, sent in earlier in the day by the president. In the case of Senator Sewall the confirmation was immediate, the senate following its usual custom of acting upon the nomination of a member without any reference to committee. The other names were referred to the committee on military affairs and were almost immediately afterwards favorably reported, the committee's vote being taken in the senate chamber.

GENERAL JOE WHEELER.

Confirmation followed in all cases without comment except in that of General Wilson. Senators Bacon and Lindsay spoke of him in complimentary terms, Senator Bacon relating that during the war of the rebellion he had been captured by General Wilson, who was at that time an officer in the federal army while Mr. Bacon was a Confederate. He said he was therefore able to speak from experience when he testified to General Wilson's capacity as a soldier and his character as a man.

Dissatisfaction Is Growing.

Madrid, May 5.—Everywhere the dissatisfaction is growing, especially over the price of bread. Acts against authority are becoming more and more overt. At Caceres, capital of Estre Madura, the populace marched into the railway station to prevent the export of provisions and overpowered the soldiers. The mob captured 14 carloads of flour.

All Valencia is in a state of siege. At Catalan the rioters captured the mayor and town councilors, and demanded a ransom. On the mayor protesting, he was shot through the leg, after which the gendarmerie dispersed the mob. At Talevare the rioters were most determined, sacking many bakeries and setting fire to several government buildings. In the town of Agullas, in the province of Murcia, a mob, mostly composed of women, burned the storehouses and offices.

The fisherwomen who broke out against the octroi dues at Gijon received the most determined assistance from the tobacco girls. Together they sacked several bakeries and burned all the octroi offices, with all the papers belonging to the foreign ships loading in the harbor. The civic guard was hotly stoned at the prison, and the mob marched off with the iron bars of the jail. When the troops appeared they were hotly stoned, replying with a volley from their guns, wounding many. The mob then attacked the government buildings and smashed the windows. The troops again fired, this time from the balconies, and wounded many, but the women kept on throwing stones.

Many Liberals consider that Spain having maintained her honor and justified her chivalry, can now afford to yield to superior force; but it is doubtful whether public opinion would approve this line of action.

It is said that the government would be content to cede Cuba to the United States, but would not pay indemnity, because unable. Well informed politicians regard the war as practically terminated and that toward the end of May it will become history. What will follow, however, it is difficult to foresee. All the elements of a civil war in Spain are unfortunately becoming visible. The government and the Liberal party are popularly hated as being responsible for the war. The Republicans possess no durable chance of success. The Conservatives and Carlists are the great parties of the future, and some of the

LOST IN NEW YORK.

A Good Single That Put the Bostons In the Rear.

New York, May 5.—Rusie was himself yesterday, and his splendid pitching was a source of great encouragement to the faithful rooters who have been patiently waiting for a brace on the part of Joyce's men. If it had not been for the superb general playing of George Davis, however, the hustling visitors might have carried the day. As it was they held the advantage up to the last half of the seventh inning, only to lose it when Davis knocked out a double with the bases filled. The hit yielded three runs and the lead, and in the next inning Davis sent home two more runs with a timely single. Score:

To Annex Hawaii.

Washington, May 5.—Representative Newlands of Nevada has introduced a joint resolution for the annexation of Hawaii. It provides for the confirmation of the cession of the Hawaiian republic of all rights of sovereignty over the islands and their dependencies, and of cession and transfer to the United States of all public property and all its rights and appurtenances; assumes the Hawaiian public debt, not exceeding $4,000,000; prohibits further immigration of Chinese and appoints five commissioners, at least two of whom shall be residents of Hawaii, to recommend necessary legislation. The resolution declares the islands and their dependencies hereby annexed as a part of the territory of the United States and subject to the sovereign domain thereof.

Pending congressional provision for government of the islands, the present government officers of Hawaii are to continue under the direction of the president of the United States, subject to removal by him. Existing Hawaiian treaties with other countries are to immediately cease, being replaced by those between the United States and foreign nations.

"Hogged" by the Brewers.

Boston, May 6.—There is likely to be a clash between the disqualified hotel keepers of South Boston and the police board in the near future. The men who lost their licenses talk of being the victims of motives that were ulterior rather than evangelical. They say that they can show that one brewer alone has been given the control of 32 licenses, 21 of which have been held in abeyance until the "figureheads," otherwise called managers, have signed the papers necessary to give authority in the premises. The kickers talk unkindly about seven other deals who have been favored by the board in regard to a generous number of licenses. Already 948 licenses have been granted, this being but 45 licenses out of the maximum number, which is 993.

Honest Cycles at Honest Prices.

Realizing that this is a $50 Year in the Bicycle trade, the IVER JOHNSON ARMS AND CYCLE CO. of Fitchburg, Mass., have reduced the price of their wheels to meet the popular demand. These wheels have never sold before for less than $100, and while there are a few other makes that are as good, there is certainly nothing better.

Sharp Competition induces unscrupulous dealers to push and advertise an inferior wheel for the sake of greater profit. A cheap western wheel with a good coat of paint and a high sounding name may sell as well if the dealer allows $25 on an old wheel that is worth about $10. This is a great trade. After riding it for a season, however, the rider changes his mind and thinks of an old adage, "You can't get something for nothing."

You can't get a "trade" (?) of this kind on an IVER JOHNSON, but you do get an Honest Cycle at an Honest Price.

AT CITY HALL.

In and Out Among the Officials of Quincy.

The Board of Health completed its hearing Wednesday night in the case of the charges of Jules Johnson against Inspector Keniley. The complainant's case was finished last Friday evening. Tuesday evening Inspector Keniley was given an opportunity to submit his case, which he did, and when the hearing adjourned at 10 o'clock the testimony was all in. An adjournment was then taken until Wednesday evening when the counsel argued the case. The board then went into executive session and after some discussion it was decided that the charge had not been sustained.

Work has been commenced staking out on the east side of Washington street for the tar and concrete sidewalk provided for in the appropriation of $7000 made by the City Council of 1897 The new sidewalk will commence at the Universalist church and will be carried as far as the $1000 will do it.

In proportioning the sum of $25,000, which it is proposed to expend in permanent sidewalks the amount was proportioned among the several wards according to their valuation, although the lineal feet will not be in proportion for the reason that some sidewalks are wider than others, and some sidewalks already have edgestones. The per cent. and amount for each ward is as follows: Ward One 33 1-3 per cent. or $8,335; Ward Two 10 1-2 per cent. or $2,625; Ward Three 13 per cent. or $3,250; Ward Four 13 per cent. or $3,250; Ward Five 17 2-3 per cent. or $4,415; Ward Six 12 1-2 per cent. or $3,125.

The City Clerk reports that the dog licenses are coming in well, but not so fast as he would like to see them.

The Water Commissioners will meet tonight.

Flag at Wollaston.

Mr. Al. Williams of Wollaston who has been collecting money for a flag to be displayed at Wollaston has already collected over $70. He has purchased a 30-foot by 20 foot flag, paying $42.50 for it. The balance he wishes to put into a hundred foot flag pole, provided enough money can be raised to purchase one. It is probable that a public meeting will be held on Monday night to take the necessary steps to make the flag raising and others matters pertaining to it a patriotic celebration. "Remember the Maine."

C. E. UNION

Entertained Last Evening by Wollaston Society.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Wollaston Congregational church entertained in a very hospitable manner the members of the East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union at the church vestry on Wednesday evening. There was a large number of people present from the soc eties connected with Memorial church of Atlantic; the Bethany church of Quincy; the United Presbyterian of Quincy; the South Quincy Presbyterian, the Washington Street Congregational of Quincy Point; the Braintree and South Braintree Congregational churches; the Randolph Congregational church, and the Holbrook Congregational church.

The entertainment which consisted of music, readings and tableaux was in charge of a committee consisting of Miss Margaret Thompson, Miss Marion Nickerson, Miss Harriet Bates, Miss Avice Williams, Miss Mabel Winship and Miss Harriet Bates.

The entertainment was opened with a piano solo by Miss Winship, and there was also a reading by Miss Olive Shuman. The tableaux were as follows: Victoria, Miss Alice Thompson; May Queen, Miss Harriet Bates; Three Fates, Mrs. F. W. McArdle, Mrs. J. F. Stevens and Miss Alice Thompson; Hebe, Miss Grace Patterson; Diana, Miss Avice Williams; Rock of Ages, Miss Kate White.

At the conclusion of the entertainment refreshments were served.

Wollaston Objects.

Considerable opposition is manifested at Wollaston over the sidewalk order which was introduced into the Council on Monday night. Among other things this order provides for 3,950 feet in Ward Five. Of this 3,950 feet, it is proposed to build 2,900 feet or three-quarters of it at or near Wollaston Park and Norfolk Downs, leaving but 1,050 feet for Wollaston. As the Park and Downs contain but a fraction of the total population of the ward it is but natural that the leading citizens of Wollaston should be amazed at such an unequal apportionment and make a decided protest against its fulfilment. The apportionment is so eminently unfair that no extended argument is necessary to demonstrate why it should not pass.

Striking Picture.

Mr. Herbert W. Beattie, the well known sculptor, has added another triumph to his art in the model he has just completed of a large panel, which when cast in bronze will be placed on the soldiers' monument at Panna, Ill. The scene represents Lieut. Bayard Wilkeson holding Co. G of the 4th United States Heavy Artillery in position, while under a heavy fire at the famous battle of Gettysburg. The story is that this battery had just repulsed a severe charge of the Confederates but were wavering, and the horses were being brought forward to draw the battery to another position, when Lieut. Wilkeson dashed forward waving his sword on high and by his courage held the battery in line until the enemy was vanquished. The charge of the Confederates was a severe one and they suffered heavy loss and in the foreground are several of the enemy who fell during the conflict. At the left Lieut. Wilkeson is seen urging his company on, while in the rear, the prancing horses can be seen through the rising smoke. The whole forms a remarkably striking picture.

S. OF V. ENLISTING.

Will be Ready to Respond at Next Call.

Twenty-five of Camp 27 Have Signed Papers.

Feeling the High Duty Their Principals Inculcate.

At the present time members of the Sons of Veterans are everywhere besieged with the inquiry as to wh t the order is doing or propose to do in the present crisis.

The Ledger has today interviewed Melville C. Holmes, a past captain of Francis L. Souther camp of this city at an opportune time, as he was anxious to inform the general public of the exact position of the Sons of Veterans.

Several months ago, he said, when the relations between this country and Spain had not reached the acute state, the administrative branch of our order decided that it would be inexpedient to recommend any action that would have a tendency to reflect discredit upon the organization such as undue haste or expressions of sentiments which though sincere, might at that time have been considered mere bluster.

Every camp in the country was then notified of the decision of the Commander in Chief and instructed to refrain from any action until further orders.

That proper time has arrived and the Sons of Veterans today are fulfilling in every respect the high duty which their fundamental principles inculcate.

We realize that according to the very nature of the country's military structure the first call to arms of right ought to be and has been to our efficient National guard, the States militia and right here, in line with the purpose of this article, I take pleasure in stating on behalf of the patriotism of individuals of our order that many of our brothers are at present enrolled in the ranks of militia companies. I will mention but one instance (of which there are many) to substantiate the above fact. The Roxbury camp, S. of V., has twelve members in the State militia and one member in the Massachusetts Naval Reserves.

In the event of a second call for volunteers, which is one of th possibilities of war, the Sons of Veterans, propose to be in the front ranks, and to this end and with this purpose in view Colonel Couch of the Massachusetts Division has issued an order to every camp to hold special meetings for the sole purpose of enlisting brothers into the Sons of Veterans Regiment, which is to represent this State. Before Saturday night of this week this work will have been accomplished, and Governor Wolcott will have been informed that when needed he has at his command a regiment of sons of veterans ready and willing to uphold the honor and integrity of the nation.

Already over half of the required number has been enrolled. At the meeting of Francis L. Souther Camp 27, held Tuesday evening May 3, Captain Lincoln of Hingham (acting under orders from Col. Couch) was present, to receive the names of brothers desirous of enlisting. Twenty-five members of Camp 27 filled out the necessary papers and Captain Lincoln stated that by Thursday morning his district, which comprises Weymouth, Cohasset, Quincy and Hingham, would send into division headquarters the names of over 100 men.

Col. Henry Walker, the recent commander of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, has shown his interest in Quincy, his birthplace by presenting the Thomas Crane public library with two volumes of the history of the company, covering the period from 1637 to 1821. It is a very valuable book to members and their friends, as it gives the officers and doings each year, together with sketches of members.

Tenements rent quick if you advertise them in the Daily Ledger. If there is anyone in need of a tenement they will always turn to the Ledger to let columns, and select their tenement from those appearing in that column. Is your's there? If you have a vacant room, you can secure a desirable roomer by inserting a small to let ad in the people's paper. Tenements and rooms have right along been rented by advertising in the Ledger.

Rescued.

Onset, May 4th, 1898.

To the Daily Ledger:

Quite an accident happened here today, as a middle aged lady was about to step into a small boat she slide and fell into the water. As two gentlemen from your city were on the wharf at the time of the accident, they instantly jumped to her rescue, and if it had not been for them she would have been drowned.

The accident was witnessed by quite a number on a schooner laying in the bay, who could not give any assistance.

The two gentlemen who rescued her were Frank L. Merrill of Wollaston and Eugene H. Prouty of Quincy who are here at work painting the houses of Mr. M. W. Bray, superintendent of the Tubular Rivet and Stud Co.'s factory at Wollaston.

I take this means of informing you, as Mr. Merrill and Mr. Prouty think they only did their duty and wanted to keep it as quiet as possible and the lady they rescued thought they ought to be given credit for it and for this reason I write to you.

Respectfully yours,
JASPER L. TRAVERS

As the two girls were juveniles the hearing was a private one. The two girls were found guilty and their case continued two weeks for sentence. In the case of Ching Chong he was found not guilty and was discharged.

A letter recently came to a Georgia rural postoffice with the following address: "To my son, William, if he's keepin' Good Company, if he ain't, Please Return, as There's $2 in it."

The oldest piece of linen paper in existence, so far as is known, is a manuscript containing a treaty between the kings of Aragon and Castile. It is dated 1777, and is still in a fair state of preservation, retaining the ink very well.

BEAR IN MIND.

That the rents in Boston are enormous, from $2,000 to $25,000 a year, $40 to $500 a week, $6 to $85 a day, if you care to figure it down to that. This rent must come out of the profits. To pay big rents and big expenses, they must make big profits.

Bear in mind that our rent is just $2 a day, and that all our other expenses are correspondingly low.

Bear in mind that we will pay back money with or without reason.

That everything we sell is guaranteed.

We are selling clothing and furnishings 10 to 20 per cent. less than Boston stores simply because we are in a position to do business for less profit.

We have a variety of Suits, in Serges, Scotches and Plaids. These suits are marked in Boston windows, $10.00—made by the same makers, with the same cloth, the same linings, the same in every way but the price, $7.50.

We have better ones, too. Call and look them over and you may become our customer like many others who have lived in this city for years and years and always bought their clothing in Boston.

PREPARED TO MEET THE ENEMY.

Conservative groups are gravitating toward Carlism. The economic question, however, will come to the front first, for hunger cannot wait.

Future of Spain.

London, May 5.—The special dispatches from Madrid indicate that the question of the future government of the country is beginning to be discussed as if the figures of the queen regent and King Alfonso had already disappeared from the stage of Spanish politics. General Weyler is dubbed "the Spanish Boulanger," and in some quarters military dictatorship in his hands is regarded as probable. The wider opinion is that he will not succeed any better than Boulanger did.

The continental press notices the broadening political ambition of the United States, coupled with the increasing friendship between Great Britain and the United States, with ill-concealed aversion. Intervention rumors are again in the air. It is absolutely certain that Spain has taken no steps in this direction; nor is she likely to do so until she has suffered a reverse on the Atlantic. It is believed that there have been exchanges of views between the powers on the subject of the Philippines, as to which all kinds of speculation are afloat. None of the powers like the idea of the United States becoming a near neighbor of Japan, and the fear of further victories is likely to give a cohesion in which the powers hitherto have been sadly lacking.

Christina May Abdicate.

London, May 5.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "The idea of the resignation of the regency by Queen Maria Christina is being seriously considered by the members of the imperial family of Austria, with a view of averting an anti-dynastic movement and saving the throne. An exchange of ideas on the subject is going on between the queen regent and her Austrian family, but its most influential members are decidedly opposed."

Leader of the Weylerites.

Madrid, May 5.—Public attention centered again yesterday in the lower house of parliament. There was a repetition of the great crowds of Wednesday, the police and civic guards, besides the secret police, mingling with the people. The galleries were packed. Prominent senators occupied seats beside deputies on the floor of the chamber.

Romero Robledo, former minister of justice and leader of the Weylerite faction, maintained that America fostered the Cuban rebellion and "meant war from the commencement." Moret's policy of autonomy he characterized as a farce and as absolutely erroneous. As for the Cubans, he declared that they did not desire autonomy; and as for the rebels that they never intended to accept it. "The present conflict," he continued, "proves the real intentions of the Yankees. Spain must now face her international enemy, and she should not waste a single peseta to give the Cubans autonomy, which would be one step toward independence. The war requires the energy of all classes to defend the king and the fatherland."

In the course of the debate a formal promise was made on behalf of the old conservatives to support the government while the present situation continues.

Bombarded Cienfuegos.

New York, May 5.—A Key West special to The Press says: Cienfuegos has been bombarded. Not only did the Marblehead silence the batteries of the town on the afternoon of April 29, but shelled the town itself, playing havoc with the buildings and driving thousands of the inhabitants to the interior.

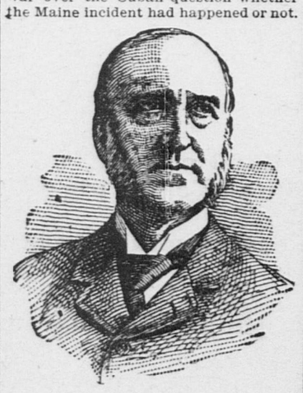

Eleven Percent Rejected.

South Framingham, Mass., May 5.—Of the total number of the Second regiment examined yesterday, which included companies C, D, E and F, about 11 percent of the men were rejected. Of the line officers of the regiment all but five passed the examination successfully.

A dispatch was sent to Washington by Lieutenant Weaver, stating that the equipment of the different organizations is so good, the war department will not have to furnish anything additional for sometime.

"A Glorious Alliance."

Cleveland, May 5.—Chauncey M. Depew, who was here yesterday, said: "I am of the opinion that if President McKinley had been left to himself we should have had no war. The trouble is that in congress there are a number of men who are clamorous for a fight. I do not think they would go to the front, but war talk is sometimes excellent political capital. Sooner or later they would have embroiled the nation in a war over the Cuban question whether the Maine incident had happened or not.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

"Now that we have engaged in war I believe it should be prosecuted with a vigor worthy of a better opponent. The contest should be made short, sharp and decisive, not solely with a view to a speedy victory over Spain, but because of the object lesson it would afford European powers. They will respect us more if they see that when we engage in a fight we are a united people, with but one end in view, and that the upholding of our national honor.

"I believe that the friendship of the English people for us, which has been so cemented during the present crisis, will result in something more than a mere understanding between the two nations in the future. It would be a glorious alliance—that of the two great Anglo-Saxon races standing together for humanity and peace."

He Knows Manila.

New York, May 5.—Roundsman Patrick A. Meehan of the Brooklyn bicycle squad has received permission from the police commissioners to serve in the war. He served for two periods in the navy and was one of the most expert gunners.

Meehan has been often in the harbor of Manila. He said in regard to the recent engagement between the ships of Admiral Dewey and the Spanish fleet: "The greatest miracle of it all, to me, is the wonderful manoeuvring of the vessels in the inner harbor. The water there is very shallow. It requires an expert to navigate the treacherous waters. The Americans must have had some insurgents on board who knew the harbor well, and were able to locate the shoals. These shoals are more dangerous to a vessel of the tonnage of a cruiser than batteries or torpedoes. With all that, Dewey had to contend against, it is really wonderful what he did. The Spanish vessels stood still because they had no expert pilots, and besides that they could not manoeuvre well."

Spy With Drawings.

Philadelphia, May 5.—One of the crew of the St. Paul, which is being fitted out as an auxiliary for the United States navy at Cramp's shipyard, was detected in trying to gain admission to the magazine room of the vessel, shortly before midnight Wednesday, and is now lying in double irons, awaiting the action of Captain Sigsbee.

He was first noticed acting suspiciously on one of the coal bunkers, and a guard was placed over him. When searched, drawings of the vessel were found secreted about his clothes.

The name of the suspect is Howard Hannan. He is about 30 years old. He claimed that he was an Austrian and came to this country in 1881. Hannan also said that he was a painter and had given up his job to enlist on the St. Paul. At the examination Hannan strenuously denied that his intentions had been hostile to the ship, but a rough draft of the interior of the vessel, showing the location of her magazines and engines, was found in his possession. He has not been placed in irons, but a strict watch is maintained over him. He will be put ashore at League island navy yard to be dealt with as the government authorities deem proper.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 5.—The Globe says: "Apparently the American warships are going out to meet the advancing Spaniards and show them the way—to hades."

The Journal believes it "well to remember that the real fighting strength of the Spanish fleet still remains to be encountered."

In The Post's judgment "one would think that Spain ought to be satisfied with the annihilation of her Asiatic fleet; but if she persists in wanting more, if she undertakes to hurl her Atlantic fleet against the navy of the United States, the only thing to do is to meet and crush her."

According to The Advertiser "It lies within the power of the queen of Spain today to secure peace at a single stroke. It has been within her power ever since the dispute between Spain and the United States began."

"On Guard."

When disease shoots the first arrow the truly wise man will come instantly on guard. He will not wait for the attack. He will not hesitate until the full force of disease and misery and death comes crashing about him.

When a man begins to feel "out of sorts," when his appetite is failing and his energy is not up to the mark, when he has bilious attacks and a feeling of lassitude and incapacity, if he is wise, he will take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery right away. It will bring his appetite back again, and what is more it will bring back his digestive powers. It will give all the assimilative functions the edge and power to extract abundant nourishment from the food he eats. It will make good, pure, healthy blood and send it coursing rapidly through his veins and arteries into every organ and tissue of the body. It will put flesh on his bones and force in his muscles; it will give him strength and courage and cheerfulness, in a word it will give him complete health.

It excretes from the system every particle of dead, useless, flabby tissue. It even reduces the weight of the corpulent man at the same time that it builds up his strength and working power. The weight it adds to people who need it is the kind that comes of pure blood and every organ doing its work properly and thoroughly;—what pugilists call "fighting weight."

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

VOL. 10. No. 106. QUINCY, MASS., FRIDAY, MAY 6, 1898. PRICE 2 CENTS.

Honest Cycles at Honest Prices.

Realizing that this is a $50 Year in the Bicycle trade, the IVER JOHNSON ARMS AND CYCLE CO. of Fitchburg, Mass., have reduced the price of their wheels to meet the popular demand. These wheels have never sold before for less than $100, and while there are a few other makes that are as good, there is certainly nothing better.

Sharp Competition induces unscrupulous dealers to push and advertise an inferior wheel for the sake of greater profit. A cheap western wheel with a good coat of paint and a high sounding name may sell as well if the dealer allows $25 on an old wheel that is worth about $10. This is a great trade. After riding it for a season, however, the rider changes his mind and thinks of an old adage, "You can't get something for nothing."

You can't get a "trade" (?) of this kind on an IVER JOHNSON, but you do get an Honest Cycle at an Honest Price.

Sampson Out to Challenge the Enemy.

NEARING PORTO RICO.

Head of the Blockade Chafed at Inaction.

SOME ANXIETY ABOUT DEWEY.

Singapore Dispatch Says He Is Governing the Islands.

Washington, May 6.—With their prows pointing eastward, the noble fleet under Admiral Sampson has gone forth to battle. Somewhere in the ocean, coming westward, unless the navy department officials are greatly mistaken, is the Spanish squadron of four cruisers and three torpedo boat destroyers.

It is a far stretch of a thousand miles from Key West to Porto Rico, but Sampson's ships will have covered half of that distance today. By Sunday it ought to be in the neighborhood of Porto Rico with the officers on the bridge, glasses in hand, and scanning the horizon for the approach of the ships of the enemy.

Admiral Sampson's destination is not known for a certainty. There is little doubt, however, that it is Porto Rico. Among the officers of the fleet this is the only opinion held. While the big ships were here they came ashore in great numbers, and freely discussed the prospective movements of the fleet. For a week they have been daily expecting the fleet to move to Porto Rico. Orders for the big ships to return to Key West to coal was to be the signal. While here the news of the victory of Dewey came. It was a spark to fire the ardor long expressed. Impatience broke out. Admiral Sampson sat on the flagship and fretted and fumed. He burned to emulate Dewey.

It is well known among the fleet officers that Sampson has chafed dreadfully under the restraint imposed by his superiors at Washington. Manila broke his temper and his bonds. On Monday and Tuesday some hot correspondence passed over the cable between Admiral Sampson at one end and Secretary Long at the other. The result is not positively known, but the admiral let it be known among his subordinates that he had obtained at least discretionary permission to do somethnig.

In stationing Rear Admiral Sampson's force between Key West and Porto Rico, the war board had in view the protection of the cities of the Atlantic coast, and the prevention of any attempt on the part of Spain's ships to break the blockade of the Cuban coast. The vessels which he took with him from Key West include the battleships Indiana and Iowa, armored cruiser New York, monitor Puritan, and several cruisers and converted torpedo boat destroyers. While quite a formidable force has been left behind, including three monitors, the Amphitrite, Terror and Miantonomoh, their slow speed would prevent them from coming up with the enemy, and it was, therefore, necessary to place the armor-clads within striking distance, should the enemy put in an appearance in their rear.

There was some anxiety regarding Dewey, but it is coupled with the belief that he is holding his own. The fourth day of anxiety and doubt in the navy department communicated its paralyzing influence to the officers and civilians in the war department. Word from Manila was anxiously but vainly awaited. At the same time it was realized that he would not send a cipher dispatch to file at Hong Kong until he had finished his work and could spare the services of a vessel to take it the 628 miles from Manila to the British cable port.

Naval officers believe that Commodore Dewey is holding back his report until everything has been done at Manila which will be possible without reinforcements. Those who know him here believe that he fears that the department might hamper him in what he is doing, and that in consequence he will not open communications with Washington until the American flag is flying over the islands. Some officers are inclined to take a rather dark view of the fact that no message has yet been received, thinking that the delay is caused by the fact that Dewey has not yet accomplished the destruction of the forts and the surrender of the city. This view is not generally entertained by them, most officers believing that the tardiness of news from him points to the fact that his losses have been small and that the ships are in a condition for continued service. So great is the anxiety to learn what has been done in Manila that a dispatch was sent to the American consul at Hong Kong, through the state department, to use his best endeavors to obtain any facts as to the condition of affairs in the Philippines, and to wire the department at once any news he may receive.

The expedition to Cuba is in readiness for departure, and so soon as it shall appear the safe and proper thing to do, the landing party and materials for the insurgents will be sent to the island. It has been directed that the greatest care be exercised at Key West to keep the movements and departure of vessels and transports from reaching the enemy. To this end the artifices of war are exercised and those who seek information are effectually deceived. A man who is in a position to know said Thursday that the first of the invading force would be on Cuban soil within 24 hours.

Brazil has declared its neutrality. There is no cause to regret such action on the part of Brazil, for however beneficial the delay has been to the United States in getting its warships safely along the Brazilian coast, the issue of the proclamation just now is likely to be still more beneficial in closing Brazilian ports to the Spanish flying squadron if it should be headed in that direction. It may be noted, however, that while the first reports were received with little credit, the advices, though not conclusive, inclined the officers to be belief that the Spanish flying squadron really has turned back from Cape Verde to consolidate with the home squadron at Cadiz.

News From Dewey.

Boston, May 6.—At the banquet of the Electric club last night a member read a dispatch from a friend in Singapore as follows:

"Reliable information received here corroborates the news of Dewey's victory, and he is now executing the duties of governor general there."

Why They Were Delayed.

London, May 6.—A Paris correspondent says: "I hear on indisputable authority that five of the Spanish warships, including the Pelayo and the Alfonso XIII, have not yet been supplied with ammunition. This was the cause of the delay in the sailing of the Cape Verde fleet, and will probably compel it to return to Cadiz."

The Liberal, in a gloomy article which notes the "subterraneous rumblings preceding social upheaval," declares that "the fate of the country cannot remain longer with the weak hands and worn-out intellects of the men now governing the country."

Apartments For Christina.

London, May 6.—A Vienna correspondent says: "Apartments have been reserved at a hotel here for the queen regent of Spain in case she arrived before apartments have been prepared for her in her brother's palace.

"Telegrams from the Austrian ambassador at Madrid (Count Dubsky) indicate that the queen regent is only waiting for a suitable moment to quit Spain without detriment to the interests of her son."

A Target For the Enemy.

Madrid, May 6.—The debate on the government's policy was resumed yesterday, the sitting being mainly occupied with the continuation of Robledo's speech. He severely criticised the government for its lack of foresight and, after putting various questions to members of the cabinet as to the government's plans, he announced that he would ask the cortes to vote an income tax. He asked why, after issuing from the bay, Admiral Montojo returned to Cavite, "thus becoming a simple target for the enemy."

Admiral Bermejo, minister of marine, replied that Montojo acted entirely at his own discretion, no instructions having been sent him. Bermejo declined to answer a question as to the whereabouts of the Cape Verde squadron.

At a cabinet council, over which the queen regent presided, the premier explained the war situation and announced

HISSED THE CHAIRMAN.

Hot Time at a Council Meeting In Boston.

Democratic Majority Reduced by Absenteeism.

President's Rulings Vigorously Denounced by the Republicans.

Boston, May 6.—The meeting of the common council last night broke up in wild confusion, after being in session for less than an hour. In the midst of angry exclamations, catcalls and a few mingled hisses by Republican councilmen because the president ruled against them in declaring an adjournment, President Connolly stepped down to leave the chamber.

As Connolly walked out he was surrounded by many Republicans, who demanded that he take the chair again and order a rollcall on the motion to adjourn. This he refused to do. He paid no attention to the exclamations of the Republican members, and left them in possession of the chamber.

Councilman Bigelow of Brighton, who presided a week ago in the absence of the president, was appealed to by a dozen or more of the Republican members to take the chair, but he declined. They tried to induce Councilman Norris to do so, but he supported the president, as did the Democrats, with a few exceptions. No Republican would take the chair, although nearly all were anxious to get someone to do so.

Failing to have the meeting called to order again, the Republicans left the chamber for the aldermen's room to hold a caucus. They invited the Democrats to attend, but only two did so. At the caucus President Connolly was roundly condemned by several Republican members for his decision in adjourning the meeting and for previous rulings since he became president.

The president retired to his own room. He did not think the unusual demonstration due to any fault of his. He said the Democrats were with him, and the trouble resulted from partisan feeling, started by only a few men. The trouble arose over a vote taken on the public baths amendment. The amendment was supported by Mayor Quincy and called for giving to the recently appointed bath commission control of all baths in the city and custody of the bathhouses. Debate on the measure showed the Republicans almost unanimously opposed to it.

When put to a vote it showed that they were in control of the council for the evening. Many Democrats were absent. The order was lost, 30 to 23. A Democrat moved reconsideration, and an amendment was offered asking for assignment of consideration for a week. The president then called for the roll of those present to ascertain the attendance. This showed 59 members, according to the statement of President Connolly.

When the motion to assign reconsideration was put the Republicans succeeded in defeating it. At this juncture the trouble arose. After several members had made speeches, and while the question of reconsideration was before the council, a member moved adjournment. President Connolly called for the yeas and nays. The Republicans shouted "No" in tones that rang through the chamber, if anything louder than before. It could not be ascertained if any Democrats voted no.

President Connolly declared adjournment carried. A number of Republicans in the third section, which is almost solidly Republican, jumped to the floor, doubted the vote and asked for a rollcall. President Connolly gathered up his papers and started to leave the chamber. By this time all the Republicans were clamoring for recognition and a rollcall. Seeing that President Connolly would not change his decision, they commenced jeering at him, shouting for fair play, and a few hissed. This made the president more determined than ever and he strode out of the chamber.

Quincy people compliment the Ledger upon its war news. They say that the brief bulletins published daily give all the actual news, and that they have a better understanding of the situation than they do after reading the pages of contradictory reports and comments in the big Boston dailies. The Ledger is a member of the American Press Association and receives all the important dispatches.

Bradford Manuscript.

The editors acknowledge today the receipt of a prize, having been presented by Representative Newcomb with a printed copy of Bradford's History of Plimoth Plantation." It is from the original manuscript and is printed under the direction of the Secretary of the Commonwealth by order of the General Court, together with a report of the proceeding incident to the return of the manuscript to Massachusetts. It contains also fac simile of the original volume and a few of the pages and excellent engravings of The Bishop of London, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Ambassador Bayard, Senator Hoar, Governor Wolcott and Governor Winslow.

The local historian will delight to read of the arrival of "Captain Wolastone," the revelry of Morton and his dealings with the Indians, etc. The volume makes nearly 600 large pages and the manuscripts cover the period from 1600 to 1640, beginning, it will be seen, before the landing of the Pilgrims and continuing until after the incorporation of Quincy as the town of Braintree in 1640. The history will be sold by the State.

—A warship out of ammunition may run away from an enemy and avoid a conflict, but a steamer out of coal is likely to be captured. The Spanish fleets, operating so far from their base of supplies, since coal has been declared contraband of war by neutral powers, are placed at great disadvantage. But so long as our squadrons remain near Cuban waters, a short run of a few hours will reach a coal supply.

WANT ABATEMENT.

Adams Chapter Think Adams Houses Should Not be Taxed.

Since the formation of Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution in this city they have accomplished considerable work. In 1896 they erected a cairn on Penn's hill to the memory of Abigail Adams at a cost of over five hundred dollars and now they have restored the birthplace of John Adams at a cost of between five and six hundred dollars. As more money comes in to the treasury the Chapter hopes to do considerable patriotic work in the city, among the schools and in marking and preserving historical places.

As Adams Chapter has no income to carry on its work except from membership dues it hopes to get the city to be patriotic enough not to tax the John Adams birthplace and the following communication was sent to the Assessors Thursday:

Chairman Board of Assessors, Quincy, Mass.:

Dear Sir: I wish to make an application to your Board for an abatement of the taxes upon the estate known as the birthplace of President John Adams, upon Franklin street, Quincy.

This property has been placed in the custody of this society to be used for educational purposes only. The small revenue to be derived from the exhibition of house will barely suffice for suitable care and maintenance.

As this house is one of the most famous in the Commonwealth, and is to be used as a museum, and for patriotic and historical purposes only, the Chapter hereby requests that the taxes assessed upon the property may be omitted. Very truly yours,

L. B. TITUS,
Regent, Adams Chapter D. R. of Quincy.

A Surprise.

On Thursday, May 5, C. E. Richardson, one of Quincy's popular young men, having attained his majority, the members of Camp 27, Sons of Veterans, of which he is an esteemed member, tendered him a surprise at his home, 13 Gay street.

A delightful evening followed, in the course of which Past Captain M. C. Holmes in a few well chosen words presented Mr. Richardson, in behalf of the members of the camp, with a nice pocket-book. The reciprocant expressed himself as being very appreciative of the testimonial and being so agreeably surprised.

The boys never forgot to do full justice to the excellent collation prepared by the happy parents of "our new citizen," and wound up a thoroughly enjoyable event by singing patriotic songs with a vim that would put to flight, a Spaniard.

A Delightful Recitation.

One of the most interesting parts of the programme of the Atlantic Monday Evening club for May 2, was that occupied by Miss Howells of Omaha, a recent graduate of the Emerson School of Oratory. She entertained the club most delightfully with several recitations from James Whitcomb Riley and Eugene Field, including "That Sweetheart of Mine," "Nothin' to Say," "Life's Lesson," "Seein' Things at Night," "Little Boy Blue," and "Picnic Time," and concluded with a scene from "Hamlet" in which she displayed remarkable talent and skill in her impersonation of the several characters, giving the audience a finished performance they will recall with much pleasure.

Spiritualist Benefit.

Interesting meetings of Spiritualists of the city were held Thursday afternoon and evening at Faxon hall, when a benefit was tendered to Henry Chubbuck, a prominent believer. Among the speakers were Mrs. Millan of Cambridge, William King of Wollaston and Mrs. Bonney of Weymouth. There was music by Mr. and Mrs. Phelan and Miss Emma Johnson, and readings by Mr. Hosea Johnson, Mrs. Pierce and Miss Russell. Between the afternoon and evening sessions a supper was served.

AT CITY HALL.

In and Out Among the Officials of Quincy.

The following is a copy of the notice sent out by the Board of Health on their finding in the Keniley case "That after hearing the petitioners and the respondent and the witnesses offered by each, and the arguments of the counsel of said parties, we find and deem that no sufficient cause has been shown for the removal of J. J. Keniley the inspector of plumbing and he has the full confidence of the board."

The Managers of Public Burial Places met Thursday night and transacted routine business.

A civil service examination for inspectors in the Sewer department will be held at City Hall next Wednesday.

The board of Water Commissioners met Thursday evening. No business of importance was transacted.

The Assessors are now at work in Wards One and Two.

People who have business with the city should remember that commencing tomorrow City Hall closes at 12 o'clock on Saturdays.

There was no meeting of the Board of Assesors this morning as the gentlemen comprising that board are now on their annual trip.

Hearings of the City Council on the widening of Hancock street and changes at the corner of Washington and Canal streets are advertised.

Wollaston Sidewalks.

Councilman Jameson who presented the sidewalk order in the City Council this week has been interviewed by the Ledger relative to the reported opposition at Wollaston, in that the sidewalks of that ward were not to be built where most desired. Mr. Jameson explained that the order was somewhat hurriedly drawn to bring the subject before the City Council at an early date. That he had requested the Commissioner of Public Works to outline the plan locating the sidewalks where most needed. If ward delegations think that other sidewalks should be given the preference they will have an opportunity to amend the order. Thus the sidewalks were apportioned by a disinterested party, and it seemed to him that the selections were admirable. It is not the intention that the building of sidewalks shall stop with this appropriation, it being but the beginning. It is contemplated at first to build sidewalks on the main thoroughfares and Beale street at Wollaston is certainly one of these.

Conductor Assaulted.

John C. Faircloth, a conductor on the Weymouth line of the Quincy & Boston street railway, it is alleged, was roughly handled Wednesday night by Amos Bennett, Jeremiah and Angus Pitts. The story as reported, is that Bennett and the other men boarded the car a King Oak hill, Weymouth. Some dispute arose over the paying of a young girl's fare, between Bennett and the conductor, which resulted in Bennett striking the conductor a blow in the face. It is then alleged that the two Pitts also took a hand in hammering the conductor. Someone stopped the car and the motorman came back and quelled the disturbance. A warrant was sworn out and the three men were place under arrest.

TODAY'S COURT.

The liquors seized from Antonio Naccerio at Quincy were forfeited.

Amos Bennett of Quincy was arraigned for assault and battery on John C. Faircloth, a street railway conductor. Case continued until Saturday morning.

Jeremiah Pitts and Angus Pitts were arraigned for assault on John C. Faircloth at Weymouth. They were found not guilty and were discharged.

MILTON.

On and after Sunday, May 8, the evening service at the Mission of our Saviour church, at Ellsworth hall, will commence at 7.30 o'clock.

The assessors are getting in their annual work appraising property.

William Clark, the Ledger and Patriot agent at East Milton, has moved his store to the new building on Adams street, opposite Bugby block. Besides newspapers for sale he will serve ice cream and refreshments.

Many flags from private buildings testify to the patriotism of Milton people.

George Frank Kemp one of East Milton's well known and popular young men, reached his majority April 29, which he celebrated in a royal manner; entertaining at his home the members of the East Milton Athletic Association, of which he is an active and prominent member. The evening was passed in a pleasant manner with games and music, both vocal and instrumental. A freedom supper was also served and Mr. George was presented with a number of presents, including a handsome scarf pin from the association.

The debate to have been held last week by the Thursday Evening club was postponed a week on account of the severe storm.

Long Service.

The Boston & Albany railroad has set a good example for other corporations to follow. They recently discharged four of their employes who had grown grey in their employ and had now become incapacitated from further duty. In discharging these men the officers expressed their appreciation for their faithful services and presented each of them with a check for a year's salary. The oldest employes now of the road are Mr. Fay a conductor, and Seth Ellis, an engineer, both of whom have been in the employ of the road for 55 years and Mr. Benjamin King of Wollaston a machinist who has been in the employ of the road for 52 years.

Inlaid With Kisses.

Several Wollaston friends of ex-President and Mrs. C. M. Bryant, met under electric light on Wednesday evening and rehearsed the following production.

To the lady of Frogmore, all hail!
Your home we are here to assail,
We are bound to get in,
Don't stand there and grin,
For our fun you will surely curtail.

We bring you a host of good wishes;
We've nothing in silver or dishes;
But here's a wee chair,
We think it quite rare,
'Tis mahogany, inlaid with Kisses.

Accept it as pledge of our friendship,
It surely can never be hardship;
For each is your friend,
On this now depend;
Then take it, O take it, your worship.

This was the salute they gave when in sheet and pillowcase they appeared at the residence of the Bryants, and nearly frightened them out of their senses. But a very jovial evening was spent.

—The cry for a national song is again heard in the land. With our cosmopolitan population and vast territory, the difficulty of finding a composition suited to every need and every taste is a very real and present one, and one that is not met with in the European countries, which are held up to us as models of patriotism. However, the Musical Record fondly believes that a national song will be forthcoming; and in the meantime we will get along with the "Star Spangled Banner" and "America," which seem to answer nearly every purpose.

The regular meeting of the House Committee of the Quincy Yacht club was held at the Adams building on Thursday evening. A lot of miscellaneous business was transacted and these dates for club entertainments were fixed: Thursday, May 26; Friday, July 8; and Thursday, Aug. 11.

The reception to Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Wilder Tuesday evening at the West Quincy Methodist church was largely attended. It was strictly an informal affair to afford the parishioners an opportunity to meet their new pastor. Miss Shirley made the welcome address to which the pastor responded. Light refreshments were served.

The Rev. J. E. Waterhouse, the pastor of the Wollaston M. E. church will deliver an interesting address on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock on "Remember the Maine, or the Modern Hero." There will be patriotic music and a collection will be taken in aid of the Maine Monument Fund. The public are cordially invited to take part in the service.

No game seems to furnish such opportunities for disputes as base ball, and it may not be surprising if nines composed of small boys quarrel, yet we expect something better in the school league. The Coddington nine complain of very rough treatment in their game Wednesday at West Quincy with the Gridley Bryant boys. Sympathizers of the home team were allowed to interfere with the Coddingtons and the umpire and scorer were assaulted. The visitors pluckily played out the game under protest and the score was 19 to 14 against them.

French Liner Captured.

Key West, Fla., May 6—The United States gunboat Annapolis has made a big capture, seizing the French transatlantic liner Lafayette which was attempting to run the blockade and each Havana. The Lafayette had the full complement of officers men and crew and several passengers. It also carried a large cargo. It is said France will raise the issue that the seizure was unlawful as the Lafayette did not carry guns, but the point does not appear to be well taken.

Two Silver Senators Side With Democrats.

Tax on the Earnings of Various Corporations Agreed Upon.

Washington, May 6.—Senator Jones of Nevada has taken a position practically against the bond proposition, and Senator Wolcott has indicated that he will oppose it if an acceptable substitute can be secured. The Republican members are quite disturbed over the discovery of his position and are considering how to best repair the breach occasioned by his probable defection. They were not so greatly surprised at Mr. Jones' position.

The proposition on which Wolcott and Jones voted with the Democrats on the committee on finance was a general declaration to the effect that the revenue bill should provide more than $100,000,000 in revenue. On this the two western senators aligned themselves with the Democrats and in opposition to the Republicans. The declaration was construed by the Republican members as in opposition to the bond provision.

SENATOR JOHN P. JONES.

The Democrats have agreed upon an amendment imposing a tax of 1 percent upon the revenues of certain corporations, including railroad, express, sleeping car, telegraph and telephone companies. This probably is the only addition they will suggest to the revenue portion of the bill, but it is probable that they will also urge the coinage of the silver seigniorage in the treasury and the issuance of at least $150,000,000 in greenbacks These latter propositions have not been agreed upon, but they have been discussed sufficiently to warrant the prediction that they will be incorporated in the Democratic substitute for the bond feature of the bill. The seigniorage amounts to about $4[illegible]-000,000, and the intention is to authorize the issuance of certificates for it so as to secure immediate money and not wait upon the coinage of the silver. The certificates with the greenbacks would give $192,000,000 of immediate cash, and the Democrats think this would be sufficient for the immediate wants of the government. They believe that the tax they propose on corporations would increase the regular revenues to the extent of about $5[illegible],000,000 annually.

FOUR DELIVERIES.

Senate Considers That Number to Be Enough For Any City.

Washington, May 6.—During the senate's consideration of the measure appropriating about a hundred millions for the postal service, Mr. Tillman offered an amendment providing that no more than four mail deliveries should be made in any city during any one day, and that any amount thus saved should be converted back into the treasury. Mr. Hoar antagonized the suggestion, holding that it amounted to class legislation. The many deliveries of mail in large cities, he pointed out, were not so much of advantage to the residents in the compact parts of the cities as to the people who lived outside the hurry and bustle of city life. In fact, it was one of the conveniences of civilization which enabled the comparatively poor man, those whom the advocates of the amendment apparently desired to assist, to reside outside the city and get the purer air of the country. Mr. Quay's motion to lay the amendment on the table was lost, and the amendment was adopted. In view of the adoption of the amendment the amount appropriated for free delivery was reduced from $13,085,400 to $12,000,000.

A lively debate was precipitated by an amendment of the committee striking out the appropriation of $300,000 for rural delivery. The proposition was discussed for nearly two hours. By the close vote of 25 to 22, however, the committee was sustained and the bill carries no appropriation for such delivery. An important amendment will prevent star route contractors from sub-letting their contracts. In order to get their money they must be able to swear that they performed the service themselves.

The Alaskan bill, extending the homestead laws to and providing for certain railway rights of way in the district of Alaska, was passed by the house. The labor arbitration measure providing for the arbitration of labor disputes between employes and certain common carriers, a bill which has been endorsed by labor organizations throughout the country, received approval.

It provides that in case a serious controversy concerning wages, hours of labor, or conditions of employment shall arise between a carrier subject to the act of the employes, the chairman of the interstate commission and the commissioner of labor shall, upon the request of each party, endeavor amicably to settle the dispute by mediation, and in case the endeavor shall fail then the controversy may be submitted to arbitration a board of three persons, each [illegible] controversy to name one the next Prohibitionist candidate das six 6 inch breech[illegible] the two thus named to Massachusetts. WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

The DAILY LEDGER now has correspondents in different parts of Weymouth, but solicits news from all citizens and invites correspondence on matters of local interest. News agents sell the Ledger.

Capt. Wildes who commanded the Boston at Manila comes of good old New England stock. His great grandfather, Brig. Gen. Solomon Lovell of North Weymouth, commanded the defences of Boston during the Revolution. His grandfather, Capt William Wildes was lieutenant of the old frigate Boston. His maternal grandfather, Ithamar Rice, participated in the Lexington fight, and did yeoman service during the earlier years of the Revolution.

What's In a Name?

New York, May 6.—Once more has Lillian Russell changed her name. By a decree of Justice Olcott, on and after June 5 next, the actress will be legally known as Lillian Leonard Russell. In reality she is Helen Louise Chatterton, wife of John Chatterton, otherwise "Signor Perrugini," actor. This marriage has not been annulled by the courts.

In her petition to Justice Olcott, Mrs. Chatterton says that she is an actress, and that among her friends and business acquaintances she is known as Lillian Leonard Russell. As all her theatrical contracts are made under that name, "the name has become a valuable trademark."

Bodies Horribly Mangled.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 6.—John Monohan, Stephen Jenkins and John Titus were repairing the lining of a shaft at Duryea which had been damaged by a cavein. Heavy timbers were being lowered into the shaft, when the ropes attached to them slipped off. The loss demolished he platform upon which the three workmen were standing, and precipitated them into the bottom of the shaft, a distance of 300 feet. The men were killed, their bodies being horribly mangled.

Concourse of Children.

New York, May 6.—Over 500 children from the parochial schools of New York paid tribute to Archbishop Corrigan at St. Peter's cathedral yesterday afternoon. The gathering was a part of the second day's program of the silver jubilee of the archbishop's episcopate. Under the direction of the Rev. John J. McKean, pastor of St. James' church, the children sang songs of praise.

Won by the Turk.

Cleveland, May 6.—A wrestling match between Tom Jenkins and Yousouf, the Turk, was won by the latter after a game contest. Yousouf got the first fall in one hour and one minute. The second fall was awarded to the Turk at the end of 11 minutes. Jenkins claimed a foul, but the referee would not allow it. The decision caused a vigorous protest from the spectators.

His Feet on the Floor.

Lynn, May 6.—John Butler of this city fought a 12-round draw with Robert Allen of Boston last night. There was an agreement at the start that if both were on their feet at the finish it should be a draw. Allen kept away for 11 rounds, and then in the last knocked Butler almost out. The latter clung to the ropes and had his feet on the floor when time was called.

Mimic Battle.

Baltimore, May 6.—During a mimic battle in Canton between American boys representing the United States and Polish boys representing Spain, John Keprofsky, one of the Poles, was shot in the abdomen with a rifle by one of the Americans. Keprofsky is dead, and 11 youngsters have been arrested on the charge of causing his death.

Woman's Leg Broken.

Boston, May 6.—There was a serious accident last night at the Somerville avenue crossing of the Fitchburg railroad, by which eight people were more or less injured. One woman's leg was broken, and others were injured by some of the passengers falling on them. The side of the electric car was crushed in by the rear of a switcher.

Test Vote on Income Tax.

Washington, May 5.—Quite unexpectedly a brief but sharp debate was precipitated in the senate yesterday on an income tax. The resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution relating to the succession to the presidency was under discussion. Mr. Mills proposed an amendment in the form of a new section intended to authorize congress to lay a tax on incomes in such form as to meet the requirements of the decision of the supreme court. He was sharply criticised for endeavoring to place such a rider on a resolution which practically all senators favored, but stood his ground and insisted upon a vote on his amendment. The amendment was defeated, 32 to 29, all the Republicans voting against the amendment and all the Democrats except Mr. Caffery, together with the Populists and silver Republicans, voting in favor of it.

The joint resolution, which was adopted, read as follows: "In all cases not provided for by article second, clause fifth, of the constitution, where there is no person entitled to discharge the duties of the office of the president, the same shall devolve upon the vice president. The congress may by law provide for the case where there is no person entitled to hold the office of president or vice president, declaring what officer shall act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability shall be removed or a president shall be elected."

The house adopted the conference report upon the fortifications bill. The remainder of the session was consumed with the consideration of the Alaskan land bill and a resolution for the repeal of an act prohibiting the passage of importations in bond through the territory of the United States into the "free zone" of Mexico. The latter was passed, but the Alaskan measure went over.

The opening article of the NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE for May is upon "Municipal Art in the Netherlands," written by Allen French. This is a companion article to that on "Municipal Art in Italy," by the same author, which appeared in the March number of the magazine.

Dr. Lewis G. Janes contributes a valuable article on "Samuell Gorton of Rhode Island," a striking character in our colonial history to whom historians have heretofore done scant justice.

"Some Professional Swimmers," by William Everett Cram, is a delightful study of the habits of the musk-rat, mink, otter, and other skilful swimmers. The author is a young naturalist who has already contributed to the magazine several interesting articles on the birds of New England. He furnishes his own illustrations, the drawings in most cases being from life.

"The Evolution of the American Fishing Schooner" is carefully traced by Joseph William Collins, of the United States Fisheries Commission.

The May issue of TABLE TALK contains much good reading as well as helpful information. "The Edible Weeds and Grasses," are discussed by Miss Cornelia C. Bedford, who also ably conducts the departments of "Housekeepers' Inquiries" and "New Menus and Seasonable Recipes," being an authority on all culinary and household matters.

The Woman's Home Companion now ranks with the Ladies' Home Journal as one of the best women's monthlies and it is sold for fifty cents a year. The publishers are a prominent Ohio firm, Mast, Crowell and Kirkpatrick of Springfield. In the May number Lilian Bell accurately pictures Southern life in "Yessum," the initial story of the May WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION. In the way of a fascinating love story Mrs. Burton Harrison has never written anything more pleasing and successful than "The Three Misses Benedict," which is concluded in this issue. A timely article discussing "The Patriotism of Cuban Women," by Thomas Gold Alvord, relates many instances of the dauntless courage and patriotism of the wives and daughters of the insurgents.

ALL AT SEA.

the safe arrival at Porto Rico of the Spanish Transatlantic company's steamer Alfonso XIII, having on board, it is said, reinforcements of troops and a very valuable cargo, including ammunition and supplies.

The Havana Blockade.

Key West, May 6.—The conditions of the Havana blockade remain unchanged, the line being rigidly kept by the Montgomery and other cruisers under Captain Converse, who is still in temporary command. Captain Lyons of the Dolphin, which has been cruising for 11 days along the western coast of Cuba, says there is great activity on shore throughout that section, especially in Bahia Honda. Groups of Spaniards can be seen working on improvised fortifications of all kinds. Earthworks have been thrown up all along the coast, and apparent preparations against invasion are being made.

During her cruise the Dolphin held up 18 vessels, all of which were released except the fishing schooner Lolo. The Dolphin had previously taken the Lolo, but had released her on the captain's promise to go in shore and remain there. Not long afterwards the Dolphin again found the Lolo cruising and apparently signalling information to someone on shore. The Spaniard was then captured, despite the captain's protestations that he was not signalling.

Never a Defeat.

Havana, May 6.—Colonel Devos fought an insurgent band Tuesday which had 10 of its number killed, among them being Leader Nunez, and 23 were taken prisoners, together with a quantity of arms, ammunition and medicine. The Spanish column, which completely destroyed the camp, had four wounded.

At Palayo village a body of Spanish cavalry had an engagement with the insurgents under General Maximo Gomez, the latter leaving four dead on the field and the Spanish one. The government troops had an officer and seven soldiers wounded.

At Loma Cruz the local guerillas surprised a body of insurgents, killing 10. Two persons were killed and two wounded by an explosion in a sugar refinery at Cardenas.

Did Spy Apply the Match?

Baltimore, May 6.—News reached this city Wednesday that an attempt had been made to destroy the government magazines at the Indian Head proving grounds, on the Potomac river, 25 miles below Washington. A pile of wood containing thousands of cords located near the magazines was destroyed by fire of an incendiary origin Tuesday night. Suspicious characters had been seen about the neighborhood, and it is believed that a spy in the employ of the Spanish government had something to do with applying the torch.

Staff Officers Passed.

South Framingham, Mass., May 6.—Of the staff officers of the Ninth regiment who were examined not one failed to pass, while only three of the line officers were rejected. They were Captain D. M. Crotty of Charlestown, First Lieutenant Matthew E. Hines of Worcester and Second Lieutenant Cornelius Murphy of Boston. The men of the regiment are jubilant over the fine showing of their officers.

James Crowley of the Ninth slipped and fell on the parade ground and broke his leg.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 6.—"The corner has been turned," says The Globe, "and the nation already is on the road to peace. Notwithstanding it is only 15 days since the beginning of hostilities every man who can see beyond his nose even now is discounting the end."

The Advertiser says: "It is true that the president's demand led to war, but only because Spain was misguided enough to persist in a policy which has already left her in a worse position than she would have occupied had the president's demand been granted."

The Post sets up that "there never was a war, since firearms were invented, so unselfish as that upon which the United States has embarked, so clearly in the cause of humanity without the least taint of self-seeking, without the shadow of mercenary ambition."

The Journal suggests that "the public should not let its longing for a short war make it forget that up to date the administration has managed affairs magnificently."

A Hundred Reasons.

Can be given why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the best and most effectual cure for every form of indigestion.

They are in Tablet form which retains their good qualities indefinitely, while liquid preparations become stale and useless with age.

They are convenient, can be carried in the pocket and taken when needed. They are pleasant to the taste.

After each meal dissolve one or two of them in the mouth and, mingling with the food, they constitute a perfect digestive, absolutely safe for the most sensitive stomach.

They digest the food before it has time to ferment, thus preventing the formation of gas and keeping the blood pure and free from the poisonous products of fermented, half digested food.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets make the complexion clear by keeping the blood pure.

They increse flesh by digesting flesh-forming foods.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the only remedy designed especially for the cure of stomach troubles and nothing else.

One disease, one remedy, the successful physicain of today is the specialist the successful medicine is the medicine prepared especially for one disease.

A whole package taken at one time would not hurt you, but would simply be a waste of good material.

Over six thousand men and women in the state of Michigan alone have been cured of indigestion and dyspepsia by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Sold by al druggists at 50 cents per package. 3t-2-4-6.

DUE TO SEYMOUR.

Substitution of That Player Defeated the Boston Nine.

Boston, May 6.—Jouett Meekin of New Albany, Ind., the young man for whom the "Banks of the Wabash" was written, and in past years one of the very speediest pitchers known to the game, was the tosser selected by Captain Joyce to down the Bostons yesterday, but Captain Bill guessed again in the third inning, when it was evident that Meekin had no speed to fool the Bostons. Cy Seymour, the left-hander, with wide, sharp curves, slant balls and inshoots, was called to do the honors for New York, and from the third to the finish Boston found runs scarce, and never scored thereafter.

JOUETT MEEKIN.

Seymour gets the credit of winning the game for the New Yorks, but he didn't get away with it without a strong protest from Captain Duffy. Herman Long was the first man to face the Albany youth, and struck out, not hitting at the third one. He was watching Seymour's gyrations, and as Cy made a clean jump in the air from off the rubber it was plainly illegal. In the seventh, when Cy was doing his hop, step and leap. Captain Duffy asked Umpire Lynch how it was. Lynch answered: "Off the rubber," but that was the limit so far as warning was concerned. Score:

The defeat of the Tauntons by the neighbors from Brockton, 10 to 4, is easily explained. Wolff gave bases on balls and was pounded so hard in the second inning that he was replaced by McGamwell, who was unable to overcome the lead.

The league games scheduled in Brooklyn, Cleveland and Cincinnati were prevented by rain.

Killen was taken out of the ball game in Pittsburg when the fourth man faced him, after making an error, giving a base on balls and allowing two hits to the Chicagos. The game was called at the end of the sixth inning on account of rain. Score: 4 to 4.

The New Bedfords played a fast game against the Newports and won easily, 8 to 5. Sechrist had the Newport players at his mercy up to the last inning, when he let up.

The Pawtuckets trounced the Fall River team in a well-played game. The Smith family were never in it after the sixth inning when four singles, a home run and a base on balls netted six runs. Score: 12 to 8.

The Providences defeated the Torontos, 12 to 8, in a game in which hits were well bunched on both sides. They mixed called balls and good hitting for seven runs in two innings against Foutz, and McFarland was substituted. They made five runs against him and won.

MASKED ROBBERS.

Two of Them Fail In an Attempt to Rob a Hotel.

Portland, Me., May 6.—Twenty-five or more travelling men sat about the office of the West End hotel last night when the door of the ladies' entrance opened and two men wearing workingmen's overalls and masked stepped in. "Hold up your hands," they commanded, as they levelled their guns at the men sitting around the office.

Edward Anderson, an elevator boy, and Charles Adams, a bellboy, who were talking together, were knocked down by slungshots in the hands of the burglars, who then turned their attention to the men in the office. George M. Perry of Boston, who represents the Holbrook Manufacturing company of New York, saw the highwaymen knock down the boys and started across the floor towards them. He was ordered to hold up his hands, but instead of doing so he attempted to grab one of the fellows. At this moment Perry was felled to the floor by a slungshot in the hands of the other robber, and when those in the office saw this they made a break for the doors.

Walter Castner, the night clerk, had loaded his revolver when the two boys were knocked down, and started to get out into the office floor with it in his hand. By this time the burglars had lost their nerve and made a break for the door by which they entered. They ran across the square towards the union station, and escaped. They are thought to be the same pair who operated in Boston and Lynn all winter.

Annexation Question.

Washington, May 6.—The Hawaiian question came before the house committee on foreign affairs yesterday. There was a strong majority favoring annexation. The resolution introduced by Representative Newlands of Nevada was considered in detail. Chairman Hitt made a forcible presentation to the committee of the reasons for favorable action at this time, and pointed out that legislation was imperative in view of the necessities existing for the use of that island in our war preparations.

The committee adjourned without taking a vote, deferring action for a fuller consideration next Tuesday, when it is expected the Hawaiian matter will then be settled. It is understood that if there should be a favorable report from the committee in favor of annexation, the speaker will interpose no objection. It is also stated that the administration is pressing early action.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 6.—After some debate in the senate, the bill authorizing the city of Brockton to light its central police station from its electric lighting plant in the city hall was ordered to a third reading by a vote of 17 to 14.

The bill providing for the creation of a board of apportionment in the city of Boston, the engrossment of which had been reconsidered, was again passed to be engrossed by the senate.

There was a long debate in the house on the bill to grant equal privileges to all express companies on railroads in Massachusetts. The committee on railroads reported ought not to pass on the bill, and Mr. Reed of Taunton moved to substitute the bill. Mr. Reed cited three companies that had a practical monopoly of the express business in Massachusetts. A vote was not taken.

Too Much Cloth.

Fall River, Mass., May 6.—As a further step in the independent plan of curtailment of the output of the cotton mills of this city comes the announcement that the Merchants corporation, one of the largest concerns in the city, employing about 1400 hands, with a weekly payroll of $8000 and having 126,000 spindles and 3400 looms, will shut down tomorrow for at least one week.

While a definite plan of general curtailment has not been decided upon, it is stated that the American, Weetamoe and Mechanics mills will also enter upon a short time schedule soon. Other mills which have a large stock of goods on hand may also be forced into the movement.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, SATURDAY, MAY 7.
Sun rises—4:32; sets, 6:50.
Moon rises—9:08 p. m.
High water—12 noon; 12 night.

It will probably be slightly cooler Saturday, but there is promise of clearing weather during the evening and night, and the conditions now seem favorable for fair weather, more sunshine and warmer temperatures Sunday, with high to fresh westerly winds.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

A freight train was wrecked near Rolling Fork, Miss., and the engineer and fireman were scalded to death.

F. L. Thyng of Exeter, N. H., aged 31 years, was killed by the cars in Burgettstown, Pa. He was a brass worker by trade.

The senate committee on commerce granted a hearing yesterday on the bills for the improvement of the treatment of sailors at sea.

A passenger on the Fulda, who shipped as Edward Gruen and who is really Baron Unterrichter of Austria, confessed to the immigration authorities in New York that he stole 67,000 florins, for which theft he has been detained. The prisoner stole the money from an aunt. He had about $25,000.

DEWEY HAS LANDED.

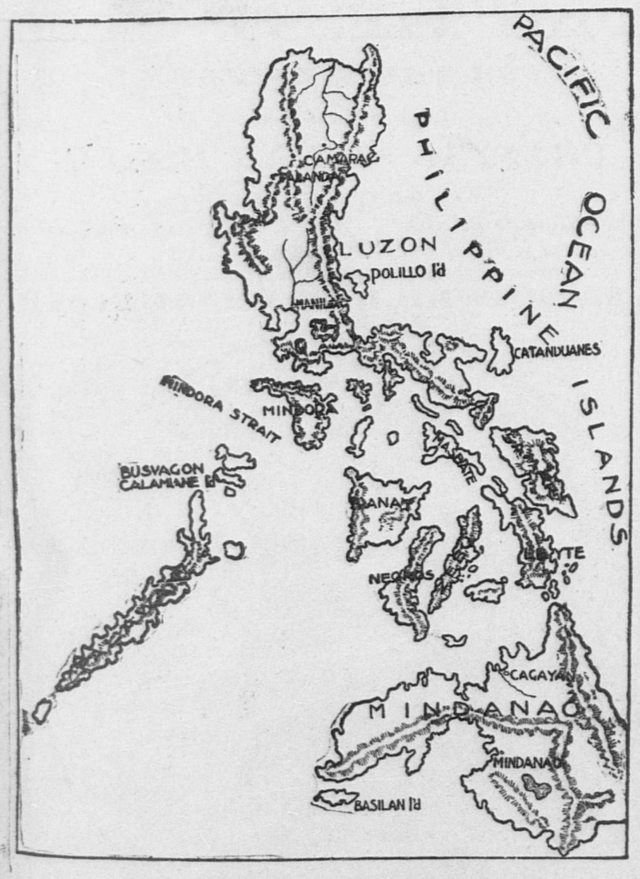

Three Hundred Spanish Killed and Four Hundred Wounded, Says a Spanish Report.

Destroyed Spanish Fleet of Eleven Vessels Without the Loss of One of His Men.

COMMODORE GEORGE DEWEY.

The Asiatic squadron of the United States navy is commanded by Commodore George Dewey, a veteran of the civil war. He is 60 years old and an officer of ripe experience. He took part in the capture of New Orleans, the engagements at Port Hudson and Donaldsonville, and he fought in the two attacks on Fort Fisher, being on the steam gunboat Agawan. He came out of the war with the rank of lieutenant commander.

MAP OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

There are so many islands in the Philippines that the exact number is unknown. There are nine very large ones—Luzon, Panay, Zebu, Leyte, Bohol, Negros, Samar, Mindanao and Mindoro—with more than 1,200 smaller ones. They have an entire area of over 120,000 square miles and a population of about 7,500,000. And here again is found the old story—Spanish officials have ruled with a rod of iron, and the worm has turned. Manilla, the capital of the Philippines and the chief city of Luzon, contains a population of 330,000, principally Spanish creoles, Chinese half breeds and the original natives. The bay of Manilla, the largest and finest in the world, could offer anchorage to the united fleets of Europe.

LATEST.

3 o'clock.

No Americans Killed.

Hong Kong, May 7 — The Revenue Cutter Hugh McCullock has arrived here with news from Commodore Dewey. The United States squadron reduced the batteries and destroyed the entire spanish fleet of eleven vessels.

The Spanish admit that 300 of their men were killed and 400 wounded.

No American was killed and only six wounded.

No American vessel was destroyed.

At His Mercy.

Washington, May 7—The government has received a cipher despatch from Dewey and will be given to the public as soon as it can be translated.

It is said that the reports say that Dewey has the city and harbor at his mercy but that he has not sufficient troops to make a landing.

This is the first reliable news of the engagement at Manila and is entirely plausible and is as glorious as first reports.

Has Landed.

Washington, May 7—A second dispatch from Dewey says: I have taken the fortifications and effected a landing at Cavite. We are caring for the wounded Spanish (about 150) within our lines.

The town is completely at my mercy and can be taken at any time by me. The squadron is in excellent health and spirits. The Spanish loss was heavy but I have not full particulars. I am assisting in protecting the sick and wounded. There is much excitement in Manila I will protect foreign residents DEWEY

It is reported that there are several other dispatches which have not been deciphered as yet

Columbia Here.

Boston, May 7— The United States Cruiser Columbia arrived here today to coal. She may be in port Sunday.

WHY NOT!

Celebrate Tonight at Sunset.

The Great Victory of Dewey over Spain.

The Ledger proposes that the "City of Presidents" show its patriotism at sunset this afternoon over the great victory of Commodore George Dewey, of the United States fleet off the Philippine Islands.

Let all the church bells peal forth as on the Fourth of July and George Washington's Birthday.

Let the old cannon be brought forth and salutes fired.

Let young America blow the horn, and the citizens with guns speak.

The victory is assured by reliable dispatches and such a glorious achievement without the loss of a life should cause spontaneous enthusiasm.

Quincy, the home of Revolutionary patriots, should be among the foremost to show its patriotism, and a little demonstration will show our soldier boys, members of Co. K who are to leave us Monday, that their achievements at the front will be appreciated.

The sun sets tonight at 6.45 and the demonstration should begin as early as 6.30 and continue for an hour, and later in the evening a grand bonfire would be a fitting climax.

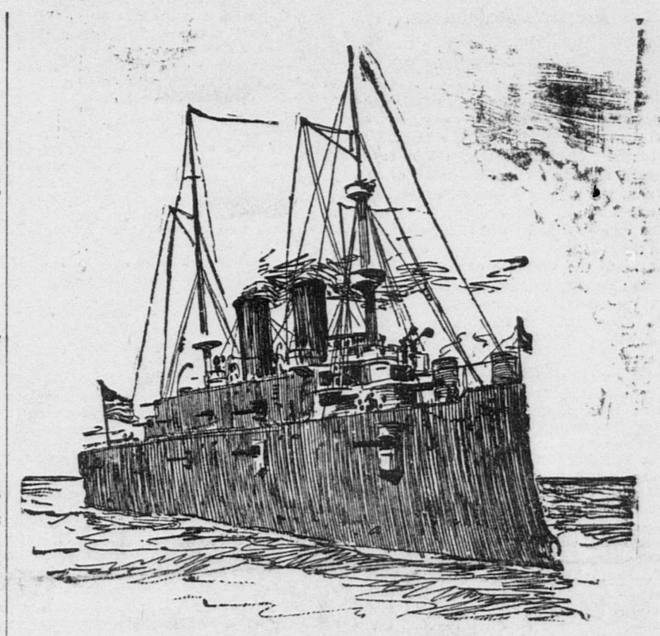

Commodore Dewey was born in Montpelier, Vt. He entered the Naval Academy in 1854, and was on the gunboat Mississippi as Lieutenant from 1861 ty 1863. Later, at the battle of Fort Fisher, he served on the gunboat Agawam. He was Executive Officer of the famous Kearsarge after the war. In 1884 he was assigned to the Dolphin as Captain, and has held various positions in the navy since. He has been in the Asiatic Squadron several months.

A Grand Army.

The army officers have their eyes on Massachusetts as a mobilizing point for a large body of troops. Leutenant Hale of General Merritt's staff called upon Adjutant General Dalton yesterday and inquired if suitable camp grounds could be found. General Dalton soon showed him that Massachusetts could be outdone by no other state in this respect. The Boxford camp ground of the 2d corps of Cadets was suggested, also the Framingham grounds. Col. Dexter was detailed to accompany Lieutenant Hale to Framingham yesterday to inspect those grounds, and today they will go to Boxford. The Cadets have 100 acres there, and opposite their grounds is a plot of available land of enormous extent. If this place proves satisfactory, this state may have the honor of welcoming the volunteers of all New England or even other states.

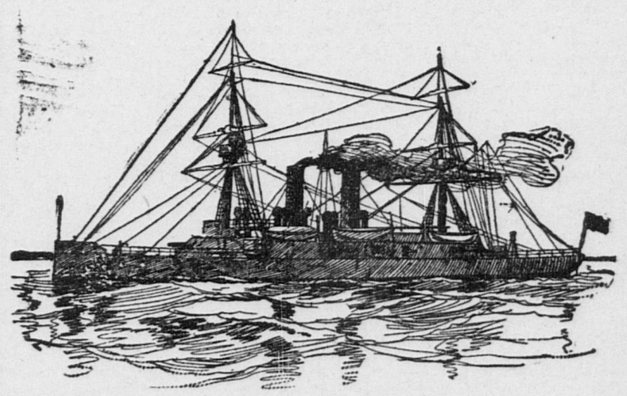

On a Monitor.

John C. Carey of this city has been appointed a fireman of the second class on the monitor Catskill, now located at Gloucester. He will probably begin his work this afternoon.

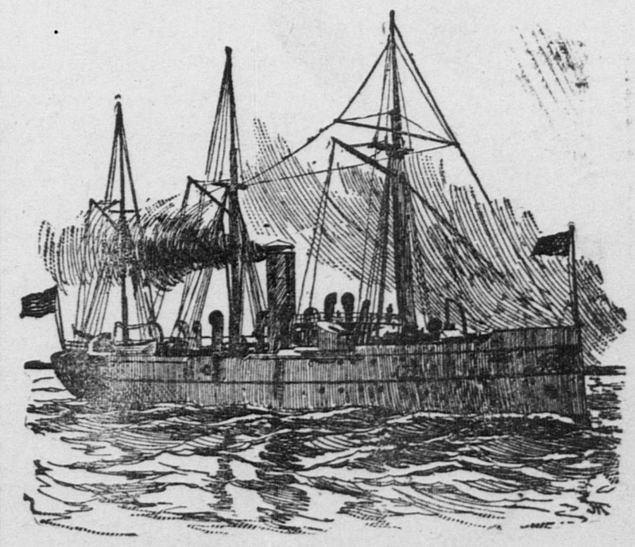

THE FLAGSHIP OLYMPIA.

The Olympia, the flagship of the Asiatic squadron, was built in 1891. Her displacement is 5,870; horsepower, 17,313; speed, 21.6 knots. She has four 8 inch breechloading rifles, ten 5 inch rapid fire guns, fourteen 6 pound and six 1 pound rapid fire guns and four Gatlings. She is a modern protected cruiser.

THE CRUISER BOSTON.

The Boston is a protected cruiser and was built in 1883. She displaces 3,000 tons of water. Her horsepower is 4,030 and her speed 15.6 knots. She has six 6 inch and two 8 inch breechloading rifles, two 6 pound, two 3 pound and two 1 pound rapid fire guns, two Hotchkiss revolving cannon and two Gatlings.

THE GUNBOAT CONCORD.

The Concord was built in 1888. She has six 6 inch breechloading rifles, two 6 pound and two 3 pound rapid fire guns, two Hotchkiss revolving cannon and two Gatlings. Her displacement is 1,710, her horsepower 3,045 and her speed 16.8 knots.

IN THE DARK.

News From Two Quarters Awaited.

DEWEY AND SAMPSON.

Out of Communication With the Capital.

WHAT A DAY MAY DEVELOP.

Policy of Delay of Benefit to Blanco's Defenders.

Washington, May 7.—Last Sunday the guns of the American navy echoed around the world from the harbor of Manila. Tomorrow they ought to be heard resounding in the harbor of San Juan, the principal port of Porto Rico, from Admiral Sampson's fleet. This is the expectation of the leading officials in the administration who are best posted as to the purposes of the president. Great secrecy continues to be observed in the navy department, but there is no doubt that by Sunday or Monday some important developments are expected.

No a word from or about Dewey, about our ships or the engagement Sunday was received yesterday. Little else was talked of during the day, and the affairs of the navy department were in the same condition as they have been for the past two days, especially in regard to the military occupation of the Philippines. Everything is in readiness for sending a landing party composed of troops, to which it is now proposed to add a force of marines to the Philippines, but everything waits upon Dewey's dispatch.

It is felt by the officials that some information should have reached them from Manila by this time. The attack on and the destruction of the Spanish fleet occurred on Sunday morning, and the bombardment of Manila occurred 24 hours later, in accordance with the terms of Commodore Dewey's ultimatum. It is presumed that this bombardment was a matter of a comparatively short time, and was over by Monday night or Tuesday monring. The only fortifications then left to prevent the egress of the dispatch boat were those at the mouth of the harbor. As Commodore Dewey found no difficulty in passing these forts on Sunday without discovery, it is not believed in naval circles that a dispatch boat would have any difficulty in getting out. It is a 60-hours run from Manila to Hong Kong, so that information ought to have been received at the British port.

Secretary Long has said all the week that Commodore Dewey would not report a half-finished job, but would be in absolute possession of Manila before he even attempted to report. He is not surprised at the delay, in view of the cutting of the cable, and the distance to Hong Kong, and he probably appreciates what naval officers have been saying about Dewey's desire to finish his work in his own way before taking any more orders from the navy department. Certain it is that neither the president nor the secretary is apprehensive about Dewey or his command, and neither has any doubt that Dewey has carried out his instructions successfully.

The blockade is being rigidly maintained and our ships cruise perilously near the Havana fortifications. One incident which has excited remark in the navy department was occasioned by the contents of a report received from our vessels in the vicinity of Havana. The Spanish authorities at that place are diligently continuing the work of defense; the labor is prosecuted night and day, and there is abundant evidence, without any attempt of concealment, of a large expenditure of money in the carrying out of well defined and elaborate plans for adequate defense.

It is remarked that the navy is being placed in a most dangerous position by the failure of our ships to interrupt this work of the enemy. The original orders sent from Washington prohibited Acting Admiral Sampson from opening fire on the Havana fortifications. This action is not in accordance with the recommendation of the naval board of strategy, which has been in favor of aggressive action and which believed that it was eminently wise to discourage the enemy in any attempt to strengthen his defense.

"When Admiral Sampson has been heard from I will tell you when we will move." This was the answer of an officer of high rank to a direct inquiry as to the probable date of departure. "I have no more means of knowing when we shall hear from Sampson," he continued, "than you have, but I expect it will be very soon. But there is no sense in talking about leaving until Sampson has done his work. We know where the Spaniards are; we know they cannot get away from us, and we know that we can get them whenever we are ready to go after them."

The Burden of All.

Madrid, May 7.—In the congress yesterday Mr. Moret, minister for the colonies, in a speech regarded as the best in his political career and repeatedly interrupted by enthusiastic cheering, insisted that the throne "occupied briefly by a young and promising monarch and afterward by his widow and child must not be blamed for the policy of different governments." The responsibility existed, he declared, as the burden of all; and each should bear his share instead of trying to shift the blame to a neighbor. He defended autonomy as "granted to Cuba generously under the friendly advice of the powers in order to deprive the Americans of a pretext to foment discontent and rebellion." Autonomy, he maintained, had achieved conciliation and improved the economic situation. He pointed, as a proof of its success above all others, to the "loyal friendship and assistance of the Cubans in the present war against the United States."

With regard to the question of unpreparedness, Moret candidly confessed that he had not believed, until the very last that war would come, as he considered the Americans were "incapable of attacking Spain without the slightest cause," but "when convinced that the United States was bent upon despoiling Spain," then, with the entire cabinet, he "seriously prepared to repel an unjust attack, purchasing and fitting out warships and procuring war material irrespective of cost."

Seven prominent deputies have laid on the table of the house a motion of censure and inquiry, showing that Spain spent £9,000,000 in extraordinary naval estimates voted in 1888 and has spent about £8,000,000 voted since, without adequate results on the squadron lately at Cape Verde. The deputies also want to call attention to the reserve fleet to which Admiral Camara has just been appointed and only a few vessels of which are anything like ready.

An Unfortunate Incident.

Key West, May 7.—Commodore Watson last night received orders from Washington to instantly release the French mail steamer, Lafayette, the captain of which persisted in trying to run the blockade and acted so suspiciously when interrogated that it was decided to bring his vessel to this port.

The capture of the vessel turns out to have been an unfortunate incident, resulting from a mistake; but no protest has been made by the representatives of the French government in the United States. The officials here declare that this will close the affair.

It appears that before the Lafayette sailed for Havana the French legation in Washington was instructed to communicate with the state department. This was done and permission was granted to the steamer to enter and discharge her passengers and cargo, with the understanding that she would take on nothing there. Instructions for the fulfillment of this agreement were sent from Washington to Admiral Sampson's squadron; and it was only learned after the capture was made that they were never delivered.

Of the 168 passengers on board the Lafayette, 78 are for Havana, nearly all being young Spaniards, who say they are going to Cuba to engage in mercantile pursuits. When surprise was displayed that such was their mission at this time, they merely shrugged their shoulders and vouchsafed no further explanation.

So far as the ship's manifest shows, she carries no contraband of war, but with such an immense cargo it was impossible to make a thorough inspection. Nothing in the way of arms or ammunition was found on board.

Queen Regent Very Anxious.

London, May 7.—A Vienna correspondent says: "The Spanish queen regent has again appealed to Emperor Francis Joseph to use his influence in favor of European intervention. Count Golu-chowski, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, has addressed a note to the powers on the subject. I understand that but for England's pro-American attitude certain European powers would have openly sided with Spain before the war broke out."

All the reports that reach here from trustworthy quarters agree that there is no doubt affairs in Spain are hurrying rapidly toward a grave crisis. Whatever exists, this point appears: the Carlists are increasing the difficulties of the situation even to a higher degree than the Republicans. Not the slightest faith is attached to the assurances of the pretender that he is setting an example of quietness and inactivity. On all hands it is thought here that the next few days will bring about events that may change the entire situation in the Spanish capital. This result is now regarded inevitable in those circles in Vienna which are intimate with the Spanish court. It is declared, however, that in spite of the revolutionary movement which seems to spread every hour in Spain, no fears are entertained for the personal safety of the queen regent or her son; nor is it feared that they will be unable, when a suitable moment presents itself, to leave the country uninjured.

All Now In Camp.

South Framingham, Mass., May 7.—The full detail of Massachusetts volunteers is now in camp Dewey, the complement being filled with the arrival of the Sixth regiment under the command of Colonel Woodward. As some of the companies of this regiment were from various parts of the state, they arrived separately, so that the regiment did not proceed to camp in a body as in the case of the other three. The local companies aroused the greatest enthusiasm, and the day was made a holiday in town.

The field and line officers of the Eighth regiment were before the examining board yesterday, and came out of the ordeal minus only three of their number. Captain F. Tupper of the Marblehead company and his first lieutenant, E. A. Marshall, were the first two men thrown out, and First Lieutenant S. A. Canfield of Somerville was the third officer. The first six companies of the Ninth regiment were also examined. The rejections in this regiment included the following from the several companies: A, 11 men; B, 13 men; C, 12 men; D. 22; E, 18; F, 9. The examinations have not been completed in companies C and F.

Tour of Duty

Boston, May 7.—The balance of the state militia, with the exception of the cavalry, on Monday will report at different points along the Massachusetts coast for eight days' tour of duty.

One company of the Fifth regiment will go to Plum island near Newburyport, with a platoon of light artillery. Two more companies of the Fifth, with another platoon of artillery, will guard Cape Ann. Another company will go to New Bedford for duty under Major Lockwood of the United States engineers. The First corps of cadets will man both Bass point, Nahant and Point Allerton, Hull. The Second corps of cadets will place mines in Salem and Marblehead harbors under the direction of the United States engineers.

Every officer and member of the militia who could not volunteer or was rejected is still a member of the militia, and their companies may be recruited and continue as companies until the return of the regiment from the United States service.

Stirred by Steamer's Seizure.

Paris, May 7.—The effect upon Paris of the seizure of the Lafayette is clear enough. Already a rather bitter feeling against the United States had existed, and this incident will certainly not tend to diminish it. If it is demonstrated eventually that there was nothing to justify the seizure, the government may be expected to make the very strongest protest. Angry expressions are to be heard, and the United States embassy is well guarded by policemen and detectives in view of possibly hostile demonstrations.

Effectiveness of the Blockade.

London, May 7.—The Copenhagen correspondent of The Daily Mail says: Baron Wedel-Jarisberg, the Scandinavian minister at Madrid, telegraphs that Spain intends to protest to the powers against the infringement of international law involved in America's failure to make the Cuban blockade effective."

Boston Opinion.

The Post says: "If we keep up as we have started, the end ought to come speedily. The surrender at Sedan followed only six months after the declaration of war in 1870. As our war started in more promptly, if it goes on at the same rate, we ought to finish with Spain before the end of May."

The Advertiser urges that "it is not safe altogether to reason upon the basis that our foe will do the wisest thing open to him, or even that he will abstain from doing the most foolish thing possible. At the best of times, cool prudence and sound judgment are not the Spaniard's strong point."

The Globe suggests that "the government attend strictly to the business in hand, without turning to the right or to the left for the purpose of gratifying any personal or partisan predilections."

THE SUTRO MILLIONS.

Sisters at Odds Over the Custody of Their Aged Father.

San Francisco, May 7.—A struggle for the custody of the person of Adolph Sutro, millionaire and ex-mayor of San Francisco, has taken place at Sutro heights. Dr. Emma Merritt, the legal guardian of the personal estate of her father, removed him in an ambulance from the family homestead to her home. She was fiercely resisted by Clara Sutro, her sister, who created a wild scene.

Miss Sutro asserts that Dr. Merritt kidnapped her father, who, in his feeble state, is unable to make any resistance. Dr. Merritt replies that she simply acted for the best interests of her father, and that she took him to her home in order that he might have more careful treatment.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 7.—A petition was presented in the house yesterday for legislation for the revision of the laws relative to contagious diseases among domestic animals and the officers charged with the enforcement of the same. The committee on rules reported almost immediately in favor of suspending the rules to admit the petition. A bill was then presented which virtually abolished the cattle commission, repealing the acts of 1894. The new bill further provides that no city or town shall require the use of tuberculin in the examination of cattle, unless at the request of the owner.

The lower branch substituted two bills relating to the express business for the adverse report of the committee on railroads. One was the house bill to grant to all express companies equal privileges on railroads in Massachusetts and the other was the house bill relative to express business on railroad and steamboat lines.

The committee on judiciary reported a bill which provides that all corporations or persons shall be liable to an extent not exceeding $5000 for negligence resulting in the death of any individual to be assessed with reference to the degree of culpability, the money to be for the widow and children of the deceased in equal parts, or to the next of kin.

The bill to provide for the purchase of certain counting apparatus to be used at the polling places of the state was passed to be engrossed in the senate.

The bill to provide for the manufacture of gas by corporations and the bill relative to the capital stock of certain public corporations were rejected. The senate accepted without debate all the reports of the committee on taxation that no change be made in the taxation laws of the state. There were 10 reports on petitions of various kinds on all of which the committee reported unfavorably. With the exception of one small bill the taxation question is now disposed of for the year.

Gleaned In Boston.

Boston, May 7.—Henry Kopp, 23 years old, a member of the Hollis theater orchestra, fired three shots at Frieda Becker, 23 years old, while calling upon the young lady at her home last evening. None of the bullets found a mark. It is said that Miss Becker recently rejected Kopp's proposal of marriage, which so enraged him that he vowed vengeance. The affair occurred directly opposite a police station, and three policemen rushed into the house upon hearing the shots. Kopp struggled hard with the officers, but was finally overpowered and locked up. He was arraigned this morning for an assault with intent to kill.

When the extended tour of duty of the naval brigade ends on the Minnesota next Monday, those who remain will be allowed to go to their homes, as Captain Weeks thinks there is no necessity for a further extension of the tour at the expense of the state.

Several linen manufacturers met in this city yesterday to discuss the business situation. A story that they were in session for the purpose of forming a combine was circulated.

Riddled With Bullets.

New Orleans, May 7.—Corporal Anthony Cleary was shot and killed by Dennis Burrell, a negro, whom he had arrested for robbery. The police chased the murderer and surrounded him. In the attempt to capture the negro he shot and killed Officer Trimp. The murderer was finally shot and his body riddled with bullets.

has every virtue that lard lacks. Lard has many faults that Cottolene is without. Cottolene is composed of refined cottonseed oil and carefully prepared beef suet and is as pure, healthful, and nutritious as the highest grade salad oil. As good as the best olive oil for frying and better than any other material for shortening, Cottolene is even more economical to use than lard.

The genuine Cottolene is sold everywhere in one to ten pound yellow tins, with our trade-marks—"Cottolene" and steer's head in cotton-plant wreath—on every tin. Not guaranteed if sold in any other way. Made only by

WONDERFUL HORSE.

Ornament Smashed All Track Records In a Breeze Up at Memphis.

Trainers and horse owners alike experienced a sensation the other morning at Memphis when Ornament was given his final work for the Montgomery handicap. It was after 8 o'clock when Charley Patterson came out on the track with the son of imported Order. Jimmie Dupee, the lightweight jockey, was up on Ornament, and after breezing him down the front stretch he was cantered around to the eighth pole, where he broke and started on his journey. The big chestnut was near the center of the track and kept in that position the entire distance. As he flew up to the back stretch he was joined at the half by a 2-year-old by Fonso, who raced with him to the wire. The time by eighths and quarters was as follows: :12, :24¼, :36¼, :49½, 1:01, 1:15, 1:28, 1:41½, 1:48, 1:55.

This was phenomenally fast work. The idea of a horse running a mile in 1:41½ this early in the season has never before been equaled, except by Ornament himself, who last year, on one Sunday morning, just before the races began, went nine furlongs in 1:55. In a race several days later Ornament made a new track record for Montgomery park, when he won at a mile and an eighth in 1:54¾. Ornament by his recent work lowered all records of the track at five furlongs, six furlongs, seven furlongs, one mile and tied Linda's sensational mile and a sixteenth made last year.—St. Louis Republic.

FOREIGN CRICKETERS.

Captain Warner Will Bring to America Another Strong Team This Fall.

A letter has been received from Pelham F. Warner, who is to bring another team of cricketers to this country this fall, in which the English "skipper" states that he has secured the definite promise of the following players to take part in the trip: E. H. Bray (Cambridge), a good bowler; C. O. H. Sewell (Gloucestershire), a strong out; F. G. Bull (Essex), the famous slow bowler; J. R. Head (Middlesex); C. J. Burnup (Kent and Cambridge), one of the best amateur batsmen in England; F. J. G. Ford (Cambridge and Middlesex), a strong bat and a fast scorer, as well as being a good medium pace bowler, and G. R. Bardswell, last year's captain of Oxford university. The above form the nucleus of a very strong combination.

Mr. Warner adds that the balance of the team will in all probability be made up of A. O. Jones (Notts), L. V. Bathhurst (Oxford and Middlesex), C. E. M. Wilson, this year's captain of Cambridge university, and H. D. G. Leveson-Gower (Surrey), who was a member of last year's team.

The programme embraces a more ambitious schedule than has been undertaken by any previous team of English cricketers and includes matches in New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia (three), Toronto and Ottawa.—New York Journal.

ALL SORTS OF SPORTS.

There is talk of abolishing the weight events and substituting a half mile run in the annual dual games between Oxford and Cambridge.

Jim Corbett and Joe Choynski, who have not been on good terms for many years, met in a San Francisco cafe recently and shook hands.

Frank Gerrard of Chicago has announced his retirement from the ring. Gerrard, who is a lightweight, has been in the ring for many years and is quite popular in the west.

Courtney, the Cornell coach, has cut down the squad of freshman crew candidates from 50 to 20, and considers that he has in hand the finest squad of its kind ever known at Cornell.

At Cliftonville, Ireland, Mullen, the Irish champion, and George B. Tincler, the English long distance runner, recently ran four miles for the championship of Ireland. Mullen won a grand race by six yards, in 21 minutes 10⅛ seconds.

Jake Gaudaur, champion oarsman of the world, and Robert Johnson of Vancouver have arranged a match race for the championship and a purse. A side bet of $2,000 has been made. The race will be rowed this summer at Burrard inlet at Vancouver.

The sixth annual interscholastic tennis tournament for the championship of the Princeton league, in singles, will be held at Princeton on May 21. The winning school will receive a solid silver cup offered by the Princeton association, which must be defended each year.

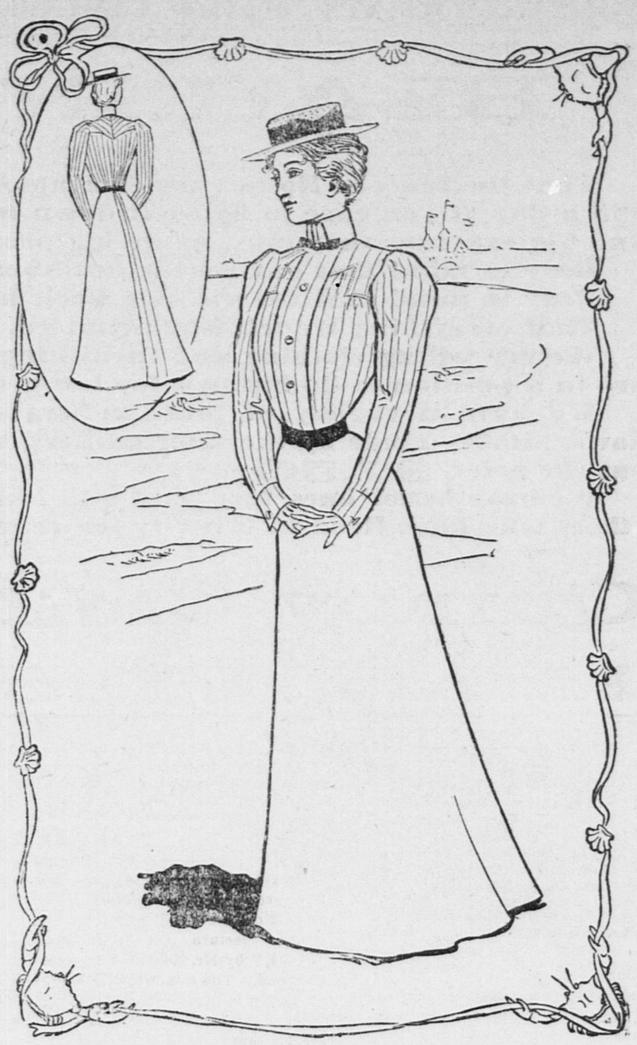

Fred Morris, the "Black Cyclone," who is still at London, has renewed negotiations for a contest with Frank Craig, the "Harlem Coffee Cooler." The latter seems to avoid Morris, and often tells him to go and get a reputation. A London sport is ready to back Morris against the "Cooler" for $1,000 a side.

Story Told About Maher.

"If Maher had a heart of steel," said a prominent referee the other day, "he would beat the world. But he cannot stand the gaff. When he fought Joe Goddard at Coney Island some years ago, Dave Holland, his manager, had an experience with him that he never ceases to tell about.

"'We were in the ring,' says Holland, 'and Peter sat there looking Goddard over. Suddenly he said to me, "That fellow is two stone heavier'n me, begorra." I told him that it made no difference, but Peter kept looking, and a moment later he said, "That fellow is five stone heavier'n me, Dave." Then I told the referee and timekeeper to hurry up and start things, because if there was any more delay Peter might think Goddard was ten stone heavier'n him and climb out of the ring. As it was he quit when Goddard landed a good wallop on the jaw.'"—Exchange.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

SHIRT WAIST AND WASH SKIRT FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

A yoke effect of an entirely new form appears in the shirt-waist model illustrated, which is made with a very broad box-pleat in front. The distribution of the gathers under the yoke produces a becoming effect over the bust. A plain pointed yoke with a centre seam is added to the tailor back, which has no gathers except at the waist line. The small shirt-sleeves are finished with a straight cuff, narrow enough to pass easily into the sleeves of a coat. The collar is the high turned-over model. The belt is of snake-skin with narrow buckled straps.

The tailor skirt for cotton fabrics, which has become such a necessity of the summer outfit, is an excellent design for white pique linen crash, or cotton reps. The comfort of such skirts for midsummer, not only to the sense of the wearer, but also the eye of the beholder, is such that it insures them a long lease of popular favor. The skirt is a five-gored model, made with a wide front gore. The back breadths may be pleated or gathered, as preferred. Three yards and a half is the width at the foot. The proper cut of the costume can be obtained only from the cut patterns furnished by Harper's Bazar, where it is published.

The new form of sailor hat, with medium width brim, has a plain crown band and side bow with a buckle.

Approximate quantity of material for medium size: For shirt-waist—36 inches wide, 3 yards. For skirt—36 inches wide, 5 1-2 yards.

"The month of May is very appropriately named," remarked the youth to his friend.

"In what regard?"

"Because its weather is so uncertain"

"How does the name May apply to uncertain weather!?"

"Well it may be hot or it may be cold, it may be wet or it may be dry"

—An old physician once said: "If people fully realized what it meant to themselves to laugh, and then laughed as they should ninety per cent. of the doctors would have to go out of the business."

Good Afternoon.

Commodore Dewey's magnificent naval victory affords the first evidence of the material of which our navy is constituted and strengthens the growing hope that the war will be a short one. The fleets under our other commanders will show themselves capable of equal skill and bravery; and there is no reason for expecting that the Spanish Atlantic navy will show itself to be of relatively better fighting quality than that which displayed its impotence in the fight at Manila. Time will soon reveal when and where the meeting of the opposing fleets on the Atlantic will take place. Our success in that battle should bring the struggle to a speedy end. The Spanish vessels being got rid of little will remain but the capture of Cuba ; and that cannot be a remote achievement. Even if the Government should deem it inexpedient to land there any considerable military force, owing to the fatality of the climate during the hot months, it is certain beyond question that our deprival of the Spanish army of supplies will conpel it to surrender within at most a month or six weeks. It seems wholly reasonable to calculate upon these results with entire certainty. An important reverse to our arms could not possibly come from any superiority of fighting resource on the part of Spain. By universal testimony, Spain's soldiers are made up of the poorest material conceivable. Those in Cuba,—who constitute the force with which we should have to deal,—are largely mere boys, enfeebled by the climate, discontented from lack of pay and only half trained. What they and their officers are is evident from their impotence in dealing with the insurgents for the last three years. The navy is, according to all accounts, in quite as bad a plight. Both branches of the Spanish service are blighted and enervated by the dishonests of officials and the country's inability to keep pace with the progress of modern warfare.

To reduce the number of liquor licenses in Boston, which all parts of the city seem to desire although a majority vote "yes," it seems necessary to promote Representative Newcomb, who was so succesful in the House in putting the bill through to reduce the number of Boston licenses. We therefore nominate Captain Thaddeus H. Newcomb for the Senate in 1899. Mr. Newcomb was for several years on of the most popular members of the City Council, and has been honored by three terms in the Legislature. It is honest, conscientious and faithful men like Mr. Newcomb that we should continue in public service.

Wollaston may kick over the sidewalk order but it is said that it is not kicking much over the purpose of the Sewer commissioners to extend the sewer mains immediately through most of the Wollaston streets in preference to the Downs or even Quincy Centre. Bids have asked for extensions to cover a greater part of First and Second hill and the Plains. Perhaps this will even up affairs with the Downs, if the sidewalk order favors it as intimated.

BEAR IN MIND.

That the rents in Boston are enormous, from $2,000 to $25,000 a year, $40 to $500 a week, $6 to $85 a day, if you care to figure it down to that. This rent must come out of the profits. To pay big rents and big expenses, they must make big profits.

Bear in mind that our rent is just $2 a day, and that all our other expenses are correspondingly low.

Bear in mind that we will pay back money with or without reason.

That everything we sell is guaranteed.

We are selling clothing and furnishings 10 to 20 per cent. less than Boston stores simply because we are in a position to do business for less profit.

We have a variety of Suits, in Serges, Scotches and Plaids. These suits are marked in Boston windows, $10.00—made by the same makers, with the same cloth, the same linings, the same in every way but the price, $7.50.

We have better ones, too. Call and look them over and you may become our customer like many others who have lived in this city for years and years and always bought their clothing in Boston.

Six prizes for the best translation of selected passages of Caesar, Cicero, and Virgil have been offered by Mr. Oakman.

Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard University will deliver the address on Senior's day, June 25.

—At the present moment the British empire is 53 times the size of France, 52 times that of Germany, three and a half times that of the United States of America, and thrice the size of Europe, with treble the population of all the Russias. It extends over 11,000,000 square miles, occupies one-fifth of the globe, contains one-fifth of the human race, or 350,000,000 people, embraces four continents, 10,000 islands, 500 promontories and 2,000 rivers. Such a power would not be a despicable ally in time of war, as the Spanish and their sympathizers probably think.

FLAG RAISING.

Private Exercises at Mellen Bray's Factory.

The flag raising at the T. R. & S. Co.'s works today was an affair filled full and running over with enthusiasm.

At 11.15 A. M. Mr. Bray, superintendent of the works, called the employes, six hundred strong, into the open space between the two large buildings of the corporation and received the flag (10 x 20,) which the employes subscribed for.

Mr. Charles Frye, who has been in the employ of the company for more than twenty-five years, presented the flag in behalf of the subscribers.

Mr. Bray responded briefly and Mr. Andrew Raiche gave an appropriate bugle call and the flag was flung to the wind.

Then Mr. Geo. Critchley played the introduction to "America," which served to stir up the vast assemblage, who all joined in singing that familiar and soul stirring piece.

Three cheers were heartily given for Dewey, the American fleet, Commodore Sampson and the success of the United States.

Mr. Bray then called for the singing of the Star Spangled Banner which was given with a vim.

Because of Mr. Bray's modesty the flag raising was not public as was heralded a few days ago. Mr. Bray's patriotism is deep-rooted and not on the surface.

In the game between the John Hancock and Wollaston nines, the latter were held down to three runs, score 10 to 3.

The game between the Coddingtons and the Gridley Bryant nines resulted in another victory for the latter team by a score of 16-8, but is protested by the Coddingtons.

The Lincolns were to play the Washingtons, but the latter failing to appear, forfeited the game, score 9-0.

CO. K CALLED.

May See More Service Than Volunteers.

Will Report To Defend Massachusetts Coast.

It is possible that Co. K of Braintree, Quincy and Weymouth may see more active service than the Volunteers now at Camp Dewey in Framingham, for the Fifth regiment has been ordered out to defend the Massachusetts coast, together with the First and Second Corps of Cadets, and the three light batteries of artillery. A portion of the general orders issued by Adjt. Gen. Dalton last evening reads as follows:

The Fifth Regiment of Infantry, Second Brigade, M. V. M., Col. J. H. Whitney, commanding, will perform eight days of duty to count together as annual drill and camp duty, commencing May 9, as follows: He will place one company at Plum Island, near the mouth of the Merrimac river, in support of a platoon of light artillery to be sent to that point at the same time, two companies at Gloucester to support a platoon of light artillery to be sent to that point at the same time, and detail such a guard as he may deem necessary to cover the harbor of Rockport. He will also send one company to New Bedford to report to Major Lockwood, United States Engineers.

At the end of eight days, unless otherwise ordered, he will relieve these four companies at the same points with four other companies, and after eight days, unless otherwise ordered, will place the four remaining companies on duty in like manner, unless otherwise ordered. Headquarters of the regiment will be established at Gloucester. Field and staff officers will be placed on duty for eight days each, unless otherwise ordered, and Col. Whitney will determine their stations as he may deem to be for the best interests of the service.

In connection with these orders it is reported that the War department proposes to mobilize speedily in New England 10,000 troops for speedy transportation to Porto Rico when the time shall come for the occupation of the island.

There is great joy today in the ranks of Co. K. For several days the boys have felt rather blue that their regiment was not called out this week, as they were the crack regiment of the State, but now everything has been forgotten, for today the "dandy Fifth" has been ordered out and Capt. Kincaide has today issued orders for Co. K to report at the armory at 7 o'clock Monday morning for duty.

The call is for eight day's duty, but there is a possibility of it being extended for an indefinate period.

Co. K will be stationed at Fort Clark, New Bedford, where they will report to Major D. W. Lockwood of the United States Army.

The other three companies of the regiment to be called out are those at Plymouth, Attleboro and Charlestown.

Tents for the company have been ordered from the arsenal and will be shipped to Fort Clark today. Capt. Kincaide has also gone down today to make the necessary arrangements for the reception of the company. The men will carry one day's emergency rations which is deemed sufficient.

It was hoped that it would be possible for the company to march through Quincy, but they will take the train at Braintree.

THE RAINY SEASON.

Considered by the Cubans as the Most Charming of the Year.

Mr. Morrilas, a Cuban born, and for some years an assistant surgeon in the United States navy, now in the marine hospital service in the tropics, said recently:

"The rainy season in the tropics, as it is called out of Cuba, is to Cubans the most charming season of the year. It begins generally about the middle of May and lasts until the middle of September. It usually rains in the afternoon, and sometimes the fall is very heavy and is accompanied by such thunder and lightning as one never knows outside the tropics. It generally stops at sunset, which is simply unspeakably grand in its cloud effects. I rarely ever have known it to rain at night. It is this so called rainy season that gives life and vigor to the growing vegetation and makes our sugar and tobacco crops what they are.

"By eating well cooked food and eschewing overindulgence in the fruits of the country, usually so tempting to strangers, always sleeping under some sort of shelter, and not on the bare ground, the green Yankee from New Hampshire hills may laugh at the bogy of the 'rainy season' and the yellow fever. It is well for the unacclimated man, the first three months of his stay, to take from three to six grains of quinine every morning and a mild purgative, say twice a week. You may be as wet as possible if you are on the move, but when you stop change your wet clothes for dry ones, socks and all. You will never have this fever if you follow these easily remembered rules."—Washington Post.

THE BAY OF MANILLA.

It Is a Landlocked Sea Thirty Miles Long and About Twenty-five Miles Wide.

Manilla bay, where the recent battle between Commodore Dewey's squadron and the Spanish fleet was fought, is a landlocked sea. It is 30 miles long from north to south and about 25 miles wide. Its entrance is 12 miles wide, but the passage is blocked by two islands, so that the ship channels are much narrower. One is two miles wide and another three miles. The water in them is deep and swift. Cavite, under whose guns the Spanish ships fought, is on the mainland near the entrance to the bay. It is seven miles from the city of Manilla in an air line over the water. By land it is 15 miles. The population of the town is about 5,000. There are several small hamlets on the shore of the bay between Cavite and Manilla, and it is near one of these that Commodore Dewey landed his wounded.

The bay is large enough for the maneuvers of a big fleet and its entrance is so deep that it is practically impossible to protect it by sinking mines. Modern fortifications on the islands at its mouth could keep warships in the open sea, but there did not seem to be any guns there worth using. Dependence was put in the Cavite batteries and in the guns of the Spanish fleet. The event proved the superiority of the American seamen and the American guns. It also proved that the Spaniards had neglected to provide adequate protection at the mouth of the bay.—Brooklyn Eagle.

X RAYS FOR SPANIARDS.

Pittsburg Company Expects to Fill a Large Order For the Spanish Government.

A peculiar case, in which the contraband of war will likely be waived, has developed in Pittsburg. The Spanish government is negotiating with the Fessenden Manufacturing company for a lot of X ray machines to be used in field, ship and hospital service. The Spanish consul at New York asked the Pittsburg company a few days ago to furnish prices on machines ranging from the 4 inch apparatus for emergency work up to the 20 inch machine for hospital ambulance use.

Before replying to the request R. A. Fessenden consulted the authorities. He feared that the United States government would prevent him from supplying this humanitarian war material to Spain, but he has been told it is not likely objection will be made.

"We are making about 100 machines for the home government," he said recently, "and the wounded Spaniards who are taken prisoners will get the benefit of being treated by the aid of the X ray. There is no reason why our wounded soldiers in Spanish hospitals or on Spanish ships should not have the opportunity of also getting this great aid to surgery. If we receive the order, it will be filled at once. I do not think the United States government will interfere with its delivery."—New York Herald.

General Gomez's American Wife.

It may not be known generally that the wife of Maximo Gomez, commander in chief of the insurgent forces in Cuba, is an American woman, but such appears to be the fact. Representative Gibson claims to represent the district in Tennessee where she was born. Her former name was Miss Pink Martin, a daughter of Mr. Henry Martin, who lived on Nail's creek, in a county of east Tennessee. The family was one of the best in the county, and her father was very wealthy, so that Miss Martin was given exceptional opportunities during her childhood and early womanhood. She first married a Georgian, but he died shortly after the civil war, and as Mrs. Cline, his widow, she went to Havana, where her brothers were engaged in business. While at the Cuban capital she met Maximo Gomez, then a very important personage in the island of Cuba, and in a short time they were married.—Washington Post.

CONTENTMENT.

Within the confines of this little room,
Whose narrow space has held my hopes and fears
For, lo, what matters it how many years,
I find a garden in perennial bloom.
There's not an ingle nook nor corner small,
There's not an object—picture, print nor book—
There's not a hand's breadth span upon the wall,
That blossoms not to memory 'neath my look,
And like a garden when the sunshine plays
No fairer pleasance can reflect her rays,
And though when gloom and murk pervade I know
These erstwhile beauties of my garden fade,
Where is it otherwise? When all is said,
I'd not exchange my realm for aught below.
—J. W. Schwartz in Globe Review.

A MODERN OFFER.

"For some time," observed Mr. Markham, "I have been beset by the idea of proposing to you."

Miss Greatorex smiled.

"And why have you not?"

"I have been at times half afraid that you might accept," replied the candid young man. "At others," he added, thoughtfully removing an almost invisible dust speck from his sleeve, "I have been much perturbed by the possibility—oh, certainly, the possibility—that you might refuse."

"It would be disagreeable to be refused," remarked the lady impersonally.

"That," the gentleman considered, "depends. If I was sure I wanted to marry you, it would unquestionably be disagreeable to be refused."

"You are not sure whether you are in love with me or not?" remarked the young lady.

Mr. Markham readjusted his back to the mantelpiece and said in a low voice, looking down at the very adjacent brown, bent head:

"I admit I am disappointed. I had no idea that you could be stupid. It is evidently possible."

From the motion of Miss Greatorex's head—as they would say in the old books—he implied a note of interrogation.

"It is stupid not to have grasped the question. I have for quite a long time known that I was in love with you."

"Ever since luncheon?"

"Perhaps not quite so long as that. But certainly ever since, almost ever since, Lady Greatorex left the room."

The young lady laughed.

"Was my mother such an instance of George Eliot's malign prophet standing behind her daughter and threatening what she will be?"

"I merely meant that the presence of a chaperon is incompatible with sentiment."

"I," observed the young woman, "do not mind admitting that I am getting confused. You now assert that for more than 20 minutes you have adored me" (Mr. Markham's shoulders appeared to deprecate the exaggeration of this rhetoric), "and a moment ago you seemed much to doubt your love."

"Not at all. That is why I lately called you stupid. I am sure that I am in love, but I am very uncertain as to whether I would like to marry the beloved object."

Miss Greatorex laughed.

"I admit it sounds perhaps improper. I merely mean that marriage as the necessary denouement of being what is called in love seems to me quite a doubtful expedient.

"When there is no question of being in love," he continued, relaxing himself by a short walk to the other end of the room and back, "I think marriage not a bad arrangement. It is then merely a form of business partnership, and now that it has ceased to be insoluble has no special terrors. But you and I have nothing to gain by that. I am exceedingly well off; so are you. I do not need to marry for position; nor do you. We neither of us need to demand blood like Hamlet's aunt. In fine, as they say in the 'Arabian Nights,' you have nothing to gain by me, and I have no material need of anything you can supply to me. Markham is just as fine a place as Greatorex Abbey, and not a bit finer. When I speak of being in love, it is purely a personal sensation. I should like it to become chronic. I really enjoy being in love. But if we got married"—

"You cannot anticipate your love standing that crucial test?"

"I honestly admit that I have my doubts. We live in a straightforward age. Let me make a clean breast of them."

"You mean that you would dislike the duty of being permanently in love with me," said the young lady, who perhaps found his remarks becoming too general, "though as a temporary sentimental excursion you have not hitherto found it disagreeable?"

"What I find fault with is," he declared, without very directly replying to her question, "that unless one were to marry you one could not do several things one would like. For instance, I would like very much to take you to India."

"When?" inquired the young lady, with somewhat startling definiteness.

"Not," he replied, "till, say October. India in the middle of the season you would not enjoy a bit. But I really fear, unless we do get married, the trip is impossible. All the same, I should like to explain the Taj to you, and Shah Alim's mosque at Ahmedabad—oh, and the Golden Gates at San Francisco; it is tiresome that I cannot take you there without marrying you."

"You could take mamma as well, and Aunt Adeliza, perhaps."

"That would be different. A superior plan for those to whom it commends itself, but personally I should not like it so much."

"Were you thinking," asked the lady, "that you would like to take my hand?"

"I have thought that before. I was thinking of taking it. Now, if we were married," he continued after an interval, "this would be my business. It would be expected of me, as it is of a hen to lay eggs or the Prince of Wales to lay foundation stones."

"And then it would cease to please?"

"It would then become detestable. And often lately I have pictured myself as riding home in the deepening dusk of a winter's afternoon from hunting, either with you by my side or to find you waiting for me at home. When I think of it, I nearly take a hansom and come here to lay myself at your feet."

"Why don't you?"

"For the reasons detailed above. I picture being refused and the subsequent discomfiture and inconvenience. It would entail an entire change of all my plans for the rest of the season."

"But if you were not refused?"

Mr. Markham started.

"Oh, that certainly struck me as an alternative, but I did not find it less alarming. If I were accepted, we should probably get married, and how dull for us both it would subsequently be! What I should really like would be for you to come and stay just in our present capacity at Markham, say, for a year. You would walk with me, row with me, fish with me, hunt with me. I would read to you my favorite bits of my favorite authors, and you should retaliate with yours. I can imagine nothing so delightful. I have already had you to stay at Markham, but then Lady Greatorex and Sir Marmaduke came, too, and my sister came down to do hostess. We were never alone except now and then for a quarter of an hour after an hour of mutual endeavoring."

"Thank you," interjected, with some asperity, the lady.

"What I should like would be to have you thus for a time all to myself. You would find me much nicer than you imagine. I have much more 'to' me, as the Yankees say, than you would think."

"Well," added the lady, "on one condition I will come. Do not look frightened. I don't mean to insist on a 'prior engagement.' You need not promise to marry me. But I will come for a whole year to Markham if—if I may bring Lord Mendip with me."

"Lord Mendip!" Mr. Markham released what he had been holding and laid it back in the young lady's lap with something of the air wherewith one puts down again upon the counter an article that one has been fingering in a salesroom when one discovers it is marked "Sold." He resumed his position on the hearth rug, but without again accommodating his back to the mantelpiece. "It was," he remarked presently, "very nice of you to inform me of your engagement in that way. You can do things, when you try, very gracefully. A more awkward woman might have told me flatly half an hour ago."

"I was going to tell you just now. But you begged me to wait, as you wished to finish your delightful conversation. I concluded that you thought you were shining. After all you do not affect to ignore your reputation as conversationalist."

"I am sure," he said, after the briefest possible pause, "you will be extremely happy. That is certainly my wish—that you may be as happy as you deserve, and, I take it, Lord Mendip is not more than 80?"

"Scarcely so much," declared the young lady, with admirable temper. "He is but 74."

"And he is a peer. It is better than anything I could have offered you."

There was a slight sound behind her.

"Here," remarked the young man, looking over her head to the suddenly opened door, "comes Lord Mendip himself to receive my congratulations in person."

Miss Greatorex leaped to her feet.

"Don't, for heaven's sake, don't!" she cried, in a smothered voice. "It was a lie. I did it to see if I could shake you at all."

Lord Mendip ambled forward with a keen old look in his faded eyes and a much "cocked" expression about his half deaf old ears.

"Congratulations, eh? Whom am I to congratulate? I think I heard something about congratulations in person."

"Yes, Lord Mendip, I want yours." Mr. Markham sighed heavily. "I have just proposed to Miss Greatorex, and she has been good enough to accept me."

"Lord, how int'restin," cried the old gentleman. "I rec'lect your father was my fag at Eton—I'm talkin, yer know, of the year thirty-nine. By Jove, you're a lucky chap, Markham, and I do congratulate you."

Mr. Markham received these felicitations with some emotion and sighed again not less heavily.—Black and White.

Hopeless Discontent.

The gripman on a cable car, having slowed up for a truck that could not get off the track because of the heavy traffic on his right side, began to stamp his gong. The truckman looked over his shoulder, and his mouth moved actively. No one on the car could hear what he said. But the gripman glanced at the conductor and grinned. Then he rang some more. When the driver turned and worked his mouth again, the gripman took up the cable and hit the truck a gentle bump. That seemed to infuriate the driver, and he stood up, waved his whip, and obviously he was talking back. The gripman rammed his truck a little harder, then quite hard, and again he winked at the conductor.

"There's fun in every business," said a passenger on the rear platform to the conductor.

"There is in all but mine."

Then he sprang from the platform and ran to the aid of the gripman, who was being thrashed by the driver. He and a policeman saved the gripman's other eye.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning May 8. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Things my denomination has accomplished.—Ps. lxxxvii, 1-7; Eph. v, 25-27. (To be led by the pastor or some other church officer.)

Christian Endeavor has always magnified and emphasized denominational loyalty. It stands not only for Christ, but also for His church and for His church as composed of various Christian denominations. It has never made light of denominational ties. It has always striven to tighten them. It has never been undenominational, but always interdenominational. Not the least important of all its great works has been the interesting of young people in the history and work of their denominations. That these things are facts and that they have been fully appreciated by the Christian denominations is abundantly testified to by the fact that there are Christian Endeavor societies in 40 different Christian denominations today.

It is impossible to be a loyal Endeavorer and not to be loyal to our denominations and our local churches. The pledge makes this impossible. It distinctly says, "I promise Him (Christ) * * * that I will make it the rule of my life * * * to support my own church in every way, especially by attending all her regular Sunday and midweek services." Thus it is impossible to be an Endeavorer and to be faithless to church or denomination.

The topical references suggest two reasons why Christian Endeavor has done well to emphasize the importance of the church:

1. God,'s love for the church, represented by His love for Zion, which typified the church (Ps. lxxxvii, 1-7). "The Lord," says the psalmist, "loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob." God loves His church with a deep affection, with an everlasting love. He loves Zion with a special and distinguishing love, not only as compared with the other nations of the world, but even with other parts of the Holy Land itself. If God loves His church so dearly, His love embracing all branches of it, surely those who are God's should also love it and realize its importance. Particularly should we love and serve that branch of the church in which we have been born and raised perhaps or in which at least we have found Christ and been born into His kingdom.

2. Christ's love for the church, proved by His death for it, Eph. v, 25-27. "Christ also loved the church and gave Himself for it that He might sanctify and cleanse it." What a wondrous love that would bleed and die in the stead of the church! So should we love Christ's church and be willing to make sacrifices for its prosperity and its success. And how can we better show this love than by being intensely interested in it, studying up carefully what our part of the church has done in saving souls, in distributing charity, in sending the gospel of Christ to all the world?

Bible Readings.—Ps. xlviii, 1-14; lxxviii, 67, 68; cxxii, 1-9; cxxxvii, 1-6; Math. v, 13-16; x, 5-15; xvi, 13-20; xviii, 15-18; xxviii, 19, 20; Acts ii, 41-47; xx, 28; I Cor. i, 1-3; x, 32, 33; xiv, 1-5; Eph. v, 29; Col. i, 18.

Taking Stock.

Merchants take account of stock, and business generally is reviewed for making an annual inventory. We cannot have such a running account in our spiritual relations, but each one should wisely take a survey for self examination and improvement. Blessings, mercies, benefits, deliverances and responsibilities, duties, promises, pledges, vows and failures, shortcomings, transgressions and sins—these belong to the year now ending. Are you willing thus to make up the record sealed for the eternal judgment? God's infinite grace alone can cure the defects and make your standing for the great day perfect and complete in Jesus Christ.—Reformed Church Messenger.

Begging and Asking.

There is too much begging done and too little asking. There are two things Christians must ever keep in mind. One is that the Lord is not a beggar. He asks for but a small part of what He has so bountifully given. The other is that those who ask in His name are not beggars either. They simply do what the Lord commands. When Christians do a great deal of asking from the Lord, they never call it begging when the Lord asks of them.—Lutheran.

Take Heed.

It is of the utmost importance that men should take heed how and what they hear. The gracious invitation is, "He that hath ears to hear let him hear." But would it not be well for professing Christians, before they go to receive the good seed, either by hearing the word or by reading it, to seek divine strength to cast out the thorns or cares and worldly inclinations lest the seed should be choked?—Churchman.

Answering the Child.

The child is very near to nature's heart. He is gifted usually with observation. If all his spontaneous inquiries into the phenomena by which he is surrounded are slightingly and indifferently treated, his observing and reasoning faculties will be defrauded of their natural right to grow and wax strong with his years.—Churchman.

Life's Duty.

Great deeds are trumpted, loud bells are rung,
And men turn round to hear
The high peaks echo to the pæans sung,
And some great victor cheer, and yet great deeds are few.
The mightiest men find opportunities but now and then.

The sweetest lives are those to duty wed.
The world may sound no trumpets, ring no bells.
The Book of Life the shining record tells.

God help us mothers all to live aright,
And may our homes all truth and love enfold,
Since life for us no loftier aims can hold
Than leading little children in the light.

Honest Cycles at Honest Prices.

Realizing that this is a $50 Year in the Bicycle trade, the IVER JOHNSON ARMS AND CYCLE CO. of Fitchburg, Mass., have reduced the price of their wheels to meet the popular demand. These wheels have never sold before for less than $100, and while there are a few other makes that are as good, there is certainly nothing better.

Sharp Competition induces unscrupulous dealers to push and advertise an inferior wheel for the sake of greater profit. A cheap western wheel with a good coat of paint and a high sounding name may sell as well if the dealer allows $25 on an old wheel that is worth about $10. This is a great trade. After riding it for a season, however, the rider changes his mind and thinks of an old adage, "You can't get something for nothing."

You can't get a "trade" (?) of this kind on an IVER JOHNSON, but you do get an Honest Cycle at an Honest Price.

Free Medical Treatment for Weak Men

Who Are Willing to Pay When Convinced of Cure.

A scientific combined medical and mechanical cure has been discovered for "Weakness of Men." Its success has been so startling that the proprietors now announce that they will send it on trial—remedies and appliance—without advance payment—to any honest man.

If not all that is claimed—all you wish—send it back—that ends it—pay nothing!

No such offer was ever made in good faith before; we believe no other remedy would stand such a test.

This combined treatment cures quickly, thoroughly and forever all effects of early evil habits, later excesses, overwork, worry, etc. It creates health, strength, vitality, sustaining powers and restores weak and undeveloped portions to natural dimensions and functions.

Any man writing in earnest will receive description, particulars and references in a plain sealed envelope. Professional confidence. No deception nor imposition of any nature. A national reputation backs this offer. (Cut out and send this notice, or mention paper.) Address

ASPIRITING EFFECT.

Victory at Manila Stimulates General Business.

All Apprehension From That Source Discounted.

Price Situation Still One of Notable Strength In Many Articles.

New York, May 7.—Bradstreet's says this week: "Evidences accumulate that the corner has finally been turned in the trade situation, and that circumstances hitherto regarded as disquieting have begun to give way to more cheerful conditions, or are beginning to be recognized in a more reasonable light. A new sense of national strength and energy seems to have developed since the news of the American victory at Manila, and the business community generally would appear to have come to the conclusion that the possible effects of the war have been already well discounted.

"Among the more favorable features of the week have been the slightly easier tone in the money market, and a little more disposition on the part of financial institutions to accommodate legitimate demands of trade. Another has been the very general foreign recognition of the critical position of wheat supplies in the lowering or the suspension entirely of import wheat duties, notably in Italy, France and Spain.

"Of considerable importance in stimulating business in some lines are large orders received for equipment and supplies of all sorts for military use, notably in the line of cotton and woolen goods, shoes, projectiles and ammunition of various sorts. The advance in the price of hides and the activity at much higher prices reported in the demand for duck, bunting and light woolen cloth are symptoms of this stimulation, no less than the reports of activity in ship-building to supply the places of vessels taken for government use. Partial reflection of this latter demand is found in the immense demand for steel plates at higher prices, and in the large business doing at most iron centers in pig-iron.

"Of course it would be useless to deny that there are unfavorable features in view, notably in the cotton and woolen industry. In the former print cloths have again struck the lowest price on record, with a quotation of 15-16 for standard grades, and the woolen manufacturing industry is as a whole reported quite depressed. In contrast with these reports, chiefly coming from the eastern and middle state cities, are the sales of a considerable quantity of raw wool, said to be for the manufacture of goods ordered by the government. The heaviest auction sale of carpets reported for many years, aggregating in value $2,000,000, is a feature of the trade at New York city. Prices, while low, are reported fully as satisfactory as expected, and encouraging from the standpoint of the large quantity distributed and the readiness with which the goods have been moved.

"The price situation is still one of notable strength, and prices of several of the cereals, notably wheat and flour, drugs, hides, potatoes, iron and steel bars and sheets and plates, tobacco, sugar, lard, lead and copper, are hightr this week, accentuating the veritable "spring rise" in prices which occurred during the month of April. Business failures are slightly smaller this week, aggregating for the United States 240, against 245 last week, 228 in this week a year ago, 267 in 1896, and 224 in 1895.

"April bank clearings reflect the general dullness and depression due to uncertainty as to the outcome of our complications with Spain in a total of $4,962,269,217, 11.8 percent smaller than March, 10 percent smaller than February, and nearly 17 percent smaller than those of January, which marked the heaviest month's total on record. The total clearings in April this year exceed those of 1897 by 21 percent, while they were 35 percent larger than April, 1894, and 50 percent larger than 1893, while the decrease, as compared with 1892, was only 2 percent. The best showing made in April appears to have been that made by the far western cities, which showed a gain of nearly 31 percent over a year ago.

"The evolving of assured conditions out of former doubt and uncertainty as regards our foreign relations is reflected in the very general advances in prices of staples which were noticeable toward the middle and close of April. The course of values was in a striking contrast with the movement the month before, which witnessed a very general check and even recession in values, with the result of bringing the general level below recently preceding months. The advancing movement in April, though very general, was not sufficient to overcome the declines of March in every case, but the index number on May 1 was 80,920 which, while slightly below the level of March 1, 81,340, still shows considerable gain over the index number on April 1, 79,863. Of 106 staple articles quoted, 52 advanced during April and only 16 declined."

DOWN THEY GO.

Game That Might Have Been Won Lost Through an Error.

Boston, May 7.—The New York giants defeated the Boston champions yesterday for a second time in the present visit to Boston. A grand double play by George Davis, Gleason and Joyce, the same as Thursday afternoon, was the climax of the second soiree, and the giants wended homewards with the second game of the series.

E. K. DOHENY.

Twelve players were used by the home team. Herman Long was cut about the knee in taking a throw from Martin Bergen to catch Joyce stealing second. Keister took his place and showed up well. Jim Sullivan started in to pitch, but was relieved by Willis in the third. Stivetts went to bat for Willis in the ninth, but was out, Gleason making a circus catch of his foul fly up against the bleacher fence in right.

Doheny, the young Vermont southpaw, proved the wisdom of the way the New York club holds to material. He was a wild, inexperienced pitcher when he first pitched against the Bostons in this city in 1896. He has been developed until he pitched a game yesterday as as good as any lefthander in the business could have done. He had the Boston left-handed hitters guessing, although they scratched some hits. He had good speed and control and gave only two bases on balls, besides striking out eight men. Score:

The Springfields hammered Mullen of the Montreals hard for four innings, after which Yerrick took his place, but the game had been lost. Score: 13 to 3.

The Newports suffered their second defeat from the whalers yesterday afternoon. The New Bedfords played a fast fielding game and were strong at the bat, while the Newport team experimented with young twirlers. Score: 7 to 6.

The Brocktons won from the Torontos by opportune batting, hits scoring all five runs. Both pitchers gave a star exhibition, Pittenger excelling in steadiness. Score: 5 to 2.

The Fall Rivers defeated the Pawtuckets in a game marked by heavy hitting and sharp fielding. Sixteen flies were knocked into the outfield, all but one of which were caught, and that one missed after a long run. The Fall Rivers touched up McCafferty for 16 with 24 and the best the Pawtuckets could do with Flanagan was three, with five. Score: 7 to 2.

In the ninth inning of yesterday's game, the Washingtons had the game all but won. The Brooklyns, however, by an unexpected rally in stick work, knocked out six runs, and, with two out, took the game from the senators, 10 to 9.

Jealous Woman Dead.

Lewiston, May 7.—Nellie Turner, landlady of the Leo hotel, yesterday afternoon broke into the room of one of the lodgers, Mary E. Raynes, because of a suspicious odor, and found the girl's body on the bed. She had taken chloral. Harry Boyd, who occupied a room connecting with that of the Raynes girl, was found unconscious from a dose of the same poison. He was revived with great difficulty, and said the woman had given him the poison as a medicine for a cold. He is guarded by the police at the hospital.

Boyd came to Lewiston from Dorchester, Mass., last August, it is said, and became infatuated with Miss Raynes, who had recently moved here from Augusta. Miss Turner says that Miss Raynes was inordinately jealous of Boyd, and to that jealousy the act is attributed.

Six Hot Rounds.

Philadelphia, May 7.—"Spike" Sullivan of Boston and Jack Mahoney of Philadelphia fought six hot rounds last night, and Sullivan had a shade the better of the go. The bout was full of action from start to finish. Mahoney showed that he was a master on the defensive, while Sullivan was equally good on the offensive. Both men landed frequently, but Sullivan's blows were the hardest, and in the fifth round Mahoney dropped to the floor to avoid punishment.

NEW STAR IN FISTIANA

Jeffries Won In a Long Bout With "Sailor" Sharkey.

Showed His Superiority From the Start.

Caught In Clinches and Forced to Take Several Blows.

San Francisco, May 7.—Mechanics' pavilion, which has been the scene of many memorable encounters, presented a lively appearance last night shortly before Sharkey and Jeffries appeared in the ring for their much-discussed contest. Every nook and corner in the vast auditorium had its occupant. At this juncture the seats elevated in the whole end of the west side of the pavilion collapsed, and the occupants were piled in a confused heap. For a brief period it was believed that many had been injured, but it was subsequently ascertained that none of the bruises was serious.

J. J. JEFFRIES.

The great crowd was in a tremendous uproar over the occurrence and it was fully half an hour before the police had brought order out of chaos. Then a second section of seats on the northeast side of the building came down in a heap, and the audience was again thrown into an uproar. A few moments later another section in the northwest corner collapsed, and the great crowd was almost in a state of panic. Every man was on his feet and a very uneasy feeling pervaded the whole house. Then a whole side of the elevated seats came down in a terrific roar, and the people were almost beyond control. Almost every tier of seats in the house had now fallen, and the five or six thousand people on the main floor were packed in an excited crowd.

The police finally managed to allay the excitement by assuring the crowd that nobody had been hurt by the collapse of the gallery seats and that there was no danger.

The preliminary bout between Jack Stelzner and Henry Baker was called at 9:30. Referee Agnew stopped the preliminary fight in the fifth round and awarded the decision to Baker on a foul. Stelzner chased the referee out of the ring and went at Baker again, but the police jumped into the ring and sent the men to their dressing rooms. The fighting was about even.

In the first round the men sparred cautiously. Jeffries forced Tom about the ring, feeling him. Sharkey led first at the body, but fell short. Jeffries forced Sharkey into the corner and landed lightly. Both clinched. Sharkey swung his right for the head, but Jeffries caught it on his shoulder.

In the second round Sharkey rushed and swung his right and left without effect. Jeffries landed his left on the neck and Sharkey clinched, striking in the clinch, for which he was hissed. Jeffries landed a hard left on the face and forced Sharkey hard against the ropes. Sharkey swung his right on Jeffries' neck. Jeffries landed a light left on neck.

In the third round Sharkey kept out of Jeffries' way. Jeffries put in his left hook hard on Tom's face. Jeffries landed his left on the face. Sharkey waited for Jeffries to lead and clinched. He brought his right over on Jeffries' head in a clinch, and was warned by the referee. Jeffries sent in his right on the body.

In the fourth round Jeffries got Sharkey in the corner and sent in his left on the head and was countered on the body. Sharkey landed his right on the body, and Jeffries sent in a hard left on the same place. In a clinch Jeffries forced Sharkey against the ropes. Jeffries hooked Sharkey on the jaw with his left.

In the fifth round Sharkey got a left on the face. In a clinch Sharkey struck Jeffries and was hooted. Jeffries staggered the sailor with a left hook. Sharkey rushed wildly, but was stopped and forced backward. Jeffries jabbed Sharkey on the face.

Sharkey gained more confidence in the sixth round and did some rushing, but without apparent effect. In the rounds up to the eleventh there were some warm exchanges without decided advantage to either man. Jeffries knocked the sailor down in the eleventh with a right on the ear. Jeffries landed repeatedly in this round, and Sharkey seemed tired.

Sharkey was fresh in the twelfth, but kept away from his big adversary. Jeffries landed hard and often in the four succeeding rounds and had the sailor in distress part of the time. Sharkey rallied in the seventeenth, but in the eighteenth Jeffries landed three hard ones on the jaw.

In the 20th round both men were tired, but fought viciously. Jeffries landed several times on the body and face, but could not knock the sailor out. The gong rang in the middle of a hot mix, and the crowd went wild with enthusiasm. Referee Greggains announced Jeffries the winner amid the greatest enthusiasm.

TRICYCLES.

Queen Victoria Has Bought a Three Wheeler and Set the Style.

While it is hardly probable that tricycles will ever regain the popularity of a decade and a half ago, their use on American roads is quite a feature this year. The tricycle at one time was widely used in England not only for pleasure riding, but for racing. Many of the best known English racers competed on the three wheeled machines as well as on bicycles, and as much attention was paid to tricycle records as to those made on bicycles. Queen Victoria purchased a tricycle for her personal use, which gave to this type of vehicle a boom. At about the same time several American makers turned out tricycles, but the improvement of the safety developed so rapidly that in a couple of years the use of tricycles died away and they became almost obsolete.

During the last few years there has been a growing return to favor of the latter, although there is practically only one manufacturer in this country who pays serious attention to their production, and he is located in this city. Some other firms put out special tricycles having two seats abreast, or regular tandem tricycles with a double drop frame to accommodate two women. The single tricycle as made today, in both diamond and drop frame styles, weighs from 32 to 35 pounds, which is less than the bicycles of 1891 and 1892 weighed. This year's tricycles, owing to the various improvements in gearing and general construction, also push easier than the bicycles of the early nineties. For timid persons and those who desire a certain amount of outdoor exercise and do not care about speed the tricycle is a practical vehicle. It is safe, dignified and offers a means for locomotion over country roads that while not as speedy or as exhilarating as a bicycle is sufficient to be an enticement to persons of sedentary habits to get out in the open. The combined sensations of skating and flying, claimed by bicycle riders, are lost on the tricycle, and for this reason quite a number of those who take to that machine tire of it and either abandon the sport of wheeling or adopt bicycling. This applies more particularly to the younger and more vigorous class of riders, who do not fear accidents. Pedaling on a tricycle is what a wheelman calls "steady plugging." There is no jump to the three wheeled vehicles as there is to the delicately poised one having two wheels when a sudden pressure is exerted on the pedals, and while it is true that the modern three wheeler goes as easily as the bicycle of ten years ago it runs considerably harder than the up to date two wheeler. The tricycle is also more difficult to steer and is more unwieldy in turning corners.—New York Sun.

PRACTICAL POINTS.

Of the 600 miles of roads and streets in Paris over which it is possible to cycle 200 are planted with trees.

In New York the street sprinklers have agreed to leave unwatered a strip on both sides of the streets which are frequented by cyclers.

The origin of the bicycle is now traced back to the year 1731 in France, when the Sieur Milliard presented to the academy two rolling chairs propelled by pedals.

If a lamp wick is not working properly, it should be taken out and soaked in very salt water. Then dry it out and give it another bath in salt water mixed with oil. This will make it burn clear and strong.

An authority advises the keeping of the saddle soft and dry and protect it from the rain. Unprotected saddles get hard and uncomfortable and often result in injury. A covering for the saddle to keep it dry can easily be made.

A tire dealer says: "Too many riders have an idea that they can use tires for two or three seasons and not have them go wrong. Every rider who has a last year's wheel with the same old tires on it should get a new pair. Never mind the expense."

A New York physician advises riders not to drink strong stimulants while riding, because the supposed recuperative effects are only temporary. The liquid in warm weather passes from the body in the shape of perspiration, leaving the alcohol in the system.

A Swedish inventor has designed a tandem bicycle on which the forward seat, by a suitable arrangement of the frame, is placed on a higher level than the rear saddle. This is done with the view of bringing the riders in closer proximity, thereby reducing the length of the machine.

Wales to Rescue the Bicycle.

The report that the Prince of Wales is taking lessons in bicycle riding has already roused up the spirits of those interested in the sale of machines and who were looking despondently at the cycling prospects of the coming season. If the prince should take up cycling even in a casual way, it would certainly give a fillip to the pastime which seems to be on the wane among those who rushed at it a year or two ago and rapidly got tired of it when its first novelty had worn off. The question, Are people going to cycle this summer? will depend very much on the confirmation or otherwise of the news from Cannes next week. — London Court Journal.

Prizes will be awarded on single pictures. Any one can take part in this competition and send in as many photographs as he pleases, but not more than one prize will be awarded to any one person.

DESIRABLE SUBURB.

Why Quincy is the Belt About Boston.

Miss Bessie Whittemore's prize essay at Quincy High School:

Debate. Resolved: that Quincy is the most desirable suburb of Boston.

If any one wishes to change his place of residence, the best thing that attracts him to another town or city, its beauty. Surely Quincy is not lacking in this respect. It is prettily situated between the hills and the water. These hills possess great beauty for lovers of nature, being covered with trees and flowers. A most delightful view can be obtained from the summit of Third hill. At ones feet lie the different parts of Quincy and the neighboring towns, farther off lies the bay with numerous yachts sailing about, and still farther off one can barely see the roofs and spires of buildings in Boston, and the shining dome of the State House towering above them all.

The beach is such that in the summer bathing is a source of great pleasure to many people, and yachting in the bay is another pleasant amusement. Then there is a yacht club, and the races are most interesting. affairs.

The roads of Quincy are very good for driving and bicycling; and many of them are long, shady avenues, with grand old elms on either side. There are many pretty residences, as well as public buildings. Being a very old place, many of the houses are old-fashioned and picturesque looking. Some of these are built in colonial style, and are set back from the street, with large trees in front; others are not especially large or handsome, but have a very old look that makes one look upon them with the respect and veneration that one has for the aged.

Among the public buildings are the City Hall, built of granite, and opposite it, the Unitarian church, commonly known as "the old stone church," and the Public Library, which is an odd, attractive looking building, made of brown stone.

In its historical interest, what other suburb of Boston can vie with it? It seems to me more desirable as a place of residence, because of its historical connections, because it is a great privilege for one to be able to say with pride, that he lives in a city that has produced two presidents of the United States. The bodies of these two presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, with their wives, are now resting beneath the steps of "the old stone church," and tablets inscribed to their memory have been placed in the church.

The houses in which they lived, are situated in that part of Quincy now called South Quincy or Quincy Adams, but formerly known as Braintree. These houses are still standing, side by side, and are in good repair. They were bought recently by some historical societies. One was bought by the Daughters of Revolution, and has been fitted up with old-fashioned furniture, and it is now open to the public on payment of a nominal fee.

Wollaston, a part of Quincy, was one of the first places settled in Massachusetts. After Captain Wollaston left for Virginia, Thomas Morton was the leader of the colony, and with his men, spent all his time in revelry and merriment. The place where the famous dance around the May-pole took place, is now reserved as a national park called Merry Mount.

Almost every man has business in Boston, and finds it necessary to go in every day, and people also like to go in shopping frequently. As the journey from Quincy isn't long, or the car fare large, this can be easily done.

To make things more convenient electric cars run every few minutes between Quincy and the neigboring towns. If one prefers to go into Boston in the electric cars instead of the train this can be done and it is a much more pleasant way of travelling in the summer.

As for churches Quincy contains those of every denomination thus satisfying everyone.

All persons over fourteen years of age living in Quincy are entitled to take books from the Thomas Crane Public Library. This is a great help for persons who attend school and find it necessary to look up material on various subjects and also for those who can't afford to buy every book they wish to read. This is a great benefit to book lovers, as all the books and magazines of the day can be taken out.

Families with children attending school naturally like to have them go to the best possible ones. In no other suburbs of Boston are the schools nearly as good as those of Quincy. The Quincy public schools are known all over the country, and well may they be, for they are excellent. At the Columbia exposition, held in Chicago in 1893 Quincy was awarded a certificate for the excellence of the school work which was exhibited. Grammar and Primary schools are situated in all parts of the city, while the High school has a nearly central location. It is a new building, with all conveniences for teachers and pupils, and fits pupils for any college.

What other suburb of Boston can compare with Quincy?

Basket Ball.

The game of basket ball played by the sophomores of Boston University and Woodward Institute resulted in a score of 36 to 8 in favor of Woodward. The goal-throwing of the B U team was excellent; however, the Woodward team was quicker and played a more united game.

The players from B U were Misses Trumway, Copp, McFall, Durkin and Woodvine, the latter also being captain.

Woodward Institute was represented by Misses Macfarlane, Shea, Dunn, Janet Carr and Annie Graham. Miss Lillian Bates, captain, Miss Helen Blackwell referee

Whoever thinks the Woodward girls "quiet," should have been in the gymnasium yesterday. They were eagerly anxious for the success of their own, but yet every good play of their opponents was generously applauded. School cries were frequent. Enthusiasm was at its height when the end was reached

The B. U. girls bore their defeat with so much good-nature that Woodward surprised them by heartily giving their own class yell, varying the last line to suit the occasion.

"Rah! rah! rah!
Gre n and white!
B. U. Century,
You're all right."

The ladies present, together with the two teams, were invited to the library where light refreshments were served. The gymasium and library were gaily decorated with flags.

The visitors were escorted to the station by the Woodward girls who waved a parting salute amid the mingled cries of B. U. and Woodward.

This is the first time that the Woodward has entered into any contest and is to be congratulated upon the great success of its first effort.

The gentleman who lectures before housekeepers, in the Quincy Music hall, on Wednesday afternoon is thirty-nine years old. Is married, and resides with his family in Dorchester, a delightful suburb of Boston. On the temperance and other vitally important questions, he takes a strong, influential position on the right side. Mr. Worrell has made food discussion a large success, especially during the last three years, in the west and south. His methods are entirely original, and he has made a distinct place for himself in the field of dietetics. Housekeepers must remember that Mr. Worrell's book cannot be obtained without charge except at the lecture. Tickets for the lecture in this city may now be procured at A. G. Durgin's, free, by housekeepers only.

Civi Trial List.

The following cases are marked for trial at the Civil session of the District court next Tuesday:

238—Arnold vs. Wolfe.
276—Arnold vs. Wolfe.
82—Bouldy—vs. Bass.
93—Casey vs. McDermott & tr.
98—Kelliher vs. Daly & tr.

The statement that the arc electric light is not blue, but as nearly as possible similar to daylight, will be a surprise to many. The most probable explanation seems to be that the nerves of the eye, which are sensitive to yellow light, become fatigued towards night, as yellow light predominate, during the day. The arc looks blue, both by contrast to the yellow and because the nerves, sensitive to blue light, are rested and therefore more acute.

CONFLAGRATION.

Six or More Houses Burned at Nahant.

[Special to the Ledger.]

Lynn, May 7—A conflagration raged at Nahant this morning which threatened a great many houses. At 10 A. M. six had been destroyed.

Keith's Theatre.

Decidedly the most important announcement from the vaudeville theatres this season is that of the engagement of the celebrated actress, Rose Coghlan, for a tour of the Keith circuit, opening at the Boston house, Monday, May 9, in the popular comedy, "Nance Oldfield," which is considered her most effective bit of character work. The entertainment at Keith's suffers no depreciation because of the engagement of such a noted star, as it will include such well known performers as Sidney Grant and Angie Norton, in a neat singing and dancing specialty; and Ricev and Elmer, funnymen on the horizontal bars; Papinta will continue dancing, her new departure having created a sort of sensation the past week, with the addition of mirrors, light, color and costumes. The song sheet will go merrily on, the biograph shows new views, and Prof. Gies exhibit "Scenes on Vacation Trips," and other interesting pictures.

Castle Square Theatre.

The long contemplated production of Joseph Arthur's realistic drama "Blue Jeans" will be the attraction at the Castle Square theatre the coming week and an additional interest attaches to this announcement from the fact that the author has attended all the rehearsals of the play and confirmed the judgment shown in these preparations. "Blue Jeans" was first made familiar to the Boston public by its production at the Hollis street theatre a few seasons ago and the popularity it has enjoyed throughout the country ever since best illustrates the good judgment shown in selecting it for one of the Castle Square theatre attractions. "Blue Jeans 'will be produced with elaborate scenic and mechanical effects with the following cast: Perry Bascom, Col. Henry Clay Risener, Ben Boone, Jacob Tutewiler, Jim Tutewiler, Isaac Hankins, Drum Major of the "Rising Sun Roarers," Seth Igoe, Hiram Smith, Si Simon, Hank Foster, June, Sue Eudaly, Cindy Tutewiler, Samantha Hankins, Beleena Kicker, Nell Tutewiler, Lucy Bascom. A revival of the famous farce comedy "Charley's Aunt" follows "Blue Jeans" on Monday, May 16th. At next Wednesday's matinee the souvenir will be a portrait of Mr. J. H. Gilmour.

A curious railway is to be constructed in Florida. Not a pound of metal will be used, although the line will be 40 miles long. The wooden rails will be supplied gratis by the property owners along the track, and are to be large enough to permit the engineer to lay them so that they will be half imbedded in the sand, without other ballast. In a few years it is hoped that the fruit, vegetable and passenger traffic over the route will pay for regular steel rails.

The Amazon is in every respect but length the greatest river in the world At many points in its lower course so vast is its width that one shore is invisible from the other, the observer seeming to look out into a rolling sea of turbid water. It has over 400 tributaries, great and small, which rise in so many different climates that when one set is at flood height the others are at ebb, and vice versa, so that the bulk of the great river remains unchanged the whole year round.

VOL. 10. No. 108. QUINCY, MASS., MONDAY, MAY 9, 1898. PRICE 2 CENTS.

DEPARTURE OF CO. K.

Braintree Provides a Band -- Grand Army and Boys' Brigade as Escort.

The Company Went to Gloucester Instead of New Bedford -- Will Garrison a Fort.

Never since the departure of the "boys of 61," for the front has there been so much excitement and so much enthusiasm in Braintree as there was this morning when Co. K departed for Gloucester for a tour of duty that will last, no one knows how long. If ever a militia company received a royal "send off" that company was Co. K It seemed as though everybody was out not only the residents but many from Quincy, Weymouth and othe places, and if there was anybody who was not present it was because they were unable to be.

Almost everybody carried flags and the young ladies who had come to see their sweethearts off were resplendent in the national colors There were some, however, who had tears in their eyes for in such times as these they did not know how long it would be before they saw their loved ones again although on the surface they were called out but for a few days' duty

The company was ordered to report at the armory at 7 o'clock and a few minutes later the members were busy putting the finishing touches to their equipment, and at 7.30 when the order was given to fall in, everybody was ready The boys were in heavy marching order and besides their guns they carried a knapsack, canteen, dipper and lunch bag

Meanwhile, outside the armory, the organizations that were to perform escort duty were arriving and getting into line. At 7.45 after a few final instructions by Capt. Kincaide the order "Forward March" was given, and the company marched out of the armory, being greeted with cheers as they left the hall.

There was no delay and the procession started immediately. As the line moved the band struck up an inspiring air, the church bells pealed forth their Godspeed, and the whistles on the factories shrieked out their accompaniment.

The order of procession was as follows:

Citizens in general.

The line of march was from the armory to the South Braintree depot The residences and public buildings all along the line were gaily decorated with flags and the ringing of bells, the firing of cannon, and cheers were very inspiring

Arriving at the South Braintree depot, hundreds of men, women and children were found in waiting to say good by. The company was drawn up in front of an improvised platform, where Edward Porter acting as president, introduced Rev C H. Willliams who offered a fervent prayer.

Rev. Fr. J. P Cuffe of Quincy was then introduced and addressed the boys briefly.

He was followed by Rev C H Crathern, who also spoke briefly

Cheers were then given for the company and as the band struck up "America," the crowd added their voices

The train had now arrived and the boys were quickly aboard a special car attached to the 8.40 train. As the train pulled out of the depot a mighty cheer arose and the boys were off.

The plan was that President Porter should deliver an address to the company at the depot in behalf of the citizens to which Captain Kincaide was to respond but this was omitted for lack of time

Arriving in Boston the company marched across the city to the wharf of the Gloucester boat, and embarked for Cape Ann. As a high wind has prevailed the sea is rough and if the boys are not home sick they are most likely sea sick.

BEAR IN MIND.

That the rents in Boston are enormous, from $2,000 to $25,000 a year, $40 to $500 a week, $6 to $85 a day, if you care to figure it down to that. This rent must come out of the profits. To pay big rents and big expenses, they must make big profits.

Bear in mind that our rent is just $2 a day, and that all our other expenses are correspondingly low.

Bear in mind that we will pay back money with or without reason.

That everything we sell is guaranteed.

We are selling clothing and furnishings 10 to 20 per cent. less than Boston stores simply because we are in a position to do business for less profit.

We have a variety of Suits, in Serges, Scotches and Plaids. These suits are marked in Boston windows, $10.00—made by the same makers, with the same cloth, the same linings, the same in every way but the price, $7.50.

We have better ones, too. Call and look them over and you may become our customer like many others who have lived in this city for years and years and always bought their clothing in Boston.

POWERLESS!

Manila Spanish Wholly Hemmed In.

INSURGENTS ACTIVE.

Dewey's Fleet Commands the Harbor.

VERY GREAT LOSS OF MEN.

Believed That 2000 Defenders Perished In Attack.

London, May 9.—The Hong Kong correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "Manila is helpless and surrounded by insurgents. The blockade is effective. The Americans have occupied Corregidor island, and Commodore Dewey has exercised consummate judgment and rare ability in maintaining a distance at once safe for his fleet and deadly to the Spaniards."

An Act of Treachery.

London, May 9.—The Hong Kong correspondent of The Daily Mail gives the following additional details: "There was an act of treachery on the part of a Spanish boat which lowered her flag and then fired at a boat's crew sent to take possession of her. She did not hit the boat, but our guns were turned on her and tore her to pieces. She went to the bottom with all on board. Several vessels close inshore behaved in the same way and shared her fate.

"The Spaniards had fought to their last gasp and now surrendered. They had been announcing that the Americans would kill everyone in Cavite, and when we landed a long procession of priests and sisters of mercy met the boat from the Petrel and begged our men not to injure the wounded in the hospital. As a matter of fact the Americans rescued some 200 Spaniards and sent them ashore.

"All the Spanish vessels are destroyed, with 2000 men. The Spanish estimate gives their loss at 1000 killed and wounded. In the Reina Christina 200 men are believed to have been killed and drowned.

"Private papers captured at Cavite show it was intended that the Spanish fleet should engage the Americans outside the bay the day before the fight. No explanation is forthcoming of the change of plans. My informant told me a landing was not effected at Manila, where food is scarce, as Commodore Dewey could not undertake any responsibility. Still I do not think there is any danger of the insurgents massacreing the population of Manila. If they began to do so Commodore Dewey would land men and stop them.

"Supplies of food are being stopped by the insurgents at Manila and Cavite, where the hospital has been plundered for food. The Americans landed supplies for the Spanish wounded. The Olympia was hit 15 times during the engagement."

Montejo Fled to Manila.

London, May 9.—The Hong Kong correspondent of The Times, describing the fight at Manila, says: "The cable from the bay to Manila having been cut by the rebels, the city was taken by surprise by the appearance of the American fleet. The Spanish flagship, having got up steam, advanced out of line to meet the Olympia. Commodore Dewey had issued orders for the fleet to concentrate its guns on the Spanish flagship, and the signal was obeyed with telling effect. The flagship retired. The Olympia fired a 10-inch shell which raked the Reina Maria Christina throughout her length and caused her boilers to explode, killing her captain and 60 men. She drifted away on fire.

"Altogether 140 men were killed and about the same number were wounded. Admiral Montejo transferred his flag to the Castilla, which was sunk shortly afterward by a storm of shot. At 7:45 the Olympia signalled to cease firing. The Americans were exhausted with the great heat, the men having been quartered since 10 o'clock the previous night. A conference of captains was held, and it was found that no one had been killed, but that several had been slightly wounded by splinters.

"Two torpedo launches attacked the Olympia. The shells from her guns were unable to strike so small an object, but a hail of 6-pound shells sank the leading launch, all on board being killed. The other launch was beached with 12 shot holes and the boat was covered with blood. Half an hour after noon, a white flag was hoisted at Cavite and the Spanish crews deserted their ships, taking away their dead. Admiral Montejo fled to Manila with his two aide-de-camps."

PEACE ADVOCATES.

Story That They Are Again Busy With the President.

Washington, May 9.—Great pressure is being brought to bear on the administration to prevent the sending of reinforcements to Admiral Dewey at Manila, or, failing in that, to postpone sending reinforcements in the hope that Spain may make advances for peace and so bring the war to a close without inviting any complications which may arise from the military occupation of the Philippines.

This pressure comes from some of the men who were most prominent in trying to effect a compromise through diplomatic negotiations before the declaration of war, and who opposed most strenuously the passage of the intervention resolutions by congress. They are aided now by the French representatives in Washington of the Spanish bondholders, who are much encouraged by the courtesy shown by the president in releasing the French steamer Lafayette, and who are hopeful of a conclusion of the war with Spain without bloodshed before midsummer.

Some members of the cabinet, among them Secretary Day, whose influence with the president is known to be great, are favorable to the project. Assistant Secretary Moore who is an avowed opponent of the interpretation of the Monroe doctrine which now prevails, is understood to be responsible for the position assumed by Secretary Day. At the cabinet meeting on Saturday, after the receipt of advices from Admiral Dewey, there was a long and heated discussion on this very point. The program of those who oppose the sending of troops to the Philippines does not stop there by any means, but is wide in its scope. It is reported to be as follows:

First, no sending of soldiers to land at Manila, as this would complicate the United States with the insurgents and perhaps prevent the return of the Philippines to Spain.

Second, no seizure of Porto Rico by the United States, as this would also involve the United States in obligations to give the insurgents a free and independent government.

Third, the surrender of Cuba by Spain, to be disposed of as the United States may decide, without the landing of United States troops, which would result in a recognition of the present Cuban republic.

Fourth, no battle between Sampson's fleet and the Spanish ironclads.

It is believed that if it can be understood that the first two points are conceded there will be no trouble in avoiding the battle between the fleets. It is urged that since Dewey's victory, which offsets the loss of the Maine, both nations can afford to make peace and Spain can afford to give up Cuba if she is allowed to retain Luzon and Porto Rico.

What view the president takes of this plan of settlement is not known, although a remark which he made at Saturday's cabinet meeting has caused those who are urging it upon him to take courage. In the cabinet there is a strong faction, headed by Secretary Long, which favors immediate and aggressive action, looking not only to sending relief to Dewey but to throwing a large body of troops into Cuba and seizing Porto Rico at once in order that it may not be used by the Spanish fleets as a base of supplies.

Between 60,000 and 80,000 men will be landed on Cuban soil at once. They will wear the uniform of the United States, and they will not return until they have defeated the Spanish forces in the island and the American flag floats as proudly over Havana as it does over the ruins of the Cavite fortress in Manila harbor. This is the idea of the military advisers of the administration, and the president has approved the plans. The first section of the army to invade Cuba will be the 15,000 or 18,000 troops that are now assembling at New Orleans and Tampa. They are all regulars, and most of them are men who have seen actual fighting on the plains. They are seasoned, disciplined, effective. They will be followed at once by another army of 50,000 volunteers, who will be concentrated at southern ports as quickly as the trains can carry them, and will be transported as fast as the necessary ships can be collected.

It is expected during this week to hear victorious news from Admiral Sampson, who has gone to engage the enemy's fleet if it appears in the West Indian waters, but who will seize Porto Rico if the fleet does not appear. Various stories were afloat last night as to a naval engagement off Porto Rico, but the officials of the navy department had no official knowledge of the fact. As there are alert correspondents at every point in the West Indies where the cable touches, it is improbable that the navy department will hear the news of a battle before the newspapers get a report. In fact, it is not at all unlikely that the first accounts will come from Madrid, as they did on the day the Manila battle was fought, because the cable to San Juan is in control of the Spaniards. There will be some days of anxious waiting, but the belief in a glorious outcome is unclouded by a single doubt.

A Disagreeable Sunday.

South Framingham, Mass., May 9.—The first Sunday in camp was a disagreeable one for the volunteers, it being difficult to keep warm, though fires were kept burning about the camp. The first event of the day was the mustering in of company K of the Second regiment of Springfield.

The examinations continued in the Eighth regiment, and the company rejections were as follows: A, 15 men; B, 4; C, 15; D, 12; E, 18; F, 10; G, 11; H, 10; I, 6.

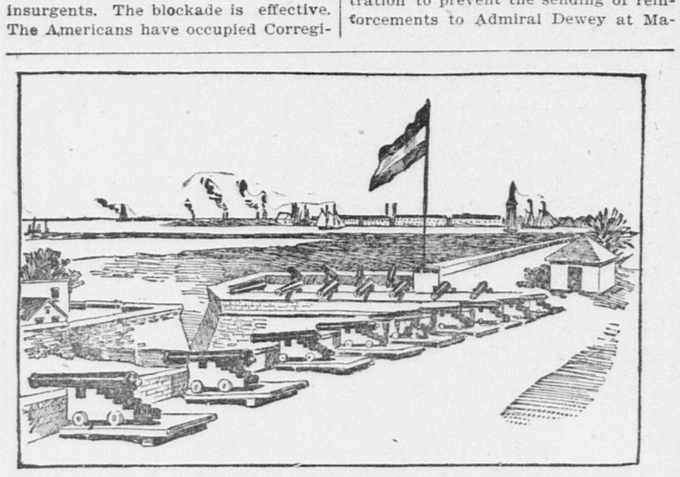

Measles In Camp Ramsdell.

Concord, N. H., May 9.—Two cases of measles are reported in camp, but prompt isolation, it is hoped, will check the spread of the disease. There are now 1168 men in camp. Thus far companies, D, C, K, E and A have been wholly examined, and as a rule the men have been found in good condition and rejections have not been numerous enough in any case to reduce the strength of any company below the required maximum.

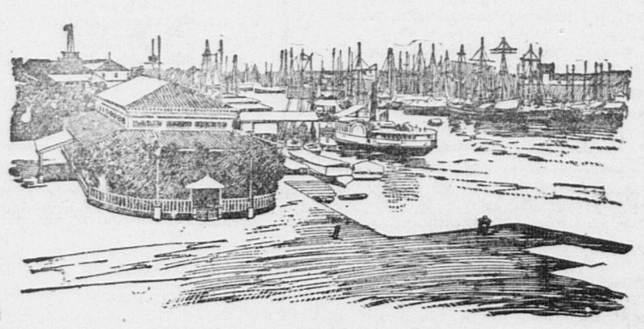

Ready to Go Tomorrow.

Boston, May 9.—The first intimation that the new volunteers from this state were needed near the scene of action off the southern coast came in a dispatch from the war department asking how soon Massachusetts could send troops to Chickamauga. Governor Wolcott replied that with the mustering in of a regiment the men would be ready to leave tomorrow. As one company of the regiment commanded by Colonel Clark of Springfield was mustered in yesterday, and the remaining companies will follow, it seems probable that this regiment will be designated as the first one to leave the state "for the front."

SEA WALL AND BATTERIES AT MANILLA.

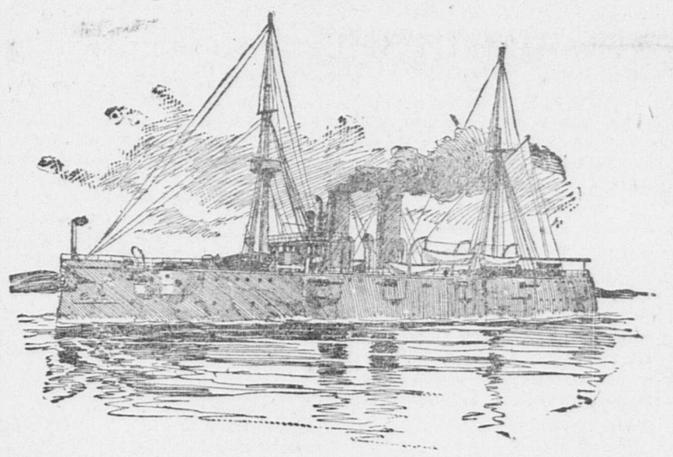

VIEW OF MANILLA.

Manilla, the capital and largest city of the Philippine islands, has a population of about 330,000, consisting of Spanish creoles, Chinese half breeds and natives. Up to within 25 years ago it was a city of imposing appearance, the houses being solidly built of stone, but an earthquake shook most of them to pieces, and when the inhabitants rebuilt they made low, lightly constructed houses of wood and bamboo.

Honest Cycles at Honest Prices.

Realizing that this is a $50 Year in the Bicycle trade, the IVER JOHNSON ARMS AND CYCLE CO. of Fitchburg, Mass., have reduced the price of their wheels to meet the popular demand. These wheels have never sold before for less than $100, and while there are a few other makes that are as good, there is certainly nothing better.

Sharp Competition induces unscrupulous dealers to push and advertise an inferior wheel for the sake of greater profit. A cheap western wheel with a good coat of paint and a high sounding name may sell as well if the dealer allows $25 on an old wheel that is worth about $10. This is a great trade. After riding it for a season, however, the rider changes his mind and thinks of an old adage, "You can't get something for nothing."

GETTING THE WAR NEWS

Anxious Days and Nights For the Correspondents.

HOW A PRESS CENSORSHIP WORKED

Only Two Cables From Key West, and Scores of Reporters Want to Use Them. If Mosquitoes and Fleas Don't Keep the News Gatherer Awake When He Snatches a Nap, His Watchman Performs That Service—Some Difficulties Met With.

The peculiar difficulties attending the gathering and transmission of news concerning the war from Key West to the various newspapers throughout the country have never before been encountered by this generation of newspaper men. However satisfactory Key West may be to the United States government as a base of supplies for its fleet in the operations against Havana it is far from satisfactory as a base of operations for the correspondents. In the first place, it is tucked away off from the mainland, with but two cables connecting it with the telegraphic systems of the country. This renders it impossible to handle all the correspondence dumped daily into the cable office without the most vexatious delays, to say nothing of the added expense which the use of the cable necessitates. Were it on the mainland additional telegraph wires would be strung to accommodate the business, but there is no disposition on the part of the cable company to go to any increased expense just at this time. By reason of its location the mail facilities are likewise very poor. There are only three mails a week each way, and the steamship runs to Port Tampa and Miami occupy so so much time that any news consigned to Uncle Sam is stale almost before reaching the mainland. Still all this is just as hard for one fellow as another, so that the rival seekers for the truth about this war start out just even.

When the principal squadron of the navy began rendezvousing here and it became evident that war was in sight, newspaper correspondents began flocking in here to be ready for the harvest. The destruction of the Maine increased its importance as a news center, and upon the day the fleet sailed away to blockade the Cuban coast there were on duty here more than 50 reporters of the American press. As a matter of fact it had been very dull in Key West up to this event. The newspaper men, the naval officers and the army officers had hobnobbed in the hotel corridors and become acquainted, but as for putting "stuff on the wire" there was little to be done. Every one was waiting for the fleet to sail. Occasionally there were arrivals and departures of vessels to be recorded, accidents to the machinery on shipboard to be investigated, the fortifications at Fort Taylor to be watched, and a few other routine matters to be kept track of, but that was all. Time hung heavily, and Key West, hot, dusty, mosquito infested and flea plagued, was one big yawn.

The sailing of the fleet wrought a marvelous change. The yachts of the newspapers, which had been at anchor in the harbor with the squadron, steamed out with it, leaving men on shore to keep their eyes open and fight for information. The war was on for the correspondents before even the shores of Cuba were sighted. The duty of the men on the yachts was to follow the fleet and report its movements, its captures and its battles. But Key West must still be guarded. There might be an action at sea and the news of it reach Key West by one of the speedy little torpedo boats long before one of the dispatch boats could return. Prizes might be brought in at any hour. The dispatch boats might be riddled in an engagement or captured by a Spanish gunboat. Key West itself might be attacked by Spanish men-of-war. Therefore watchfulness was essential at this point.

Thus there are two sets of men responsible to their respective newspapers for the news at this center. Now, as to the work of the landsman. He can never sleep in peace. The news of an event of which the world may read in history is likely to come into the harbor at any minute of the day or night. Some one must always be on guard. Hence, in addition to keeping his own eyes open as long as he can, he keeps a watchman on the water front all the time. This man reports everything he sees or hears. For instance, it is 5 o'clock in the morning. The correspondent is snatching a few hours' rest. The watchman sights a steamer out beyond the bar. He runs to the hotel. The correspondent must get up and go to the docks. As the steamer approaches the glasses tell him that she is a prize. He must get to her, and at once. He hires a launch or a rowboat or a tug, and out he goes to her. He gets the story of her capture, hastens on shore, runs for the nearest cable office with a crowd of other correspondents before and around and behind him. If he gets there first and gets his dispatch filed first, he is happy; if last, he is disconsolate, for he knows that before his is reached there may be extras put on the street by a rival paper in his own city. The incoming steamer may be a government dispatch boat. If so, he must learn all he can from her. Or she may be a rival newspaper's yacht, bringing in big news from the squadron. He must learn what he can and make the best of his meager information thus received. In addition to this constant watchfulness of the water front he must keep track of all the routine, and his lot is not a happy one.

Still the man on the yacht has his troubles too. He sails away and reaches the squadron. He is told of the capture of a prize. There was a chase. It makes a good story. He must get back to the cable office. The sea is rough, and as he writes his pencil joggles all over the paper. He has been up for hours. So has his crew. But a rival yacht is astern. It is a race to the cable office. The man who gets there last might almost as well have staid behind. All steam is crowded on. The correspondent has his story written when he reaches the harbor. He tumbles into a small boat and makes for shore. Then he races for the cable office and files his copy. Perhaps there are thousands upon thousands of words already on file to go ahead of his. He cannot help it. He goes to the hotel and finds a large number of telegrams from the managing editor asking of this or that. The other day one correspondent received more than 40 telegrams from his office. Among them was one inquiring if it was yet daylight in Key West, he having announced that the fleet would sail at daylight.

No sooner are dispatches from the yacht filed than another trip must be made, for no one knows what may happen to the squadron. A naval engagement may have taken place in his absence, so back he goes, meeting another rival yacht coming in, carrying he knows not what. The story of one is the story of all, modified by the exactions of the home office. The men on the yachts are busy now, but when shells begin to scream and the guns to boom there will come the danger of death and capture to add to the conditions which now confront them.

The establishment of a press censorship was an innovation which worked harshly at first. To begin with, all these writers had hitherto been untrammeled. They had been accustomed to wiring whatever they saw fit. Suddenly a man was thrust upon them with the power to "kill" every word they wrote. Newspaper speculation was cut off. No more theories of war were allowed. The writer who had been in the habit of directing military and naval operations with his pen found himself held down to facts and only such facts as had been reported to Washington and whose publication would not hurt the country's interests. This was altogether new, and its sudden application played havoc in more ways than one.

A few afternoons ago a reporter filed a long dispatch. There was much exclusive information in it. A few paragraphs were deemed unwise by the censor. He therefore laid the whole dispatch aside for future consideration. After every other dispatch filed after it had been sent the story was censored and allowed to go out. It was thus delayed 15 hours, although no notice of censorship had been served on the man who wrote it. This was intensely annoying, but there was no help for it. However, when the injustice of reversing the filing order was pointed out to Captain Thompson he readily admitted it, so that it will not occur again. The injustice done was entirely unintentional on his part. Not being a newspaper man, he did not realize the necessity for haste.

Another difficulty which some of the newspapers have met with is the unreliability of the crews aboard their dispatch boats. With one exception the New York Sun is the only newspaper here whose crew has stuck faithfully to it. Some of the boats have been returned to their owners because of desertions by all hands. The reason assigned for this is that the men do not care to run the risk of being captured by the Spaniards. They have read so much of Spanish brutality that they imagine their toe nails will be torn out with redhot pinchers the moment they are captured. All the Cubans in Key West seemed to believe this most firmly, and their stories to the men sent courage below par. —New York Sun.

USED AS A DOORMAT.

Schoolboys Show Their Feeling by Tacking Spain's Flag to the Floor.

Several of the older pupils of the New Rochelle high school organized a unique scheme the other night to show their hatred toward Spain. The boys held a meeting and decided to get a Spanish flag and tack it to the floor of the main hall just inside of the front door, where every one would walk upon it. So when the teachers and pupils entered the building the next morning all were obliged to tread upon the emblem.

Isaac E. Young, the superintendent of schools, also stepped on it, much against his will. He then ordered the flag torn up and lectured the pupils for doing such a thing, but could not learn who was responsible. Superintendent Young was angry and said he would not tolerate such an insult to a foreign country.—Exchange.

Powder Not Everything.

Naval experts have mourned over our poverty in smokeless powder. It was feared that we might suffer because of the smoke in attacking an enemy's fleet when accurate marksmanship would be the vital necessity of the situation. The Spanish service was better in powder, but the results at Manilla would go to show that the American vessels rose superior to this handicap.—Springfield Republican.

A War Exigency.

One of the offices at the department of state has been turned into a bedroom, and Third Assistant Secretary Cridler now sleeps there every night in order to translate any cipher messages that may be received. For the first time since the close of the war telegraph operators are kept on night and day at the state, war and navy departments.—William E. Curtis in Chicago Record.

Naval warfare with all its modern appliances is a science. The firing of a big gun with precision requires mathematical calculation besides a thoroughly trained eye. The American sailors, like the American war weapons, are thoroughly up to date; but there is a sad lack of up-to-date training and intelligence amongst the sailors on Spanish vessels. The victory achieved at Manila, therefore, is not surprising. A similar one may be expected in the Atlantic waters when the Spanish fleet comes within meeting distance, if it ever does. Admiral Nelson said of the Spaniards: "In times of peace they are great braggadocios, in times of war great cowards, but great thieves all the time."

The greatest danger we have to fear is from the plotting of Spanish diplomacy and seeking to entangle us with foreign powers; and that danger is increased by the political disorganization spreading so rapidly throughout Spain. It looks very much as though the situation may become complicated through a triangular civil war,—the present Kingdom, the Carlists and the Republicans being pitted against each other. That is a situation which would almost certainly bring into the melee one or more intervening powers; and there are more than one of the Continental governments that might show little hesitation about making such a condition of things an excuse for intervening between the United States and Spain. Our path is thus beset by pitfalls, the importance of avoiding which is very plainly appreciated by the President.

—When Charles Sumner entered the U. S. Senate in 1851, an older senator remarked to him: "You have come to this high position too late. All the great national questions have been discussed and settled." How mistaken that observation was subsequent events soon proved. New and important questions are constantly arising, and in these days, when history makes so rapidly there are enough to occupy the best intellects. No age solves all the problems there are.

THE CELEBRATION.

Quincy Enthuses over the Dewey Victory.

The churches with bells and the quarrymen with whistles were quick to respond on Saturday at a short notice to the Ledger's suggestions that the city celebrate at sunset the glorious victory of Commodore Dewey over the Spanish fleet at Manila.

Spontaneously at 6.30 the bells on the First church, Bethany church, and the Universalist chuch began to ring and other church bells joined in while in the quarry section the screeching of the whistle blew a prolonged and deafening. Patriotic citizens discharged guns and fired salute, while storekeepers in City Square found a ready sale for all the fire crackers they had on hand. Young America tooted horns and made unearthly noises upon tin cans.

The flag display was largely increased, some of the additional ones being at the Quincy Savings Bank, George W. Jones, George Ames, Granite Shoe store, Hotel Greenleaf, Granite Clothing Co., Traders Supply Co, residence of City Clerk Cleaves, residence of Mrs Sampson, residence

The Ledger does not think it necessary to celebrate every little victory but should Commodore Sampson sink the Cape Verde fleet it would be another occasion for rejoicing, and the downfall of Porto Rico, and of Cuba, and the close of the war, should also be celebrated.

The Ledger extends thanks to Sexton Fox of the First church, Sexton Newcomb of Bethany church and Sexton Merritt of the Universalist for ringing their bells so enthusiastically and hopes that on future occasions a few patriotic men will respond and help ring out the joyful news, as it is no easy task for one man to ring a church bell for half an hour

A. H. Taber rode through the street on his bicycle dragging behind him a large cow bell which made a good deal of noise. The kids caught on and going behind fences and into back yards they seized all the tomato cans they could find, tied them to strings and went through the streets 'ah la'' cow bell

Hurdy Gurdy Party.

One of the prettiest of children's dancing parties was the Hurdy gurdy party given at Music hall Saturday afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock by Mrs Rhines, for the benefit of the City Hospital It was participated in by about one hundred and fifty young people who thoroughly enjoyed dancing to the inspiring music of the hurd-gurdy and the tambourine accompaniment by Marie Grosse, the queen of tambourine artists During the afternoon she gave a tambourine solo which was loudly applauded Many of the little people were accompanied by their mothers and friends who enjoyed watching the dancing fully as much as they did those who participated Mrs Rhines received many compliments upon the success of the affair which they trust will soon be repeated The matrons were Mrs N S Hunting, Mrs A C Drinkwater, Mrs J B Kendrick, Mrs. E. W. Henry Bass and Mrs R. R. Freeman. Wales served ice cream during a brief intermission.

Yachting Spray.

Sunday was a surprise to some of the yacht owners, for a number of them wished to do a little light work about their boats. The north east wind was very cold and was blowing hard across the bay, and so powerful that some yachts at their moorings tossed and rocked like a cradle The tide was exceedingly high and about 12 30 at the foot of River street the water had risen nearly to the flooring of the boat houses One yacht slipped her mooring, and only the hard work of the owner saved her a pounding against the stone wall around Lelois buildings It was feared at noon when the water was the highest that some of the boats resting on the ways would break away Walter Slade's yacht and the Stella Manning are now in commission

Until Peace Reigns.

Saturday at 2 P M a large gathering assembled at Guy's coliseum while Messrs Guy & Shaw flung to the breeze a beautiful Americann flag

There were present veterans of the Grand Army, Sons of Veterans and descendants of the Revolutionary war, also of the war of 1812 As Mr Guy unfurled the flag he remarked, that his great-great-grandfather, Benjamin Guy, of Dover, Mass, led the band of so-called Indians who threw the tea overboard in Boston Harbor, and now "It gives me great pleasure to unfurl this flag emblem of American Liberty"

And the flag will wave,
Over land and sea,
Until peace reigns once more
And Cuba is free.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

John H. O'Brien Killed on the Railroad.

John H O'Brien was instantly killed on the Granite branch of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., at the Bates avenue bridge at 7.45 this morning. O'Brien who is about 30 years of age is a barber by trade and lives in Boston. He came to West Quincy on Sunday to see his sister Mrs. Joseph Mitchell, who resides on Grove street He remained all night and this morning went to the West Quincy depot to take a train that leaves shortly after 7 o'clock. Finding he had missed the train he started to walk up the railroad track. When near Bates avenue he saw an inward train approaching and it is supposed that he attempted to board the train while it was in motion. Whether in doing so he was struck by a projecting rock or whether he fell and the wheels of the car passed over him is not known. When found he lay across the track with a hole in his breast and his back broken.

Officer Barry, who was near at hand, summoned the medical examiner, who later turned the body over to Undertaker Hall, who removed it to the residence of the unfortunate man's sister. It is said that he was unmarried.

There are several trees and plants n the world whose berries, juice or bark are as good to wash with as real soap. In the West India islands and in South America grows a tree whose fruit makes an excellent lather and is used to wash clothes. The bark of the tree which grows in Peru, and of another which grows in the Malay islands, yields a fine soap. The common soapwort, which is indigenous to England and is found nearly everywhere in Europe, is so full of saponine that simply rubbing the leaves together in water produces a soapy lather.

In China the hen is kept constantly busy. When not engaged in hatching her own brood she is compelled to hatch fish eggs. The spawn of fish are placed in an eggshell, which is hermetically sealed and placed under the unsuspecting hen. After some days the eggshell is removed and carefully broken, and the spawn, which has been warmed into life, is emptied into a shallow pool well warmed by the sun. Here the minnows that soon develop are nursed until strong enough to be turned into a lake or stream.

CURRENT MISCELLANY.

The horse of Liberia is a small pony, but hardy and capable of good service. Owing to the want of roads and bridges in the country these horses have never been put to any practical use by the Liberians. At present they can only be obtained from native tribes far in the interior. A few imported donkeys are used for riding purposes about the coast towns. The cattle of the country are of two kinds—the small short horns of the coast lowlands and the large long horns of the interior hill country. The short horns are remarkable for their small size and sleek and varicolored skins, while the long horns are singularly docile and graceful in form, bearing a resemblance to certain breeds of northern India.

A thrifty breed of goats prevails throughout the land the flesh of which is much relished as food. Sheep are small and hardy, and their skins are covered with short, smooth hair instead of wool. In color they are white, black, red and yellow, the majority being more or less streaked and spotted. They are frequently thought to be goats by foreigners when first seeing them. Hogs are plentiful and require but little attention. The breed is inferior, but is readily improved, as may be inferred from the fine, large porkers one sometimes sees in the streets of Monrovia and other towns. Turkeys and geese grow to a good size and thrive well at a little distance from the seacoast. Chickens are of a small, lean variety, but it has been proved that fine American breeds will do well in the country. —"The Negro and Liberia."

A London "Pawner."

In London exists an institution called the pawner. She is usually a middle aged widow and flourishes in those dismal localities where every other house is let out in furnished apartments. Many of the people living in these regions are poverty stricken women who have seen better days and dread to enter a pawnshop. The pawner calls once or twice a week upon her clients, and when she departs her satchel bulges with sundry articles which she is commissioned to pledge. She is paid a commission on the sum raised, and hence it is to her interest to haggle with the pawnshop keeper. As a rule, she gets 1 penny for every 2 shillings obtained. The business is a paying one. One pawner boasts a list of 200 customers, people who employ her to pawn articles of wearing apparel on a certain day and redeem it on Saturday. So busy is she that her two daughters assist her.

Women of Forty.

Balzac, famous as a literary and social lion, was once attacked in a Paris salon by a pretty little miss of 17, who demanded why it was that he liked women whom she would consider passe.

"Why, monsieur, even when they are as old as 40 you seem to enjoy their society!"

Balzac looked at her earnestly for a second and then laughed heartily. He bent over to explain matters and remarked in a serious voice, as though weighing every word he said, "Perhaps the secret lies in the simple fact that the woman of 20 must be pleased, while the older woman of 40 tries to please, and the older woman's power consists, not as has been so often said in understanding and making the most of her own charms, but in comprehending and with happy tact calling out and making the most of the good qualities of the man whose favor she seeks."

A Curious Duel.

An apothecary having refused to give up his seat in a theater to an officer's lady, the officer felt himself insulted and sent him a challenge. The apothecary presented himself at the place of meeting at the appointed time. He said, however, that he was not accustomed to the use of firearms, but he would propose another way of settling the dispute. He then drew from his pocket a pill box, took from it two pills, and thus addressed his antagonist: "As a man of honor, you would surely wish to fight me only on equal terms. Here are two pills, one composed of the most deadly poison and the other perfectly harmless. We are on equal ground if we each swallow one. You shall take your choice, and I promise faithfully to take the one you leave." The officer laughed heartily at the strange proposal, and, shaking hands, they parted good friends.

The Abbe and His Shorthand.

The Abbe Prieur had invented a kind of shorthand which he thought would be of some use to the ministry. But the ministry would none of it, and the abbe made known his little invention to the king of Prussia, a patron of such profitable things. But one of his letters was opened at the postoffice by the Cabinet Noir, and the next morning M. Abbe Prieur awoke in the dungeon of Vincennes. He inquired the reason, and in the course of months his letter to the king of Prussia was shown to him.

"But I can explain that in a moment," said the abbe. "Look, here is the translation."

The hieroglyphs, in short, were as innocent as a verse of the Psalms, but the Abbe Prieur never quitted his dungeon.—Hopkins' "Dungeons of Paris."

Measuring Memory.

Attempts have recently been made in France by Professor Alfred Binet to "measure memory." One of the experiments consists in reading a series of figures to the subject, at a regular speed of about two per second, and observing how many he can repeat without error in the order in which they were given. The faculty of voluntary attention is of course called into play in this experiment. Children from 6 to 8 years old retain on the average five figures; children 10 years old, six figures, and adults, seven figures. Jacques Inaudi, the lightning calculator, can retain more than 40 figures.—London Standard.

CHASED BY AN ELK.

Gourley's Exciting Race and Narrow Escape From the Infuriated Beast.

James Gourley of Helena recently had a remarkable experience with a bull elk on the Yellowstone river between Miles City and Glendive. As the only elk known in the northwest are in the Yellowstone park it is believed that this elk escaped in some way and wandered along the river.

Gourley was on horseback on his way across the country to visit a ranchman when the elk appeared before him. Gourley had no weapons and turned his horse for retreat, as the elk assumed a threatening attitude.

The elk charged. The horse, thoroughly frightened, ran, with Gourley clinging to his back. The pace was hot, but the great, awkward elk gained at every step. The horse turned from the trail and reached the bank of a creek after descending a short, steep hill. Then the horse stumbled and probably saved the owner's life. The elk, with frightful momentum, followed. His speed was so great that in order to avoid a fall he jumped clean across the fallen horse and over the creek. Gourley swears that the distance was more than 40 feet. Once on the other side of the creek the elk turned to renew the combat. Gourley meanwhile left the horse and ran to an old deserted log cabin which had been part of a sheep camp. The elk soon finished the horse and then followed Gourley's tracks to the cabin. Gourley was held a prisoner for six hours, the elk pacing to and fro in front of the cabin and examining the windows for a point of attack. Finally a party of cattlemen came along, and the elk was killed.—New York World.

AN EARLY ROMANCE.

Bishop Charles H. Fowler's Love Affair With Miss Frances E. Willard.

The visit to Kokomo, Ind., of Bishop Charles H. Fowler, who is presiding over the north Indiana Methodist Episcopal conference, brought out an interesting story of an early love affair between Bishop Fowler and the late Miss Frances E. Willard. Those having read Miss Willard's memoirs will remember an intimation that at one time in her life her heart had its hero and that at an early day she wore a ring and "acknowledged an allegiance based on a supposition." Again she speaks of the romance of her life being unguessed, a "secret lying within the temperate zone of a great heart's geography." To those who thought her cold she said, "Cold because no brave Stanley had ever explored her heart's tropical clime; cold because no Balboa had ever sailed on the bosom of its wide, pacific sea."

In their youth Bishop Fowler and Miss Willard were students in the same Methodist college, both being members of the Methodist church. Between them was a strong affinity, a friendship that eventually ripened into a deep, abiding love. The ring she speaks of wearing as "an allegiance based on a supposition" was the gift of Bishop Fowler. Both had great strength of character and were born leaders of men and women. The similarity of their temperaments was frequently considered by the young people as a barrier to matrimony, and it was finally agreed that it would be best for both to choose separate paths in life. The engagement was accordingly broken.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Speaker Reed as a Social Problem.

Speaker Reed, with all his other notable qualities, is a social problem as well. When the Washington hostesses invite him to dine, they don't know exactly what to do with him. The question of seating a dinner company and getting them out to the dining room is an important one at the capital. The state department settles all these points of distinctions, however, and when the smart turnout of Mme. Blank, with its liveried driver and outrider, stops the way in front of the building she is not going there to intercede for a friend or to get points on international law. She is simply there to find out where to put Speaker Reed at her table. She departs with a list of instructions and finds upon consulting it that the speaker and his wife take precedence of any United States senator and his wife when they go out to dine.—Chicago Tribune.

Hints of April.

Of the April buds and blossoms there are hints within the air,
And the breezes in fresh cadence sound the requiem of care.

Soon will bee booms seem—entangled in the poplars and the vine—
Echoes of the prayers of childhood and the songs of auld lang syne.

In the sun the shoaling sucker'll show a scintillating blade,
And the water grig go gliding like a shuttle through the shade.

Reigning ease and peace will hover in the clover and the wheat,
Where the partridge whirs and whistles from his odorous retreat.

And somewhat of Eden's glory will come back to mortal eyes
In the April buds and blossoms and the blue of April skies.

SCENE OF THE BATTLE

SOME FACTS ABOUT MANILLA'S HISTORY, PEOPLE AND COMMERCE.

A Strange Southern City, Both Oriental and Spanish In Character—Rich In Products and Exports—Ships of Every Nation Fill Its Port—Its Fine Buildings.

Cavite is a fortified seaport town on the island of Luzon, on which Manilla, the capital of the Philippine islands and the scene of the recent battle and brilliant victory won by Commodore George Dewey's squadron over the Spanish fleet, is situated. Cavite is in the bay of Manilla, and about ten miles south southwest of the city of Manilla. The town of Cavite has a population of over 5,000, and the population of the port is less than 600 souls. There is an arsenal at Cavite, which is the capital of the province of the same name. The residence of the governor is situated there, and the place is the chief naval depot of the Spanish possessions in that part of the world.

Manilla, the capital city of the island of Luzon and of all the Philippine islands, is also situated on Manilla bay, at the mouth of the river Pasig. The city forms the segment of a circle between the river and the sea, and its suburbs extend over numerous islets, formed by the river and its branches. The river Pasig is prolonged into the bay by two piers. At the end of one of them is a small fort and a lighthouse is situated at the end of the other pier. Vessels of small tonnage can go up as far as the bridge which crosses the river. The town stands on the south side, has a dilapidated look, but is said to be strongly fortified. On the north side is the Binondo suburb, which is the residence of the foreign merchants and the great center of trade. It is more populous than the city itself.

Manilla has both a Spanish and an oriental appearance. There are long lines of heavily mounted batteries, dark looking churches, strange looking towers and massive houses of solid masonry. These mingle with light little houses, or cottages, in groves of tropical trees, raised from the ground by posts in order to permit the free passage of the waters in the rainy season. The streets are straight, mostly unpaved, and almost impassable during the rainy season. In the city the houses are two stories high, and each has its central courtyard. There reside the heads of the state, the church and the army and all those who claim to belong to the aristocracy. The bridge across the river leads from the city proper into the Binondo suburb, where a street called the Escalta runs to the right and to the left. It is lined with innumerable shops, stores and stalls and is usually crowded with people of various races.

Beyond the Escalta is a colony of Chinese, Indians and half castes, who do business as goldsmiths and jewelers, painters and enamelers, oil and soap merchants, confectioners and keepers of gambling houses and cookshops. The other suburbs have each a special character. For instance, San Fernando is the seat of the great cigar manufactories, and Santo Mesa is the center of the cordage manufactory. At the Alcaicerfa suburb the Chinese sampans discharge their cargoes. The fishermen and weavers inhabit the suburb of Tondo, and its gardens supply the markets with fruit and vegetables. The suburb of Malate is famous for its embroiderers. Paco is where the artisans and artists live, and health seekers flock to Santa Ana and San Pedro Macati.

The principal buildings in Manilla are the cathedral, the palace of the governor, the palace of the archbishop, the town hall, a beautiful building; ten churches, belonging to the different religious orders; several monasteries, a number of convents, the arsenal, three colleges for young men, two colleges for young women, the supreme court building, the prison, the civil hospital, the university, the marine school, the commercial school, the theater, a large building; the custom house, and the barracks. There are several large squares in Manilla, the largest of which is the Prado, in which is situated a bronze statue of Charles IV.

Manilla's municipality dates from the year 1571, when the city was founded by Legaspi. It is a splendid natural trade center, and ranks with Calcutta and Batavia. Being the chief port in the Philippine islands, all their productions flow there and its harbor is visited by a very great number of vessels of all sorts and sizes. Its exports consist of sugar, tobacco, indigo, manilla hemp and cordage, gold dust, birds' nests, coffee, sapan wood, mats, hats, hides, trepang, tortoise shell, cigars, cotton, rice, etc.

Its manufactures are chiefly cigars and cheroots, a government monopoly; cordage from the filaments of the abaca; beautiful fabrics, known as pinas, woven from the fibers of the pineapple leaf and afterward exquisitely embroidered; various other cloths made of the abaca filament, pure and mixed cotton fabrics, mats, and cigar cases.

In 1645 Manilla was nearly destroyed by earthquakes, which have since frequently and severely visited the place. A British fleet captured Manilla in 1762, and held it for 15 months, when it was by treaty restored to Spain. The population of Manilla, with its suburbs, is about 160,000.—New York Tribune.

As Viewed Recently From Hawaii.

If there should be war with Spain, and these islands become necessary, from a strategic standpoint, to the United States, annexation will take place without delay. As the matter now stands, they must be abandoned in case of war unless the United States takes the ground that they are under American control; but if under American control they would be subject to Spanish invasion, and that could only be met by fortifying the islands and stationing a fleet here.—Pacific Commercial Advertiser.

TRAITOROUS CITIZEN.

Former Yeoman of the Brooklyn a Spanish Spy.

In Communication With Minister Bernabe.

Letter Intercepted Establishing His Guilt, and Arrest Follows.

Washington, May 9.—Chief Wilkie of the treasury secret service expresses his unqualified belief in the guilt of a man arrested at his direction Saturday night as a Spanish spy. All the circumstances in the case, many of which Mr. Wilkie sets forth, lead up to this irresistible conclusion. The chief preferred that the story of the man's arrest should not have been published at this time, but he feels, now that an incorrect version has leaked out, it is just as well that the correct story should be told. The man's name is not Rawlings, as originally announced, but George Downing, apparently about 33 years of age, five feet seven inches in height, and of athletic build and Bohemian in appearance.

Mr. Wilkie tells an interesting story of the man's doings lately and of the steps which led up to his arrest. "Downing," he says, "is an Englishman by birth, but is a naturalized American, and was formerly chief yeoman on the Brooklyn. His discharge from that ship dates about two months ago. Our information shows that on last Friday he had a conference with Lieutenant Carranzas, who was a naval attache of the Spanish minister, Polo, and who was then at Toronto. He furnished Carranzas general information about the navy, and particularly about the Brooklyn. He spoke in a disparaging manner of the American navy. After one and a half hours' talk he came to Washington at the direction of the lieutenant.

"He left Toronto Friday afternoon for this city via Niagara Falls, the Lehigh Valley and the Baltimore and Ohio railroads. Before leaving Toronto Carranzas gave Downing an address, apparently that of a residence in Montreal, to which he was to send all the information he obtained. Downing arrived here Saturday afternoon and went directly to 916 E street, where he had stopped no longer than a week ago. When he left he told the landlady he was going to Virginia. Shortly after reaching his room he went out again to the postoffice and dropped a letter into the box for the address in Montreal which had been given to him. I should say right here that our officers recognized Downing as soon as he arrived at the railroad depot, and kept a strict watch on his movements all during the afternoon and evening up to the time of his arrest.

"The letter which he mailed was promptly intercepted at the postoffice and its contents examined. It contained a statement as to 'certain' matters in Washington; said the writer would soon be able to forward some important information about the Holland submarine boat, gave a summary of the steps for the relief of Admiral Dewey and promised data as to the movement of American colliers or coaling ships. Downing also said he intended to go to Norfolk (which place he hoped to reach Tuesday), and expected to obtain important information. The letter was signed simply with the initials C. D.

"We were well satisfied by this time that the man was a spy, and we set about to secure his apprehension. We communicated with Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn of the war department, to whom we gave a summary of the information in our possession, and then with Judge Advocate General Leiber of the army, who advised that the man be arrested and turned over to the military authorities. Downing returned to his room during the evening after dining and reading the news bulletins. Accompanied by Captain Sage of the Eighth artillery, a corporal and a private, by my own officers and a policeman, we went to Downing's house, where we secured him without trouble. He offered no resistance, but appeared frightened and much surprised at his arrest. We have turned him over to the military authorities for their disposition."

NEWS IN BRIEF.

George Ryan, a woodworker, is supposed to have killed himself with laudanum in Fairfield, Mass.

Oscar G. Nims, treasurer of the Cheshire Provident institution for savings in Keene, N. H., died suddenly of apoplexy last night, aged 52.

The Russian papers are full of criticisms of the Spanish fighting. They accuse the Spaniards of losing the arsenal at Cavite through cowardice.

A fire, supposed to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed a barn owned by H. B. Humphrey in Lancaster, Mass. Fourteen head of live stock perished.

The fishing schooner Alfaratta of Newburyport, Mass., was wrecked on Plum island Sunday morning and is a total loss. The crew of three men escaped in a dory.

Sunday at Camp Powers, Augusta, Me., was passed without the usual drills. Excursions were run over the Maine Central, and the camp was thronged with visitors.

Raymond Martin, aged 12, was shot and instantly killed by John Welch in Holyoke, Mass. The shooting was purely accidental, and was the result of carelessness.

George P. Pugh, editor of a weekly newspaper in Gallatin, Mo.; David Burtch and David Galbreath were drowned by the capsizing of their boat on a pond.

Commodore Dewey's dispatches and the completeness of the American victory have greatly chagrined the French press, which has been assuring France that the American fleet was locked in Manila bay.

Bishop John L. Spalding of Peoria, Ills., just from Paris, states that the feeling of the French toward the Americans is intensely hostile. He understood that one of the reasons for this was that eight-tenths of the public debt of Spain is held by the French people, and that the latter country also owns nearly all of the railroads in the Spanish country.

FASHION AND FABRIC.

Marked favor is shown black in gowns, gloves and simple, elegant millinery for Lenten wear.

There can be no doubt about the continued vogue of the shirt waist. The matter of its popularity for the season before us is settled beyond question.

Craped and crinkled goods, many of which bear a close resemblance to the long familiar and again revived crepon weaves, are among the newest fabrics composing stylish "dress" toilets for spring.

Large batiste collars in deep yoke shape with bretelle points extending down the front to the belt are added to the waists of some exceedingly chic and dainty models for genuine summer gowns of transparent material.

The fashion of tucking gowns already amounts to a rage. This trimming appears on thin dresses, on silk and satin ones and on all other materials which can possibly be used for the spring and summer wardrobes.

Braiding in both wide and narrow soutache, rows of machine stitching, straight lines of velvet ribbon or gimp, cloth bands and ribbons and buckles continue to be the favored modes of trimming on gowns not frilled or flounced.

The skirts of the newest evening toilets are extremely elaborate, many of them showing a very French melange of ruches, flounces and small frills, jetted points of net, lace insertion and accordion plaited muslin in black, white or colors.

Spring jackets are as varied in style as the little capes and shoulder pelerines, with and without stole fronts. The French models appear in three different lengths—the short, very jaunty, open fronted styles, the closed, fly fronted shapes of medium outline and the longer princess models.

Three deep flounces extending from belt to skirt hem are very popular dress trimmings for light wools and black and other plain taffetas and satins. This gives the economical woman an opportunity to utilize skirts already in her possession for gored foundations, to which she can add triple flounces of new material.—New York Post.

PEN, CHISEL AND BRUSH.

Lord Tennyson used to prophesy that England would some day gain from India her great poet. In the light of this prophecy, the work of Mr. Manmohan Ghose is being watched with interest in England.

Sir Walter Besant's "Historical and Topographical Survey of London" is well under way, and the first volume will appear soon. The work will cover the 200 square miles of the London subject to the county council, describing it street by street.

Onslow Ford, who is at work on a statue of the late Professor Huxley for the National History museum at South Kensington, London, has been most unfortunate in his supply of marble. Twice he had his work well under way when he struck blue veins, which ruined the statue. He is now at work on the third block.

Lilian Bell, whose literary style has been intense rather than witty, seems to have picked up some of the latter quality in the year she has been abroad. She crosses the British channel frequently, but refuses to observe the advice to "sit up" on the trip. "I travel better flat," she writes. "Like manuscript, I am not to be rolled."

Rosa Bonheur, the famous French painter, has been a great admirer of the red man, some samples of whom she saw at a "wild west" show in Paris. She gave a breakfast to Rocky Bear and Red Shirt and enthusiastically remarked: "These are real men. They are not the simpering, gossiping, bowing animals of today."

RECENT INVENTIONS.

Tops are being manufactured which are spun by a current of air directed by a blow pipe into the curved channels extending outward from a central opening in the top.

A German has invented a neat little brush for the hat which has a spring wire loop attached to its back, by which it is supported in the crown of the hat when not in use.

In a newly designed pair of shears the back of one of the blades is slotted along its entire length to receive the back of a comb, which is pushed in at one end and fits tightly to hold it in place.

Horses' tails can be securely bound up in muddy weather by a neat little device consisting of a strap to which is fastened a corrugated inner section of rubber to grip the knot in the tail when the strap is buckled over it.

In a recently patented bed for invalids the mattress is formed of a series of compartments which can be inflated separately or simultaneously to the desired hardness, thus permitting the raising or lowering of any section to fit the patient's body.

THE CYNIC.

Real justice never plays to the grand stand.

The people do not love as deeply as they pretend.

It is a lucky man who can borrow an umbrella on a rainy day.

When a girl goes to stay all night with another girl, it is called a "house party."

This getting married is like renting a door for the purpose of keeping a wolf from it.

When one man proposes a good thing, another man usually proposes one so much better that nothing is done.

The pleasure in receiving a letter lasts no longer than it takes to break the seal. After that comes the worry of answering it.

The difference between what a man thinks of himself and what other people think of him is a good deal like what a man asks for a piece of property and what the other man offers to give.—Atchison Globe.

ANIMAL ODDITIES.

Tame turkeys can be trained to hunt wild ones.

The roe of the codfish contains more latent living creatures than the whole human population of the globe.

The foot of the reindeer is most peculiar in construction, being cloven through the middle and each half curving upward in front.

The cries of sea birds, especially sea gulls, are very valuable as fog signals. The birds cluster on the cliffs and coast, and their cries warn boatmen that they are near the land.

Glowworms are much more brilliant when a storm is coming than at other seasons. Like many other mysteries of nature, this curious circumstance has never been explained.

ALMOST TRAPPED.

Two of Uncle Sam's Vessels that Escaped.

Key West, May 9.—Saturday the wily Spaniards arranged a trap to send a couple of Uncle Sam's ships to the bottom. They baited it as a man would bait a rat trap. A small schooner was sent out from Havana shortly before daylight Saturday morning to draw some of the Americans into the ambuscade. The ruse worked like a charm. The Vicksburg and the Morrill, in the heat of the chase and in their contempt for Spanish gunnery, walked straight into the trap that had been set for them. Had the Spaniards possessed their souls in patients but five minutes longer, not even the bad gun practice would have saved our ships, and two more of our vessels would lie at the bottom, within two lengths of the wreck of the ill-starred Maine.

The commander of the Vicksburg was the first to realize the danger into which the reckless pursuit had led them. He concluded it was time to haul off, and sent a shot across the bow of the schooner. The Spanish skipper instantly brought his vessel about, but while she was still rolling in the trough of the sea with her sails flapping, an eight-inch shrapnel shell came hurling through the air from the water battery, a mile and a half away. It passed over the Morrill between the pilot house and the smokestack, and exploded less than 50 feet on the port quarter. The small shot rattled against her side. It was a close call. Two more shots followed in quick succession, both shrapnel. One burst close under the starboard quarter, filling the engine room with the smoke of the exploding shell, and the other, like the first, passed over and exploded just beyond. The Spanish gunners had the range, and their time fuses were accurately set.

The crews of both ships were at their guns. Lieutenant Craig, who was in charge of the bow four-inch rapid-fire gun of the Morrill, asked for and obtained permission to return the fire. At the first shot the Vicksburg, which was in the wake of the Morrill slightly inshore, sheered off and passed to windward under the Morrill's stern. In the meantime Captain Smith also put his helm to port and was none too soon, for as the Morrill stood off, a solid eight-inch shot razed her starboard quarter and kicked up tons of water as it struck a wave 100 yards beyond. Captain Smith said afterward that this was undoubtedly an eight-inch armor-piercing projectile, and that it would have passed through the Morrill's boilers had he not changed her course in the nick of time.

All the guns of the water battery were now at work; one of them cut the Jacob's ladder of the Vicksburg adrift, and another carried away a portion of the rigging. As the Morrill and the Vicksburg steamed away their aft guns were used, but only a few shots were fired.

Alger on Enlistments.

Washington, May 9.—Secretary Alger has in preparation a letter to General Brooke, commanding the regulars mobilized at Chickamauga, in which he says that soldiers enlisting in the regular army during the war may be informed that they will be granted their discharge if desired at the close of the war upon their individual application. This action was taken because of the news which has come from Chicgamauga that very few of the men whose services are expiring are enlisting because they express a preference for the volunteer service.

Invasion of Cuba.

Tampa, May 9.—Outside of the delay in the preparations, no American troops will be landed on Cuban soil until the question of superiority in the Atlantic is settled between Admiral Sampson's squadron and the Spanish fleet, and settled decisively. High army officials ..... this statement. They say it would be taking needless chances to send an army into Cuba before the Spanish fleet is disposed of, and until the meeting of the American and Spanish fleets takes place, nobody here believes that orders to move will be received.

Reports of the breaking out of yellow fever at Key West among the prize crew of the Arganauta have caused some uneasiness among the soldiers here, probably in view of the fact that two companies of the Twenty-fifth regiment arrived from Key West Saturday, and are now in camp here. Should these reports prove true, it is very probable that a rigid quarantine will be established.

Petty Prizes Taken.

Key West, May 9.—Petty prizes are still taken, and three came yesterday. They surrendered too easily to make their capture interesting. They were the brigantine Lorenzo, taken by the Montgomery near Havana on Friday while bound from Rio de la Plata with a cargo of dried beef. Curiously enough an American was among those made prisoners. Seaman Scott of Baltimore was "shanghaied" by the Spaniard's crew at Buneos Ayres, and he was glad to get back into American hands, even as a prisoner. He was in the confederate army during the civil war. The Espana, a fishing sloop, was taken by the Morrill about three miles off Mariel after the Havana engagement. The third vessel taken was the schooner Padre de Dios, laden with fish. She was taken by the Newport off Mariel. All three accepted one blank shot apiece as sufficient.

Interesting details are being added to the story of the entrance of the French frigate Dubourdiou into Havana. It is said that after the fleet released her she was seen transmitting heliograph signals to the Cuban shore.

Woodford Went to Washington.

New York, May 9.—General Woodford, United States minister to Spain, arrived Sunday morning and left for Washington in the afternoon. He refused to talk.

When informed that cable dispatches had stated that the train on which the members of the legation had come from Madrid to Paris had been attacked by a mob and that stones had been thrown at the party, Mr. Sickles, the secretary of the legation, evidently tried to make light of the matter.

STEWART L. WOODFORD.

"Some things were thrown at the train," said he, "but the demonstration was not of a serious character. A few windows in one of the cars next to our party were broken, but none of us was injured, no one at all was hurt. While at Madrid we were treated with the utmost courtesy."

When asked how it happened that Minister Woodford had received his passports previous to his handing to the Spanish government the ultimatum of the United States, Mr. Sickles said: "We rather expected that; at least we were not surprised when the passports arrived, as we knew that when the Spanish minister at Washington received his passports, the Spanish cabinet would probably issue ours to us and thereby sever all diplomatic relations. But any further information, I cannot give."

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 9.—"Considering the heavy ships of the two squadrons," The Journal holds that, "Admiral Sampson's strength is so superior that only some fatal mischance could rob him of his victory, and this comparison takes no account of the vital factor of the personnel."

The thoroughness of Dewey's victory leads The Advertiser to remark: "It may well be that on both sides of both oceans men versed in military and naval history are searching their knowledge of ancient and modern records for parallel instances. They cannot find many. Can they find any?"

The Post observes: "Had a detailed account of Admiral Dewey's victory at Manila been published in a work of fiction, it would in all probability have been denounced by naval experts everywhere as incredible—as a fight of unreasonable

The Globe says: "None the less do the reported small losses of Commodore Dewey still seem incredible, and the people will fail to fully comprehend it until the genius of this wonderful commander can be fathomed in detail."

Jones the Balance of Power.

Washington, May 9.—The expectation is that the war revenue bill will be received in the senate by the committee on finance Wednesday, but its report may be delayed for a day or two beyond that date. The fact is that the committee has found so many changes that are considered desirable from its standpoint that progress has necessarily been slow. This has proved to be true without regard to party lines. The Republicans have suggested many more amendments than have the Democratic members, and many of those suggested by them have been of such importance as to require careful attention and much time. There are many matters yet requiring consideration, and until these shall have been voted upon in committee it will be impossible to fix a day for reporting the bill.

Whether the bill shall carry a provision for a new government loan in bonds depends entirely upon Senator Jones of Nevada. So far as can be learned he has not yet made known his position in the committee. The understanding on the outside is that he will oppose the bond feature, and that consequently when the bill is reported this provision will be eliminated and probably an authorization for the issuance of greenbacks substituted for it.

It is generally conceded that even though the committee displaces the provision, the friends of the bond policy will be strong enough to restore it in the senate if a vote is taken. The opponents of bonds hold that the strength of the provision is due to the fact that a state of war exists, and they are hopeful that the war may come to a close before it will be necessary to vote upon the bill. They do not indicate any purpose of holding the bill in the senate with this purpose in view, but they now assert it to be their intention to debate the bill at length, or at least to the extent necessary to present their views fully to the country.

Second In Twenty Years.

Colchester, Conn., May 9.—For the second time within 20 years Colchester's business quarter has been reduced to ashes. The conflagration started Saturday night in the window of O'Connell's drygoods store, by the explosion of a lamp, and burned for over six hours, until a row of wooden buildings, occupying almost the whole of Merchant's row, Main street, was in ruins. The loss is about $60,000, mostly covered by insurance.

Twelve business places were destroyed, including the postoffice and the Colchester Savings bank, together with one residence and a tenement house. The mails were saved and the bank safe remained intact.

Fifty Buildings Burned.

Duluth, Minn., May 9.—Fifty frame buildings on Minnesota point, just above the ship canal, were burned Sunday afternoon. An hour after the fire started 2000 people were homeless. The district was populated by the poorest people in the city. The total loss is thought to be over $100,000.

MILAN'S BARRICADES.

Set Up by Rioters, and Cannon Used to Destroy Them.

Two Hours' Encounter With the Angry Populace.

Overturned Cars and Carts, and Furniture Piled In the Streets.

London, May 9.—Court-martials were constituted at Milan today to judge the rioters arrested Saturday. The mob thrice unsuccessfully attacked the general telegraph office with a view of cutting off the city when all other expedients failed. General Boccaris used cannon to destroy the barricades and about 100 persons were killed. Although the government has established the severest censorship in revising and stopping all dispatches containing what it considered dangerous matter, it is learned that the rioters at Milan succeeded Sunday in occupying the central station and delaying the departure of several trains. No praise could be too high for the discipline, endurance and patience of the soldiers under the most trying conditions. Not one moved a finger until the command was given, although almost all were injured by flying missiles, some bleeding badly.

One seemed to have returned to the famous five days of 1848, with the rattle of cavalry, the incessant cracking of rifles, the discordant cries and words of command and the bugle signals. Full particulars are not known, as they are not allowed to pass; but surprising was the quickness with which the barricades were formed in popular quarters, especially on the bridges over the canals. Carts, carriages and street cars were overturned and piled up with furniture from the adjacent buildings to the noisy joy of the crowd.

Distressing scenes occurred all over the city—wives searching for husbands and mothers for sons, with explosions of grief after vain search, or when finding them wounded or dead. In the center of the town a continuous battle went on for two hours. In the popular quarters the mob resisted until nightfall.

It is said that such an occurrence has not taken place before in Italy. The events have even surpassed the terrible riots in Turin, when the capital was transferred to Florence. General Boccaris showed that he felt his responsibility and acted promptly, firmly and energetically. In fact before night the troops had destroyed all the barricades and were camping in the streets and squares. No part of the city was without its complement of troops; while from the surrounding provinces reinforcements were sent in immense numbers.

Battle With Rioters.

Lugano, Switzerland, May 9.—Sunday afternoon a veritable battle occurred in Milan. Thousands of tiles and chimneys were hurled from the roofs upon the troops, which were compelled to retire. A similar fight took place in another section, and is is believed that no fewer than 300 were killed and 1000 injured.

The postal telegraph offices have been closed and all dispatches of mails stopped. The public buildings are guarded and artillery has been placed in position. Many fugitives from Milan have crossed the frontier into the canton of Ticine and to Fontana, among them the editor of a Republican paper, who eluded the police. Eight thousand troops are uartered in the city.

Generally speaking the agitation continues, but it is less intense. The authorities have ordered all socialists and Republican clubs to dissolve. There is a rumor that the rioters drove back a train under the impression that it was conveying soldiers. Lieutenant General Bava-Beccaris, commanding the Third army corps, Milan, telegraphed the premier that "the revolt in Milan has been suppressed and all resistance is now ended."

Cannon Still Booming.

London, May 9.—The Rome correspondent of The Daily News says: Lieutenant General Bava-Boccaris wired from Milan at 6 o'clock last evening: "After new and serious attempts the rebellion has been quelled by fusilades and cannonades, and perfect calm has been restored. I have ordered the shops and manufactories to be opened."

Later he telegraphed: "Unfortunately, fresh attempts at rebellion have been made and the cannon are still roaring, but it will soon be over."

A New Jersey Tragedy.

New York, May 9.—Patrick Dailey was shot and killed at Bloomfield, N. J., by Harry Woodruff, and Mrs. Woodruff is dying from a shot from her husband's revolver. The killing of Dailey appears to have been deliberate, but the killing of Mrs. Woodruff was accidental and incidental to the murder of Dailey. The Woodruffs had some trouble over a dog. Woodruff was seen to have a revolver in his hand. Dailey sprang toward Woodruff, intending to disarm him. As he did so Woodruff fired. Dailey continued to advance. Woodruff fired again quickly. Dailey did not utter a sound, but sank dead. When lights were procured after the shooting, Mrs. Woodruff was found upon the floor in a dying condition.

Buried by an Avalanche.

Lima, O., May 9.—Fred Rost of this city returned Saturday night from the Klondike. He left here last fall and reached Pillea river in March. Being out of wood, Rost and his partners went to a mountain and were cutting timber when an avalanche swept upon them, burying them and 17 others who had claims nearby. Arthur Laladune was crushed to death, and 10 were killed. Rost was buried for 10 hours and had three ribs and a leg broken. He thinks many were not found at all.

ADAMS VICTORY.

Academy Boys Play Great Ball at Salem.

Adams Academy played Salem High Saturday at Salem and defeated them. The Adams boys have taken a brace in batting and also played an excellent fielding game making only three errors In the second inning Adams began to bat and in that inning they scored five runs. In the sixth inning with three men on bases Manning hit the ball over the left field fence for a home run. The team only played eight innings in order that the Adams team could catch the train for Boston. For Salem the test playing was done by Wade and Hanlon.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

FRENCH GOWN OF DOTTED RED DIMITY FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

A gay little costume of dimity in the new tone of coral lightened with white polka-dots, is made unlined throughout, rendering it a suitable model for ginghams, batistes and other light-weight cotton fabrics, or the Irish flax linens, which appear this season in new shades of rose, blue and mastic. Costumes of this linen, with a vest of harmonious color, promises to be popular for country wear. French open-work linen, made up of silk of a contrasting hue, is also adapted to this simple style. Variety may be given it by substituting ruffles of embroidery for those of the same material on the waist.

The general effect of this gown is becoming. The yoke of the skirt is sufficiently long to produce the slender effect over the hips that is the present tendency of fashion, besides outlining a pointed apron in front, to which is added a deep flounce of medium fulness, passing around to the back, where it falls in soft gathers. Four yards and a quarter is the width of the skirt at the foot. A large piping-cord is the finish of the yoke. The corsage, slightly blouse-shaped in front, is made with a deep revers collsr, edged with a graduated ruffle, forming, with its fulness, little fans under each point. The ruffle continues down the front as a jabot, which terminates under a narrow white kid belt. The back has a few gathers at the waist-line, and the front is open to admit a plain linen plastron and collar, or, by way of variety, a fancy front. The close sleeve is made with a deep turn-over cuff, bordered with a full ruffle The proper cut of the gown can be only obtained from the cut-paper patterns published by HARPER'S BAZAR, where it appears. Approximate quantity of material—10 yards 30 inches wide.

A WORN-OUT FAD.

"Spring Medicines," "Blood Purifiers" and "Tonics" an Old-Fashioned Idea.

Pure blood, strong nerves and muscles, firm, healthy flesh, can only come from wholesome food well digested. "Blood purifiers" and "nerve tonic" do not reach the cause of the mischief The stomach is the point to be looked after The safest and surest way to cure any form of indigestion is to take after each meal some harmless preparation of this kind composed of vegetable essences pure pepsin, golden seal and fruit salts, sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Dyspepsia tablets, and these tablets taken after meals assist digestion wonderfully because they will digest the food promptly before it has time to ferment and sour, and the weak stomach relieved and assisted in this way soon beomes strong and vigorous again.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to any secret patent medicines because you know what you are taking into your stomach.

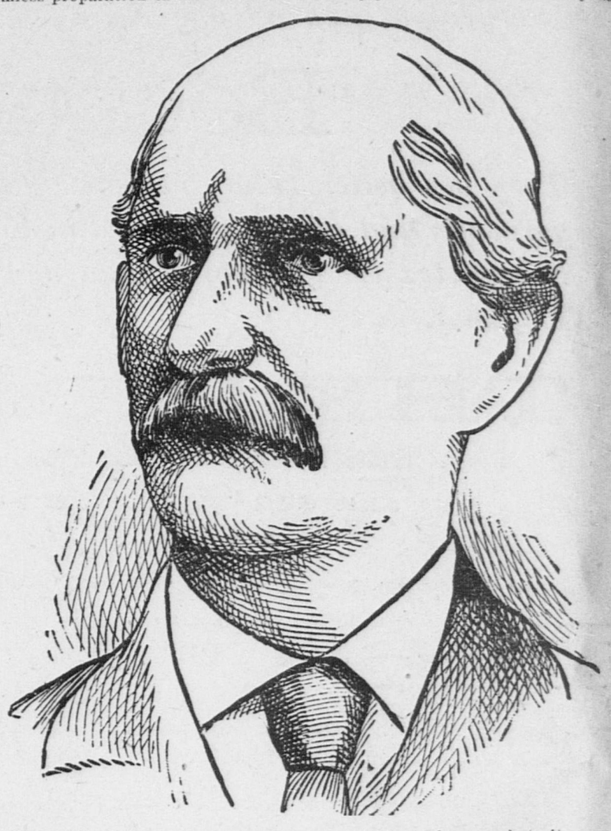

They are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. Write F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich, for book on stomach diseases which will be mailed free.

Of the men who have occupied positions of public trust in Kansas City, either by gift of the people or by appointment; none has a more enviable reputation for ability, honesty and efficiency than James Burns, Collector of the Port of Kansas City under Grover Cleveland. He lived to the letter the maxim, "a public office is a public strust," and when he retired he carried with him the respect of everyone in the community—Democrats and Republicans alike

James Burns has used Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and he does not hesitate to say they have accomplished wonders

"I suffered with dyspepsia for twenty years," said Mr Burns yesterday "Never knew what it was to enjoy life— in fact living seemed a burden as it does to all who suffer severely with dyspepsia. A few months ago I began taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. From the first I felt relief, and now, although I am still taking them, I feel entirely cured. For the first time in twenty years I can eat anything I want and suffer no ill effects from it. You can't imagine the pleasure of this unless you have been a dyspepsia sufferer

"I never gave a testimonial for any medicine before, but I feel as if everybody ought to know of this remedy, and while it is personally distasteful to me to appear in print in this connection, I feel as if I had no right to shirk the opportunity to perhaps help some other sufferers from dyspepsia I have been recommending the Tablets to all my friends Only recently I took James H Lillis, the father of Father Lillis, down to get some, and I understand he also is being wonderfully benefitted, I can't recommend it too highly 3t 9-11-13

INSURGENTS ARE IN STRAITS.

Vessel Leaves Tampa With Supplies and Ammunition.

Washington, May 10.—Secretary Long, General Miles and Secretary Alger have carried their point, and the administration will enter at once upon an aggressive campaign in Cuba, the army supporting and supplementing the work of the navy. The decision comes none too soon. Word has been received here that the insurgents are in sore straits. The shutting off of American food supplies has imposed upon them the necessity of providing for the suffering reconcentrados as well as themselves. In some places the insurgents are reduced to a single ration a day.

The government will not await the issue of the combat between Admiral Sampson and the Spanish fleet, now supposed to be nearing Porto Rico, but will land the first party, numbering 5000 men, on Cuban soil before the week ends. A steamer left Tampa with supplies, arms, ammunition and a guard of 100 United States troops. The destination of the landing party was kept secret. A vigorous campaign, with Havana as the objective point, will be begun at once. Two Massachusetts regiments, the Second, and possibly the Eighth, are likely to be incorporated in subsequent expeditions to Cuba.

It is officially admitted that Admiral Sampson was with his fleet Monday near Cape Haytien, on the north coast of San Domingo, and distant about a day's run from Porto Rico. So far no reports have come to the department of the lurid engagements that are said to have taken place in those waters. If there was gun firing yesterday and the day before, as reported by merchant vessels, it was probably caused by some of the United States vessels chasing prizes or the small Spanish gunboats that are believed to be cruising around in these waters. It is not believed that there has been any general engagement between Admiral Sampson's forces and the Spanish ironclads. From the expectations so plainly manifested at the navy department that something important is to happen very soon, it is surmised that if Sampson does not strike the Spanish squadron today he may strike a blow at Porto Rico itself tomorrow.

It is considered highly probable in naval circles that the Spanish fleet may find reinforcements awaiting at the Windward islands. Just before the blockade of Cuba was inaugurated it was estimated from the official reports that there were 65 Spanish men of war in the Cuban and Porto Rican waters. Of these vessels, but seven outside of the cruisers are considered worthy of attention. These are torpedo gun vessels and torpedo boats which fled from Cuban waters before the blockade commenced.

If the Cape Verde fleet has not come over to Porto Rico, the navy department believes that it is not on this side at all. The Oregon, Marietta and Buffalo, now rapidly coming up the Brazilian coast, by taking an unusual route, will, it is believed, escape the Cape Verde fleet, if it should attempt to intercept them. The lack of coal facilities, however, and the fear of the serious damage which the Oregon would certainly inflict, would, it is believed, prevent the Spanish fleet from going out of its way to seek the Oregon and its consorts. Although Commodore Schley's ships are still held at the patrol station to calm the apprehensions of our coast dwellers, the navy department does not believe that the Spanish ships are going to threaten our ships.

Monday an official statement was made as to the points of concentration of the volunteers. The list includes the following: To Washington, Massachusetts, one regiment of infantry; to Camp George E. Thomas, Chicamauga, Massachusetts, one regiment infantry: Vermont, one regiment infantry; to department commanders for coast defense and reserve: Connecticut, one regiment infantry and two batteries heavy artillery and one battery light artillery; Maine, one regiment infantry and one battery heavy artillery; Massachusetts, two regiments infantry and one battery heavy artillery; New Hampshire, one regiment infantry; Rhode Island, one regiment infantry. There is every evidence that the department officials expect a short, sharp, conclusive and immediate campaign, such as could not be waged by 5000 or 10,000 soldiers. It is also to be noted that preparations made by the quartermaster's department and the commissary's department, so far as disclosed by actual orders, indicate that provision is being made for mobilizing, transporting and feeding many thousands of men outside of the United States.

Latest From Key West.

Key West, May 10.—Three separate reports of engagements of United States warships reached here last night. One rumor was that the Montgomery captured two prizes off Cape Haytien after a sharp battle with two Spanish gunboats, and put into St. Nicholas slightly damaged. Another said that the tug Osceola of the mosquito fleet was fired upon near Havana, and the third was that three Spanish gunboats fired upon the United States torpedo boat Winslow at Cardenas, but were repulsed by the Winslow after one had been disabled.

The schooner Severito was captured by the gunboat Dolphin while trying to make her way into Havana harbor early yesterday morning.

The Norwegian steamer Bratsberg, with cattle, attempted the blockade, but was held up with a blank shot and turned back here.

Prefers His Senatorship.

Washington, May 10.—Senator Sewell has not decided absolutely whether he will accept the nomination to a major generalship in the volunteer army, but it is understood that his determination in the matter will depend entirely upon whether the acceptance will require the resignation of his seat in the senate. If the attorney general of the United States and the attorney general of New Jersey decide that the senator cannot legally hold both offices he will resign the commission of major general and remain in the senate.

Position of the Pope.

Washington, May 10.—Monsignor Martinelli, the apostolic delegate, gives out the following cablegram from the vatican with the hope that it may put all on their guard against giving credence to any of the rumors which have been or may be published concerning the position of or tendency of the pope and the Catholic church:

"Some journals, especially English, are diffusing insinuations with regard to the holy see in the present Spanish-American conflict as though the holy see were taking the part of one or the other of the conflicting parties. It is superfluous to deny such foolish talk, the perfectly proper attitude which the holy see has maintained and will maintain toward the two nations being known to all. The holy see has no other desire than that for peace. You will make such use of this as you may deem opportune. Cardinal Rampolla."

Political Situation In Spain.

London, May 10.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "Martial law has been proclaimed in Seville and Saragossa, and will gradually be extended throughout the country. The most significant fact of the present moment is that the military party is beginning to use its undoubted strength, General Lochambre, having lately convened a meeting of the military members of the cortes, at which it was resolved to accentuate their solidarity on all questions directly or indirectly connected with the army, such action to be wholly irrespective and independent of politics. At a future meeting they will invite the co-operation of naval members, considering that there is a community of interests between the two branches of the service. This new development foreshadows a serious factor which any future ministry will be compelled to consider.

THE DOUBTFUL JONES.

Nevada Senator Defines His Position on War Revenues.

Proposes to Oppose Republican Ideas.

What Some of Them Are Determined on Yesterday.

Washington, May 10.—When the senate finance committee adjourned last night the consideration of the Republican amendments to the war revenue bill had been almost entirely completed, although there were some puzzling problems still unsolved, one of which was the manner of dealing with proprietary medicinal articles. There will probably be a uniform tax on all of these.

The committee has decided to place a license upon banks at the rate of $100 a year and upon brokers at the rate of $50, but has not yet determined whether the professions shall be licensed or not. On life insurance companies the rate has been increased five fold, being made 10 cents on every hundred dollars, and it is estimated that this increase will add about a million dollars in revenue. The provision for an inheritance tax and a tax on bills of lading were both adopted, as were the provisions for taxing all dealings in futures, including bucket shop operations. The bill as it will be reported will contain a provision requiring that a memorandum be made of all deals of this character, however small, and that a 2-cent stamp be placed on this memorandum.

The Democratic amendments will be taken up this afternoon, and there is very little doubt that they will all be adopted, as Senator Jones of Nevada has indicated his purpose of standing with the Democrats on all the principal changes they suggest. It is possible that the consideration of the bill may be completed today, but it is not probable.

The requirement of a stamp of one cent upon all receipts for money paid will be suggested as an offset to the Democratic proposition of a tax upon gross receipts. It could be made very comprehensive by requiring stamped receipts to be given for all transactions above $1, and in this form would amount substantially to a tax upon transactions. The house bill exempted from taxation checks below $20. It is thought by senators that this creation of two classes of checks would be an inconvenience to the banks, and that the levy of the tax upon all checks would not constitute a hardship upon anyone. They do not fear any excessive demand for currency as the result of an effort to escape the tax by substituting currency payments for checks, and believe that the use of checks would continue to be regulated by habit and convenience.

Portland Has a Sensation.

Portland, Me., May 10.—The body of an unknown man was found in a shipyard in East Deering yesterday afternoon. The man had been shot, apparently murdered. Residents heard a number of shots in the direction of the yard Sunday night, but as the place is a rendezvous for tramps, no attention was paid to the firing. Besides the bullet that struck a vital spot in the body of the unknown victim a number were found embedded in a shed nearby.

No one has been able to identify the dead man. He was apparently about 40 years of age, smooth-shaven and his hair quite gray. He wore a dark-brown sack coat and vest, the coat being double breasted, badly worn and bearing the name of James E. Neal, Lynn, Mass., on the inside of the coller. He had on a pair of brown plaid trousers, and a pair of nearly new woolen suspenders of a dark purple color, bearing the trade mark, "Patterson, the clothier." There was nothing in the pockets except a dark handkerchief. The officers worked all available clues, but obtained no light on the subject.

ALMOST WENT WILD.

A Grand Flag Meeting at Wollaston.

Resolutions of Thanks to Admiral Dewey.

Large, Beautiful Flag to be Raised on 100 Foot Staff.

Wollaston is to have a hundred foot flag staff from which will fly a 30 by 20 foot American flag That was the inevitable outcome of the meeting which was held at Brasee's hall, Wollaston, on Monday evening.

The meeting was called to order by the Hon. Henry O Fairbanks at the request of those who had the project in charge. Mr. Fairbanks was elected permanent chairman and Mr James S. Whiting secretary.

At the conclusion of organization of the meeting a drum corps, headed by Mr Al Williams, drum major, marched into the hall, flanked on either side by men bearing the flag, which through Mr Williams' energy was bought for the people of Wollaston. The corps halted in front of the rostrum, lines were made fast to the corners of the flag and it was hauled aloft, where it remained suspended from the rafters for some time.

The drum corps was noticeable from the number of soloists which it contained. There was Mr Charles M Bryant, who played with magnificent execution the bass drum. His solos upon that instrument were the most pronounced features of the evening's entertainment. He was ably assisted by Mr Henry G Fay, who held the drum Then there were the snare drummers, —Mr Clarence Sargent, Mr Harry M. Fairbanks, Mr Benjamin Sargent and Mr. John H Osborne. Mr W Everett Simmons, Jr, played upon the cymbals. He made a great hit with them.

Mr Eugene H Sprague, upon behalf of Mr Williams, presented the flag to Chairman Fairbanks for the people of Wollaston.

Chairman Fairbanks in a felicitous address accepted the gift for Wollaston.

The audience then joined in singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

Patriotic addresses were made by Dr. Horace Mann Willard, Mr. Richard R. Freeman, Mr H W Lull, Mr N G. Nickerson, Mr. Edmund E. Jameson, Mr Al Williams, and Mr. Charles R. Sherman.

Mr. W. E Simmons on being introduced stated that Mr. Williams had received 142 contributions for the flag, amounting in all to over $70. He had expended $42 for the flag. It was now proposed to take the balance, raise $190 more and purchase a flag staff measuring 104 feet from the street level to the truck. Mr. Simmons then appealed to the audience for subscription and in a few minutes he had raised $116, marking off dollar squares on a blackboard as he received the money. The second hundred was started by little Frank Rideout, son of Warren Rideout.

The large audience was more than enthusiastic, it went wild with patriotic cheering. "Allie" Williams who sailed for Key West on Monday on the U. S. Steamer "Oneida" was cheered to the echo.

Councilman Freeman offered the following resolutions which were enthusiastically adopted:

Admiral George Dewey, U. S. N., Manila:

The citizens of Wollaston, Mass., at a flag raising held this day to celebrate the battle of Manila bay, unanimously voted to send to you the following resolutions—

Resolved, That the citizens of Wollaston, Mass., extend to you and through you to the officers and crews of the United States warships engaged in that battle, their thanks for and appreciation of the glorious victory of the first of May. A battle that will go down through the ages as one fought with consummate skill and daring, and ranking with the greatest naval conflicts of the past

May your example prove an inspiration to our other fleets and lead them to the same happy consummation.

It was voted that a committee of five be appointed by the chairman to have the care of the flag. The chairman appointed members of that committee Mr. Chares M. Bryant Mr. E. H. Sprague, Mr. E. E. Jameson, Mr. A. Williams and Mr Charles R Sherman.

Mr Watson H Brasee very kindly donated the use of his hall for the occasion which the audience acknowledged by three rousing cheers

PROUD OF CO. K.

A Sketch of Company and Its Officers.

The citizens of Quincy take as much interest in its welfare and feels just as proud of Capt Kincaide and the members of Co K, as do the citizens of Braintree for although its armory is in Braintree the company's first two officers and about sixty per cent of the members are sons of Quincy which in itself was once a part of Braintree.

Co K which left yesterday morning for Gloucester had its inspiration way back in the early eighties when it was known as the Braintree Militia Company, having been organized by Walter E. Morrison, now one of the majors of the regiment.

Major Morrison was born in Braintree 1864. He received his education the Braintree public school and at the Chauncey Hall school in Boston, where he receievd his first military instruction, having been a captain in one of the battalions. Upon leaving school he organized the Braintree Militia

CAPT. KINCAIDE.

Company in 1883 which was given permission by Gov Butler to carry arms. The company thus started flourished for four years.

In 1887 the State increased the two eight-company regiments to twelve-company regiments and Maj. Morrison and Capt. Kincaide, then Lieut. Kincaide, worked hard to have the company attached to the State militia. As a result it became a part of the Fifth regiment and became known as Co. K.

It was not long before the company had an honorary membership and among them are such well known gentlemen as Col A C Drinkwater, Col Charles H Porter, Hon Asa French, Prof C A Pitkin, Dr Henry L Dearing, Mr George D Willis, Mr E E Abercrombie, Mr L H H Johnson, Mr I Morrison, Mr H W Davenport Mr W W Mayhew, Mr Dexter E Wadsworth and others.

Capt Morrison remained in command until August, 1897, when J H Whitney was elected colonel and Major William H Oakes, lieutenant-colonel. This left two vacancies and Capt Morrison was elected a major. This also left a vancancy in Co. K and on Sept. 8, 1897, at a meeting of the company Lieutenant Kincaide was elected as captain, Second Lieutenant William H. Whitney was elected first lieutenant and Sergeant Charles H.

1ST. LIEUT. WHITNEY.

Spear was elected second lieutenant. Both Captain Kincaide and Lieutenant Whitney are Quincy boys and Lieutenant Spear is a Weymouth boy although he secured one of Quincy's fair daughters for his bride.

Captain Kincaide is almost too well known to need any introduction to Quincy residents. He is about 30 years of age and has always made Quincy his home Upon completing his education he entered a large furniture store in Boston and a few years ago started in business in Quincy where he has built up a wonderful trade and today is the proprietor of the largest furniture store this side of Boston, occupying the whole of a large five-story brick block on Hancock street He has always taken an active interest in military affairs and is a model officer in every way He is affiliated with several fraternal organiations and is also a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery whom he accompanied upon their recent trip to Europe.

Lieutenant Whitney is a son of Adam Whitney, a well known Quincy resident, and is about 33 year of age. He received his education in the public school of Quincy and was employed for a number of years as a clerk in one of Boston's large business houses. He is at present employed by the Quincy & Boston street railway.

Lieutenant Spear is a Weymouth boy, having always resided in that town. He received his education in the public schools, leaving which he entered the employ of the New England railroad as a clerk in the freight department, where he has since remained. He is about 28 years of age He married Miss Mamie Frye of Quincy about two years ago.

AT CAMP WOLCOTT.

Co. K Good Soldiers But Poor Sailors—Safe in Camp.

[Special to the Daily Ledger.]

Gloucester, May 10—Co. K. 5th Regiment, arrived at Glouc ster Monday afternoon after a rather rough sea voyage from Boston. All soon recovered from the effects of the voyage and there was considerable hustling to prepare a camp for the night. It was one of the first real samples of campaign service that Co. K has had and work was not completed when the welcome supper call came. At this time wind was blowing a gale, but supper was enjoyed around numerous camp fires and after supper we fell too and made quarters as comfortable as possible for the tough night which followed. You can tell the people of Quincy we appreciated the warm blankets they presented to us. If this weather continues we will be well seasoned for any army duties to which we may be called.

The camp includes 7 field and staff officers, 5 non-commissioned officers, 51 in Co. D, 61 in Co. K, 61 in Co. I and a battery of 100 men and about 50 horses.

Today the company will drill and establish fortifications.

The Journal says,—"Early in the afternoon Companies D. of Plymouth, Capt. Butler, and K. of Braintree, Capt. Kincaide arrived on the steamer Cape Ann from Boston. These two companies are good soldiers, but they made poor sailors, for the steamer had hardly got out of Broad Sound and into the bay before the boys were seasick. The water was rather rough by reason of the dry nor'easter, and the first experience of these companies became the subject of much good-natured fun at the camp fire. The camp is pitched on the grassy slope of the Point near the farm stables, a charming spot on a fair day, but a dreary place while the present bleak weather lasts.

The Herald says:

"The journey to Gloucester was not a great success. Those who came by boat struck a tremendous sea swell, and most of the men surrendered to urgent cases of seasickness The overland ride from Lawrence was long and tedious, and the men were sore and hungry long before they reached the city. The ground selected for the camp is just below old Fort Independence. Monday was an active day, and before taps were sounded the camp was pretty well settled. It is no holiday tour of duty. Although the camp is one of the prettiest bits of North Shore scenery, there were no comforts as at Framingham. Except a large barn near for the horses, there is nothing to work on but the land. Details began to work early in the morning, and all day wagons hauled camp supplies to the point."

W. W. Dunn a Quincy Boy Writes Home.

Henry P. Kittredge receives frequent letters from W. W. Dunn of this city who is on the United States cruiser Cincinnati. In a letter under date of May 5, he writes of having sent an account of the bombardment of Matanza, but the letter appears to have gone astray.

In the letter of May 5, he further says: We are about fixed up again and expect to convey the troupe steamers to Matanzas in a few days. There are about 800 marines on the Pawtha here. They will be landed ahead of the regular army. We will bombard the city and land near the harbor somewhere. There are some very good places near the forts to land. After we are once stationed in Matanzas, the rest will be very easy.

The Citizens National Bank of Cincinnati has sent us the following note; "Three cheers for Capt. Chester and his gallant crew. We hope you will keep on with the same work in the future. Keep in the midst of the fighting and you will surely to win."

Continuing Mr. Dunn says: It is not every captain who is like Chester. He is a brave man and knows how to handle a ship as good as any one in the navy. Will send account of the next bombardment which will most likely be in a few days.

Let Me Ketch 'im.

"Jest let me lay my han's on 'im, and I'll make him wish he never was born." If Uncle Sam wants to whale the enemy, he must first find the enemy. Adams Has a Picnic With the Roxbury High Boys.

Adams Academy defeated Roxbury High Monday in a long game, by the score of 22 to 13. Adams has developed into shape and hope to pull off a few victories. Donaher pitched a good game while Coleman was weak in locating the plate. The best batting was done by Taylor of Adams. In the sixth inning he put the ball out to the fence for a three-base hit, knocking in two runs.

—The flour position is very strong, indeed, following wheat. A great many mills are idle for want of wheat, while the mills that are running are having a big trade, both in the home and foreign markets. Flour is higher by 35 cents a barrel than on April 1, but the attempt of some of the retailers to put up prices $1 a barrel should be frowned upon by consumers. IS WILLING TO FIGHT.

Champion Fitzsimmons Reconsiders His Decision.

Says That He Will Re-enter the Ring.

Could Not Resist the Golden Bait Held Out by Corbett.

Boston, May 10.—Last week, when McCoy was showing at the Palace theater, he stated that he would give Fitz $10,000 for a 20-round contest for the world's championship. Fitz, who was in New York, as soon as he learned of the offer, immediately accepted and stated that he would meet McCoy at any time to arrange details. The only stipulation Fitz made was that McCoy should first defeat Gus Ruhlin at Syracuse and prove that he was able to cope with a heavyweight. Though McCoy knew that Bob was due to arrive here yesterday he did not remain, but left Sunday for Cambridge Springs, Pa.

WILLIAM A. BRADY.

"Now, that's the first crawl," is all that Fitz said when he learned that McCoy had departed. "I hardly thought that he would make good his promise when he found that I would accept."

Yesterday Fitz stated that he was willing to accept the offer of Jim Corbett, made at Carson City the other night, to the effect that Corbett would make Fitz a present of $25,000 for agreeing to meet Jim in a return match, and further stating that Brady would wager $10,000 to $20,000 a side. Immediately after accepting, the information was conveyed to Corbett, who is playing at Denver, Col.

Jim wired to William Brady in Rochester, N. Y., as follows: "Go after that man Fitzsimmons and make my offer to him again—$25,000 that I will stop him in 10 rounds—and put up some money immediately. Show him up."

In pursuance to instructions, Brady issued the following: "James J. Corbett stands by the offer he made Robert Fitzsimmons, to make a match for a $10,000 side bet, and will guarantee the championship of the world and $25,000 if he (Corbett) fails to stop Fitzsimmons in 10 rounds; and he further agrees that the match shall take place before the last of September this year, and, if no club offers as large a purse as $25,000, Corbett will deposit the balance, the whole amount to be paid Fitzsimmons in case Corbett fails to knock him out in the stipulated number of rounds.

"As Fitzsimmons has now announced that he will fight again, it remains to be seen whether he will take on the man he has all along claimed to be so easy. He is positively assured $25,000 in case he stands 10 rounds in front of Corbett and $45,000 in case he wins. This is Corbett's offer he made Fitzsimmons last February, and he now stands by it, and I will accept Julian's bet of $2500 that Corbett will be on hand on the day named. I will be in New York on Wednesday and will meet Fitz or his manager to deposit money to make a match."

Gossip of Boston.

Boston, May 10.—In the city hospital morgue lies the body of a young woman who came to Boston from a small town in Nova Scotia one year ago. When she arrived she was handsome, innocent and trusting. Soon after reaching Boston she made the acquaintance of a man who vowed he loved her and wanted her to become his wife. She consented to an engagement. At first the man said he preferred a short engagement and led the young woman to believe that they would be married in a few weeks, but the wedding day was postponed from time to time until many months past. Recently the dark-eyed stranger whom the young woman trusted with her honor left her in a delicate condition. A criminal operation followed and the young woman died.

Thomas M. Bram, it is thought, will accept the verdict of the last jury, which found him guilty of the murder of Captain Nash of the Herbert Fuller, and will receive a sentence of imprisonment for life, the jury having decided against capital punishment.

Captain John W. Weeks of the naval brigade sprang a sensation on the boys of the brigade after dinner yesterday, when there was a general call to quarters on the Minnesota. The captain said that all those men who desired could go to their homes, but he would be glad to have any and all of them stay aboard the ship for 10 more days. The department had requested all volunteers to remain 10 more days without pay, but the state would allow each volunteer 50 cents a day for rations.

Calm In Milan.

Milan, May 10.—Calm reigns again. For the last two days this city has been in the throes of revolution, with all its horrors and sadness. When the fury first broke out many people who have nothing to do with the movement were caught, as it were, in a trap. When the soldiers were advanced to the charge against the first barricade, a lady, young, richly dressed and stiff with terror, was struck by a bullet in the breast. She fell against the wall, only having time to exclaim "Mother" before dying. In the same way old people, unable to resist the rush, were shot or trampled under foot.

Honest Cycles at Honest Prices.

Realizing that this is a $50 Year in the Bicycle trade, the IVER JOHNSON ARMS AND CYCLE CO. of Fitchburg, Mass., have reduced the price of their wheels to meet the popular demand. These wheels have never sold before for less than $100, and while there are a few other makes that are as good, there is certainly nothing better.

Sharp Competition induces unscrupulous dealers to push and advertise an inferior wheel for the sake of greater profit. A cheap western wheel with a good coat of paint and a high sounding name may sell as well if the dealer allows $25 on an old wheel that is worth about $10. This is a great trade. After riding it for a season, however, the rider changes his mind and thinks of an old adage, "You can't get something for nothing."

You can't get a "trade" (?) of this kind on an IVER JOHNSON, but you do get an Honest Cycle at an Honest Price.

"But for the necessity of getting the war credits voted in the cortes, Sagasta would have decreed the suspension of the constitutional guarantees, thus placing the whole country under military jurisdiction. The difficulties for the poor people are worse than those of the government. The latter, by various expedients, can raise money; the former are unable to obtain either food or employment. The wages of the laborers are too small to buy sufficient food for themselves and their families. In the mining regions of Estra Madura and other places the miners are nearly famished."

Manila Events Saddened Spaniards.

London, May 10.—The Madrid correspondent of The Morning Post had a long interview with Sagasta, the premier, in the course of which the Spanish statesman said: "The sad events at Manila have saddened all Spaniards, but have not made them lose heart. We can say with confidence of this disaster that nothing has occurred to wound our pride. Much has been said regarding the causes of the catastrophe; but all the discussion has been beside the question. The truth is, we were too few and were overwhelmed by the great superiority of the enemy's forces and by the fortunes of war which, unhappily, went against us.

"On principle I am opposed to war, which is always disastrous even to the victorious nation. God is my witness that I did not wish a rupture with the United States. I realized perfectly that we were exhausted by the war which we have been waging so long and needed rest. On the contrary, I desired a peaceful solution which would have protected our interests and honor, our rights and sovereignty. The government did everything to avoid a conflict, more even than it should have done. Then our adversaries began to treat us with contempt; war became inevitable, and we are compelled to accept it with all its consequences, whatever they may be.

"The situation is very simple and unfortunately cannot be concealed. Spain is desolated and ruined by internal troubles. The United States have coveted Cuba for a long time, first because it is an excellent strategic point; second, so as to be masters of the interoceanic trade. To attain their object they have literally hesitated at nothing. They knew the state of our finances and took advantage of it to attack us, after having assisted the Cuban insurrection with a view of completing our ruin. The future is in the hands of God."

Winslow Has a Fight.

Key West, May 10.—The Winslow engaged three Spanish gunboats off Cardenas bay Sunday afternoon, disabled one and came out unscratched, with her crew cheering wildly and her colors snapping in the breeze.

Provisions For Forts.

Kingston, Jam., May 10.—The Spaniards are trying to provision the forts of eastern Cuba before the blockade begins. Shipping merchants have received cable requests from Santiago and Manzanillo for cargoes of food. It is represented that there is time yet to market large quantities of provisions. Two schooners have been chartered here, and one has been chartered at Montego bay.

At Camp Dewey.

South Framingham, Mass., May 10.—Four companies of the Second regiment were mustered into the United States service yesterday, making five companies in all to be assigned to the Massachusetts quota. The mustering in and the balance of examinations in the remaining companies of the Eighth regiment were the chief events of the day. The completion of the Eighth regiment showed a total of 147 rejections. The four companies had their ranks depleted as follows: I, 10; K, 8; L, 13; M, 14. Second Lieutenant George C. Canfield of M was the only officer rejected.

Honors For Dewey.

Washington, May 10.—On recommendation of President McKinley that a vote of thanks be extended by congress to Commodore Dewey and the officers and men of his command, without a word of debate and without a dissenting voice the senate agreed to the resolution carrying into effect the recommendation of the president.

A bill was presented increasing the number of rear admirals in the navy from six to seven in order that the president might nominate Commodore Dewey to the highest position in the navy within his gift, and that too was passed without dissent. In addition a joint resolution was unanimously agreed to directing the secretary of the navy to present to Commodore Dewey a sword of honor and to have struck, in commemoration of the battle of Manila, a bronze medal for each of the officers and men who participated in the fight.

Johnson of Indiana.

Washington, May 10.—Representative Johnson of Indiana has introduced a resolution empowering the president to appoint three commissioners to meet a like number of commissioners appointed by Great Britain, Russia, France, Austro-Hungary, Japan and China, to meet in Washington as early as practicable to formulate, consider and report to their respective governments a plan for the neutralization and independence of the Sandwich islands and the prevention in the future of any nation taking possession of the islands either directly or indirectly.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 10.—The Journal says: "The whole country applauds the president and his cabinet in their decision to force the fighting. Theirs is the wise course, the prudent and the humane one. Nothing could be more criminally wasteful of blood and treasure than a dragging war."

The Post is of the opinion tha it "looks as if the great performance on the West Indian stage might be postponed through the absence of one of the parties to the action."

The Globe remarks: "Congress is commendably prompt in the bestowal upon Commodore Dewey of the most coveted prize which a sailor or a soldier can win, the thanks of the American people expressed in a formal act of legislation."

A WATERLOO.

Juvenile Wonder From California Puzzles Boston's Heavy Hitters.

Boston, May 10.—Nine orioles from Baltimore, led by Captain Kelley, the Cambridge boy, and aided and abetted by Ed Hanlon, president and manager of the monumental city club, applied a large coat of "whitewash" to the Bostons yesterday at the south end grounds. Jim Hughes, the California boy, signed by Manager Hanlon this season, his first one at that in a league, did the pitching for the orioles, and performed a grand afternoon's work. In the last game at Baltimore he shut the Bostons out, 8 to 0, and yesterday the home team got two more hits than in their first interview with the husky boy from the golden gate.

JAMES HUGHES.

Not until the fourth inning, when Tenney got to second, did a red leg go further than first base. Stahl in the fifth had the honor of making the first hit, and hammered out a pretty double to right center. Kid Nichols got the other hit, a single, in the sixth inning. Nichols had about the same speed as usual, but the orioles were not to be denied and their hitting came opportunely, in conjunction with four bases on balls, the latter counting in the run-getting for a quartet. In one of the most interesting games ever played in Hanover, the Dartmouths defeated the Browns by the score of 6 to 5. Inasmuch as Brown defeated Princeton only last Saturday, the supporters of the home team are jubilant.

After getting a lead of five runs over the Fall Rivers, the New Bedford team fell apart and allowed the visitors to win, 8 to 7. Two errors in the fourth and fifth innings cost five runs.

The Brockton-Pawtucket game was called after the first half of the 12th inning on account of darkness, the teams at that time being tied at 8. The Pawtuckets finished Thatcher in the fifth, when he was replaced by Pittenger, who held the visiting sluggers down to but five hits the remainder of the game.

The Chicagos did plenty of hard hitting, while the Clevelands were weak at the bat and lost. Pitcher Wilson of the latter club was hit by a pitched ball and had to retire. Pitcher McAllister went out because he got in the way of a batted ball. Score: 12 to 1.

Hill of the Cincinnatis was given miserable support in yesterday's game with the St. Louis club. Irwin's three errors were costly. The winning run was scored in the 12th inning on doubles by Clements and Decker. Score: 6 to 5.

Errors were responsible for a majority of the runs in the New York-Brooklyn game. The Brooklyns got their only run by a muff by Wilmot, while two of the giants' three runs came in by misplays, the third resulting from a base on balls followed by a hit.

The senators made but two hits after Piatt went in at the end of the fourth inning, and bad errors then gave the game to the Philadelphias, 11 to 6.

The Pittsburgs won the first game on the home grounds this season yesterday. While Cunningham was batted hard, a big element of luck helped the team to offset the effect of errors in the game with the Louisvilles. Score: 9 to 5.

The Newports literally played with the Tauntons yesterday and batted their pitchers to all corners of the lot. Newport slugged terrifically. Score: 26 to 10.

Disorder In Italy

Rome, May 10.—There were slight disorders yesterday at Bologna, Verona, Padua and Tropea. According to the latest reports from Milan the situation there is still grave. Car traffic has been stopped and the railway men have struck. The stoppage of the trains prevents information as to the actual occurrences inside the town; but the Brianza peasants, armed with hay forks, are hastening to assist the Milan strikers.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, WEDNESDAY, MAY 10.
Sun rises—4:27; sets, 6:55.
Moon rises—12:21 a. m.
High tide—3 a. m.; 3:30 p. m.

Fair and warmer weather is indicated for New England, probably lasting through Wednesday and Thursday, except local showers tonight or Wednesday morning, mostly in northern sections. Winds becoming southerly.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 10.—In the house yesterday, the petition for a revision of the laws relative to contagious diseases among domestic animals and the officers charged with the enforcement of the same was admitted under a suspension of the rules and referred.

Ought to pass was reported by the ways and means committee on the resolve appropriating $6000 for the state's representation at the trans-Mississippi exposition in Omaha.

The bill providing for the restoration to their former positions in the militia of officers and men entering the military and naval service of the United States, and for the raising and organizing of provisional companies, regiments and organizations, was passed to be engrossed.

The bill to provide for uniformity in the rate of wages and hours of labor of mechanics and laborers employed on public works, opposed by Senator George and favored by Senators Moran and Toyle, was rejected, 6 to 17.

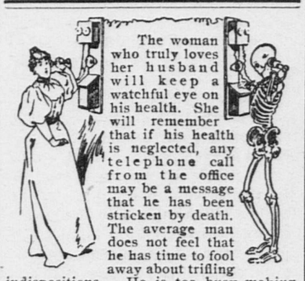

A bill for a general inheritance tax was substituted for the report of the committee on taxation, which contained no recommendations.

The senate, after a brief and spiritless debate, ordered to a third reading the house bill providing for the election of 25 aldermen in Boston, one from each ward, and 50 councilmen, two from each ward.

Victory For Dartmouth.

Hanover, N. H., May 10.—Dartmouth won the first Dartmouth-Brown debate last night, having the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, that apart from legislation New England textile industries will be able to maintain themselves."

Dartmouth had adopted four main lines of argument: First, Brown advocated the change and bore the burden of proof; second, New England had nothing to fear from foreign competition, hence home competition alone was to be considered; third, woolen and silk industries would remain in New England; fourth, permanent advantage. Brown in its argument selected the cotton industry as the turning point in the question. It maintained the south had the advantage in cheaper cotton, lower wages, longer hours and was more accessible to raw material. This competition was bound to increase, meaning the death of northern industries; hence New England's textile industries would not be able to maintain themselves. The speakers acquitted themselves finely, and in oratory the honors were even.

The woman who truly loves her husband will keep a watchful eye on his health. She will remember that if his health is neglected, any telephone call from the office may be a message that he has been stricken by death. The average man does not feel that he has time to fool away about trifling indispositions. He is too busy making money. He says he leaves sickness to the women folks.

That is the way men commit suicide—tens of thousands of them. A woman can stand between this danger and her husband if she will. A little watchfulness—a suggestion now and then and a little of a good general remedy always at hand may save her husband's life. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a remarkable remedy for hard working men and women. In a certain sense, it is a cure-all, for the reason that it goes down to bed-rock and cures the disorders that are responsible for the majority of serious illnesses. It strengthens the stomach, and makes the appetite keen and hearty. It invigorates the liver. It aids the natural processes of secretion and excretion. It makes the assimilation of the food perfect. It purifies the blood and fills it with the life-giving elements that build new and healthy flesh tissue. It tones the nerves. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of laryngial, bronchial, throat and kindred affections, which, if neglected, lead up to consumption. It is also an unfailing remedy for all nervous disorders. An honest dealer will not urge a substitute.

"Last winter I took sick with what the doctors called 'la grippe,'" writes Mrs. Sarah Farley, of Fairfax, Atchison Co., Mo. "Was sick for about four months and nothing that I took seemed to do me any good. My friends thought I had consumption. I coughed up blood for a long while, and nearly gave up all hope of ever getting well. I heard of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and thought I would try it. I had not finished the first bottle when I began to get better. I have taken two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one of the 'Favorite Prescription' and feel better than ever before in my life."

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

VOL. 10. No. 110. QUINCY, MASS., WEDNESDAY, MAY 11, 1898. PRICE 2 CENTS.

Let Me Ketch 'im.

"Jest let me lay my han's on 'im, and I'll make him wish he never was born." If Uncle Sam wants to whale the enemy, he must first find the enemy. May be he ain't looking in the right place; may be he don't want to find him, but would rather the enemy would see the folly of being the enemy and quit butting his head against a stone wall. You never can tell how some nations and some men do some things. "It's a mystery."

It has been a mystery to us why we don't sell all the Clothing and Furnishings that are sold in Quincy. We ought to We can't understand how people will pay $12.00 and $15.00 for a Suit when we have the same thing for $9.85 and $11.00.

Why you pay 25 cts. for Neckwear when you can buy it of us for 19 and 12½ cts.

Why the workingmen pay 50c. for Overalls when we have the same for 39c.

Why you buy anything we keep outside of our store when we would have saved you from 5 to 25 per cent.

May be you didn't know it. Well, you have been told often enough; and if you do not believe it, call and see for yourself and we will guarantee you go away satisfied.

We have ordered a lot of good, warm weather and sunshine to be distribed free all over Quincy the rest of this week. It has been to "Dewey."

As a souvenir, every suit wrapped up in straight Manila paper.

Honest Cycles at Honest Prices.

Realizing that this is a $50 Year in the Bicycle trade, the IVER JOHNSON ARMS AND CYCLE CO. of Fitchburg, Mass., have reduced the price of their wheels to meet the popular demand. These wheels have never sold before for less than $100, and while there are a few other makes that are as good, there is certainly nothing better.

Sharp Competition induces unscrupulous dealers to push and advertise an inferior wheel for the sake of greater profit. A cheap western wheel with a good coat of paint and a high sounding name may sell as well if the dealer allows $25 on an old wheel that is worth about $10. This is a great trade. After riding it for a season, however, the rider changes his mind and thinks of an old adage, "You can't get something for nothing."

You can't get a "trade" (?) of this kind on an IVER JOHNSON, but you do get an Honest Cycle at an Honest Price.

Ecclesiastical Cycling.

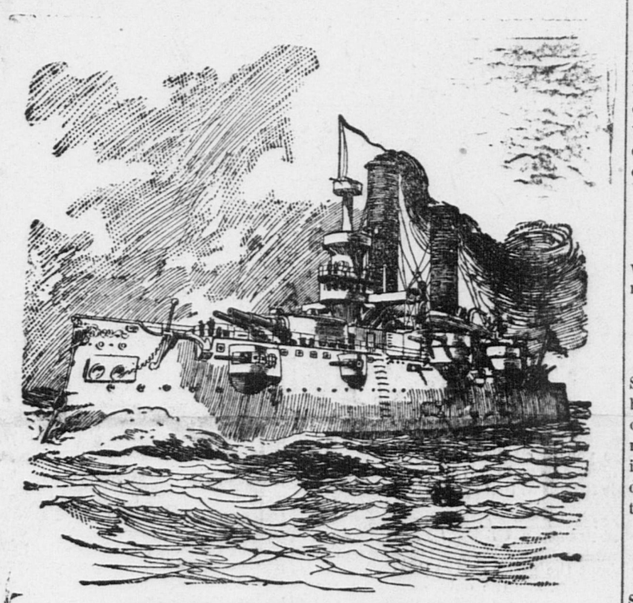

It is to be regretted that the Vatican does not issue some definite pronouncement with regard to the use of bicycles by the clergy. Considerable confusion prevails upon the subject, the cardinals and bishops all laying down the law in different fashion. Thus the cardinal archbishops of Milan, Venice and Paris, as well as the bishops of Nancy and Grenoble, have forbidden the use of the pastoral wheel under any pretext whatsoever. The bishop of Pavia goes still further. He fines his already impecunious clergy the sum of 10 lire—that is to say about $2—for every ride they take. The cardinal archbishop of Milan, wishing to have the views of the pope upon the subject, asked recently for an official pronouncement, but received in reply nothing but an unofficial message in Latin to the effect, "Non sunt inquietandi," which may be interpreted as "Let them alone"—an indication, therefore, that Leo XIII sees no objection to priests wheeling.—New York Tribune.

WITH SAMPSON.

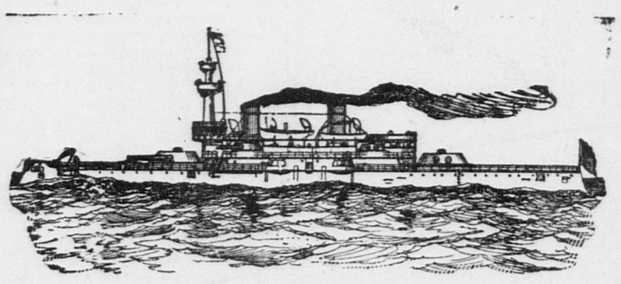

THE DOUBLE TURRET MONITOR TERROR.

The Terror is a modern coast defense vessel of 3,990 tons displacement. Her speed is 12 knots, and she cost Uncle Sam $3,178,046. Her four big 10 inch guns are carried two in each turret. She also has eight smaller guns. In action she can sink so that her upper deck is flush with the water and her curved deck and revolving turrets are alone presented as a target. She carries a crew of 200 men.

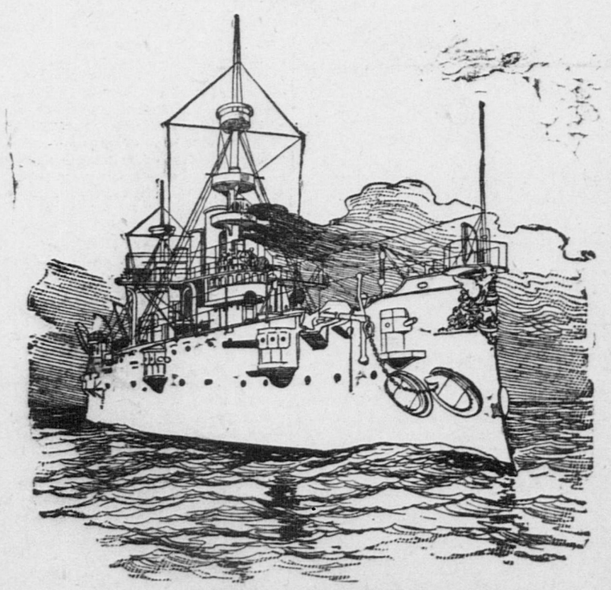

SEAGOING BATTLESHIP IOWA.

The Iowa is the navy's most formidable battleship. Her statistics are: Displacement, 11,410 tons; speed, 16 knots; horsepower, 11,000; cost, $3,010,000: armament, four 12 inch, eight 8 inch, six 4 inch guns and 28 guns of smaller caliber.

SEAGOING BATTLESHIP INDIANA.

The Indiana has a displacement of 10,288 tons, cost $3,020,000 and has a speed of 15.54 knots. She carries four 13 inch, eight 8 inch, four 6 inch guns and 30 smaller guns. Her mammoth 13 inch guns are mounted in turrets, two forward and two aft.

ARMORED CRUISER NEW YORK.

The New York is smaller but faster than the Brooklyn. Her speed is 21 knots, her displacement 8,200 tons, and she cost $3,000,000. She carries six 8 inch and twelve 4 inch guns and 16 guns of smaller caliber.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

The bombardment of Matanzas on April 27th was momentous, because at that time the first shots were fired by the American fleet in Cuban waters against the Spanish flag. For eighteen minutes the flag-ship New York, the Monitor Puritan, and the cruiser Cincinnati, at a range of 4000 yards from earth-works abreast of their stations, were firing almost incessantly. The engagement was opened by the flag-ship, but the Puritan and Cincinnati impatiently signalled for permission to join her. Their request was at once granted, and the Cincinnati was speedily in action, demolishing the enemy's batteries on the west shore. The accuracy of the gunners on the big cruiser was remarkable, and every discharge of her 6-inch gun wrought destruction to the Spanish works, while the men were full of enthusiasm, and overjoyed at the distinction of firing the first shots of the war.

The subject of the illustration from Harper's Weekly which we reproduce this week, is the Cincinnati swinging into line opposite the enemy's forts, and dischaging her forecastle gun. It was the first test in modern warfare of American naval discipline and gunnery, and the test proved conclusively that thirty-five years of peace have not dulled the traditional keenness of Yankee marksmanship.

RELATING TO BOSTON.

Occurrences of a Day In the Hub of the Universe.

Boston, May 11.—The back bay police are on the track of a number of sneak thieves and swindlers. The thieves travel in the makeup of pedlers. They have a team and one barrel of apples. The men ring the outer bell of an apartment house, display a handful of apples to the person who opens the door, and then go through the building ostensibly for the purpose of selling apples.

The Massachusetts troops ordered to the front will go to Tampa instead of Chickamauga.

Instructions have been issued by Surgeon General Blood for the formation of a hospital corps to go out with the state troops. It will consist of 167 men, including 12 hospital stewards and 12 assistants.

J. C. Chase & Company, dealers in horse clothing and harnesses, as well as bicycles, sustained a loss by fire last night estimated at $40,000. The Wakefield Rattan company lost slightly by water. In the next building was a quantity of gunpowder, which was speedily removed to a place of safety.

Three men describing themselves as Edward J. Burke, 28; John Smith, 27, and John J. Blaney, 29, were arrested in a jewelry store opposite the Park square station at midnight.

Chiefs of Police.

Milwaukee, May 11.—The convention of the National Association of Chiefs of Police opened here with about 100 delegates representing the largest cities in the country. President John T. Jannsen referred to the vast and increasing number of criminals as one of the main problems to be dealt with. The speaker said that every opportunity should be given the first offender to again become a law-abiding citizen, but when a man persisted in his vicious course he should be dealt with accordingly. He then spoke of the advantages of the system of measurement and photographing criminals, advocated the abolition of the laws governing the extradition of criminals, and favored hard manual labor in the penitentiary as preferable to the present prison system. The pardoning of criminals should be made more difficult and only permitted when doubt of guilt appeared. He suggested legislation by all the states for the appointment of commissioners with power to construct a criminal code which would meet the present requirements and conditions.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 11.—Governor Wolcott vetoed the resolve to pay George P. Smith of Ipswich $3000 for injuries received while assisting a policeman, and the veto was sustained by a large majority in the house.

Senator Flynn of Essex secured the admission of a general bill to authorize cities and towns to appropriate money for the relief of the families of persons entering the naval or military service of the commonwealth or nation in the present war with Spain. This general bill precludes the necessity of the several special bills that have been received for the same end.

The rejection of the wide-tire bill was reconsidered.

A bill to close up the cattle commission was refused admission.

The bill to provide for the registration of horseshoers was rejected in the house on a rollcall, 98 to 8.

The house debated at great length the question of a separate children's bureau.

An Immoral Princess.

London, May 11.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "Princess Louise of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha was conveyed to a private asylum Monday. The princess had clandestinely passed the last few weeks with Lieutenant Von Mattachich-Keglinch, her lover, at his castle near Agram, Croatia. In the meantime her debts grew to millions of florins, and bills bearing the alleged forged signature of Archduchess Stephanie came into circulation.

Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha had the lieutenant arrested, the suspicion prevailing that he forged the bills without the knowledge of the princess. The latter has been placed under guardians and King Leopold, her father, is prepared to pay her debts and to arrange the matter of the forged bills.

Sugar and Wool Imports.

Washington, May 11.—The report of the bureau of statistics shows that during April last the imports of sugar of all classes into the United States aggregated 406,448,144 pounds. This is an increase over March last of about 40,000,000 pounds, and an increase over February of 167,000,000 pounds. The imports of wool of all classes during April were 1,550,117 pounds. During April, 1897, the imports of wool amounted to 98,500,000 pounds. These heavy imports preceded by a short time the passage of the new tariff law.

Tri college Regatta.

Ithaca, N. Y., May 11.—It is quite probable that the Cornell-Yale-Harvard boat race will be rowed, contrary to the reports that an agreement on a date could not be reached. It is now expected that all the parties will agree to row either June 24 or 25. Word from Harvard has been received at Cornell, asking that the date be put off until the 24th at least and if possible until the 26th, as examinations fall on the 23rd at Harvard. It is probable that a compromise will be reached by the captains of the three crews within a few days.

Head For a Trunk.

New York, May 11.—The head of a murdered man whose body was discovered a few days ago near Verona lake, N. J., was found yesterday and is now in the Orange, N. J., morgue. A dog dug up the head from the mud about 15 feet from where the body was found. There were a bullet hole in the temple and two cuts under the right ear. The neck was terribly hacked, as if with a blunt knife.

Three Men Killed.

Parkersburg, W. Va., May 11.—Three men were killed, one was fatally hurt and four others were dangerously injured at the mines of the Thackers Coal company by the breaking away of a car in which were 10 men. The car broke from the topple and landed with a crash at the foot of the mine shaft 300 yards away. The dead are: Lee Small, Joseph Morris and William Hardy.

"Spring Medicines," "Blood Purifiers" and "Tonics" an Old-Fashioned Idea.

Pure blood, strong nerves and muscles, firm, healthy flesh, can only come from wholesome food well digested. "Blood purifiers" and "nerve tonic" do not reach the cause of the mischief The stomach is the point to be looked after The safest and surest way to cure any form of indigestion is to take after each meal some harmless preparation of this kind composed of vegetable essences pure pepsin, golden seal and fruit salts, sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Dyspepsia tablets, and these tablets taken after meals assist digestion wonderfully because they will digest the food promptly before it has time to ferment and sour, and the weak stomach relieved and assisted in this way soon beomes strong and vigorous again.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to any secret patent medicines because you know what you are taking into your stomach.

They are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. Write F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich, for book on stomach diseases which will be mailed free.

Of the men who have occupied positions of public trust in Kansas City, either by gift of the people or by appointment; none has a more enviable reputation for ability, honesty and efficiency than James Burns, Collector of the Port of Kansas City under Grover Cleveland. He lived to the letter the maxim, "a public office is a public strust," and when he retired he carried with him the respect of everyone in the community—Democrats and Republicans alike

James Burns has used Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and he does not hesitate to say they have accomplished wonders

"I suffered with dyspepsia for twenty years," said Mr Burns yesterday "Never knew what it was to enjoy life— in fact living seemed a burden as it does to all who suffer severely with dyspepsia. A few months ago I began taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. From the first I felt relief, and now, although I am still taking them, I feel entirely cured. For the first time in twenty years I can eat anything I want and suffer no ill effects from it. You can't imagine the pleasure of this unless you have been a dyspepsia sufferer

"I never gave a testimonial for any medicine before, but I feel as if everybody ought to know of this remedy, and while it is personally distasteful to me to appear in print in this connection, I feel as if I had no right to shirk the opportunity to perhaps help some other sufferers from dyspepsia I have been recommending the Tablets to all my friends Only recently I took James H Lillis, the father of Father Lillis, down to get some, and I understand he also is being wonderfully benefitted I can't recommend it too highly 3t 9-11-13

MATTERS GROW WORSE

Italian Disorders Viewed With Alarm In Political Circles.

Authorities Not Equal to the Duty of Keeping Peace.

Rigorous Measures to Suppress Accounts of the Outbreak.

London, May 11.—The Rome correspondent of The Times says: "It is believed that matters are steadily growing worse. The government is already unequal to the difficulties of the situation, and great anxiety prevails in political circles."

The Milan correspondent of The Daily News, telegraphing Tuesday night, says: "I am unable at this moment to send you more than a few words. Fresh and more rigid measures have been adopted in the censorship of telegrams. The forced silence is most ominous. Any official accounts of the restoration of order must be received with all reserve. The rebels are besieging Milan."

A state of siege has been proclaimed in the province of Florence, and at Livourno, Pisa, Sinea, Massa and Cresseto, and also in the town of Spezzia, the naval port of Spezzia being excepted from the decree.

At Messina a crowd of women and children proceeded to the town hall, demanding food. They were dispersed by the police, and the crowd then began breaking street lamps and tried to sack a provision store. The proprietor shot one of the rioters with a gun, which increased the disturbance. Troops are now occupying the town.

The workmen of Creva, near Luino, numbering several thousands, struck yesterday and a fight occurred with the customs officers. The duke and duchess of Saxe-Meiningen were driving through Luino, when they found themselves between the rioters and the customs officers as the latter fired a volley. The duke and duchess were not hurt, but a dozen of the rioters fell.

The riotous demonstrations at Luino began on Sunday. The mob leaders demanded a reduction in the price of bread, which the local authorities conceded. Tuesday the rioters attacked the carabineers in their barracks and also the prison. The police fired on the mob, killing several persons and wounding a number of others.

Advices received from Milan give details of the arrest of 200 rioters in a monastery there. It appears that the students from Pavia who joined in the disturbances entrenched themselves in the Capuchin monastery and, while a detachment of troops was passing, fired upon the soldiers. The military authorities then sent two field guns to the scene, opened fire on the monastery, made a breach in its walls and entered the building. The students had escaped, but all the monks were arrested and will be distributed among the other monasteries of the order.

Between 100 and 200 were killed on Saturday, more on Sunday, and still more Monday. Hundreds are wounded and dying, the new bullet used by the troops having the effect of explosive balls.

Maher Wants a Chance.

New York, May 11.—Peter Maher, the Irish champion, announces that he is willing to post $10,000 for a fight with Fitzsimmons, or Corbett, or any man for the championship of the world. He does not believe that either Corbett or Fitzsimmons can be brought into the ring again, and he says that they are simply trying to attract the attention of the sporting world. Furthermore, he alleges that their present shout is for the purpose of throwing a cloud over his match with Joe Goddard which will take place in Philadelphia this week.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Herbert Burns stave mill in South Milford, Me., was burned. The loss is about $4000.

The residence and outbuildings of E. M. Staples at West Newbury, Mass., were destroyed by fire.

Detective Power of Halifax has arrested a man who answers the description of one Oliveri, who is wanted at New York on a charge of murder.

Buildings owned and occupied by John Breen of Biddeford, Me., were burned yesterday afternoon, causing a loss of $3000. Five children had a narrow escape from being burned to death.

The senate yesterday confirmed these nominations: Charles H. Allen of Massachusetts, to be assistant secretary of the navy; George M. Warren, to be collector of customs, Castine district, Maine.

The entire regiment of the First New Hampshire volunteers will have been mustered into the United States service by tonight. Eight companies, two majors and the lieutenant colonel have so far been mustered in.

The May returns to the statistician of the department of agriculture show the acreage in winter wheat to be 5.7 percent greater than the acreage last year, the comparison being not with the acreage harvested in 1897, but with that sown in the fall of 1896.

Half the business portion of Pine City, Minn., has been burned. The flames for a time threatened the town with entire destruction, but were finally brought under control by the aid of the Hinckley fire department, which was telegraphed for. Loss, $50,000; insurance, $18,000.

The chambers of commerce of some of the most important Spanish ports, says a special dispatch from Madrid, have decided to provide and fit out several auxiliary cruisers of from 3000 to 4000 tons and having a speed of 18 to 20 knots, to watch the Spanish coast, venture out to sea, and run a blockade if necessary.

Ex-Senator Aaron H. Cragin of New Hampshire died in Washington of congestion of the lungs. The remains will be removed to Lebanon, N. H., for interment. The deceased was one of the organizers of the Republicn party. He voted for N. P. Banks as speaker of the house and was a close friend of President Lincoln and Grant.

EIGHT IN ONE INNING.

Pitcher McJames' Hypnotic Power Weakened Disastrously.

Bostons Had an Easy Time to Win the Game.

Manager and Player Ejected From the Fall River Grounds.

Boston, May 11.—Recording victories means good business, and the Boston champions annihilated the Baltimore boys yesterday afternoon at the South End grounds, when some of the home fans deemed the oriole outworks impregnable, and that the home team would never win again. The local men, under Captain Duffy's plucky leadership, demonstrated the fact to the satisfaction of all that they were the champions of old in an up-hill drag, and could take at least one successful crack at the high-flying visitors.

THIRD BASEMAN M'GRAW.

Victor C. Willis, the long pitcher from Eastern league precincts, was the home team's tosser through the entire contest, and it was the first full size-up he has had before a Boston gathering. He acquitted himself with credit, and although Baltimore found him for plenty of hits, his all-round work was one of the winning cards. Some of the best hitters in the oriole camp found his delivery a puzzling one to connect with, his great height giving him an advantage in the matter of swing, and on a few of them he had the cue all right and worked the corners nicely. McGann, with two strikes on him in the sixth, blocked off a pretty bender over the plate, and Umpire Lynch was strictly correct in declaring the big first baseman out on strikes.

McJames, who twirled for Baltimore, did not repeat his twice-told trick this season of winning his game from Boston, and found trouble in locating the plate, as he usually does. The home hitters walked right into his pitching from the jump, as they were urged to do. John McGraw made a wrong kick on a strike, and Joe Quinn got a chance to cover third, as the third baseman was put out of the game. Score:

The Brocktons were defeated in an exciting and well played game in Newport, 9 to 6. The home team had a batting streak in the fifth, otherwise the game would have been very close.

The Pawtucket team won the game with the Tauntons in the fifth inning, when five runs were piled up. Score: 7 to 3.

The Harvards defeated the Amherst 20 to 6. Davis, who was in the box for the Amhersts the first four innings, was very wild. He allowed seven hits, of which two were three baggers by Laughlin and Reid and one a home run by Rand. Eight Harvard men crossed the plate in the second inning

The New Bedfords defeated the Fall Rivers, 5 to 4, in a game marked by a deal of kicking on the part of the visitors. Doe was not in the game, but in the third inning he led his whole team against Umpire Hunt in a kick over a decision at third. The language he used was unfit to be heard, and Hunt very properly had him put off the grounds. In the seventh, Wiley followed the same line of action on a decision at first, and he was ordered out of the grounds.

The Philadelphians defeated the Washingtons by fast playing, 6 to 4.

Rusie of the New Yorks lobbed the ball over, but the Brooklyns could get only one hit and lost, 5 to 0. Kennedy's delivery was very erratic and the support behind him about as bad.

The Pittsburgs won yesterday's game with the Louisvilles in the third inning when, with the bases full, Davis knocked a three bagger, bringing in three runs. Two singles by Schriver and Brodie scored another. Score: 6 to 2.

HARBOR RULES.

Dangerous for Boats Drawing Three feet of Water.

Lieut. Sewell of the United States Engineers corps has issued the following regulations for navigation in Boston harbor, which will be of local interest.

Submarine mines having been placed in position in connection with the defences of Boston harbor, the following regulations for the safe navigation of the channels by friendly vessels and for the protection of the defences are hereby established by authority of the secretary of war.

1. No vessel will be allowed to enter or leave the harbor between the hours of 8 P. M., and 4 A. M. During this interval vessels must not come inside of Boston Light, nor pass below Spectacle Island.

2. Patrol boats will be stationed above and below the defenses. These boats are authorized to stop vessels to inquire into their character or to instruct them how to pass through the mine fields. The orders of the patrol boats must be strictly obeyed.

3. Sailing vessels, and all small vessels drawing three feet or less, can pass safely through any part of the channels during the daytime.

4 For steam vessels drawing over three feet the entrances to the Nantasket Roads by George's island, and the entrance from Broad Sound into President Roads, will be dangerous at all times, and must not be attempted.

5. Steamers must pass in and out by the main ship channel only, and, so far as possible, at high tide. Between Long Island and Deer Island a special channel will be buoyed, and must be followed by all steamers.

6. The safe anchorage grounds in Nantasket Roads are now much restricted; vessels desiring to anchor there can obtain special instruction from the patrol boats; the same is true of President Roads. The custom, common among sailing vessels, of entering these anchorage grounds with anchors trailing, must be totally discontinued.

7. All vessels are warned that disregard of the foregoing instructions will subject them to serious risk of destruction by submarine mines, and may draw upon them the fire of the batteries on shore.

NOT SETTLED YET.

An Open Letter to the Board of Health.

On the Charges Against Inspector Keniley.

"Will Not be Settled Until It is Settled Right."

To the Board of Health of the City of Quincy,

Gentlemen: I am more than surprised at your decision that the charges filed by me against Mr. Keniley, as Inspector of Plumbing, have not been sustained, and that he has the "full confidence" of the Board, after Mr. Keniley in his eivdence, and his attorney in his argument had admitted that he was guilty to say nothing of the evidence submitted by myself and witnesses.

It has been common rumor the last week that Mr Keniley had no fears of the result, no matter what the evidence might be, as it was "all fixed." I can now understand the reason for this "Star Chamber" proceeding. I claim that every citizen in Quincy has the right to hear any evidence offered as to the neglect of duty of its city officials; and there was no reasons why the hearing shoud not have been open and accessible to all.

After hearing the evidence offered by me and my witnesses and after Mr. Keniley had confessed that he was guilty of sixteen charges filed by me against him, if this Honorable Board, for political reason, and in order to control a few Democratic votes, can deliberately vote that the "present Inspector of Plumbing has the full confidence of the Board," should not every citizen of Quincy ask himself the question whether the Board of Health has "the full confidence of the City?"

If this implicit faith in the integrity of Mr. Keniley was unbounded, why did this Board notify him that if he again failed in the discharge of his duty, he would be removed? What is the use of locking the barn door after the horse has been stolen. Why did this Board request Mr. Keniley to notify every plumber in the city that "in accordance with orders issued to me by the Board of Health, you are hereby notified that all plumbing work must comply strictly with the ordinances regulating the same Your attention is especially called to Section 6; no wrought iron pipe shall be allowed for vent, and no lead vent shall be concealed from view." Why were these notices necessary, if the ordinances had been complied with?

The citizens of Quincy should and shall know the facts Playing Peanut Politics with an important office to catch a few Democratic votes will not go down. These plumbing ordinances were enacted by the City Council and not by the Board of Health. It is the duty of the Board to see that the law is obeyed. An Inspector of Plumbing who admits that he has received money from the city for approving work that is not in accordance with the City ordinances, is not entitled "to the full confidence" of the citizens of Quincy; and it is in direct violation of the spirit and letter of the law to allow him longer to hold any office of public trust.

The case will not be settled until it is settled right and as a citizen and taxpayer of the city of Quincy, I claim that I have the right to ask that Mr. Keniley be removed from the office of Inspector of Plumbing.

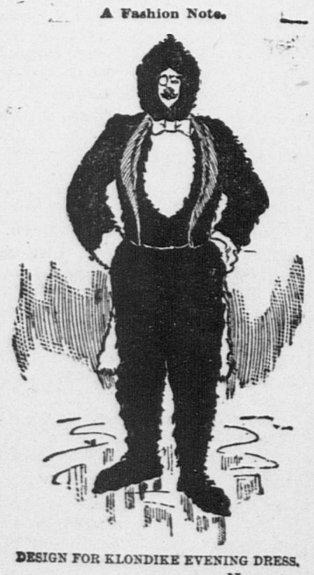

Respectfully yours,
JULUIS JOHNSON.

JOHN HANCOCK NINE.

Leads the Grammar School Base Ball League.

The games in the Grammar school base ball league on Saturday resulted in victories for the Gridley Bryant over Adams, John Hancock over Coddington, Lincoln over Wollaston, Quincy over Washington and Willard over Massachusetts Fields, and the standing today is :

	Games Won.	Games Lost.	Per cent.
Adams,	6	1	100
John Hancock,	7	0	85
Gridley Bryant,	6	1	85
Coddington,	4	3	55
Willard,	4	3	57
Quincy,	3	4	43
Wollaston,	2	4	43
Lincoln,	3	5	28
Massachusetts Fields,	0	7	00
Washington,	0	7	00

The victory for John Hancock and the defeat for Adams dissolves the tie for first place, and the former leads, while Gridley Bryant stands on equal footing with Adams. The Coddington and Willard come together in the next group, and the Quincy and Lincoln continue to keep company. Wollaston goes it alone in eighth place, while it has not yet been decided whether Massachusetts Field or Washington shall take the booby prize, but they play together today.

The games today are :

Adams and John Hancock, Coddington and Wollaston, Willard and Gridley Bryant, Washington and Massachusetts Fields, Quincy and Lincoln.

Should Adams win today there will be another tie for first place.

Desirable House Lots.

WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

For plans, prices and terms, apply to DR. N. S. HUNTING, 214 Hancock St., Quincy, or to MR. GEO. G. SAVILLE, 5 Greenleaf street, Quincy, and John Hancock Bldg., Devonshire St., Boston.

HARD AT WORK.

Monday and Tuesday at Camp Wolcott.

Guard Mounting and Drills Went with Snap.

Box of Oranges from Quincy a Great Treat.

Gloucester, Mass, May 10, 1898.

The first day in camp is always a hard one, and that of Monday proved no exception Arriving at Gloucester with many sea-sick members caused by the exceptionally rough passage, Co.'s K and D disembarked and proceeded immediately to Camp Wolcott, which is located nearly four miles from the city proper. Camp equipage was slow in arriving and the boys immediately set to work building tent floors with the available lumber at hand. Coble stones proved worthy hammers to drive nails, and all hands set to work with a determination to get settled as quickly as possible.

Tents were soon in shape, and temporary gun racks were constructed as well as swinging shelves, to hold extra clothing, etc.

Commissary Sergeant, T. B. Crane set to work to build his army fire place, and by evening the boys had hot coffee made in true army style in open air.

Monday night was exceedingly cold and damp, and the army blankets furnished by the city of Quincy added much to the comfort of the boys.

Today all hands were up a 5 o'clock, rather stiff in the joints, and blue in the face, but the vigorous setting up which immediately followed, soon limbered up the stiffened muscles and started them right for the day.

A breakfast of bacon, potatoes and coffee did much to satisfy the boys who seem to have a two fold appetite Guard mounting and morning drill went off with a snap and the arrival of two boxes of oranges immediately after, sent as a gift from a gentleman in Quincy brought forth three cheers for the donor.

Dinner over, a hard afternoon of drill followed, and at supper time the boys were tired and hungry.

The commissary department shows improvement at each meal, and the boys partake of their army rations without a murmur.

Captain Kincaide received orders tonight to move his company Wednesday morning to Rockport to guard with viligence, one of the most exposed points on the north shore

---

A dispatch of yesterday to the Herald says, Camp Wolcott, at Eastern Point, has been put into thorough military shape today The infantry carpenters have been at work all day while the artillery have been resting from their long ride of yesterday. The infantry have had their regular drills, but the artillery will not start into practice until tomorrow

Col. J H. Whitney of the infantry is in command of the post. Major Duchesney, commander of artillery, arrived today, and early in the afternoon called on Colonel Whitney.

Lieutenant Lewis of D company of infantry was officer of the day Colonel Whitney was absent a considerable portion of the day, making arrangements for the detail to go to Rockport. Captain Kincaide of Company K, Braintree, will command that post. A detail of half his company will go there tomorrow for a three days' tour of duty, when they will be relieved Quartermaster Hennesey went to Boston today for a steam launch, which will be used by the camp for communication with the city and also with Plum island, where another detachment of the battery is located.

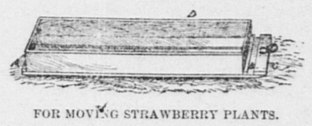

The Globe says Corporal Odom was commander of the Company K guard for Tuesday. His men Clements and Lane guarding the stable. The boys are happy and comfortable and are enjoying themselves thoroughly Neatness is characteristic of the entire camp and everybody seems to take a pride in having things presentable. Each company has its own mess.

Chaplain E. L House returned home Tuesday to attend a wedding. Major H. P. Ballard of the 1st battalion, 5th infantry, who is to come here on the 23d, is to be married to Miss Thorpe of Newton, a niece of Qm Barnes of the 2d brigade headquarters.

A Handy Stone Boat.

Potted strawberry plants can be taken up and shipped to a distance with soil on the roots much better than larger plants. But a correspondent of American Gardening who prefers the larger plants for his own field has a plan for facilitating their removal, which he describes thus:

My plan is to have my plants grown close by the block which I wish to plant so that I will not have far to move them when planting, as a spade of soil with each plant makes quite a heavy load for one horse to pull when the stone boat which I use is filled with one layer of the plants with the soil on them.

My stone boat, which I might more properly call my one horse handy boat, is made of two planks, each 6 feet long, 10 inches wide and 1½ inches thick, beveled as in the illustration, on the front ends of the planks, for runners which I place one inch apart and fasten with the three pieces A, B, C, using strong nails, but bolts with heads down might be better. On top of the runner planks I make a box of inch pine boards, as at D, six inches high and wide enough to enable the outer edge of the boards to come even with the outer edge of the planks.

Before getting a load of plants I take the one horse marker and mark fresh trenches deep enough so that when the spade of soil with plant and roots is put in it will come just even with the surface. This saves digging any holes and supplies plenty of fine loam to pack around the roots.

Combination Mixture For Spraying.

Arsenic and soda solution, or arsenite of soda, is more safely used in combination with bordeaux mixture than alone. When in combination it will not injure the foliage, but alone it is liable to burn the leaves. The same objection holds good, however, with reference to paris green and london purple. It is better, however, in almost every case to use the combination mixture, as fungi are nearly always present and unless they are kept in check there is but little use of fighting insects.—Ohio Station Bulletin.

Floral Notes.

Magnolia grandiflora, the beautiful evergreen species of the south, is hardy to a point north of Philadelphia, according to Meehan.

Culture is greatly responsible for brilliant coloring in flowers. Under neglect the finest colors may deteriorate.

The changing blossoms of hydrangea last well and make a fine porch decoration for warm weather.

The flower garden usually needs nitrogen.

The pompon dahlias are suitable for cut flowers, and their artificiality is quaint and attractive.

Sow plenty of seed of our common flowers in open ground in May; thin out to proper distance, and you can have a fine garden display with little trouble.

Pyrethrum may be used dry with bellows or in the proportion of one ounce to five gallons of water against plant lice.

"I hope not"

"Well, Oive noticed yez wearin yor Sunday clothes the week t'rough, an that ye gave up yer job in the blacksmith shop. Oi want to say widout harrm till anybody's feelin's, that it'll do yez no hurt to be rollin' up yer leeves more an' yer trousers less."—Washington Star.

DUAL ATTACK

"On to Havana!" the Rallying Cry.

TO FORCE MATTERS.

Porto Rica and Cuba to Be Besieged.

ENEMY'S FLEET GOES BACK.

Its Trip Westward Abandoned Abruptly.

Washington, May 11.—The battle cry is now "On to Havana." Within a week American troops will be fighting on Cuban soil; today it is probable that transports will begin to move out of Tampa. This is necessary because the little Florida town is already congested with the army, and space must be made for the new arrivals who are being hurried to that point from all over the United States. Simultaneously with this movement from Tampa there will be departures of troops from New Orleans and Mobile.

The point of landing in Cuba has been definitely settled, but, as a matter of course, it cannot be made public. It will afford, however, a fine strategic point from which the American army can march upon Havana.

In the meantime Sampson and Schley will be given opportunities to win their laurels. Sampson will operate against Porto Rico and Schley, in all probability, will, be ordered to reduce the fortifications at Havana. There is no longer any reason to fear that his fleet will be needed to defend Chesapeake bay and the approaches to the national capitol. One or two of his vessels may be retained at Hampton roads, simply as a precautionary measure, but they will have no work. The field is clear.

The situation has become wonderfully changed in a few hours. The Spanish fleet is at Cadiz, on the other side of the ocean. Long before there is any necessity of sending our vessels to destroy it, Havana and Porto Rico will have fallen, and Cuba will be ours. Then, unless all expectations fail, Spain will sue for peace.

The president accepts as authentic the information regarding the present location of the Spanish squadron. The news came to the state department in the form of a cablegram from Ambassador Hay, and half an hour later the naval attache of the American embassy in London notified the navy department to the same effect. Coming from these sources, and aware of the complete arrangements made by this government to be kept posted through its secret agents in Spanish ports, there is no reason to doubt that the mysterious fleet has been accurately located. The feeling of relief which comes to the administration is very enjoyable, after the bad quarter of an hour, as the French say, which had been previously experienced.

It was suggested by some of the members of the war board that there was just a possibility that the Spanish squadron might make a quick passage into the Pacific through the Suez canal and attack Dewey at Manila. It is said that contrary to the common understandings, the Suez canal is open to warships of belligerent powers, so that if the Spanish choose to take this course, they would have a long start of any pursuing fleet from our side of the Atlantic. It is scarcely believed, however, that the Spanish are willing to take the great risk of exposing to our attack their own home ports by the withdrawal of so considerable a portion of their naval strength as would be required to overmatch Dewey.

Major General Sewell has been assigned to command the concentration camp near Falls Church, Va. This is taken as an indication that the general has concluded to accept his military command, risking his tenure of office as a senator thereby.

None of the corps commanders has yet been assigned finally, although the entire list of commands has been proposed. The three civilian major generals are not to receive such commands, but are assigned to divisions. Generals Lee, Wilson and Wheeler go to Chattanooga for duty under General Brooke, who will undoubtedly command one of the army corps. The war department officials admit that all the regular troops now at Chickamauga had been ordered away, but refuse to tell their destination. The volunteers will take up the camps abandoned by the regulars in Chickamauga park just as soon as they can be gotten there. Nine of the new brigadier generals have been assigned to duty under Major General Brooke and will lick the raw recruits into shape at Camp George H. Thomas.

It may be that the president will soon issue a call for 75,000 more troops. Secretary Alger is exceedingly anxious that this should be done and has urged Mr. McKinley strongly to issue the call. The purpose is to have a reserve immediately available in case of an emergency. The troops now at the president's disposal are sufficient for immediate operations, but if more should be needed it might be difficult to secure volunteers; and as the summer wears on the difficulty is sure to increase. Secretary Alger has urged that it would be wise to take advantage of the present willingness of men to enlist. He has had offers of one kind and another from nearly 1,000,000 men; some of them are, of course, impracticable, and only a comparatively small portion of them could be made available in any event; but the tenders show the spirit, and this spirit, the secretary believes, should be caught at its flood.

Schofield and Walker.

Washington, May 11.—The house committee on foreign affairs will vote on the Hawaiian annexation resolution Thursday. The committee stands 11 to 4 in favor of annexation.

There was little done at Tuesday's session aside from the examination of Lieutenant General Schofield and Admiral Walker, retired, both of whom warmly advocated the annexation of Hawaii. General Schofield believed that $500,000 would be all that was necessary to establish adequate fortifications.

REAR ADMIRAL WALKER.

Some discussion was had as to the especial advantage of possessing the Hawaiian islands in view of the present condition of affairs in the Philippines. Admiral Walker concurred in the views expressed by General Schofield. He said that the expedition now being organized by the government to go to the Philippines would have to stop at Honolulu. It could not stop there if Hawaii was neutral, and he felt that neutrality would be extremely injurious to the United States. If the expedition should have to go straight through to the Philippines the amount of extra coal to be carried would displace one-third of the cargo. The explanation of the strategic and economical importance of Hawaii t this country occupied almost the entire time of the session.

Passed Four War Measures.

Washington, May 11.—Four war measures were passed by the senate yesterday. One of them provides for carrying on the additional work in the adjutant general's office. The second authorized enlistment of a volunteer signal corps, two-thirds of the members of which must be expert electricians or telegraphers. The third was the so-called "immune bill" passed by the house. The fourth was a measure suspending existing law so that additional hospital stewards can be appointed.

Kindness Thrown Away.

Key West, May 11.—The Norwegian steamer Bratsburg is now a prize of war, pending the decision of the United States authorities on the question. The affair bears many features of resemblance to that of the French Lafayette, but, like that case, it will be settled without international complications.

About two weeks ago the Bratsberg, bound from Progresso, Mex., for Havana, with 800 head of cattle, was warned off the Cuban coast by the blockading fleet. She put into this port and remained a couple of days, when she sailed ostensibly for New York to find a market for the cattle. She was piloted out of the harbor April 27 and was not seen again until Monday morning, when the Newport sighted her about 25 miles off Havana. Captain Tilley knew she had once been warned, and, observing that she was floating easily and with cattle pens apparently empty, he hailed and boarded her. Captain Thorsen stoutly denied that he was trying to slip past the blockade, but he could not satisfactorily explain the disposition of his cargo, and was sent on under the Mangrove's escort in company with a fishing smack, taken by the Vicksburg off Havana.

Evangelist Moody's Scheme.

Northfield, Mass., May 11.—Evangelist Dwight L. Moody has issued an appeal to the christian people of the country to raise money for the distribution of christian literature among the men of the army and navy. Mr. Moody was prominently connected with the christian mission during the civil war, and his experience will assist him in carrying out his plans. Besides delivering literature, he intends to send prominent evangelists to the camps to carry on evangelistic work. Rev. J. C. Dixon of Brooklyn and Mr. Burke, the well-known singer, will go to Tampa, while General O. O. Howard and Major Whittle are to visit Chickamaugua park.

Uproar In the Chamber.

Madrid, May 11.—At last night's sitting of the chamber, the leader of the Republicans created an uproar by announcing that his party stood ready to accept the responsibility of forming a government on the abdication of the queen regent. It was sometime before order was restored.

Sagasta appealed to the patriotism of members and prayed the house to vote the "funds so necessary to conduct the war." His appeal was greeted with the general cry, "We will vote immediately."

Silvela, leader of the dissident Conservatives, said his party would abstain from further discussion and was ready to vote the urgent war funds immediately; but he claimed the right to debate the other budgetary measures.

The principal speech in the chamber was that of Mr. Labra, a Porto Rican member, who maintained that autonomy in Cuba was not a failure and that, on the contrary, the United States precipitated war because, as he said, "they foresaw autonomy would succeed in restoring peace to Cuba." The Americans believed, he declared, that Spain would yield, but "on their arrival at Havana they discovered their mistake." Labra contended that Spain ought to appeal to the powers, not for armed assistance, but for an arbitral decision on the questions of international law.

Mr. Moret, secretary for the colonies, generally endorsed Labra's views, and, replying to Mr. Malias' speech Monday, said that neither victories nor defeats could be ascribed to one regime more than to another, and that it was a bad interpretation of the words of Isaiah to say that God averts his face from nations governed by women. With a view of remedying "the mistake made last week," Moret said he wished to repudiate the suggestion of Mr. Silvela that he (Moret) desired to convert parliament into a national convention. "I asked not for orders, but only for suggestions," he declared.

The speech was coldly received, Silvela showing a disinclination to accept the proffered reconciliation; and the debate left the impression that Moret will have to be sacrificed, but that Sagasta probably will remain premier.

Spanish Cabinet Situation.

London, May 11.—The Madrid correspondent of The Times, explaining the cabinet situation, says: "Mr. Moret's practical invitation to the chamber to declare what policy the country desired to adopt has not met with general approval, it being regarded, as Mr. Silvela said Saturday, as a confession of impotence on the government's part and a conversion of the cortes into a convention and of the cabinet into a mere executive committee. Cabinet changes have become inevitable, and the Carlists, Republicans and socialists are preparing to take advantage of any opportunity presenting itself to make mischief. Happily the activity of this hybrid group, which includes several nondescript and unscrupulous politicians and some Romerists, presents no immediate danger. Inside the chamber they only number about 30 deputies, and outside they have no efficient organization, except the Carlists, who do not desire at present any insurrectionary movement, but only want to discredit the monarchy."

A Monster Demonstration.

South Framingham, Mass., May 11.—The Second regiment finished its mustering in yesterday afternoon, and the regiment has received its full quota, the last company being F of Gardner.

Colonel Clark informedd a delegation from this town that the troops would not leave camp before Friday, if they did then. A movement is on foot to get up a monster demonstration on the day the volunteers leave Camp Dewey, the affair being participated in by citizens of the various places throughout the state where companies are located.

Five companies of the Ninth regiment were mustered in yesterday. They include D of Boston, L of Natick, F of Lawrence, and I and H of Boston. The following companies have been mustered in the Eighth regiment: L of Lawrence, B of Amesbury, N of Somerville, F of Haverhill, G of Gloucester and E of Beverly. The Sixth regiment has been examined up to company E, the following being the record of rejections: A, 9 men; B, 12; C, 15; D, 12; E, 15.

It Is a Just Cause.

Philadelphia, May 11.—"Whatever might have been, the United States is at war with Spain," said Bishop Whitaker in a stirring address before the opening session of the 114th annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal church in the diocese of Pennsylvania. "I believe it is a just cause. We have taken up arms for the relief of a suffering people. We make war to put an end to unspeakable barbarities practised under the name of government.

BISHOP WHITAKER.

We are attempting to do for Cuba what the moral sense of our people demanded that the great powers of Europe should do for Armenia, and which we centure them for not doing. The only way to enforce this humane and righteous determination is by the force of arms, and that means war."

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 11.—Today The Advertiser tells "every friend of humanity, every man or woman who deplores bloodshed, everyone who desires peace," that he "can now best work in the interests of such peace by supporting the administration loyally and heartily in its prosecution of the war."

Says The Post: "The sword voted by congress to Admiral Dewey is distinctly and appropriately the gift of the people of the United States. It will be a magnificent arm, as the gift of the American people ought to be; $10,000 will procure a fitting weapon."

The Globe argues that "we have nothing to gain and much to lose from the pursuance of a Fabian policy, and the people will expect in due time to see the president give Admiral Sampson adequate reinforcements."

Both Men Gouged.

Louisville, May 11.—Fifteen hundred men at the Buckingham theatre last night saw a 20-round bout at catchweights between Tom Lansing and Jim Watts, well known pugilists. Bad blood existed between the men. Lansing had much the better of it in weight, height and reach. In the first two rounds Watts clinched repeatedly to save himself, but in the succeeding rounds gathered new courage and went after his man. He landed several blows and was awarded first blood. In the fourth and last round the men gouged each other in a clinch, Lansing's work being the more glaring. On this showing the referee gave the fight to Watts.

A FIRESIDE PIECE.

[Translated from Heine.]

Outside the blast is making riot,
And through the darkness the snowflakes fall.
Here in my little room all is quiet,
Warm and dry and so snug withal.

Musing, I sit on my cushioned settle,
Facing the firelight's fitful shine.
Sings on the hob the simmering kettle,
Songs that seem echoes of "auld lang syne."

And close beside me the cat sits purring,
Warming her paws at the cheery gleam.
The flames keep flitting and flickering and whirring.
My mind is lapped in a realm of dream.

Many long, long forgotten summers
Rise up, wraithlike, before my view,
Some in the brightness of masking mummers,
Some with their splendors bedimmed in hue.

Lovely, serene faced women sweetly
Meanings divine in a glance convey.
Revelers, mingling among them fleetly,
Caper and laugh and are madly gay.

Marble gods in the distance tower.
Near them, dreamlike in beauty rare,
Is a fairy grove that has burst in flower
And sheds perfume on the moonlit air.

Castles full many of wizard story
Totter along with their crests awry.
Knights behind them, in full plumed glory,
With troops of their squires, come riding by.

'Tis gone! The beautiful dream is over!
Away like a phantom the pageant draws!
Oh, dear, the kettle is boiling over,
And pussy is yelling with scalded paws!

—Theodore Martin in Blackwood's Magazine.

OUT OF THE MIST.

To him who has much, much is given—and much is forgiven. Charles Marone had at the age of 40 wealth and health, good looks, a considerable reputation as a novelist and some basis for that reputation. He was not always popular with men, but in recompense he had been adored by many women. Having much, much was permitted to him—to be capricious, to be fantastical, to have eccentricities, to carry self indulgence to the utmost limit, even to be cruel.

It was caprice which drove him from London in the middle of the season and made him take a little tumbled down cottage near the village of Lowstead and live there alone, to the anger of his servants and the mystification of his personal friends. It was not all caprice—vanity came into it. His vanity was flattered when he mystified people. That is easy to explain—their mystification implied interest. There was yet a third reason. He was strangely practical for one so idealistic; he had made a contract with a publisher to finish certain work in a certain time. In the country he would be able to work without interruption.

* * * * * * *

It had rained all the morning, the drops pattering on the leaded window in which he sat, with his writing pad on his knee. In the afternoon the rain had ceased. The sky was still gray. The empty moorland, the water dripping from the trees, the cry of the curlews—all gave the scene a certain melancholy. Toward evening the mist lay thick and gray over everything. He was sensitive to this melancholy of the world outside his windows. Late in the evening, tired of his work, tired of the French novel he had been attempting to read, he went out. A laboring man passed him in the road and said "Good night." Marone asked him the way to the next village, Arnmore. The man pointed to the track across the moor and warned him to be careful not to get off it. People had been lost in the mist. Marone laughed, lit a cigarette, and, leaving the road, walked quickly along the track.

* * * * * * *

There was not a breath of wind and there was no sound in the air. The mist hung motionless. The things that he passed seemed to jump up suddenly out of it. A gorse bush or a stunted tree would take almost a human movement in the tricky light. Two or three sheep came close up to him out of the gray veil and as suddenly turned and scampered away again. He walked on. He had left the track for some time before he noticed that he had done so.

He lit another cigarette and stood perfectly still. He had quick ears and was ready to catch the least sound of a footfall or of wheels on the cart track and to give the call which would bring him home again. If he heard nothing, he would still, he told himself, be patient enough to stand there and go on smoking while the cigarettes lasted. By that time the mist would probably have lifted—it would be a new experience.

Suddenly, though he did not hear the least sound of any footstep, he was conscious that somebody was coming toward him. At a little distance the figure looked like a tall column, vague and shapeless. As it drew nearer the mist illusion passed. It was a woman, veiled and dressed in gray. As it came close up to him he saw it was a very young woman, and that the lines of her figure were beautiful. She stopped when she was close to him, but did not speak. The silence seemed almost uncanny. He took off his hat.

"Do not let me frighten you," he said. "I am merely a harmless traveler lost in the mist, and, I presume, you are in a similar case?"

She laughed. It was a pretty, musical laugh.

"Oh, no," she said, "I know the moor well, and often walk here when the mist is thick like this. Perhaps I can guide you."

"It is exceedingly kind of you," he said. "I am sorry to give you so much trouble, but if you could put me on the track which leads to Arnmore I should be infinitely obliged to you."

"Arnmore?" she said. "I am going there myself."

He smiled, embarrassed a little.

"May I," he said, "exchange my escort for your guidance?"

"Yes," she said. "Come with me. We may as well keep each other company this lonely night."

And now an idea which had been growing in his mind, a vague idea of recognition, became more clear and precise. He had heard the voice before; he was sure of it. It seemed to him to come from some time of the long ago—some time of which he had kept no souvenir.

"It seems a strange thing to say," he said, "but I cannot help thinking we must have met before. I am sure I recognize your voice."

"Yes," she said, "we have met. You would have recognized my face, too, even in this mist, if I were not veiled. I knew you at once. You are Charles Marone."

"Will you not," he went on, "at least put back your veil? I am sure I should recognize you then and know your name. Wherever we met before it is strange enough that we should meet again like this, at night on the moor—I lost in the mist and you my guide."

"Yes," she said, "it is strange. You shall see my face, but not yet. Perhaps you will remember without that. Tell me, can you remember 20 years ago?"

"Vaguely," he said. "I was a young man then—a wild ass of the desert. But what have 20 years to do with it, for unless my judgment is very wrong you cannot remember 20 years ago?"

"Why not?" she said.

"Because," he said, laughing, "you cannot possibly be 20 years of age."

"Never mind," she said. "Twenty years ago you did precisely what you are doing now. You went away to a village to get some work done."

"Very likely," he said. "That was when I was up at Oxford. It is not impossible, but I have no clear recollection of it."

She began to hum a tune. The tune, like the voice, came back to him.

"I remember now—an old mill, an orchard behind it. I was in the orchard."

She raised a gloved hand, in which she carried some fast fading flowers.

"Smell these," she said, "and they also will help your memory."

Their scent was curious, harsh and heavy; not sweet and refreshing.

"I know," he cried. "They grew there all among the grass, those great red poppies. Now I recall everything and could even have sworn that you were"—

"Who?" she asked softly.

"One who 20 years ago had the grace and the voice and the figure that you have now."

Out of the gray mist came a row of low, white painted railings.

"Let me rest a little," she said.

She leaned against them. A stone, dislodged by her foot, fell far down and splashed in the water below.

"What was her name?" she asked.

"A strange name for an English girl," he said sadly. "She was called Antoinette."

"I am Antoinette," said the woman before him.

"But not the same," he said. "That would be impossible."

She laughed.

"If," she said, "you had been a woman instead of a man, you would have noticed, even in this light, that I wear the fashions of 20 years ago. Won't you believe? Look at my face then."

It was the face of the woman whom he had more or less loved 20 years before. He shrank back a few steps from her.

"What does it mean?" he asked. "How is it that you have not changed?"

He was frightened.

"I came here," she said, "after you had gone. It was just at this spot that I read your last letter. Listen."

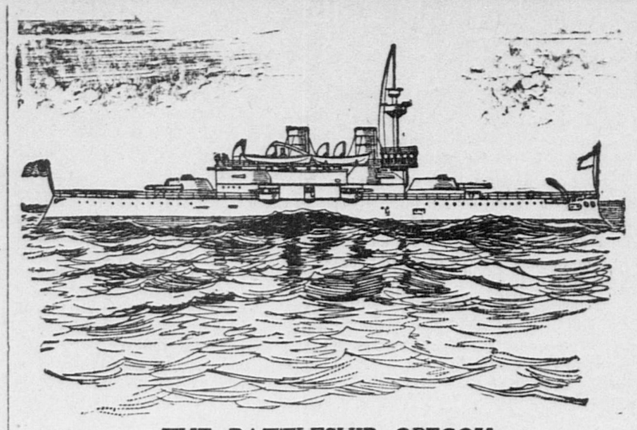

He heard the water murmuring below him.

"It was 20 years ago," she went on, "I died—down there—because you had left me. Come back to me now."

Slowly and mechanically he stepped forward again toward her.

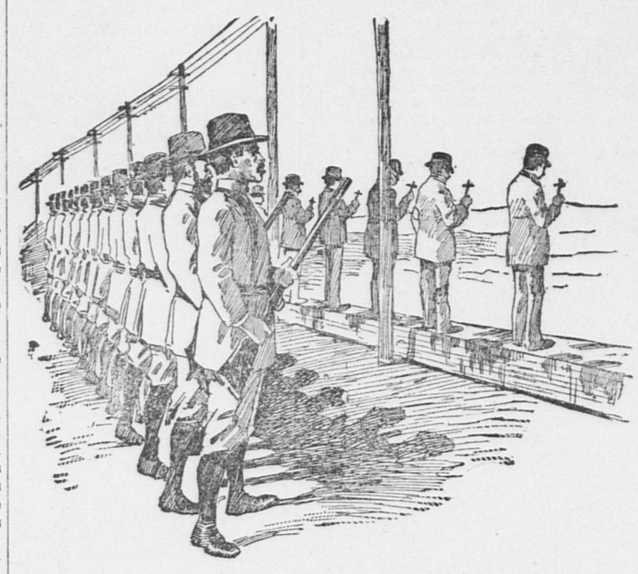

* * * * * * * *

The lamentable death of Charles Marone while still comparatively young and at the height of his reputation was, the newspapers said, the result of accident. He had, in spite of warning, gone out on the moor in a thick mist and lost his way. The local paper recalled with some jubilation that it had directed public attention to the disgraceful state of the railings on the bank of the river some time before and added in a fine vein of sarcasm that the door would probably be shut now that the steed was stolen.—Barry Pain in Black and White.

THE BATTLESHIP OREGON.

The Oregon is 348 feet long and has a displacement of 10,288 tons. She cost $3,180,000 and steams 15 knots an hour. Her crew consists of 424 men. Four 13 inch, eight 8 inch, four 6 inch and 30 smaller guns compose her armament.

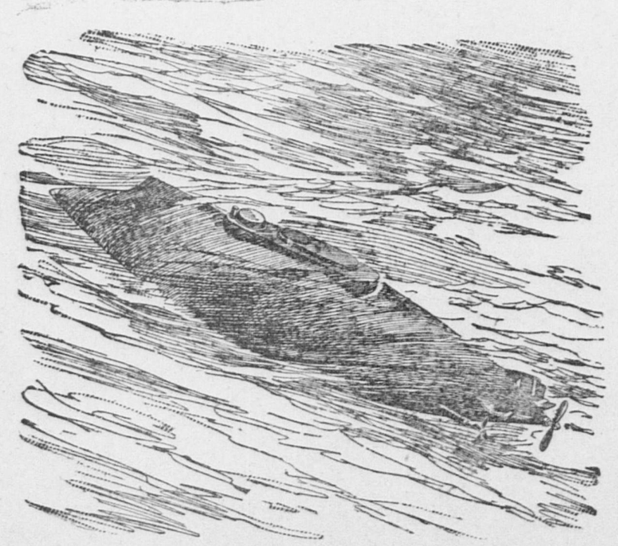

SHOOTING REBELS.

About two years ago the Spanish tried to discourage the rebellion in the Philippines by shooting to death some 83 natives who had been exiled for political offenses. There were 46 others who were shot, but not killed. Some folks would call it a massacre. The general who ordered it reported it as a "punishment."

NATIVE INSURGENT SOLDIERS.

The natives of the Philippine islands, who have been for some time fighting for freedom from Spain, are a small, dark brown people and a branch of the Malay race. The features of the men are coarse and ugly, but they have fine, mild eyes. They are tractable and docile when well treated, but neither quality has been developed by the Spanish.

SUBMARINE TORPEDO BOAT PLUNGER.

The Plunger is commonly called the Holland submarine boat. She was built at Baltimore and cost $150,000. Her displacement is 168 tons and her speed 8 knots. She only carries torpedoes and is an experiment in submarine warfare.

"Possil Bones."

"A little learning" may not be "a dangerous thing," but a little science is apt so to intoxicate the brain that one knows not "A from Izzard."

One day a lady said to William Pengelly, noted for his discovery of fossil bones in caves, "Do you remember that our cook once lived with you?"

"Yes."

"Well, yesterday she and the nurse were heard having the following discussion:

"Said the cook, 'Mr. Pengelly calls the bones what he finds to Kent's cavern 'possil's bones, but I say how can he know the bones of the 'possils from the bones of other men?'

"'Well,' said the nurse, 'I've heard say as he is uncommon clever. Besides, nobody knows where the garden of Eden was, and, if so, why shouldn't it be here? And if 'twas here, where else should the bones of the apostles be?'"

The two women had taken the word fossil as synonymous with apostle, or, as the cook called it, 'possil.—Exchange.

A Contrast.

Mr. Dapper is one of that class of men who are scrupulously neat in their personal appearance, but who never fail to leave chaos behind them in the scene of their preparations. A neighbor recently called on Mrs. Dapper and remarked:

"One rarely sees a more well kept man than your husband. He always looks as if he had just come out of a band box."

"Very true," returned Mrs. Dapper, "but"—with a sigh—"you ought to see the band box!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Q. H. S. PRIZE ESSAY.

The Companionship of Books by Margaret M. E. Sheahan.

There is an old saying current among all nations to the effect that a man may be known by the company he keeps. While this was in the olden times true, it is not so now. The wonderful progress made in art, science, and especially literature has made it necessary to improve upon this saying and make it in every way applicable to the men of the present generation. This becomes a very easy task when we take into consideration the large number of books today read by the people and especially when few look at the wonderful diversity in the persons and characters of their authors. For indeed not all books are good. That would be impossible In this so-called enlightened age it requires but little intellectual ability to write a book. No matter how crude the thoughts may be no matter how vulgar they are, there are always printers ready to publish them in hopes that they will get a large circulation among the vicious. Knowing then that this is the fact and that many books are dangerous to the morals of the community what shall we add to this old saying? It seems to me that the words "and by the books he reads," will make it suited to the times. For in truth a man is known by the books he reads. This then being the case we should live always in the best company whether it be of books or of men.

A good book is one of the best friends. It is the same today as it ever was and will never change. There is no companion more patient or more cheerful than it. In times of adversity and distress when our spirits overcome by misfortune now not whither to turn for comfort we are encouraged to bear up under our affliction by our books. Our books will never desert us.

They are always ready to solace and comfort us. They amuse and instruct our youth. They make our old age most happy and contented. They increase our store of knowledge and enable us to speak intelligently on any topic whatsoever.

Men often discover their affinity to each other by the love they have for a book, in the same manner as two persons frequently discover a friend by the admiration which both entertain for a third. There is no truer bond of union than a look. Books enable men too more clearly understand each other. They give men a true insight into the character of their companions and enable them to know whether their companions be really worthy of their friendship or not.

Books have a wonderful influence on the character of men. How frequently we see promising young men and women drawn from the path of virtue by a book. How often do we see young lives blighted through the abandoned and depraved thoughts of a wretch, who for some reason or other has been able to put his thoughts in print. Woe to the writers of bad books. Not only while they live do they commit crimes Even when their bodies lie rotting in their graves their evil thoughts expressed in writing are continually working ruin and every moment heaping torments upon the suffering soul of the wretch who was their author.

A good book is indeed a treasury of good words and noble thoughts which forever remain with us and increase our happiness. The good thoughts acquired by reading good books in the times of temptation become as it were angels of mercy guarding and strengthening the soul against the onslaughts of the devil. "They enshrine the germs of action for they invariably inspire too good works."

Our own immortal Franklin became one of the greatest men the world has ever produced by means of good books. In his early days they were his sole companions and through their influence he reached the highest round in the ladder of fame. There are numerous other famous men who owe their high position in life to the early influence of good books. The noble traits inspired by the reading of such works have often enabled the greatest men to bear up under adversity.

The influence of good books can never die. Temples and monuments may crumble away into dust, thrones may totter and fall, but they, the expression of all that is true and beautiful, will never fail to influence the character of all men Bad books by a kind act of Divine Providence are at some time put out of existence and cast into eternal oblivion, but good books never die, never are forgotten, never go out of print That this is so, is clearly seen from the fact that the books of the best authors of all nations are come down to us from time immemorial Homer is dead But his memory is still kept alive in is works which are today as fresh as if the had been newly written Plato, that noble philosopher still lives in his writings and still exercises a great influence over men by the force of his logical conclusions The works of Juvenal, that celebrated Roman satirist, can be read with profit even in our own day They inspire in us a hatred for all that is bad and a love for all that is beautiful

Perhaps the most valuable books of today however are Biographies They furnish us with numerous examples of virtue, industry, frugality, temperance, yea of all good qualities that can aid us in shaping our destiny They encourage us to try again when we are met with repeated repulses in our attempt to become somebody They help us to avoid temptations by pointing out to us what other men did in the same circumstances Indeed it is impossible to read the lives of good men without being unconsciously lifted up and impelled to imitate them

"Good books like good friends are few and chosen, the more select the more enjoyable" Thus says Alcott And it is true It is a surprising and startling fact that among all the books in circulation throughout the world today, but few of them are really and truly fit for our perusal They treat of all that is base They ridicule virtue and they implicitly if not explicitly exhort their reader to imitate the vices of their depraved authors When we find a good book we should cling to it In the sea of sin it is a life preserver While we keep its thoughts fresh in our mind we can never sink in the waters of iniquity

Since then we are to chose our companions among books as well as among men we should always before reading a work find out what was the character of its author, whether it was good, bad or indifferent. After learning thus we can judge whether we should read the book or not. If the character of the author be bad the book should be cast aside, for it is impossible for a man of bad character to write a book that will express noble thoughts. It can't be done. If we find that the author is indifferent, what then? Well, he may express some good thoughts but it is probable that whatever he writes will not be of much value to humanity. He is not moved by good thoughts himself and surely he cannot move others with what he does not himself possess. Such books should be read, if read at all, with the greatest caution. Now if we find that the author's character is good then we need not fear to read whatever may come from his pen. It cannot harm us. On the contrary it will aid us in every possible way

"I never," says Shirley, knew more sweet and happy hours than I employed upon my books" Each one of us can say the same. In our social connections with our friends we are frequently grieved by something or other, which tends to dishearten us and keep us apart from everybody. But in reading books nothing disturbs us Good books enlarge and liberalize the mind, they produce cheerfulness and render us happy. They are the best companions we can find From them we learn everything that is worth knowing, for in very truth it is through them that the fountain of wisdom flows

What Faith Does.

Faith links us with the eternal; makes us one
With God itself. Its attitude sublime,
It o'erlooks endless reaches; sees the sun
Outchase the flying shadows we call time.

Faith grandly cries unto the human soul.
It molds us in the image all divine;
Holds up Christ's likeness as our final goal
And says, "This thrilling beauty shall be thine!"

Faith conquers life by its unmeasured trust.
To all his paths there is a goal we know.
No human soul need ever fear the dust
Placed by our God where best 'twill thriv and grow.

Fate is an heir to nothing which our God
Cannot regenerate, soften or restrain.
Love puts a misty veil before our eyes
That faith may part its folds and see again

Faith takes away the commonness from life.
It shows us that all human things are God's Sees flashing the divine, pities the strife
And answers "Nay" to doubt's depressing words.

God shapes our life's events with perfect love.
Standing today in silence and the shade,
We listen for his kindly voice and move
Only in paths he marks for us to tread.

Oh, thought supreme, that we so weak, so small,
Tempted, distressed, weeping and overcome,
Shall gain the heavenly sweetness waiting all
As surely as the earth flowers fade and bloom!

The truest life attains by faith alone,
Building all life upon eternal aim.
Take all we have and are! To thee we come
Rich, radiant, supreme, if faith remain!

Leave but our faith, the centuries in their way
Across the sky of time shall fade and flee,
The seas shall be no more, but thou alway
Sublime, triumphant, evermore shalt be!
—Nellie Hart Woodworth in Boston Journal.

Many of the fruits and vegetables now eaten in England were almost unknown to our forefathers. Not until Henry VIII's time were there either raspberries or strawberries or cherries grown in England, and we do not read of the turnip, cauliflower and quince being cultivated before the sixteenth century or the carrot before the seventeenth century.

BRAND NEW HEROES.

THE FIRST AMERICANS TO WIN GLORY IN THIS WAR.

The Gunner Who Fired the First Shot and the Daring Lieutenant Who Defied Spanish Batteries and Made the First Landing on Cuban Soil.

In these times, when we are printing real history on multiple presses, we have real, live, active, new made heroes to think and talk about, heroes who were unknown yesterday, but whose names are household words today.

When we fought our last war, it was weeks and sometimes months before a heroic action was told about in the public prints. Now, thanks to the push and equipment of the modern journalist, we know all about the hero of to day and are ready to shake him by the hand even before he has had time to wash the smut from his face.

As the war opened on the sea, our heroes thus far have been naval. New ones are being made every day, but lest we forget, in the rush of them, those first gallant fellows who made our blood tingle when we read of their deeds we should fix their doings firmly in our minds. It is essential to have the first chapter of our recollections of the Spanish-American war accurate. Other and greater heroes may follow, but these first ones have their importance.

Bill Anthony, of "I have, sir, to report that the ship has been blown up" fame, we will remember as a sort of antebellum hero, an advance guard of those to follow.

Next comes the man who actually fired the first shot of the war. He is Patrick Melia, a gunner on the cruiser Nashville, which captured the Spanish steamer Buena Ventura, the first prize of the war. Melia s home when he is not at sea is in Scranton, Pa. He is 30 years of age and enlisted four years ago the 5th of December last and was assigned to duty on the Cincinnati, where he met and became acquainted with Patrick Kane, one of the boys who went down with the Maine. They became bosom friends during the three years of service on the Cincinnati that followed Melia's enlistment.

In the first part of February Melia returned home on a three days' furlough to visit his sister, and soon after his return to the Brooklyn navy yard the Maine was blown up and his friend Kane killed.

On Feb. 27 he wrote to his sister:

"Annie, if the opportunity presents itself, I will avenge the death of Pat Kane, whom I loved as a brother."

When aboard the Cincinnati, Melia served for a time as captain's orderly and was stationed in the east during the trouble between Turkey and Greece.

From Rome the Cincinnati went to Constantinople and then was ordered on a two years' cruise. As Melia had but six months to serve he was put aboard the Maine at Gibraltar and returned to the Brooklyn navy yard. At the navy yard he was assigned to duty on the recruiting ship Vermont, and when the present preparations for war began he went on the Nashville.

Another brand new hero is Lieutenant John C. Fremont, the gallant commander of the torpedo boat Porter. He won distinction by being the first American to land on Cuban soil after war had been declared. He ran his little boat right in under the frowning guns of the Matanzas batteries and made a landing.

Lieutenant Fremont is the son and namesake of the famous "Pathfinder." All his fellow officers in Washington say he has the courage and determination of his distinguished father and that he was just the man to have carried out successfully the instructions given him by Admiral Sampson to make the landing. C. J. BOWDEN.

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

A LAWN FLOWER GARDEN.

Tasteful Design For a Floral Display In One Corner of a Lawn.

In answer to an inquiry for planning one corner of a lawn as a flower garden Vick's Magazine submits the following tasteful design: It is arranged in the irregular order for the reason that in this way it is both more ornamental and restful than if the formal style was adopted. The plan is suited to any kind of flowers, such as annuals, bulbs or greenhouse plants or to a combination of these. It likewise answers well for the hardy shrubs by laying it out on an enlarged scale to have the wider parts of the beds not less than 12 feet across. In that event some space may be left here, and these to be filled in with seed grown flowers, bulbs, etc.

In case of planting it as a hardy shrubbery, by massing some of the taller growing kinds, like lilacs, mock oranges and altheas centrally in the beds, so as to obscure the walks in part as seen from any given point, the effect will be all the more delightful. In that event, compact as the arrangement is, there will always be present in the visitor's mind the irresistible charm of desiring to know what is beyond and thus lead him to explore its various parts. The garden thus leaves a much better impression than if every detail of the plan can be taken in with one sweep of the eye.

It is seen that an arbor or garden seat is located centrally in the plan. For this a bed of bright flowers might be substituted with no material loss of beauty. Three walks lead to the arbor from the lawn, and a fourth one extends back into the vegetable garden. These walks are nothing else than lawn and are to be kept under the mower the same as the other parts of the grass plat. What the garden is designed to consist of is merely in the cutting of the beds into a present lawn. The beds are designed to be about two or three inches lower than the surrounding grass level at the edges and then to be slightly crowning at the center.

Planting Small Fruit In Orchards.

It has long been a matter of observation that the planting of raspberries or other small fruit plants in an orchard has been more or less injurious to the trees. Sooner or later this is the case. But that the injury has been the result of borers passing from the decayed raspberry roots to the roots of the apple or the peach trees is only imaginary. The trouble comes from the orchard trees being robbed by the raspberry bushes. The production of fine fruit, say a good crop of Maiden's Blush, or Rambo, or Stuart's Golden apples, or of Elberta peaches, is a heavy draft on both the trees and the soil. And not merely the health of the trees, but the profitableness of the orchard requires that the best conditions should be maintained.

These best conditions depend largely on the cultivation of the soil at the proper times, and the trees will require this cultivation at a time when the bushes do best to be let alone, and vice versa. But the practice generally followed is even more injurious. The berry plants are allowed to become a tangled mass, preventing any cultivation at all. Growing peach trees and apple trees in the same orchard is somewhat different, but yet that does not work very well unless more room is given than is usual in such cases.—National Stockman and Farmer.

White Arsenic Spray.

On account of the price and the fact that paris green and london purple are generally supposed to be adulterated there are frequent requests for information regarding the feasibility of using arsenic—arsenious acid—as a substitute.

For this reason the entomologist of the Oregon station gives the following formula in a recent bulletin, with the warning that it be used with caution, since, if any of the arsenic remains in solution instead of being precipitated by boiling with the lime, it is liable to injure the foliage:

White arsenic, one pound; lime, unslaked, two pounds; water, three gallons.

Boil together for at least an hour and when ready for use dilute with 200 gallons of water, or preferably with bordeaux mixture. Considerable care is necessary to prolong the boiling until all of the arsenious acid is precipitated as insoluble arsenite of lime.

It may be added that the preparation should be labeled and safely guarded the same as other poisons.

The Fruit Bark Beetle.

The fruit bark beetle, though not so well known as the peach borer, is almost as widely distributed through the south. C. F. Baker of the Alabama experiment station advises that any badly infested tree be cut down and burned up, trunk and branch. If such a tree be left, its death will shortly follow, and it will but aid in spreading the trouble. If the injury is confined to but limited portions, these can be cut away and whitewashed over.

Desirable House Lots.

WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

For plans, prices and terms, apply to DR. N. S. HUNTING, 214 Hancock St., Quincy, or to MR. GEO. G. SAVILLE, 5 Greenleaf street, Quincy, and John Hancock Bldg., Devonshire St., Boston.

The Word of Onset on Cuban Soil Given.

PLAN IS PERFECTED.

Miles Going to Tampa to Direct the Departure.

THE MANILA EXPEDITION.

Charleston to Leave Pacific at Once With Relief.

Washington, May 12.—The foot of the invading Yankee will step upon the soil of Cuba early next week, probably Monday. Before that time the Charleston will have sailed from San Francisco, carrying at least 150 tons of ammunition for Admiral Dewey at Manila, a larger quantity than was expended in the battle in that harbor, and the first of 12,000 troops.

While these two expeditions are under way news ought to come from Admiral Sampson of the seizure of Porto Rico. Despite the feeling of uncertainty regarding the location of the Spanish fleet—a doubt shared by Secretary Long as well as by other officials of the navy department—there is still every reason to believe that the information officially received to the effect that the fleet is at Cadiz is correct. Investigation showed that the American embassy in London received its information through newspaper sources, the correspondent of the London Globe at Cadiz having communicated the arrival of the fleet to that paper. His dispatch was very definite, giving the names of all the vessels, and was evidently sent by mail in order to avoid the censor at the telegraph office. He was found by the naval attache at London to be a thoroughly reliable man, and confirmation of his dispatch was received at the state department yesterday in a cablegram, which stated that the fleet had dropped down to a military station known as San Fernando, a few miles below Cadiz.

The location of the fleet having thus been determined, its future movements give the administration some concern, as the reports from Spain are conflicting. It is said that the vessels are destined to sail in combined strength from Cadiz to meet Admiral Sampson's squadron, while, on the other hand, it is asserted with equal positiveness that they will go through the Mediterranean and the Suez canal to the Philippine islands. The latter program is regarded as a very remote contingency. While the passage of the fleet through the Suez canal could not be opposed, the ships would experience great difficulty in securing coal during the long voyage of more than 8000 miles.

The vessels of the northern patrol squadron are scouting in the neighborhood of the New England coast, where it is admitted to be possible the enemy may strike before making for Porto Rico. If discovered in that section his doom is sealed. The flying squadron will be sent to the support of Commodore Howell's command, and the division of the North Atlantic squadron under Rear Admiral Sampson will guard the entrance of Porto Rico, through which the Spanish men-of-war will have to fight their way in order to obtain coal.

The war department's plan of campaign in Cuba is understood to be as follows: The army will be landed at some point under the cover of the guns of the fleet and will at once commence the erection of such defenses as will make them secure from Spanish attack. When all the men are on Cuban soil a movement will begin to the rear of Havana, and siege will be laid to that town. It is not expected that this can be done inside of a month, and by that time the vessels of the navy which are now with Admiral Sampson will have returned to their former posts before the harbor entrance and will be ready at a given signal to attack the batteries in front while the army storms the land side of the defenses. General Miles leaves today to supervise the plans of transportation.

The department has made a great many changes in the original program for the concentration of troops. Many bodies of volunteers that were originally slated for one of the great concentration camps have found themselves under orders to proceed direct to southern points. Soon volunteers from the east and middle west will be moving swiftly to Florida and the gulf, while from the west the cars will be carrying troops to San Francisco.

During the past month the bureau of construction and repair of the navy department spent $1,250,000 in the repair and outfitting of ships, and none of this money went to new construction. This is said to be the largest expenditure in this particular line made by the equipment bureau, even during the days of the civil war.

The rush orders to the Charleston to go to Manila will have the result possibly of obliging the department to send another vessel, probably the Philadelphia, along with the troop transports which are expected to go out from San Francisco about the end of the week, since it is unusual in time of war to send such transports without a warship for convoy.

The navy department felt obliged to decline the offer made by some wealthy New York gentlemen, headed by O. H. P. Belmont, to build and equip a torpedo boat for the use of the government during the war. Possibly the declination was brought about through the conditions attached to the offer that the boat should be commanded by Mr. Belmont; for, without the least reflection upon that gentleman, the navy officials have been obliged to decline to establish the precedent of appointing civilians to commands in this way. The practice in some respects would approach privateering, which is prohibited by the agreement which was voluntarily entered into and proclaimed to the world.

OLIVER H. P. BELMONT.

Daring Displayed by Dewey.

Old Point Comfort, Va., May 12.—Commodore Schley, commanding the flying squadron, said yesterday: "Admiral Dewey's victory at Manila must deservedly take its place side by side with the greatest naval victories of the world's history. It has been urged that the results show such inferiority in resistance as compared with the vigor of attack that there is a diminution of the glory, but that is untrue, for it must first be remembered that the greatness of Dewey's success lies in the calm courage and daring displayed in his decision to enter a strange harbor at dark under the guns of many forts, and braving the perhaps hidden torpedo or mine. It strikes me that with several advantageously fortified positions the preponderance of advantage was certainly with the enemy, and that with the great daring displayed by Dewey there must fall upon his shoulders the mantle of Perry and Farragut.

"From the meager accounts that have been received of the battle it is evident that, despite the great risk, there was not a faint heart in all that squadron, but an enthusiasm and esprit de corps that could not but win with such a leader. I would note, too, that superior education, which brings intelligence, coupled with perfection in marksmanship, aided greatly in winning the day and will, I believe, contribute to future victories."

To Release the Cattle Ship.

Key West, May 12.—The Norwegian cattle ship, Bratsberg, was released yesterday in accordance with orders from Washington. The prize commissioners expect to have depositions from the officers of all the prizes taken by the American warships as to the capture of the vessels when Judge Locke arrives next Monday. District Attorney Stripling expects to hold all of the prizes except possibly the Catalina, the Miguel Jover and the Buena Ventura. Fourteen days are given from the time of the filing of each libel for the owners of the cargoes to enter their claims; but so far no claims have been filed except by the owners of the cargo of the Buena Ventura.

Tyranny In Porto Rico.

St. Thomas, W. I., May 12.—There have been 200 political arrests in Porto Rico recently under the tyrannical measures enforced there. The shipping is suspended and there are no customs receipts. Hunger and smallpox are rapidly spreading through the country, and 200 families are starving at Franguez and Mayagusez. Two women are said to have died out of sheer fear of bombardment by a suspicious looking vessel at sea, and there has been a suicide

TO FIGHT TO THE DEATH

That Spain's Purpose, According to Premier Sagasta.

Measure to Encourage Blockade Runners.

Phillipic Against the Ambitious Leader of the Republicans.

Madrid, May 12.—At the beginning of yesterday's sitting the chamber passed bills for the temporary abolition of the import duty on raw cotton and the abolition of differential duties on ships trading between Spain and her colonies. The former will help the Catalonian manufacturers and the latter will tend to encourage blockade running. The indemnity bill was next passed, almost unopposed, the Carlists alone voting against it.

The remainder of the sitting was devoted to a continuation of the oratorical tournament. The chief feature was a crushing reply by Mr. Silvela, leader of the dissident Conservatives, to Mr. Salmeron's oration. Silvela calmly and with perfect parliamentary propriety shot poisoned darts in the form of allusions to incidents in Salmeron's political career, producing applause and hilarity. He declared confidently that the monarchy had nothing to fear from Republicans under a leader who divided instead of united his followers. He said the best thing Salmeron could do was to make himself forgotten. Even the Carlists, who have been coquetting with the Republicans, applauded Silvela, one of them speaking almost in the same sense.

Premier Sagasta replied to Salmeron's attacks on the present regime, retorting that the state of anarchy which existed in Spain during the short-lived Republican regime under Salmeron made Spain the laughing stock of the world. The premier defended the policy of the government in "doing its utmost to avoid war while the Yankees were playing a foul game." He repeated his appeal for union, adding that whoever sowed discord was not a patriot. He concluded his speech by declaring that the government would prosecute the war to the finish.

Admiral Bermejo, minister of marine, denies that the Cape Verde squadron has returned to Cadiz. He affirms that this fleet at the present moment is where it ought to be, according to the instructions given it.

Special Budget For War.

London, May 12.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Chronicle says: "In the cortes a special war budget of £20,000,000 was demanded with a tax on land and public securities. The sinking fund was suspended. A patriotic syndicate has been formed in Madrid which will borrow a million pesetas to buy grain at Marseilles and Antwerp, as all the provinces but one have refused to send more grain to Madrid."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 12.—The senate voted yesterday to reconsider its rejection of the bill abolishing the cattle commission, and killed the free transfer bill.

Tie votes are getting to be plentiful in the house, and the bill providing for a board of charity with a children's department went to defeat by such a vote, though reconsideration today may change the result. There were 88 yeas with as many nays, and 21 pairs. Mr. Clarke of Wellesley was in the chair and did not vote.

Mr. Bennett's bill requiring the highway commission to report to the next general legislature upon the expediency of building as a state highway a part of the Lynn and Salem turnpike went over as unfinished business.

In these days the state needs only to make known its wants in a military line and the legislature makes haste to see that they are supplied. This was shown anew yesterday when both branches rushed through a bill authorizing the governor to purchase for the commonwealth from the ordnance department of the United States three batteries, each of four modern field guns complete, and to expend $52,000 for that purpose, either from the special appropriation of $500,000, or, if this sum is needed for other purposes, the treasury is to make payment.

Six Hundred Killed.

London, May 12.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, describing the riots in Milan, says: "One thousand persons were arrested, 600 killed and 2000 wounded. In one instance 20 students were killed at the main station of the Vicina railway line. Three hundred rioters set fire to all the railway carriages, and the military, hurrying up, unfortunately fired on the firemen who were trying to disperse the rioters with a hose. Many of the firemen were killed. As all the printing houses in Milan refused to print the manifesto, the military government was proclaimed by drums and the roar of cannon."

Missing Children Found.

Boston, May 12.—One dead and the other dying, the two little Allston children, Ariel Frye, aged 4, and Bertrand C. Davis, aged 5, who had been missing since last Saturday forenoon, were found yesterday afternoon by the father and the uncle of the dead girl. In a cupboard of a closet in a house almost directly opposite the home of the dead child, the two were located. While the door of the cupboard was being forced open with an ax the boy cried, "Wake up, Ariel, they are here;" but poor little Ariel, his playmate and companion, had long since passed into the sleep that knows no awakening.

Honest Cycles at Honest Prices.

Realizing that this is a $50 Year in the Bicycle trade, the IVER JOHNSON ARMS AND CYCLE CO. of Fitchburg, Mass., have reduced the price of their wheels to meet the popular demand. These wheels have never sold before for less than $100, and while there are a few other makes that are as good, there is certainly nothing better.

Sharp Competition induces unscrupulous dealers to push and advertise an inferior wheel for the sake of greater profit. A cheap western wheel with a good coat of paint and a high sounding name may sell as well if the dealer allows $25 on an old wheel that is worth about $10. This is a great trade. After riding it for a season, however, the rider changes his mind and thinks of an old adage, "You can't get something for nothing."

You can't get a "trade" (?) of this kind on an IVER JOHNSON, but you do get an Honest Cycle at an Honest Price.

Has anybody seen anything of those chainless bicycles about which so much was said.

It is all the watering carts can do to keep the dust down, and they are not succeeding very well at that.

Eleven took the civil service examinations for inspectors of the sewer department at City Hall Wednesday.

Many are surprised to find such desirable building lots on Whitney road. The land is high and the location excellent.

George H. Wilson is among our most patriotic citizens, displaying large flags on staffs at his store, his stable and his residence.

The Hospital trustees acknowledge the receipt from Mrs. E. L. Rhines of $5.40, being the net result for the Hurdy-Gurdy party of May 1.

Representative Thompson has kindly remembered the Ledger with a copy of the Manual for the General Court, a book much prized in a newspaper office.

The Thomas Crane public library is to have a copy of the "Bradford Manuscripts" of the old Plymouth plantation, which is in great measure a local history of Pilgrim times.

At a meeting of St. Francis Court, No. 25, M. C. O. F., held Tuesday evening, May 10, it was voted, that all members who may go to the front in defence of the stars and stripes, during the time of such service in the army or navy, shall be kept in financial standing by the Court.

There is a great demand for information concerning our warships, and in anticipation of this Rogers Bros. are presenting to their customers portfolios with magnificent views of ships, officers, crews, etc., with copious descriptions. There are six of these portfolios and they constitute a valuable pictorial and reference library of the United States navy.

Services over the remains of Mr. James Colgan were held from his late residence on Warren avenue, Wollaston, on Wednesday afternoon. The services were conducted by the Rev. J. E. Waterhouse, pastor of the Wollaston M. E. society assisted by the Rev. C. W. Wilder and the Rev. Seth C. Carey. The music was by the First Baptist church quartette,—Mrs. F. A. Page, Mrs. E. A. King, Mr. Charles F. Wilde and Mr. E. E. Bullock. The interment was at the Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Before imposing sentence upon the boys in court this morning Judge Pratt administered a lecture to them. The breaking of window glass by young boys out of pure deviltry has become a nuisance. Not only has Mr. Faxon suffered but others as well, for it apparently makes no difference whether the house is occupied or not. An example of this kind of work can be seen in any unoccupied house in New road where not a pane of glass remains in the building, and the boys have begun to carry off the house in pieces.

CAMP WOLCOTT.

Rockport Platoon Quartered in a Sail Loft.

Camp Wolcott,
Gloucester, May 11.

The camp of the Companies of the Fifth regiment is now well established here, and the men are doing remarkably good work. There are no murmurings, but everyone does cheerily the work assigned him.

Co. K of Braintree is now in three divisions. Capt. Kincaide has established an outpost at Rockport about six miles distant, and Lieut. Whitney is with a platoon at another outpost.

The platoon at Rockport have not established a camp, but are quartered in an old sail-loft. This they consider far preferable to camping in tents. It is the duty of this platoon to patrol as much of the sea coast as possible.

The presence of the soldier boys in camp is a novelty especially among the fishermen of Rockport, and they crowd about the camp.

At Gloucester the infantry drill afternoon and evening, while Battery C is throwing up earthworks to protect two guns which have been mounted, and which guard the approach to the harbor.

PUBLIC LANDING.

Trustees of Quincy and Hingham Bridges Grant Petition.

Some weeks ago a petition was sent to the City Council asking that a public landing place be built at the Quincy Point bridge. The petitioners however, were refused on the ground that the city had no authority to build a landing place at the bridge. The trustees of the Quincy, Weymouth and Hingham bridges were then petitioned and they gave a hearing Wednesday afternoon.

A high wind was blowing at the time and instead of meeting on the bridge, the hearing was held in Patch's coal office. But two of the trustees were present, Mayor Sears and Mr. Bates of Hingham.

Councilman Newcomb presented the case of the petitioners who were interested in having some place where they could land in boats without trespassing upon private property, from which they are likely to be excluded at any time. There was a demand for such a landing. It was proposed to ask the city to build and maintain it. The landing proposed would be opposite Sheppard's wharf where there was plenty of room, and would not interfere with any vessel that might be at the wharf. It was not proposed to have yachts moored there but a place where a landing could be made. The plan was for a float about 12 by 20 feet with steps leading to the bridge. It would also be handy in case of anyone falling overboard. For a boat could be easily reached.

Councilman Packard said the people he represented desired a place where they could take a boat or be landed without trespassing. There should be some such place and this would be handy to the cars.

Captain Joel F. Shepard thought the landing a good thing that was much needed and he should not object.

Ex-Councilan Edgar F. Hayden also favored the landing place.

The trustees held a conference and voted to grant the petition.

A second hearing was then held on petitions that the Quincy and Hingham bridges be lighted. This did not require much of a hearing as the trustees personally thought the bridges should be lighted. No decision was reached by the trustees owing to the absence of Mr. Willis but it is quite certain that the bridge will soon be illuminated.

A Deserved Compliment.

In his recent lecture upon scientific foods, the distinguished Elisha B. Worrell took occasion to pay a brief tribute to one of New England's most valued and best known products. After describing the physiological benefit of pure water, he incidently explained that the Londonderry Litha Water contained just the proper elements to adapt it to the necessities of over fed Americans. Such an endorsement should be a source of pleasure to the owners of the old rock ribbed spring.

ANNUAL MAY FAIR.

One of the Most Successful at Universalist Church.

There was a large attendance at the Universalist church vestry Wednesday night, the occasion being the opening of the two days' fair of the Ladies' Society. The decorations of the vestry were confined to flags and flag bunting, which was placed conspicuously about the room, while the background of the platform was a large flag.

On the left of the room were the sales tables, few in number but well stocked with confectionery, aprons, flowers and ice cream, all of which met with a ready sale.

At 6.30 there was one of those famous suppers which must be sampled to be appreciated.

Shortly after 7.30 Mayor and Mrs. Sears arrived and a little later His Honor was introduced by Rev. Mr. Preble as Quincy's first war Mayor.

Mayor Sears said he was not familiar with the process of opening fairs of this kind, but as none but the brave deserved the fair, he would try. The first fairs were in the time of the Carthagenians, and from them came down to the present time. Fairs or trade sales then were held for a financial end only, while now they take more of the social form. By the tables he saw that this fair was both social and financial, and he hoped after the entertainment everybody would take hold and clear the tables.

Rev. Mr. Preble then spoke briefly after which a one act, laughable farce, entitled "The Duchess of Dublin" was given, the cast being by Mr. Henry French, Mr. Frank Preble, Mr. Peter Gomez, Mr. Henry Furnald, Mr. Ernest Preble, Mr. Hebert Coburn, Miss Gay, Miss Foss, Miss Barnes and Mrs. Furnald.

The entertainment tonight will include literary and musical selections, with two pretty pieces entitled "May Festival" and "Rainbow chorus."

Marden Appointed.

Among the nominations sent to the executive council Wednesday, by Governor Wolcott was that of William M. Marden, as special justice of peace for Quincy with power to issue warrants. The nomination lays on the table a week and then comes up to be confirmed. The new law creating this office was signed by the Governor April 27 and goes into effect May 27. There will probably be no opposition to Mr. Marden in the council and he will be confirmed.

The bill had a close call in the hand of the Governor. His Excellency is said to have hesitated before affixing his signature, and within five minutes after the bill was signed he received from the secretary reasons why the bill should not become a law. Governor Wolcott requested Representative Thompson to call and they went over the situation carefully.

Mr. Marden's name was the only one presented to the Governor, other candidates not pressing their claims Mr. Marden had the endorsement of Councillor Lovell, Senator Flint, Mayor Sears and others.

Expected Fruit of Amended Bill For War Revenue.

Democratic Plans Are All Incorporated.

Corporation Tax Provided and Bond Clause Eliminated.

Washington, May 12.—With the exception of a few administrative features, the war revenue bill is ready for report to the senate, though consideration of the measure will not be begun before Monday. With the assistance of Senator Jones of Nevada, the Democrats had control of the finance committee and the committee adopted their amendments, which include a corporation tax of one-quarter of one per cent, a provision for the coinage of the seigniorage and the issuance of $150,000,000 of greenbacks. The bond provision is eliminated.

It required only a little more than an hour for the committee to dispose of the Democratic amendments. It was soon made evident that Senator Jones would vote with the Democrats on all their amendments, and as his vote turned the scale against the Republicans they did not enter into a stubborn struggle to prevent this consummation. The vote to strike out the bond feature stood 6 to 5. The amendments for the issuance of greenbacks, the coinage of the silver seigniorage and the taxation of corporations were all incorporated by the same vote. The Democrats changed their rate on corporations at the last minute, reducing it from half to a quarter of one percent. They made this reduction because of the uncertainty as to the amount of revenue the amendment would produce. It was the generally expressed opinion that the sum, even at this low percentage, would be very large, but there was no opportunity for even approximating the figure. This provision is a very comprehensive one. It covers all corporations, with a few exceptions, imposing a tax upon the gross receipts. The exceptions are charitable, educational, religious and eleemosynary institutions and strictly mutual benefit associations. The exemptions of mutual concerns are made so as to include only those which loan money to their own members. Building and loan associations were exempted from the operations of the bill, but the provision dealing with this matter was changed and the language of the exemption in the Wilson-Gorman act practically substituted for it.

There was some discussion of the beer tax, but it was decided to leave the matter as it passed the house with an increase of the rebate from 5 to 7 1-1 percent. The provision in regard to the taxation of bankers and brokers, bills of lading, inheritances, "futures," proprietary medicinal articles, etc., were left as previously fixed. The house provision for a tax on mineral waters was stricken out entirely.

There was some discussion of the amount of revenue the bill would produce. The estimate of the Democratic members placed the amount at $150,000,000 from the revenue portion. The coinage of the seigniorage would increase this to the extent of $42,000,000, and the greenbacks would make the total $342,000,000, or $42,000,000 in excess of Secretary Gage's estimate of the requirements of extra revenue to meet the first year's expenses of the war.

The bill hardly will be recognizable by its authors when it is reported, as it has been so generally amended in both phraseology and rates as to make it practically a new bill. There are few paragraphs that have not received some attention. The changes yet to be made are only of minor importance and will deal with the administrative features and in some cases with the grammatical construction of sentences.

Gans jabbed Crosby continually in the stomach during the sixth round with such effect that the latter was compelled to quit without receiving a knockout blow. Gans had the advantage in reach and 10 pounds in weight.

Second Regiment to Leave.

South Framingham, Mass., May 12.—The camp was considerably excited last night by the announcement that the Sixty-third United States infantry, formerly the Second regiment, commanded by Colonel Clarke of Springfield, would leave for the front this afternoon at 6 o'clock.

In the outbursts of enthusiasm which followed, all the other commands took active part. There were parades, cheers for the officers from Colonel Clark down, and impromptu dances. Colonel Clark was in Springfield when the dispatch came, but he was wired to return immediately.

Refugees to Congratulate Dewey.

London, May 12.—A dispatch to The Times from Singapore says: "The Philippine refugees here are preparing a congratulatory address to Rear Admiral Dewey. They also express a desire for the establishment of a native government and for American protection. They deprecate the restoration of the Philippines to Spain, or the transfer of the islands to any continental government."

Appeal to Endeavorers.

Boston, May 12.—The United Society of Christian Endeavor has decided to inaugurate evangelistic services in behalf of United States troops, the regulars and the volunteers, in their various camps and in the wake of the moving army. A circular has been sent to the officials of the Endeavor societies and of the local and state unions throughout the country urging Endeavorers to cooperate with the Y. M. C. A. in tent meetings, to hold song services, to do personal work evenings and Sundays and to forward bibles, religious papers and books to the nearest camps.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 12.—"The strategists at Washington yet may have to permit another naval expedition to proceed beyond the leading strings of electrical control," is a cynical remark in today's Globe.

The Journal says: "The United States must make thorough work while it is about it. It must crush forever the last vestige of Spanish rule in the West Indies. It is not enough to make Cuba free. Porto Rico, too, must be wrested from the cruel grasp of the medieval power which has so long oppressed and plundered."

"We have undertaken this war to set Cuba free," says the oracular Post. "The sooner we can bring about his result, the more quickly will the war come to an end. This is the time for energetic, overwhelming action. On to Cuba!"

The Advertiser believes that "in view of the evidently near approach of peace, business men can show their wisdom in no better way than in making preparations for a revival of trade all over the country."

DUFFY'S HOMER.

How the Bostons' Captain Remembered the Maine Yesterday.

Boston, May 12.—Hanlon's baseball gladiators from Baltimore went up against Klobedanz, Boston's left-hand puzzle, yesterday, and found him difficult to solve when hits meant runs—which in conjunction with a single inning in which the home team did a thriving business in scoring, gives the champions the best of the present series.

Nops was relieved by Doctor Arlie Pond, the young university of Vermont boy, who hails from Rear Admiral Dewey's home. The game was in no way affected by the change, as it was already lost. Kloby held the Baltimores to six hits, three of them by Captain Joe Kelley, who has a knack of hitting the Boston pitchers so as to get his money's worth. Kell's Cambridge friends were out in force, and it is on such occasions he generally pleases the contingent lined up over back of third base, as near as they can get to him. His homer in the last inning sent in Jennings ahead of him. The orioles threw the ball around in any old way in the sixth inning, thus showing that the best of teams will go to pieces at times.

HUGH DUFFY.

The first one that Nops pitched was a foul ball, and just before delivering the next one a youngster over in the right bleacher congregation sang out, "Remember the Maine, Duffy," and unless the captain had sunk a Spanish warship he couldn't have pleased the crowd better than he succeeded in doing. Nops was not thinking of the Maine until "Duff" let go at the ball, and when the conclusion was over the new ball was soaring high and far away safely within the fair line by a hundred feet beyond the left field fence. Two Boston men had already scored in this inning and Duffy's homer sent in three more. Score:

The Pittsburghs won their third consecutive game from the Louisvilles by fast playing and daring base running. Score: 4 to 3.

Taylor's delivery, Decker's wild throw of Miller's bunt and Corcoran's single gave the Cincinnatis two runs and the first game with St. Louis. Rain stopped the second game after the second inning with the score 1 to 0 in favor of the Ohioans.

The Bowdoins won their fourth consecutive game of the season by defeating the Colbys, 11 to 9.

The Newports had a new man in the box in the person of Gannon, and his work against the Fall Rivers was very good. He struck out seven men and allowed but one base on balls, yet his club lost, 4 to 2.

The Pawtuckets were held down to five hits, two of them home runs, until the seventh inning, and in that inning with two out and a man on second, they hammered out four hits and scored four runs, assisted by three errors by the Brocktons. This gave them a lead, and the score was 8 to 6.

The Montreals won the third game from the Buffalos by scoring 10 runs in the ninth inning.

Pitcher Dunkle of the Philadelphias went to pieces yesterday in the fifth inning, and the Washingtons won the game, 16 to 7.

The Clevelands won from the Chicagos, 7 to 5, by clean and timely hitting. Briggs was knocked out of the box.

Explosion of Gunpowder.

Barre, Vt., May 12.—By the explosion of two kegs of gunpowder in the blacksmith shop attached to the granite quarry of McDonald, Cutler & Co., three miles from this city, three men were badly injured, Angus A. McIver, the blacksmith, being so terribly mangled that he will die. The other victims are Donald W. McDonald and Neal McIver. The shop and adjoining office building were demolished.

Called Under Arms.

Rome, May 12.—The military organ, Esercito, publishes an order calling under arms the reservists employed on the railways. They are not to leave their employment, but are to be under military law and thus to prevent railway strikes and agitation. The governor of Milan has issued a decree declaring that persons found cycling in the province of Milan will be courtmartialled.

ARBITRATION CONSIDERED.

Measure Said to Be a Trap Set by Railway Employers.

Washington, May 12.—For more than three hours yesterday the senate discussed the railway arbitration bill, designed to adjust by means of voluntary arbitration differences that may arise between railroad officials and their employes. Mr. Kyle, in charge of the bill, offered a number of amendments, which were agreed to. Senator Allen maintained that the measure was designed to enslave employes. Despite the receipt by him of telegrams from labor organizations urging him to vote for the bill, the senator was of the opinion that it was a trap set by the railroad corporations.

Mr. Fairbanks held that if there were defects in the measure, in the very nature of the case they would bear with equal hardship upon both parties to any controversy that might arise between the railroads and their employes. Mr. Allen doubted this purpose of the bill. "If I were employed to defeat such a purpose," said he, "I could not do it better than by drafting a bill like this. However, if the railroad employes of the country want it after all of its infamies have been pointed out; if they want to walk into the trap prepared for them, I am willing, and will give the measure my support."

While it might not so appear, the measure was to all intents and purposes amendatory of the interstate commerce law. It was shrewdly and adroitly drawn, and in the senator's opinion was favorable entirely to the railroads. Mr. Allen then entered upon a technical anyalsis of the measure, pointing out here and there objections which he held to it. "Never was a black man in the south," declared he, "owned by a clearer or better title than is given to the railroad companies to their employes by the provisions of this bill."

Mr. Hoar offered an amendment providing that no injunction or other legal process shall be issued which shall compel the performance by any laborer against his will of a contract for personal labor or service. The amendment was accepted by Mr. Kyle, who had the measure in hand. It being impossible to reach an agreement to vote upon it, Mr. Kyle gave notice that he would ask the senate to resume its consideration.

After refusing to consider the senate bill restricting immigration, the house took up and devoted the session to the house resolution to submit to the states a proposition to amend the constitution so as to provide for the election of senators by a direct vote. The amendment as reported left it in the discretion of the states to elect their senators by direct vote or through their legislatures, but an amendment by Mr. Underwood, making election by popular vote mandatory, was adopted, and the resolution was then passed.

Mr. Simpson, speaking in support of the measure, devoted much of his time to a criticism of the rules of the house which prevented it being a truly representative body. He said he held strongly to the position that the house was representative and the senate was far removed from the people; but he was inclined now to doubt the soundness of the position, and to consider the senate more fully reflective of popular will. At the conclusion of his speech, Mr. Simpson occasioned a general laugh by mounting the speaker's stand and engaging Speaker Reed in a manifestly humorous conversation.

To be the mother of many children is ranked among nature's chief blessings but when the cares of the busy housewife are added to the trials of frequent motherhood, it is too great a burden for a woman who is not in prime health and condition. Every woman who is called upon to bear the ordeal of bringing many children into the world needs the support and reinforcement of that wonderful strength-promoting "Favorite Prescription" originated by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and one of the most eminent of living specialists in treating the ailments of women.

Mrs. David H. Langley, of Lancing, Morgan Co., Tenn., in a recent letter to Dr. Pierce, writes: "I am now thirty-six years old and have given birth to ten children. Eight only are living. I have twin boys six years old. The same spring after they were born I was confined to my bed all spring and summer with female complaint; had it so badly I could hardly walk around the house without feeling worse. I was restless at night, sleep almost left me, and I was almost a skeleton. I did not call my doctor as I had tried the doctors twice before when I was down with the same trouble, and my husband paid out a great deal for me. I received no lasting benefit; I had almost lost all hope of ever being able to do anything. My husband had to work very hard and I could not even attend to the babies. No one can know the distress of my mind as well as body. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was the only medicine that seemed to do me any good. After I had taken the first bottle and part of the second, I could sleep well and all my troubles began to get better. I believe I took eight bottles and then I felt like a different person. I gave birth to another baby and my old complaint came back. I began using the 'Favorite Prescription' and was soon relieved and was able to do my work, including the washing."

Mothers would be immensely helped in raising their children strong and healthy by the sound professional advice contained in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. This thousand-page book will be sent free for 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Address, World's Dispensary Med. Assn., Buffalo, N. Y., or send 31 stamps for a cloth-bound copy.

Let Me Ketch 'im.

"Jest let me lay my han's on 'im, and I'll make him wish he never was born." If Uncle Sam wants to whale the enemy, he must first find the enemy. May be he ain't looking in the right place; may be he don't want to find him, but would rather the enemy would see the folly of being the enemy and quit butting his head against a stone wall. You never can tell how some nations and some men do some things. "It's a mystery."

It has been a mystery to us why we don't sell all the Clothing and Furnishings that are sold in Quincy. We ought to We can't understand how people will pay $12.00 and $15.00 for a Suit when we have the same thing for $9.85 and $11.00.

Why you pay 25 cts. for Neckwear when you can buy it of us for 19 and 12½ cts.

Why the workingmen pay 50c. for Overalls when we have the same for 39c.

Why you buy anything we keep outside of our store when we would have saved you from 5 to 25 per cent.

May be you didn't know it. Well, you have been told often enough; and if you do not believe it, call and see for yourself and we will guarantee you go away satisfied.

Desirable House Lots.

WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

For plans, prices and terms, apply to DR. N. S. HUNTING, 214 Hancock St., Quincy, or to MR. GEO. G. SAVILLE, 5 Greenleaf street, Quincy, and John Hancock Bldg., Devonshire St., Boston.

BEFORE SAN JUAN.

Porto Rico's Chief City Subjected to Fire.

LITTLE DEFENSE SHOWN.

Shots of Sampson's Ships Terribly Destructive.

PEOPLE FLED IN A PANIC.

None of the Fleet Damaged and the Men Scathless.

St. Thomas, via Fort de France, Martinique, May 13.—Admiral Sampson has hammered the forts of San Juan to powder. Such is the news which filters over the cable to this outlying point.

The American squadron arrived off the fated port just before daylight yesterday. Word had been sent ahead that the fortifications were to be bombarded—notice to women and children, to aliens and noncombatants, to quit the place and seek such safety as the outlying hills afforded.

Then the stillness was shattered by a mighty sound, the crashing thunder of a great gun broke and boomed over the quiet harbor, reverberated among the hills, and told all the Antilles that Uncle Sam had begun fighting in the West Indies.

It was one of the great 12-inch guns on the Iowa which began the bombardment. "Fighting Bob" Evans was in his element at last, making an heroic effort to have the Spanish tongue recognized as the court language of hell. The shell struck home on the gnarled limestone of castle Morro, the ancient limestone fortress which guards San Juan as its namesake stands watch and ward over Havana. Then the Indiana opened from her forward turret with a 13-inch projectile and the effect of the shot was like that of the famous first effort of a great modern gun at Alexandria.

The walls of Morro seemed to go into vapor where the immense projectiles struck. Ruined masonry and mangled corpses told of the inadequacy of the scarps and bastions of the older days to withstand the assaults of modern armaments. Later there was a reply. The first shot flew far to leeward. On steamed Sampson's fleet, the Puritan and Terror creeping nearer in shore, and their 10 and 12-inch guns doing tremendous execution against the fortifications.

All eyes soon caught another signal from Admiral Sampson's flagship and cheered it as they read: "Let us have San Juan by sunset!" The captains were encouraged to renewed endeavor by this request, but the resistance was not sufficiently heroic to stimulate the gunners to their best work. It seemed too much like practice at targets. Morro fired but three shots from her heavy guns.

But seven shots were fired from the big guns of the American squadron. These left Morro castle a crumbled ruin. The castle's guns were mute, because the gunners were killed or in flight.

Then began the onslaught on the land batteries and the fortifications about the government buildings. The Spaniards stood by their guns as long as there was any hope, but their fire was slow and wild. Not a single American ship was harmed; not an American seaman killed or injured.

At the last accounts the city itself had not surrendered, though it was completely at Admiral Sampson's mercy. It had been deserted by the merchants and noncombatants. The foreign consuls had followed the refugees into the country and the troops were reported panic-stricken. The volunteers had fled.

After the bombardment Sampson withdrew to await the arrival of the St. Louis and Yale with more ammunition. Both these vessels are now in St. Thomas, and they may take with them the schooner Ida Southard, now here with 1000 tons of coal for the fleet. During the bombardment the torpedo boat Porter, the collier Niagara and an armed tug remained outside the line of fire, observing the contest through glasses. They report seeing a dreadful panic in San Juan, though no shots were sent into the town proper.

ALL POSSIBLE SPEED.

Work of Concentrating Troops For Embarkation to Cuba.

Washington, May 13.—Preparations will be hastened with all possible speed for the concentration of troops in large numbers at the ports of embarkation for Cuba. The war department by the end of the week will have transports in numbers to convey about 16,000 men. The first detachment will be the United States regulars, followed by the volunteers. The transports will be convoyed by several warships, and the landing of the troops will be made under the guns of the most formidable vessels of the fleet now performing blockade duty.

The plan of operations against Havana will be perfected later. It will include a simultaneous attack by the warships and the United States troops, reinforced by Gomez's men. This battle is not likely to occur until the close of this month, as considerable time will be required to land the troops, organize them and move them upon Havana. The expedition, which will leave Tampa in a few days, will carry rations sufficient to sustain them for 30 days. Rations for 40,000 men will be sent to Tampa, which will be the point of destination. All regiments now organized will go forward at once, and, if any of them are not uniformed or equipped, they will be supplied with all that is necessary when they reach the point of embarkation.

From St. Pierre, Martinique, came the news today that one of the Cape Verde squadron, a torpedo boat destroyer, had arrived at that port, but immediately put to sea. Subsequently five Spanish vessels were sighted, bound apparently for Cuba. News of the fact has been transmitted to Admiral Sampson.

MANILA AT HIS MERCY.

Dewey Master of the Situation For the Time Being.

Hong Kong, May 13.—A correspondent who has just arrived from Manila reports: "The Spaniards in Manila are not disposed to capitulate. Commodore Dewey has the place at his mercy, but it would be useless to bombard the city without a sufficient force to hold it.

"I had an interesting conversation with Admiral Montojo, who, recognizing the superiority of the American squadron, admitted that his chief object was to seek the protection of the Cavite forts. He fought in the Reina Maria Christina till she was on fire fore and aft and had 52 killed. On the advice of his flag lieutenant, he transferred his flag to the Isla De Cuba. Evidently, after two and a half hours' fighting, he gave the signal to scuttle and abandon her. Commodore Dewey ceased fire and asked permission of the forts to destroy the burning ships. Admiral Montojo replied: 'The ships are at your mercy; do as you like.' The American fire was then resumed till the Spanish squadron was completely annihilated.

"The captain of the Boston, who carried the flag of truce, said: 'You combatted us with four very bad ships, not warships. We have never seen before braver fighting under such unequal conditions. It is a great pity you exposed your lives on vessels not fit for fighting.'

"Commodore Dewey sent a message to Admiral Montojo as follows: 'I have pleasure in clasping your hand and offering my congratulations on the gallant manner in which you fought.'

"Admiral Montojo attributes the responsibility of his defeat to the government in Madrid. He had only obsolete vessels, though he had requisitioned the government for ships. He had no torpedoes except some which he himself had constructed out of ineffective material. His original intention was to remain at Subic and offer battle, but he returned to Cavite because the Subic forts were inadequate.

"During the bombardment of the Cavite arsenal, Commodore Dewey suspended fire at the request of the Spaniards to allow two men and children to be removed to a place of safety. I witnessed the second bombardment.

"The rebels looted Cavite immediately, the Spaniards flying to Manila, and encounters with the rebels were frequent in the suburbs. When I landed on May 2 I found the city panic-stricken, and the shops remained closed for three days. Finding that an armistice had been agreed upon, many civilians returned. The position of the British section of the community was precarious, owing to the scattered position of their houses. Food was scarce and at famine prices; the soldiers had remained unpaid for several weeks, and looting was feared. On Friday before the bombardment the steamer Gulf of Martaban left for Singapore and London with Spanish and English women and children on board; but many English families still remain ashore.

"The Spaniards are not expected to capitulate. Commodore Dewey has Manila at his mercy; but it would be useless to bombard the city without a sufficient force to hold it."

Banffy on Austrian Neutrality.

Budapest, May 13.—The premier, Baron Banffy, replying to an interpellation in the lower house of the diet, said: "The government has not thought it necessary to issue a formal declaration of neutrality in the present war. Although it is unfortunate that the war could not be prevented, it does not follow that Austro-Hungary is called upon to adopt a special attitude in the matter. The friendly relations of Austro-Hungary with both powers imply an unconditional neutrality without a formal declaration. Moreover, an official declara-

NAVAL AUXILIARY.

House Enacted a War Measure Prepared by Secretary Long.

Washington, May 13.—In the house yesterday afternoon Mr. Boutelle, chairman of the committee on naval affairs, asked immediate consideration of a joint resolution providing for the organization of a volunteer auxiliary naval force for coast defense, involving the enlistment for one year of volunteers and employment of additional vessels. In explaining the resolution he read a letter from Secretary Long representing the necessity for the measure as urgent. The number to be enlisted was not limited. The purpose was to form the fleet into an inner line of defense for the coast extending from Maine to Texas, and the total defensive force of the coast would be then first, the regular fleet; second, the fleet of auxiliary cruisers, and third, the volunteer naval force contemplated by the resolution. An appropriation of $4,000,000 was proposed to be placed at the disposal of the secretary for the purchase or hire of vessels essential to carrying out the idea.

CONGRESSMAN BOUTELLE.

Mr. Cox, questioning Mr. Boutelle, referred to the bill as one appropriating money upon a mere possibility. He ridiculed the idea of the Spanish fleet coming to the American coast, and thought congress should at least have probabilities as bases for making appropriations carrying millions of dollars.

The bill was amended at the suggestion of Mr. McMillin so as to limit the existence of the force provided for by the bill to the continuance of the present war, and with this amendment the resolution was passed.

In reporting the war revenue bill in the senate Mr. Allison gave notice on behalf of the minority of the committee that he would move at the proper time to reinsert the bond provision. He also gave notice that he would call up the bill on Monday next, and on his motion the senate agreed to adjourn until then. Mr. Allison thought that the consideration of the measure would be facilitated by the adjournment until that day.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 13.—A bill to restore to their former places in the militia persons who enlist in the service of the United States was passed to be enacted by the senate and sent to the governor.

The committee on the judiciary reported a bill to provide for the appointment of conservators of the property of aged persons who are unable to care therefor. The same committee reported reference to the next general court on a bill providing that when the law requires a three-fourths vote of the stockholders of a corporation, the provision shall be construed to mean a vote of the stockholders representing three-fourths of the stock.

In the house the friends of the proposed children's bureau failed to induce the house to reconsider the vote by which on Wednesday it accepted the report of the committee on public charitable institutions that no further legislation was necessary on the report of the special commission appointed to investigate the institutions of the state.

The senate ordered the bill to authorize the transfer by mortgage by the Central Vermont Railroad company of said company's interest as lessee in the New London Northern railroad to a third reading.

The wide tire bill, the reiection of which was reconsidered on Wednesday, was ordered to a third reading, 15 to 10, after a brief debate, and the adoption of certain amendments. These amendments fix the width of tire at three instead of three and one-half inches, and provide that the law shall not go into effect till 1905.

Mystery About a Death.

Newton, Mass., May 13.—There seems to be considerable mystery about the death of Majorie Howard, aged 17 years, whose body was found beside the Boston and Albany railroad tracks near the Newtonville station yesterday morning, but the suicide theory seems the strongest. As strong evidence on this theory a note found pinned on her hat is said to show the state of the girl's mind, but the police decline to make known the contents of the missive.

It is learned that Miss Howard took dinner with friends in Newton after leaving school Wednesday afternoon. She walked to the depot to take the 3:25 train for West Newton. From this time until her body was found her movements are not definitely traced.

News of Boston.

Boston, May 13.—Bertram C. Barrett of Brighton is in a critical condition at the Massachusetts hospital as the result of taking poison. Barrett was found lying in a doorway and removed to the hospital, but the physicians there say that it is doubtful if he can recover.

The police department has sent out circulars asking for information that will lead to the arrest of Arthur Hagan, alias O'Hagan, alias Hayden, who, according to Chief Inspector Watts, is wanted for the murder of Charles Lamont Russell in a drug store on the evening of April 4.

NEW POLICEMAN.

Special Officer Daveron Receives the Appointment.

Mayor Sears has appointed Frank J. Daveron of West Quincy a member of the permanent police force to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John J. Connolly.

Mr. Daveron, the new officer, is well known in West Quincy where he has resided for ten years. He was born in Milford, July 26, 1869, and was educated in the public schools of that place attending the High school in that town at the time H. W. Lull, the present superintendent of the Quincy schools, was its master. Ten years ago he came to Quincy and learned the granite business which he has since followed. He was first appointed a constable, Sept. 4 1894. The following year he took the Civil service examination and receiving the required percentage was placed upon the eligible list and appointed a special police being reappointed every year since that time. He is the present president of the West Quincy branch of the Granite Cutters' National Union, and is a member of Division 4, A. O. H., and the Nonpareil social club. In 1894 he enlisted in Co. A, 9th regiment, and served three years until the end of his enlistment. He is married and resides on Willard street, West Quincy. He will commence his new duties Saturday night and will take the Wollaston beat.

Prominent Odd Fellow.

Mr. Dudley Folsom, a well known citizen of West Quincy, died at his home off Miller street this morning, aged 80 years. He was a stonecutter by trade but has not followed that business for a few years. He has been in poor health for several years. He was a prominent Odd Fellow being a member of the old Mt. Wollaston lodge organized in 1845. Upon the reinstitution of the lodge in 1884 he became a charter member and for several years was a trustee and prominent member, being very regular in attendance. Members of the lodge showed their esteem for Bro. Folsom a few years ago when they presented him with a gold headed cane, which he prized greatly.

Mr. Folsom was also a member of Shalom Encampment of Dorchester. He leaves a widow, one son and two daughters.

STORAGE BATTERY.

Street Railway Now have Power to use for Extra Work.

The mamouth new Hatch storage battery, installed in the street railway car house at South Braintree, was completed Wednesday and the work of storing with the invisible current was commenced. A special feed wire was run from the power station at Quincy Point to the car house and a current of 750 volts was turned on. In order to put the battery in readiness for work a current of 750 volts must be turned into it continually for one hundred hours. When once charged the waste current on the trolly line will be sufficient to keep the battery up to the required voltage. If the battery does what is claimed for it a great saving will be made. There are certain times of the day when the travel is heavy and a large amount of power is needed to propel the cars, and the object of the battery is to supply the extra current desired and equalize the load upon the generators.

A current of a certain voltage is being forced through the trolley line at all times. At times the full voltage on the line is required but at other times it is not and under the present method all of the surplus voltage is going to waste. With this battery, however, the surplus voltage instead of being wasted is taken up by the storage battery which in turn gives it up when there is a heavy travel and the cars are taking an extra amount of current, which pulls hard upon the machinery at the power station. Then it is that the storage battery comes into the line automatically and supplies the current necessary to equalize the voltage. The cost of installing the battery was upwards of $11,000, but if it does all that is claimed it will soon pay for itself.

FAIR AT WOLLASTON.

St. Chrysostom's Society Provide Enjoyable Evening.

The fair which was held at the Odd Fellows hall, Wollaston, on Thursday evening under the auspices of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal society, was undoubtedly the most successful ever given by that society. The profits go towards sustaining the vested choir.

The display of fancy and useful articles was done in a tasty manner at the various tables.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon stocked the candy table for which the society is duly grateful.

The bric-a-brac table was in charge of Mrs. George Henry Page; the household table in charge of Mrs. Frank E. Hall; the ice cream which was furnished by Sparrow in charge of Mrs. Arthur Stanley; the flowers, Miss Nelle Ross; the children's amusement, Miss Annie Clean; the art embroidery Mrs. Edward A. Lyman; the apron, Mrs. Howard Fowler; and the candy, Miss Amelia Hall.

The supper, which was served early in the evening, was in chage of Miss Mills.

There was music by an orchestra of M. I. T. boys. They were good players and all are nephews of Mr. Godfrey.

At the close of the sale there was some impromptu dancing.

Song, "Just Behind the Times," by Everett Woodbury.
Rainbow chorus.

Rev. Mr. Preble, the pastor, recited one of his original poems, as follows:

Trailing aloft from the towering staffs
Waving above the street;
Wooing the breeze with their crimson bars
Flashing the light of their silver stars
In the path of the marching feet
Flags! Flags! Flags!

Flecking with color the houses arow
Cheering the store and mart
Worn as a bow on the maiden's breast
Rising and falling in East and West
Like the throbs of the nation's heart
Flags! Flags! Flags!

Coiled in the smoke of the battling fleets
Flung from the masts on high
Breathing defiance to foes at sea
Telling the world by their victory
A story that can never die
Flags! Flags! Flags!

Draping the clay of the heroes asleep
Canopies for the dead
Symbols of hopes we never outgrow
Blending the light of their stars below
With the light of the stars o'erhead
Flags! Flags! Flags!

TRAIN OF HARD TACK.

One Million One Hundred and Twenty Thousand Tough Biscuits Sent to Tampa.

A trainload of hard tack, made in Atlanta factories, was shipped from here to Tampa recently for the army which is to invade Cuba. Eighty thousand pounds of the hard tack was sent from Atlanta. The order for the crackers was at first for 60,000 pounds, but it was increased to 80,000 to meet the demand of the troops.

Hard tack is a tough cracker, in shape exactly similar to a large soda cracker. The tacks are cut with the soda cracker molds and are the same size, with the exception that they are much thicker. They have the little indentations and perforations which mark the soda crackers and cannot be told from a common cracker until tasted. One million one hundred and twenty thousand of the tough little biscuits were made here the other day. It takes 14 of the crackers to weigh a pound, and 80,000 pounds were made. About 20 of the crackers are served to each of the men every day, and, considering the fact that they are solid, they make three good meals. The hard tack is only used to a large extent upon invasion marches and like excursions. Always when a campaign of active fighting begins the troops are well supplied with the tack, so that they may have bread ready cooked.—Atlanta Constitution.

Proud of Its Name.

Probably the most jubilant people in the United States today are the citizens of the town of Deweyville, 15 miles northwest of Findlay, O. This town was located by and named after Commodore George Dewey when he was a young man and was interested for a short time in locating stave factories in this section for the firm of Dewey, Palmer & Co. of New York, the senior member, it is said, being an uncle of the hero of Manilla. The people have been in a constant state of jubilation during the last few days because of the victory won, and recently raised an immense flagpole with an American flag and commodore's pennant to commemorate the event, the whole surrounding country participating.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"You can fool some of the people all the time." Many bicycle riders are fooled in buying new wheels by a fictitious allowance on their old one.

It is the Easiest Thing in the World

To list a cheap Western wheel $25 more than it is worth. An unscrupulous dealer pushes a wheel of this sort and makes a leader of it, instead of better and more reliable makes, because he can allow far more on a second-hand wheel and still make a bigger profit.

LIFE ON A TORPEDO BOAT.

Letter From a Wissahickon Man on Board the Dupont.

Mrs. George Liebert of Wissahickon, Pa., recently received an interesting letter from her nephew, J. Linnelle Moore, a well known young man from Wissahickon, who, at the opening of the Cuban war, was imprisoned for several months in Morro Castle and is now on board the torpedo boat Dupont, with the American blockading fleet off the coast of Cuba. The letter is as follows:

U. S. S. DUPONT, BLOCKADING SQUADRON } OFF MATANZAS, Cuba, April 26, 1898. }

DEAR AUNT—I am with the blockading squadron off the coast of Cuba and had the pleasure of seeing the first shot of the blockade fired. It was done on April 22, at 7 a. m., near Sand Key light, Florida, when a Spanish steamer was captured by the gunboat Nashville.

We get about 2½ hours' sleep out of the 24 in this climate, and it is very hard duty. We have been fired upon several times, but the shots went wide of the mark. It will take only one shot to sink a small torpedo boat like the Dupont. I do not think there will be any hard fighting until next week. We could have taken this place and Havana, but we have to wait until the United States soldiers arrive to hold the place after we take it.

It will soon be yellow fever season here, and that will carry off a great number of our men unless proper precautions are taken. These torpedo boats have a very slim chance in war, as they are thrown into the most dangerous part of the work. All last night while it was very dark we were so close to the town that we could hear the dogs barking and the roosters crowing. I hope to have the pleasure of seeing a couple of Spanish ships sunk before we go down ourselves, for I firmly believe I shall never see the end of this war. At any rate, I should prefer death to being made a prisoner in Spanish hands. I remain, with love, J. LINNELLE MOORE.

WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

The DAILY LEDGER now has correspondents in different parts of Weymouth, but solicits news from all citizens and invites correspondence on matters of local interest. News agents sell the Ledger.

A large audience gathered at Trinity church, Weymouth last Sunday evening and listened to a most excellent and interesting discourse by Rev. Wm. Hyde on "The Prophetic Side of the War with Spain." The preacher dealt with the Bible prophecies which have a bearing on the present troubles in a way that made things clear and interesting. Next Sunday evening Mr. Hyde's subject will be, "The War with Spain and another War which threatens the United States in October.

A large audience attended the S. of V. fair at the Odd Fellows opera house East Weymouth, Thursday evening.

WOMEN'S PATRIOTIC LEAGUE

Their Purpose Is to Make War on French Costumes and Wines.

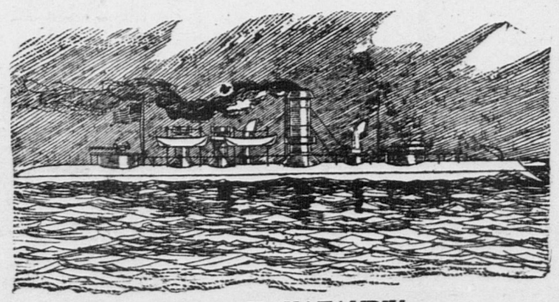

The foremost society women of Washington are about to organize the Women's Patriotic league for the purpose of retaliating on France for her unfriendly attitude toward our government in the crisis.

The members pledge themselves to buy no more articles of any description imported from France, and they hope to secure the co-operation of all the women of the United States. This would mean an annual loss to the French of $50,000,000, as these figures are given by the bureau of statistics as the amount of French goods which we purchase each year. They will issue a circular letter explaining the purpose and inviting all the women of America to join, and copies will be sent to all prominent women's clubs and societies and to female colleges.

It is proposed to hold a mass meeting when affairs are in shape and appoint a committee to wait on the local merchants dealing in French goods. Those ladies who have been purchasing French wines will also be asked to forego them and use only native wines, at least until the war is over. Mrs. Hobart, it is said, will become an active member.—Philadelphia Record.

Dewey Joins the Hero Group.

In recognition of his triumph over the Spaniards at Manilla Admiral George Dewey's portrait will be placed in the picture gallery and reception room of the navy department in Washington by the side of those of men who in years gone by have achieved fame in defending their country on land and sea, and whose names are synonyms of patriotism and valor. Secretary Long has already commissioned an artist to execute a likeness of Commodore Dewey, but pending its completion a large crayon portrait will occupy a prominent place in the gallery. This was received from Boston recently and was placed in position the other afternoon. It shows the bust, head and shoulders of the victorious commander of the Asiatic squadron. —Chicago Tribune.

THE RAM KATAHDIN.

The Katahdin is a naval novelty. She is simply designed to ram a hole in an enemy's ship. She is 250 feet long, has a speed of 15 knots and is protected by six inches of armor. Her bow is a great ram of steel. She carries 30 officers and 91 men and cost $930,000.

UNEASY PUBLICISTS.

American Aggression Alarming the Transatlantic Autocrats.

Theory as to the Reason For Intervention.

Uncle Sam In the Way to Acquire Too Much Territory.

New York, May 13.—A special dispatch from London to The Evening Post says: Inquiries in quarters where official opinion is closely followed suggest that the obvious uneasiness of France, Russia and Germany over the continuance of the war has been communicated to official quarters here. Austria has dynastic reasons for desiring peace. France, Russia and Germany find ground for alarm lest America should be led so far on the path of conquest that American public opinion should demand the retention of the Philippines, if not other Spanish possessions, with the consequent entry of America into the rank of the powers which have to be reckoned with in international questions in the far east and elsewhere.

It is understood that representations have been made to the government here from some European capitals, Paris among them, in favor of joint intervention, nominally in the interests of peace, but really, as it appears in high quarters here, to forestall any attempt at American acquisitions outside of America's home sphere. Such an attempt to coerce America out of her legitimate share of spoil, as France, Russia and Germany coerced Japan, will find no support here. The feeling in official as well as in general quarters tends rather to that of Cecil Rhodes, who expresses himself very forcibly on England's true policy and advises America to stick to what she gets. Mr. Rhodes says: "Never mind what other people say; let her stick to the Philippines. Let England give her moral support. That will keep the other powers quiet. Let America in return keep an open door in the Philippines, giving to England and any other power who treats her as well fiscally as England does the same freedom in the Philippine markets as America herself will enjoy. Strike a bargain with America, and you may be beginning the great Anglo-Saxon compact of the world, reaching in significance an effectual commercial federation of the English-speaking race."

This advice fits in exactly with Mr. Rhodes' fiscal policy in Rhodesia, where he is quite prepared to see America included, of course on the terms in the preferential arrangement which Mr. Chamberlain last week accepted on behalf of England.

If the United States takes possession of Hawaii during the present war with Spain, it is believed Europe will endeavor to insist that the occupation of Hawaii was an incident of the war, and the continental powers will desire to include Hawaii in the apportionment of territory, perhaps as a partial offset aganst the Philippine islands. In the best informed diplomatic circles confidence is expressed that the United States will not be permitted to acquire such strength in the far east as is involved in the occupation of the Philippine islands and Hawaii without reckoning the powers. Great Britain, on the contrary, desires the United States to retain the Philippines, even in preference to taking them herself.

The North German Gazette of Berlin, a semi-official organ, says: "The Americans cannot doubt the character of our strict and perfectly loyal neutrality after the repeated official declarations. Let this also be a hint to the English, French and Austrian newspapers which are so anxious to represent the government and public opinion of Germany as hostile to the president and people of the United States. The imperial policy has a right to feel confident that its more than a century old friendship to a state in which millions of Germans have found a second home will not be disturbed without urgent reasons."

A WORN-OUT FAD.

"Spring Medicines," "Blood Purifiers" and "Tonics" an Old-Fashioned Idea.

Pure blood, strong nerves and muscles, firm, healthy flesh, can only come from wholesome food well digested. "Blood purifiers" and "nerve tonic" do not reach the cause of the mischief The stomach is the point to be looked after The safest and surest way to cure any form of indigestion is to take after each meal some harmless preparation of this kind composed of vegetable essences pure pepsin, golden seal and fruit salts, sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Dyspepsia tablets, and these tablets taken after meals assist digestion wonderfully because they will digest the food promptly before it has time to ferment and sour, and the weak stomach relieved and assisted in this way soon beomes strong and vigorous again.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to any secret patent medicines because you know what you are taking into your stomach.

They are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. Write F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich, for book on stomach diseases which will be mailed free.

Of the men who have occupied positions of public trust in Kansas City, either by gift of the people or by appointment; none has a more enviable reputation for ability, honesty and efficiency than James Burns, Collector of the Port of Kansas City under Grover Cleveland. He lived to the letter the maxim, "a public office is a public strust," and when he retired he carried with him the respect of everyone in the community—Democrats and Republicans alike

James Burns has used Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and he does not hesitate to say they have accomplished wonders

"I suffered with dyspepsia for twenty years," said Mr Burns yesterday" "Never knew what it was to enjoy life— in fact living seemed a burden as it does to all who suffer severely with dyspepsia. A few months ago I began taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. From the first I felt relief, and now,although I am still taking them, I feel entirely cured. For the first time in twenty years I can eat anything I want and suffer no ill effects from it. You can't imagine the pleasure of this unless you have been a dyspepsia sufferer

"I never gave a testimonial for any medicine before, but I feel as if everybody ought to know of this remedy, and while it is personally distasteful to me to appear in print in this connection, I feel as if I had no right to shirk the opportunity to perhaps help some other sufferers from dyspepsia I have been recommending the Tablets to all my friends Only recently I took James H Lillis, the father of Father Lillis, down to get some, and I understand he also is being wonderfully benefitted I can't recommend it too highly 3t 9-11-13

UNDER A FIERCE FIRE,

First Victims of the War on the American Side.

Hot and Disastrous Battle In Cardenas Harbor.

Winslow Almost Destroyed, and Five of the Crew Killed by a Shell.

Key West, May 13.—Ensign Worth Bagley, Oiler John Varveres, Firemen Daniels and Meek and Cook Tunnell of the Winslow were killed during an engagement on the north coast of Cuba Wednesday afternoon. Five others were injured, but not very severely.

The battle lasted 35 minutes. It was between the torpedo boat Winslow, the auxiliary tug Hudson, and the gunboat Wilmington on one side, and the Cardenas batteries and four Spanish gunboats on the other. The Winslow was the main target of the enemy and was put out of service. The other American vessels were not damaged, except that the Hudson's two ventilators were slightly scratched by flying shrapnel.

The Wilmington had spoken the Hudson and the Winslow and assigned them to duty, the Winslow to the western shore, while the Wilmington took her station in mid-channel. Nothing was discovered on either shore, and the boats were approaching on their return when a puff of smoke was observed on shore at Cardenas and a shell whistled over them. The Winslow was on the inside, nearest the shore. The Hudson and the Winslow reported to the Wilmington, and orders came promptly to go in and open fire; but the Spaniards had not waited for a reply to their first shot. The Cardenas shore had already become a dense cloud of smoke, lighted by flashes of fire, and an avalanche of shells was bursting toward the little Winslow. The Hudson's two 6-pounders were banging away at a terrific rate. How many of the torpedo boat's shots took effect is not known. The first two from the Hudson fell short, but after these every one floated into the smoke clouds ashore. The Spaniards' aim meantime was improving, and it was presently seen that two empty barks had been anchored off shore as ranges. It was 25 minutes before 3 o'clock when a 4-inch shell struck on the Winslow's starboard beam, knocking out her forward boiler and starboard engine and crippling her steering gear; but no one was injured.

Lieutenant Bernardo was standing forward, watching the battle with calm interest and directing his men as coolly as if they were at target practice. By the 1-pounder amidships stood Ensign Bagley, the oiler, the two firemen and the cook. The little boat gasped, throbbed and rolled helplessly from side to side. Lieutenant Bernardo did not stop for an examination; he knew his boat was uncontrollable. The Hudson was 20 feet off, still pounding away with her guns. She was hailed and asked to take the Winslow in tow. It was a vital moment. Guns roared from the shore and sea. Lieutenant Scott, in charge of the Hudson's after gun, sat on a box and smoked a cigaret as he directed the fire. Captain Newton stood near Lieutenant Meed at the forward gun and watched its workings with unmoved interest. Chief Engineer Cutchin never missed his bell. A group of sailors were making ready to heave a line to the Winslow, and Ensign Bagley and the four men stood on the port side of the latter vessel waiting to receive it. A vicious fire was singing about them. The Spaniards seemed to have found the exact range. There was a momentary delay in heaving the tow line, and Ensign Bagley suggested that the Hudson's men hurry. "Heave here," he called; "let her come; it's getting pretty warm here." The line was thrown and grabbed by the Winslow's men. Almost at that instant another 4-inch shell shrieked through the smoke and burst directly under them. Five bodies went whirling through the air. Two of the group were dead when they fell—Ensign Bagley and Fireman Daniels. The young ensign was literally disemboweled and the entire lower portion of the fireman's body was torn away. The other three died within a few minutes. A flying piece of shrapnel struck Lieutenant Bernardo in the thigh and cut an ugly gash, but the lieutenant did not know it. With the explosion of the shell the hawser parted and the Winslow's helm went hard to starboard, and with the steering gear smashed, the torpedo boat floundered about in the water at the mercy of the enemy's fire, which never relaxed.

The Hudson quickly threw another line to the Winslow, and the helpless boat was made fast and pulled out of the Spaniards' exact range. The tug then towed her to Piedras bay, a little island 12 miles off, near which the Machias lay. There she was anchored for temporary repairs, while the Hudson brought her ghastly cargo into Key Kest with Dr. Richards of the Machias attending to the wounded. Not until this mournful journey was begun was it learned that Lieutenant Bernardo had been injured. He scoffed at the wound as a trifle, but submitted to treatment and is doing well.

The Winslow has a 6-inch hold in her starboard beam. Her starboard engine, forward boiler, forward ventilator and steering gear are destroyed, and her port engine is slightly damaged, while her conning tower, to use the phraseology of an officer of the Hudson, "looks like a pepper box."

About the same time that the Cardenas engagement occurred the Machias shot away the batteries and barracks on Diana cay, nine miles from Cardenas. The Spaniards did not return the fire, and the details of the bombardment are not yet known.

Spy Hung Himself.

Washington, May 13.—George Downing, alias Rawlings, who was arrested last Sunday under suspicion of being a spy in the service of Spain, hanged himself at the Washington barracks yesterday. A towel and a silk handkerchief were used as the instruments of death.

THREE OF THE SERIES.

The Baltimore Team on the Wrong Side Once More.

Boston, May 13.—For the third time in succession this week the Bostons defeated the Baltimores yesterday afternoon. The orioles stood the strain of the home team's onslaught, which increased in force each game this week, worst of all in the final yesterday, and the home team more than redeemed itself for the three defeats at Baltimore. It has been a climb to an even break with the fast oriole combination, hardly thought attainable by the friends of the home team, but there has been no letup, and the last victory was the best of all. The Bostons took the measure of Hughes, the clever young Californian, when he was played as a trump card by Manager Hanlon, and Baltimore leaves for Philadelphia having none the best of the intercity series. Eight games have been played and each team has won a quartet. Boston now is in fourth place.

Hughes was inaccurate at times, and was a bit careless on batteries, evincing considerable overconfidence. He gave six bases on balls, hit two men, contributed two wild pitches and was hit safely for 12 hits. A big total was tacked on to this number as a triple by Hamilton, and home runs by Long and Jim Collins were hammered out.

The visitors were outplayed at all stages, and Nichols had a fair measure of revenge for previous defeats. The old standby pitched a great game and was hit for more than a couple of hits in an inning in only the ninth. With the score four apiece in the sixth, Boston scored four times and the game was placed beyond doubt. In the lucky eighth seven men scored, the side batting around once, and Baltimore was nicely trimmed. Score:

The Browns got on to Moore and knocked him out of the box in the fourth inning. The Colbys found Eaton's curves a puzzle except in the second, when four runs were brought in. Score: 13 to 7.

The Cleveland team would have won on its hitting even if not assisted by the Chicagos' errors. The slugging was terrific. Score: 12 to 4.

The Cincinnatis won both games from the St. Louis team by clean fielding and superior work on the bases. They also did some perfect bunting. Dave Cross of St. Louis was put out of the first game for yelling on the bench. Scores: 8 to 5; 3 to 2.

Seymour pitched a masterly game for the New Yorks, and as a result the Brooklyns were defeated on their own grounds, 3 to 6.

The Pittsburgs lost yesterday's game in the second inning. Two men were out and two on bases. Davis dropped a ball thrown to put Hoy out at first, and two runners crossed the plate. Score: 3 to 2.

Two Cruisers Coaling.

Boston, May 13.—The cruiser San Francisco, Captain Richard Leary, arrived at this port late yesterday afternoon. She comes for a large supply of coal, and, unless present arrangements are changed, she will receive it in President roads instead of in the stream near the navy yard. She has recently been doing scouting duty off the coast.

The repairs on the Columbia were finished yesterday afternoon, and she began receiving her supply of coal. She has to take on board 700 tons, and it is not probable that the cruiser will be able to leave port before some time Saturday.

tion of neutrality would not correspond with Austro-Hungary's practice in similar cases, as she has only thrice done so during the present century, and then the belligerents were Austro-Hungary's immediate neighbors."

The premier added: "The government is of the opinion that there is no occasion to take special measures for the security of the Hungarians in the United States, as it is quite out of the question that they will experience annoyance or unfavorable treatment. Also, in view of the belligerents' repudiation of privateering, there is no reason to fear Austro-Hungarian shipping will suffer from restrictive or illegal treatment. The statement published to the effect that the American government has demanded of Austro-Hungary an unconditional declaration of neutrality is totally untrue."

THE CALL TO DUTY.

Governor Wolcott's Words of Advice to the Second Regiment.

South Framingham, Mass., May 13.—The first official and accordingly definite orders for Colonel Clarke's Second regiment to move came Thursday, and after tents had been bundled up and mess outfits packed the militiamen were ordered to rest on arms. Visitors had begun to swarm into camp, and the men of the Second were the heroes of the occasion. Chief among the attractive features was the reappearance of the regimental band followed by fully 500 people from Springfield, Worcester and other places, the homes of the individual companies of the command.

Shortly after 3 o'clock the assembly was sounded and the regiment came out for its farewell parade on this field for many days. When the line had been formed Governor Wolcott advanced to the center. Lieutenant Colonel Southmayd ordered "present" in a salute to the commander-in-chief. The regiment then passed in review in column of companies, the ceremony being finely performed. The regiment was formed in a square with Colonel Clarke and Governor Wolcott in the center. The latter then addressed the soldiers, saying: "You are about to leave the state to engage in a war for humanity's sake against a cruel power. The hopes and best wishes of the commonwealth go with you. Keep bold heart and clean body. Remain true to the commonwealth and be loyal to the flag of our country. Be obedient to your officers, loyal and temperate at all times, and you will have the confidence of every citizen of our commonwealth."

Colonel Clarke pledged the governor that the men of his command would do the very best they could to uphold the honor of the state and of the country.

Governor Wolcott then presented the commissions, calling each officer by name as he presented it, and designating the regiment as the Second Massachusetts infantry, United States volunteers.

When the ceremony was over the regimental band played and cheers went up for the regiment. It was then time to prepare to move, and very soon the baggage of the officers was on its way to the depot. The regiment followed, accompanied by an immense throng of people, everybody cheering for the men.

The camp last night was a quiet place, as there is a seriousness among the men over the fact that the first evidences of the war have come near home; yet there is no abatement of interest in the question of another regiment going south. In the quarters of the other regiments there was considerable activity, mustering-in in the Sixth continuing, companies A of Wakefield, F of Marlboro, C of Lowell and E of Framingham being enrolled.

Enthusiastic and Generous.

Madrid, May 13.—Last evening the whole town was bedecked with the national colors. The balconies were draped with red and yellow, and in a large flower tent society ladies sold red and yellow flowers at a high figure, the proceeds going to the national fund.

The bull ring was packed to suffocation. The boxes were filled with the highest society and the most beautiful women in Madrid, nearly all wearing white mantillas. The opening procession was of unprecedented splendor. There were 10 alguazils, heralds and halberdiers, attired in old Spanish costumes, 10 matadors, 20 picadors, 20 banderillos and numerous attendants, all superbly dressed and making a most gorgeous spectacle. The first two bulls were fought in mediaeval fashion by cavaliers, who made a splendid display of horsemanship, charging the bulls with short lances which broke off when driven into the animal.

Four masked bands played the Cadiz march and other patriotic airs at intervals, and the ladies in the boxes showered flowers upon the spectators below.

Trustee Heavily Fined.

New York, May 12.—Surrogate Silkman of White Plains, in rendering his decision in the accounting of Thomas Rodgers and William Cauldwell as trustees of the estate of Jason Rogers, fined Thomas Rogers $60,000 for misappropriating the funds of the estate. If this money is not paid forthwith, Rogers will be kept in jail until it has been made good.

Jason Rogers was a member of the Rogers Locomotive Building company. At his death in 1869 he left an estate valued at several millions. Thomas Rogers is the dead man's son.

Chief of Police Dead.

Indiana, Pa., May 12.—In an attempt to arrest Joseph Bennett, Chief of Police Cunningham was shot and killed. Bennett was intoxicated, was riding a bicycle and firing his revolver at everyone he met. One shot struck a young lady, but she was not seriously injured. Later Bennett made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide. He is in jail.

He Wanted a Smoke.

Cleveland, May 12.—Ten men were injured by an explosion of gas in the new waterworks tunnel under the lake. The diggers were 6300 feet from shore. The explosion was caused by one of the men striking a match to light his pipe. Two of the injured will die, and three are dead.

Patriotic Vespers.

At the Wollaston Baptist Church on Sunday at the 7 o'clock service, the pastor Rev. Preston Gurney will speak on war notes.

The music will be:

To Thee Oh Country, Eichberg, Speed our Republic, Keller, Union and Liberty, Boott, Now the day is Over, Barnby, Tenor Solo, "A Dream of Paradise," Gray, by Mr. Brown.

—Not only Northampton, Mass, but the country, is aroused by the defalcation of President Lewis Warner of the Hampshire National Bank, to the amount of $300,000. The Boston Home Journal says: "Again is the fact emphasized that business and friendship should be considered distinct, even when united in the same person. A really honest man in a place of trust does not consider it implies lack of friendship if one properly in a position above him exercises in dealing with him exactly the same rigorous attention to duty as in the case of a perfect stranger. If such defalcations continue the time is at hand when the public will distrust men of irreproachable moral charracter, and a reputation for probity will be quite sufficient to condemn a man to universal distrust."

—Brockton was "wide open" Monday night, and such a sight has not been seen there for eleven years, and ought not to be seen there again for 1000 years. The saloons were thronged with customers, and liquor and money ran like water. And yet these same men who were spending their money for drink are the very ones whose families will be suffering for the necessities of life and whose neighbors will be called upon to help them to live.—Stoughton Record.

—The Navy Department is planning for a large addition to our navy. Thirty-six new vessels are provided for in the naval appropriation bill. They will cost $21,000,000, exclusive of armament. This will include a number of torpedo boat detroyers. There are no vessels of this class in the United States navy at this time, although some of the converted yachts recently purchased have been fitted up for the purpose and will serve for the present. There will be three seagoing coast line battleships, the best, if there is any choice, to be named the Maine.

—There is a good deal of discussion going on as to the exact date when the present war with Spain began. The Boston Beacon says it began on February 15, 1898, in the harbor of Havana, at 9 45 P. M., with the blowing up of the battleship Maine.

SAN JUAN'S CAPITULATION.

The President Got Unofficial Word to That Effect.

FRENCH HOLD A TELEGRAM

Contained News About the Spanish Squadron.

A DISARRANGEMENT OF WAR PLANS.

Efforts Bent For Circumvention of the Enemy Adopted Hurriedly.

Washington, May 14.—President McKinley received a dispatch late yesterday afternoon, which came through Haytian sources, announcing the complete capitulation of the city and fort of San Juan, Porto Rico. The dispatch was immediately communicated to Secretary Long, who presented it to the strategic board, which was then in session.

Secretary Long would not say who sent the news; he acknowledged its receipt, however, and supplemented the president's declaration of faith in its authenticity.

The strategic board, immediately upon the receipt of the dispatch, discussed its contents, but nothing could be learned rgarding its action. It was stated by Secretary Long that the dispatch was not from Admiral Sampson, and that the last communication he had had from him was a dispatch of the morning. It is understood that the dispatch came through representatives of the Haytien government in New York, and was communicated to the president by an officer of the United States signal corps stationed at Governor's island.

Forewarned that Admiral Sampson's powerful fleet would be blockading or bombarding San Juan, the Spanish government sent the Cape Verde fleet to Martinique, where, according to the report of Commander Cotton of the scouting cruiser Harvard, who was bottled up in the harbor of St. Pierre by the neutrality laws so as to prevent his getting the news to Sampson, having gone there for repairs, the Spanish ships coaled from colliers, and then, having gotten messages and information from the friendly authorities, started Wednesday evening on a westerly direction, while the friendly French apparently held up Commander Cotton's cablegram for 24 hours so that it did not arrive until early Friday morning. This friendliness of the French officials at St. Pierre for the Spanish and their unfriendliness for the Americans, if established, may lead to complications with France, which has shown throughout more sympathy with Spain than with the United States, the tie of race seeming to be more powerful than that of traditional friendship; but there will be plenty of time to investigate that and set it right later on.

Acting upon the theory that the Cape Verde squadron is making for Cuba as rapidly as possible, and to do as much damage as possible to our blockading ships before it is overtaken by our fighting ships, which seems to the war board the most reasonable, the administration exerted all its power yesterday to find and stop the Spaniards, while giving warning to our blockading squadron to withdraw exposed vessels, if necessary. All the other plans were swept aside for the time being, although the preparations for the Cuban and Philippine expeditions went on, and the energies of the navy department officials were brought to bear upon the absolute necessity of capturing and destroying the Spanish squadron before it could capture or destroy any of our blockaders or scouting cruisers.

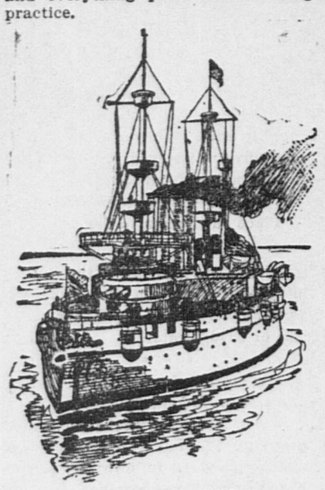

SAN JUAN BOMBARDMENT.

The Terror Blazed Away For Halfan Hour Alone.

On the Iowa, May 14.—Morro battery on the eastward arm of the harbor of San Juan was made the chief object of attack. Rear Admiral Sampson and Captain Evans were on the lower bridge of the Iowa and had a narrow escape from splinters which injured three men. The Iowa was hit eight times, but the shells made no impression on her armor. The weather was fine, but the heavy swells made accurate aim difficult. The broadsides from the Iowa and Indiana rumbled in the hills ashore for five minutes after they were delivered. Clouds of dust showed where they struck; but the smoke hung over everything. The shells screaching overhead and dropping around were the only signs that the Spaniards still stuck to their guns.

At 3 o'clock in the morning all hands were called on the Iowa; a few final touches in clearing ship were made, and at 5 "general quarters" sounded. The men were eager for the fight. The tug Wampatuck went ahead and anchored her small boat to the westward, showing 10 fathoms, but there was not a sign of life from the fort, which stood boldly against the sky on the eastern hills, hiding the town. The Detroit steamed far to the eastward, opposite Valtern. The Iowa headed straight for the shore. Suddenly her helm flew over, bringing the starboard battery to bear on the fortifications. At 5:16 a. m. the Iowa's forward 12-inch guns thundered out at the sleeping hills, and for 14 minutes she poured starboard broadsides on the coast.

Meanwhile the Indiana, the New York and other ships repeated the dose from the rear. The Iowa turned and came back to the Wampatuck's boat, and again led the column, the forts replying fiercely and concentrating on the Detroit, which was about 700 yards away, all the batteries on the eastward arm of the harbor. Thrice the column passed from the entrance of the harbor to the extreme eastward battery. Utter indifference was shown for the enemy's fire. The wounded were quickly attended to; the blood was washed away, and everything proceeded like target practice.

CRUISER NEW YORK.

At 7:45 a. m. Admiral Sampson signalled "Cease firing." "Retire" was sounded on the Iowa, and she headed from the shore. The Terror was the last ship in the line and, failing to see the signal, banged away alone for about half an hour, the concert of shore guns roaring at her and the water flying high around her from the exploded shells; but she possessed a charmed life and reluctantly retired at 8:15.

As at Matanzas, the unsatisfactory conditions, the smoke and the distance prevented important conclusions being drawn. The town of San Juan must have suffered, although protected by the hills, as the high shots must have reached it. No traces of the bombardment were discernible on the fort except small fires which were apparently extinguished before the fleet left.

Regiment of Sharpshooters.

Washington, May 14.—Representative Cummings of New York has introduced a bill authorizing the secretary of war to organize one regiment or more of sharpshooters possessing military qualifications, each company to consist of 100 expert marksmen from different states, to be between the ages of 21 and 40 years. The field officers may be veterans of the civil war on both sides whose services were distinguished for gallantry in action, or who were recipients of medals of honor for meritorious conduct. The command is to be known as American independent sharpshooters.

Flying Squadron Off.

Newport News, Va., May 14.—Five vessels of the flying squadron, led by the Brooklyn, steamed out of Hampton roads yesterday afternoon and, after passing the Virginia capes, took a southerly course, going, it is said, to augment Admiral Sampson's fleet now in the vicinity of Porto Rico. The vessels were the battleships Massachusetts and Texas, the dispatch boat Scorpion and the collier Sterling.

Hundreds of people stood on the wharf and waved and shouted a godspeed to the departing men. After passing through the capes, the Scorpion took the lead, acting as a scout. After reaching the open sea, it is said the vessels took the middle course, proceeding under full steam. The Minneapolis and New Orleans were left behind, as was also the St. Paul, but at 8 o'clock last night the Minneapolis steamed out at full speed to overtake the squadron. Captain Sigsbee of the St. Paul received orders to join the New Orleans at Old Point and put to sea.

Porto Rico Auvices.

Madrid, May 14.—A dispatch from Martinique says that only one of the destroyers with the Cape Verde squadron entered the port to send dispatches but that the squadron did not enter.

A dispatch from Porto Rico says the loss during the bombardment was one officer and three soldiers killed, 13 soldiers wounded, one civilian killed and 30 wounded. According to the same dispatch, the steamer Roaks, with a cargo of coal for Admiral Cervera, succeeded in evading Admiral Sampson and entered San Juan.

Call For Another Regiment.

Camp Dewey, South Framingham, Mass., May 14.—An inquiry from Adjutant General Corbin of the United States army as to whether another regiment was ready to move was received in camp yesterday. Colonel Bogan of the Ninth and Colonel Pew of the Eighth hustled to respond, and the latter beat out the former in sending the reply. It was understood that the regiment wanted would leave for Chickamauga this afternoon. Conditions are against the Eighth. The entire efforts of the quartermaster's department have been to equip the Ninth, due to the expectancy that this command, being the senior one, would be first called. Luke Landy of the arsenal says the Eighth is not ready to leave.

Colonel Woodward, Sixth infantry, has appointed Lieutenant Butler Ames of light battery A, adjutant of the Sixth, vice Lieutenant Curtis Guild, Jr., appointed to the staff of General Lee. Lieutenant Ames is at present on duty at the muster of battery A.

Waited Too Long.

London, May 14.—The Chronicle, discussing the situation this morning, says: "Admiral Sampson seems to have waited just too long before attacking San Juan. He would have avoided all the present tangle if he had attacked a few days earlier. At any rate, however, he has taken the measure of Porto Rico as a coaling station, and the Spanish claim of a victory is absurd."

The News, speaking through a well-known war expert, says: "It seems for once that Yankee cuteness has overreached itself in the match against Spanish secretiveness. In the coming contest sharp wits may count for more than physical force. Admiral Cerveras' adroit movement has been executed with much judgment, and Spain has redeemed her character for enterprise. What may come of it nobody would venture to predict yet."

Were Beaten of Course.

Madrid, May 14.—General Blanco's dispatch describing the engagement at Cienfuegos says: "The Americans fired over 600 shells, while they attempted to effect a landing with large boats towed by steam launches. Some of the boats landed their men, but the latter were energetically and victoriously repulsed all along the line. The Americans were compelled hastily to re-embark and withdrew with considerable loss, retiring in a westerly direction after five hours' fighting. The attack was made in combination with bands of insurgents, who have been put to flight. Our losses were only two killed and 14 wounded."

General Blanco's dispatches also say: "At the same time they were attacking Cienfuegos an attack was made by the Americans at Cardenas. One of their larger ships anchored about a mile from the quay, and the enemy then attempted to land troops; but our forces, consisting of volunteers and two companies of infantry, compelled them to desist. Our gunboats disabled one of the enemy's destroyers and compelled the remaining ships of the squadron to leave the bay.

GENERAL GARCIA.

"The garrison had five wounded and about 10 were wounded on board the gunboats. Little damage was done to the town, though one shell fell in the British consulate. The attack had been planned in co-operation with the insurgent forces who were recently defeated at San Miguel. I have congratulated both the troops and the inhabitants of the town on the strong proof they have furnished of their loyalty to Spain. Many of the Americans, while trying to disembark, fell under the Spanish fire, and at Cardenas two of the inhabitants were killed by shots from the enemy."

Talked With Garcia.

Key West, May 14.—Lieutenant Andrew Kowan of the Nineteenth United States infantry arrived here yesterday from Cuba, bearing important dispatches from General Calixto Garcia, commander of the department of the east of the insurgent army, for General Miles or General Shafter. Rowan, with a number of guides, left Jamaica for Cuba in an open sailboat, arriving after 22 hours and landing on the coast near Pico Cjo Del Toro, province of Santiago de Cuba, and a little west of the city of that name. They marched through swamps and underbrush to the mountains, where horses were obtained, and thence proceeded to Bayamo, arriving at that place five days later. They found General Garcia quartered there with several hundred troops, with headquarters in the principal house on the main street of the city, which had been abandoned shortly before by the Spaniards.

Lieutenant Rowan had a long conference with the insurgent general, who told him that there were 15,000 troops in his command, scattered throughout the island. These troops were well supplied with arms, but lacked ammunition. About 3000 were then following a body of Spanish soldiers down to the Ceuta river.

Would Release All the Prizes.

New York, May 14.—An attorney of this city has gone to Key West to institute proceedings before the prize court for the recovery of vessels and merchandise valued at about $1,000,000 and confiscated more than a fortnight ago. Marine underwriters, London bankers, Paris merchants and New Orleans business men are among those interested in the undertaking, which, in certain aspects, differs from anything of the sort attempted in this country before.

The vessels affected are the Panama, captured April 25; Miguel Jover, April 24; Catalina, April 24; Pedro, April 22, and Guide, April 27. All are Spanish steamships, having varied cargoes upon which bankers in different parts of the world have advanced money. The contention will be made that the cases came within the spirit of the president's proclamation of April 26, which, after affirming adherence to the declaration of Paris, allows Spanish vessels until May 21 in which to depart unmolested from American ports.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 15.—By means of his incomparable merchant cruisers, The Journal thinks that "Admiral Sampson ought to be able to ascertain the exact location and course of the Spanish squadron, and if it is heading northward toward him, to bring it within the deadly reach of his two mighty battleships, his one armored cruiser and his two monitors."

"If the Spanish vessels engage the flying squadron, they are most certain to be overwhelmed," is the conviction of The Post. "If they should happen to win the engagement, they would be in a crippled condition and an easy prey for Admiral Sampson's squadron, which would be between them and Spain."

"These be stirring times, indeed," in the calculation of The Advertiser. "The Daily Whooper and the Evening Howler can be trusted implicitly to discover at least one new Spanish spy just before issuing each hysterical edition."

Bay State's Big City.

Boston, May 14.—The Democratic state committee has issued a call for a convention in New Bedford May 17 for the purpose of naming a candidate for congress in that district.

The firm of L. B. Clark & Co. of Boston and Kingman, Me., has assigned. It is estimated that the unsecured indebtedness of the firm is about $250,000, and the second, which consists largely in hypothecations of leather and hides for advances, is nearly $200,000.

The book and job branch of the Typographical union, composed of all printers, pressmen and feeders other than those employed upon daily newspapers, is in high glee over its success in securing the nine-hour workday, the agitation for which has been going on for months.

FIGHTER DISPOSED OF.

Peter Maher's Pretensions Received a Cooling.

Retired Last Night In Less Than Two Minutes.

Backward Movement by Goddard Sent Him Prone.

Philadelphia, May 14.—At the Arena last night, in one minute and 51 seconds of combined sparring and fighting, Joe Goddard, the "barrier champion," retired Peter Maher with a sort of pivot punch, delivered so suddenly that hardly a spectator realized what had come off.

Up to the time he received his quietus, Maher looked like a winner. What few punches had been landed were in his favor. Goddard landed the punch which proved so disastrous to Peter while trying to escape from one of the latter's vigorous onslaughts near the ropes. It was evident that Goddard was in the better condition of the two. He looked two pounds lighter than upon the occasion of his encounter with Peter at Coney Island, and displayed a shiftiness afoot surprising to one of his years.

JOE GODDARD.

There was the usual fiddling at the opening, followed by feinting, both men being apparently desirous of drawing the other into a lead. Maher took the initiative, essaying a left hander which fell short. Goddard also tried the same tactics, but his effort was also short. Goddard, however, invariably followed up his lefts with his right toward the body, which saved him from at least one good stiff encounter. Maher finally landed his left hard on Goddard's jaw. Goddard swung for the body and landed, but it did not amount to much, and a clinch followed. As soon as the men broke away Maher again took the initiative, landing with his long left on Goddard's face, the barrier champion retaliating with the right on the body. Maher rushed Goddard to the ropes. There was a slight mixup.

Suddenly Goddard, who appeared to be breaking away, brought his right arm around in a backward movement. The heel of his glove caught Maher about the face, whether on the jaw, where Goddard said it did, or on the cheek bone, where Maher said it did, will never be revealed. As Maher received the punch, he was partially tripped by Goddard, whose right foot was covering one of Maher's. Peter fell face forward, striking the floor with a great deal of force. When Maher went down the spectators thought it was only an ordinary knockdown, but the referee told off the fateful 10 seconds and Maher was still on the floor. It was fully 10 seconds beyond that time before he rose to his feet. The time of the fight was just one minute and 51 seconds.

House Granted Pensions.

Washington, May 14.—At last night's session, the house voted to grant a pension of $50 per month to Major General Cassius M. Clay of Whitehall, Ky. The famous general of the Mexican and civil wars was represented as the owner of an extensive estate, but with an income insufficient to meet his expenses. General Clay is now drawing $6 per month as a Mexican veteran and is 84 years old.

At the beginning of the session Mr. Talbott (Dem., S. C.) insisted on considering no bills to remove charges of desertion from the records of soldiers. Unanimous consent to consider only pension bills was given. An exception was made, however, in the case of James W. Harding of Tennessee, who, it was developed, was captured in 1862 by Representative Cox, then a confederate colonel. Harding was paroled, returned home, observed his parole, but did not report to his command the circumstances,, and was entered as a deserter. Representative Cox secured a removal of the charge.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 14.—Springfield petitions for legislation authorizing cities and towns to continue the salaries of officers and employes who enter the volunteer militia or naval service of the United States. The house concurred with the senate in the engrossment of the bill suspending the operation of pilot laws during the war, which compel constant pilot service at the outside stations. A petition for state aid for families of soldiers and sailors was admitted, and a bill that cities and towns might pay $2.50 per week to each person dependent on the volunteers for support went to the committee on military affairs.

The lower branch knocked out the proposition for an inheritance tax at the session yesterday afternoon, referring the matter to the next general court on a rollcall, 84 to 68. The house adopted all the amendments offered by Mr. Dean of Wakefield and then took the action above noted.

THE U. S. ARMORED CRUISER "NEW YORK" FIRING ON A COAST-GUARD OF SPANISH CAVALRY OFF CABANAS, APRIL 29.

FROM A DRAWING BY CARLTON T. CHAPMAN IN HARPER'S WEEKLY. Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

Mr. Carlton T. Chapman, special correspondent of Harper's Weekly with Admiral Sampson's fleet, thus discribes an incident of the Cuban blockade, of which we publish an illustraton today:

"On Friday afternoon the New York, accompanied by the torpedo-boats Porter and Ericsson, left the Havana station and went off Mariel, twenty-four miles west of Havana, where the Castine is keeping guard over two Spanish gunboats. There was an intention of bombarding the place, but we were disappointed, as nothing occurred, and the New York and the torpedo-boats went on as far as Cabanas, off which place we arrived about six o'clock. The New York, a little in advance with the two torpedo-boats lying near was fired on by a coast-guard of cavalry. The shots did no harm, however, and were answered in a minute by a puff of pink smoke from the New York's port battery, followed in quick succession by twelve shots from her 4-inch guns, when the cavalry disappeared, but came back again as the New York moved off, when she again opened fire with an 8-inch gun, the last two shots being aimed by Captain Chadwick himself, and all struck fairly in the midst of the troopers the last shot sending a group of them flying in seventeen directions."

A LIGHT WOMAN.

She had as many loves as she had follies,
And all her light loves sang her praises,
But now beneath a tangle of sea hollies
And pale sea daisies,
Here at the limit of the hollow shore,
Folly and praise are covered meetly o'er.

We will not tell her beads of beauty over.
All that we say and all we leave unsaid
Be buried with her now, since there's no lover
But scatters on her bed
Pansies for thoughts and woodruff white as she
And, for remembrance, quiet rosemary.

Here is the end of laughter, and here wither
Sorrow and mirth, here dancing feet fall still,
Here where the sea pinks flower and fade together,
Even at the wind's wild will.
Ah, lull her softly in her quiet home!
She was your sister, sea, and light as foam.

A CIRCUS ROMANCE.

"Why is Miss Ryland so indifferent to men?"

The question was asked by a curious woman who had just left the dashing young equestrienne's apartments at the Ringling Bros.' circus one evening last week.

"And why is she so fond of a black costume?" queried another. "I notice that she rides in somber colors nearly every night."

Behind the answer to these interrogatories lies a story flavored with romance, but unaccompanied by the usual denouement that makes the romance complete. There is sadness at the beginning and end of it and just enough in the middle that is joyful to make the tale pretty. It is a pathetic narrative, on the whole, and interesting, though it does recount the woes of lovers.

Miss Ryland was not born into her art. She is not the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter of circus fame. Her abundant auburn tresses blossomed into radiance under the warm rays of a Mississippi sun, and her muscular brawn was early developed on her father's plantation way down south.

Mr. Ryland was one of the largest cotton growers in his vicinity. He lived three miles from his plantation, on the outskirts of a pretty southern town. His handsome home was the scene of numerous fashionable events, and Elena, his only daughter, was the most admired woman in the place.

In the later eighties a small circus visited the town. Mr. Ryland allowed the management to use part of his spacious grounds for show property. Everybody in the village was out to see the first and only performance given by the aggregation in the little city, among others Elena Ryland.

In the circus was a young bareback rider, Alfred Julian by name. He had been with the company only a few weeks and was but a mediocre performer. By profession he was an artist, but fame and fortune did not roll his way, and he gave up the pencil for more lucrative employment under the canvas. He was a good looking, educated fellow of 20 years and became quite popular with his fellow performers.

The young man was unfortunate on his appearance that night. In attempting to leap through a hoop and on to his horse's back he missed his footing and fell with terrific force on the box curbing surrounding the ring. He was picked up in an unconscious condition, and it was found that his right arm and leg were broken.

The accident stopped the show. The spectators left their seats and crowded about the ring to learn the extent of Julian's injury. Mr. Ryland was one of the first to reach the youth's side. The circus doctor was summoned and advised that the young man be taken at once to a hospital. There was no hospital in the place, and the only accommodation available was the temporary shelter of the dressing room.

Ryland came to the aid of the management by offering the use of his home to the injured man. The offer was gratefully accepted, and Julian was removed to the magnificent Ryland residence for treatment. The generous, noble hearted planter went further. He insisted on calling in the family physician to treat Julian, and when the circus left town the next day the bareback rider was resting easy in the most comfortable quarters he had enjoyed since he quit his eastern home three weeks before.

Julian required a nurse. Elena Ryland, sympathetic and loving, gladly took upon herself the task of ministering to the needs of the suffering man. She would be his nurse, she declared, and she performed her duty more faithfully and with greater pleasure than could be expected of any paid servant.

The second day after his fall Julian regained consciousness. He opened his eyes and looked in wonderment on his strange surroundings. He did not speak for several moments. Then he inquired in a soft voice of his fair attendant, "Where am I?"

"You are in a friend's house," Miss Ryland replied. "The circus is gone, but you need not worry for your safety."

He did not worry. He suffered excruciating pain and often would have murmured over his lot, but the gentle words of his watchful nurse helped him to bravely bear his troubles in silence.

Slowly he recovered. As he grew better he learned to appreciate the service of his kind attendant. She was more than a sister to him, and her heart was filling with more than a sister's love for a friend in distress.

He asked all about his accident and the events following it. He was somewhat humiliated at his ill luck and vowed he would never again enter the circus ring. Miss Ryland was fascinated with his stories of circus life and listened intently to every word that fell from his lips.

The patient was interested in his fair nurse. He fully reciprocated her attachment for him. A feeling stronger than that of friendship endeared her to him. He was in love with her, but he dared not tell her. Her station in life, he thought, was so far above his that to dream of such a thing were folly.

The days passed pleasantly for the pair. For hours and hours they sat talking, or she would read to him. Lovers could not have been more companionable. Neither could regard the other more highly, yet neither breathed a word of love.

Julian remained at the Ryland house until he had completely convalesced. When he left, it was as if the son of the family had said farewell to those nearest and dearest to him. Alfred kissed Elena goodby.

"I am going to study art again," he said, "and I will write you when I get back to New Jersey. I shall always remember your kindness. Some day I may be able to repay it."

Three months after he left George Ryland, wealthy sugar planter, was a business wreck. Faithless employees had robbed him, his property had been mortgaged, but there was not enough money on hand to pay off the debt, and the family were forced to give up their elegant home and take quarters in a poor quarter of the village. The blow was too much for Ryland. The worry and strain unnerved him, and he died a short while after of sheer physical collapse.

Elena Ryland and her mother were in destitute circumstances. The girl resolved to be the support of the family and to that end sought employment in the town. She was not successful and in despair wrote to her friend Julian in New Jersey. She begged him to get her a position in the circus. She was a fairly good rider and, with a little practice, thought she could hold her own in a second rate company.

Julian had made a good start in the east and offered the despondent girl another way out of her trouble. He proposed marriage. He had loved her, he said, many months, but hesitated, because of his lowly position, to ask her to be his wife. Now that they were both on the same level financially she might look with more favor on his suit.

Elena accepted the proposal, but she could not, out of respect to her father's memory, marry within a year. So she asked Alfred if he could not meantime secure for her a position with the circus with which he had traveled.

That's how Elena Ryland came to be a bareback rider in a big circus. Why she is not the wife of Alfred Julian is another story. Alfred concluded to go to Paris and finish his studies, while Elena was waiting for the year to elapse until they could be united in marriage.

Elena was successful as a daring rider, and within a few months after she started with the one ring show she received an offer from the Ringlings. She has been with them for the last three years.

Julian never came back from Paris. He took sick and died of pneumonia. Miss Ryland did not even know that he had been ill until she received word of his death. His body was laid to rest in France.

The news of her lover's demise was a terrible shock to Miss Ryland, and for two weeks after the information reached her she was too ill to fill her part. For a year she rode in mourning costume, and even now she wears black most of the time. She is quiet and does not mingle much with the rest of the performers. Her mother travels with her. The young woman rarely speaks of her love affair and its sad ending, and very few of her friends know the story of her life. It is such an unhappy story, too, that the young folks in the big, jolly aggregation of performers do not like to hear it.—St. Louis Republic.

Whipped the Four Hundred.

An officer of the steamer Empress of Japan, recently arrived at Vancouver from the orient, tells of an exciting street fight which he witnessed in the streets of Hongkong prior to the sailing of his vessel. There are many sailors in that harbor attached to the war vessels of various nations, and they imbibe strong national prejudices as they watch the international game in the east. The trouble started in a saloon. The Russian sailors combined with the French and Germans and formed a double line down a narrow street and dared any Johnny Bull or Yankee to pass.

The English and American sailors joined forces and found they mustered 150 to the enemy's 400. Nothing daunted, they seized a lot of jinrikishas, formed a wedge with them and rushed on the foreigners with a cheer. They broke the line, smashed the jinrikishas and continued the fight with fists and pieces of the debris until, as the informant relates, they had the 400 allies badly whipped. The din was dreadful, but above it rose the singing of "America" and "God Save the Queen," both, of course, to the same tune. The authorities were powerless and appealed to the commanders of the warships, who ordered the men to stop, and the hostilities ceased.

Thus has been begun the much talked of Anglo-Saxon alliance against the world.—Argonaut.

Sarcastic Novelist.

The people who want—and do not scruple to ask for—favors from public men are sometimes so unreasonable as almost to deserve a rude answer. Such an answer, for example, as The Golden Penny quotes:

A certain novelist, not unknown to fame, received from a lady an unstamped letter asking the loan of his book, on the plea that she could not obtain it at the bookseller's in her town. His reply was worded as follows:

DEAR MADAM—In the town where you reside there appears to be a lack of all sorts of things which are easily procurable elsewhere—not only of my recent work, but also of postage stamps for letters. I have in my possession, it is true, the book you desire to obtain and also the stamps to pay its carriage, but, to my regret, I am without the necessary string to make it into a parcel. If you can supply me with a piece, I am at your service."

Good Afternoon.

It is now nineteen days since the declaration of war with Spain. Under ordinary conditions, says a New York banking house, the beginning of hostilities upon a large scale and with imperfect preparations might be expected to create disturbances of confidence and serious prostration in all our market. This is no more than has been common in the experience of other nations. But, in our case, war has thus far been attended with a marked recovery of confidence in finance and a revival of activity in trade. The Government is devising plans of heavy taxation and considering the authorization of large loans but the country finds in all this no reason for contracting its industrial operations, the people see no necessity for reducing their expenditures. Labor is well employed and there is no shrinkage in values to indicate a falling off in demand, but rather a general firmness in the commercial markets and, in some, a material advance in prices. Nor is this rise in values due to any interruption of supplies from other countries, for the Spaniards have so far been unable to check the current of our imports.

Over Morro castle,
That hasn't long to stay

There is going to be a smash,
Something hot's about to crash
Into Morro castle.

There are remnants of the Maine
Down near Morro castle;
We will pick a bone with Spain
Down by Morro castle!
When we've ended this affair
When the smoke clears from the air
You may see Old Glory there,

Mr. Tupper's response to the remarks of the president were in a humorous vein, and for several minutes kept the audience in a continual roar of laughter.

Mrs. Richard R. Freeman responded to the toast, "The Social Side of the Unity Cub" sketching the intellectual and social side, as well as the devlopment of Wollaston for the past two decades.

Dr. Horace Mann Willard, of the Quincy Mansion school, spoke on "The Humorous in Education." His reminiscences of his first years of teaching were sparkling with humor, especially when he narrated how in his younger days, in taking charge of boarding school where the pupils had not been amendable to strict discipline he taught in the day time and was Verdict for Merrill.

A verdict for the defendant was ordered in the second session of the Suffolk Superior Court at Boston in the case of E. J. Shattuck vs. J. F. Merrill. It was an action of contract to recover $200 alleged to be due as commissions for selling certain land of dedefendant's at Nantasket to one Robinson for $5,000, which was defendant's price. Defendant refused to complete the sale and sold the land to the Quincy & Boston Steamboat Co. for $6,000. Plaintiff arranged a lease of the property to the Nantasket Steamboat Co. for 10 years at $3,000 per year and sought to recover $1500 for services in making the arrangement. The answer was a general denial and a claim that plaintiff was paid in full for all services rendered. The court ordered a verdict for defendant. J. W. McAnarney, Esq., appeared for the defendant.

—Again last evening Dedham voted not to accept the sewer act.

Desirable House Lots.
WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

For plans, prices and terms, apply to DR. N. S. HUNTING, 214 Hancock St., Quincy, or to MR. GEO. G. SAVILLE, 5 Greenleaf street, Quincy, and John Hancock Bldg., Devonshire St., Boston.

Abraham Lincoln Said:

"You can fool some of the people all the time." Many bicycle riders are fooled in buying new wheels by a fictitious allowance on their old one.

It is the Easiest Thing in the World

To list a cheap Western wheel $25 more than it is worth. An unscrupulous dealer pushes a wheel of this sort and makes a leader of it, instead of better and more reliable makes, because he can allow far more on a second-hand wheel and still make a bigger profit.

People should remember that no one sells bicycles for health or pleasure, but to make money.

Let Me Ketch 'im.

"Jest let me lay my han's on 'im, and I'll make him wish he never was born." If Uncle Sam wants to whale the enemy, he must first find the enemy. May be he ain't looking in the right place; may be he don't want to find him, but would rather the enemy would see the folly of being the enemy and quit butting his head against a stone wall. You never can tell how some nations and some men do some things. "It's a mystery."

It has been a mystery to us why we don't sell all the Clothing and Furnishings that are sold in Quincy. We ought to. We can't understand how people will pay $12.00 and $15.00 for a Suit when we have the same thing for $9.85 and $11.00.

Why you pay 25 cts. for Neckwear when you can buy it of us for 19 and 12½ cts.

Why the workingmen pay 50c. for Overalls when we have the same for 39c.

Why you buy anything we keep outside of our store when we would have saved you from 5 to 25 per cent.

May be you didn't know it. Well, you have been told often enough; and if you do not believe it, call and see for yourself and we will guarantee you go away satisfied.

We have ordered a lot of good, warm weather and sunshine to be distribed free all over Quincy the rest of this week. It has been to "Dewey."

The annual supper, social and entertainment of the Pine Tree State club took place in the Town Hall, Wednesday evening, and was a very successful occasion. It is seldom that so much is offered for the money as the committee secured for their guests. At 6.30 the members and guests assembled in the upper hall where a reception was held till 7 15 when the large party marched down to a grand banquet prepared in the lower hall. After grace had been said by Rev A A Ellsworh, the choice viands were disposed of while each one present chatted with his neighbor.

The treat of the evening, however was the grand illustrated lecture on "Picturesque Maine," by Mr. Edward C. Sweet of Portland. He took his audience through the great hunting grounds, the lakes, and beside the bubbling brooks of that great state, the rocky shores and ocean rolled breakers and he carried many of his hearers back to the scenes of their childhood. His language was as beautiful as his pictures and it was the universal expression that his lecture was the best of its kind ever given here.

Music was furnished by Henry Binney, piano; C. E. Hunt, violin; L. A. Hayward, clarinet; F. P. Rogers, cornet.

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

THE TUBEROSE.

Points In the Successful Culture of a Favorite Flower.

Lovers of this waxen hued, exquisitely perfumed flower have already started the bulbs in small pots, from which they will transplant to the open. Until transplanting time it is well to remember that a pretty cool atmosphere and plenty of moisture will tend to give a strong plant. A writer in the Ohio Farmer advises: Give an abundant supply of outdoor air, not allowing it to fall directly upon the pot, as the tuberose is a very tender and delicate plant. Set the pot out of doors in the middle of warm sunny days, gradually accustoming the plants to the change. Water only to keep the soil moist. If kept soaked, flower buds will rarely appear.

Transplant to a sunny spot about the 1st of June in good soil well fertilized with old cow manure. The earth should be fine, mellow and very rich. Should there be cold nights in early summer or autumn cover with newspapers, especially at the time of flowering. When the flower stalks appear, tie them to proper supports with strips of soft cloth. Wind, heavy rain and sometimes their weight will cause them to break.

For house culture set the bulbs in May; for succession of bloom, from April to June at intervals of two or three weeks. Fill six inch pots with one part each of sand, leaf mold, well rotted cow manure and good garden soil. Treat as directed for growth in the open, sheltering from the hot sun and keeping in mind the caution in reference to watering.

Pots may be kept on sheltered piazzas during the hottest weather. When the flower stalks have attained three or four inches in height, provide supports and apply to the soil liquid fertilizers. If troubled with green aphis, spray soapsuds or with water to which has been added a drop or two of carbolic acid.

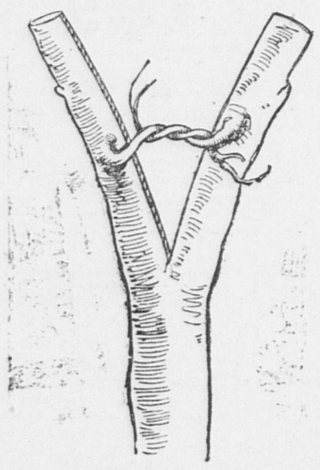

Smilax From Seed.

Smilax may be very readily grown from seed, and Gardening gives information concerning the process: The seeds are of good size, but are very slow about germinating. Almost every seed, however, will come up in the course of time. Germination will be materially assisted if the seed is soaked for from 12 to 24 hours in warm water. It is well to make successive plantings in order to have some of the vines for use while others are resting. The seed may be started out of doors in May or June in a sheltered and slightly shaded bed. The former method is the one usually practiced by florists. The best soil is a well enriched sandy loam. If sown out of doors, the plants may remain in the bed until September; then they may be potted in three inch pots and shifted into large ones as they grow.

Training a Tree.

In training a tree crotches should be avoided if possible, but when a crotch occurs the general form of the tree must determine which branch to remove, says W. W. Munson in Rural New Yorker.

In general, if the branches occupy a nearly horizontal position and one is directly above the other, the lower one should be removed, as it is the one most liable to break under a load of fruit. On the other hand, if the tree is of upright habit, the branch nearest the center of the tree is usually removed. Sometimes both branches should be retained. In this case, splitting may be prevented by means of a bolt or by inarching two small branches, thus forming a natural support. Very often simply twisting the branches together is sufficient. See the figure. After a year or two the union will be perfect, and the ends of the small branches may be removed.

TO PREVENT SPLITTING.

Mere Mention.

"The quicker a tree intended for timber makes height the fewer knots there will be in it," says Country Gentleman.

An equal mixture of blue grass and redtop with a little white clover is used for lawns.

The Ostheim is described as an exceedingly hardy cherry, bearing good crops of fine fruit, black and nearly sweet.

Wood ashes are valuable for the potash and a small proportion of phosphoric acid which they contain and are therefore not a complete fertilizer.

Fortunately the canker worm is beset by enemies from the time the egg is laid till the adult moth dies. Many of our common birds feed upon it. Nevertheless the canker worm is creating alarm.

FIGURED BLUE TAFFETA GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

THE new crisp taffetas, which appear in all the latest and most beautiful colorings, are cool-looking, and lend themselves charmingly to the fashionable mode of trimming with linen, cambric or lawn.

A gown in faience blue, covered with turquoise and white scrolls is combined with white linen embroidery and insertions. The skirt, fashionably cut, with a deep circular flounce, forms an apron, sharply pointed in front, sloping higher at the sides, and finishing at the back each side of the tiny gathers at the middle. Its width is four yards. The decollete blouse displays a plain collar and plastron of the embroidered linen, which is encircled by a quaint little collarette, pointed in the front and back, and with scollops over the sleeves. Linen insertion borders it, and it is fastened at the side, like the corsage, by crystal buttons. The back of the bodice fits snugly to the waist line, where the slight fulness, back and front, is confined by a white kid belt. The small sleeves are in the ordinary gigot fashion, with a pointed trimming of insertion. The proper cut of the gown can be only obtained from the cut paper patterns, published by HARPER'S BAZAR where it appears.

With this gown is worn a French hat of coarsely plated straw. A gauze scarf interlaced with satin bady-ribbons is arranged over the crown. The decoration of the front is a cluster of jetted wings and quills, while under the brim at the back on each side is a mass of deep red and pale-tinted roses resting on the hair.

Quantity of material for gown—taffeta, 16 yards; silk lining, 16 yards; insertion, 5 yards; embroidery, 3-4 yard.

New Vapor Stoves.

It's just fun to cook in summer, if you own a vapor stove and when you consider the saving of fuel, the saving of time and the absolute comfort that goes with them, it's no wonde, people everywhere are beginning to use them.

No Coal, No Wood, No Smell, No Smoke, No Dust, No Ashes. A fire piping hot in a twinkling, ready to bake or to roast, and just by the touch of a finger, it's cold as charity when you're done.

They are economical from beginning to end, and cost almost nothing to run. After using them once, you'll wonder how you ever lived without one. The new process. 1 Burner, $3.50; 2 Burner, $5.00; 3 Burner, $7.50.

CROSSING THOROUGHFARES

Some Sort of Treaty Needed Between Cyclists and Pedestrians.

"Yes," said the observing man after he had been riding for about six weeks, "cycling is a great institution, but before it will become an unqualified success a meeting must be called for the purpose of allowing the wheelman and the pedestrian to arrive at some understanding. I am in favor of a convention or something of that sort.

"As it is now, a rider sees ahead of him a man or woman who is supposed to be endowed with reasonable intelligence. This person is in the act of crossing the street. The individual looks up, sees the rider coming and stands still right in the middle of the street. Of course this is for mentally calculating his chances of getting across safely. One can see the workings of the pedestrian's mind in the muscular contortions of his face.

"In the meantime the rider is getting closer and closer and is in a study equally as profound as to what the person is going to do. The pedestrian takes a step forward, takes another glance up the street, stops, starts back, makes an effort to reach the pavement, stops again, starts forward and stops.

"Of course by this time the cyclist is almost at a standstill and is also zigzagging from one side to the other, waiting and muttering. What is said depends upon whether the rider is a man or woman. The pedestrian seems to give up all possibility of escape, faces the rider, both arms extended, jumps from one foot to the other, and the two collide. The cyclist is thrown to the ground and blamed for the whole performance.

"How easily this might all be avoided. Let the pedestrian, instead of performing all these trying evolutions, merely walk along as though there was nothing behind him, keep his course, and the cyclist will know what to do. He will turn his wheel to one side and slide past with perfect ease and safety.

"When crossing a street, let a man walk along as though there was not a bicycle in the state, and the wheelman will shape his course accordingly. He has control of his wheel and is as anxious not to collide as the other fellow. That's all wheelmen want. They merely ask that people walk along about their business and the riders shall not molest them."—Wheel.

Paced Racing.

It is being confidently counted upon by race meet promoters, track owners and riders that paced racing will be the strong drawing card of the coming season. The great success of Michael from a financial point of view and of other pace followers is the basis of this sentiment, and it seems reasonable. Should it prove that pace followers are practically the only drawing cards next summer, it means that the amateur rider will have almost no chance at all. In competition races between singles the amateurs will simply serve for filling in on a programme. The prizes and the glory they get will be both lowered. In paced races, as the game is being played at present, they have no place. Professionals with records and widely advertised riders who compete for big purses have the call. In the light of these facts it seems strange to some who are interested in racing that no promoter has yet hit upon the idea of having paced races between amateurs. There are many amateur riders who would be willing to join the professional ranks of pace followers if they could but feel confident that they were good enough to have a chance against the cracks who are now winning the fat purses. They think they could develop, but they have had no chance to try themselves out because of there being no such races for amateurs. As in every other kind of sport, there is probably as good material in the amateur ranks among cyclists as there is in the professional field.—New York Sun.

Strange Mishap.

The London Daily Mail tells of an extraordinary mishap to a bicyclist. He was riding his wheel along a road when he heard an explosion and saw a flash. Upon dismounting he found both cover and tube of his back tire split to the extent of three inches. On walking back to the spot where the disaster occurred he found several people looking at the road, and each of them bore out his opinion that some explosive had been the cause of the accident. Upon examination he saw that a quantity of broken glass inclosed in paper and mixed with some solution had been placed on the road.

Don't Smoke While Riding.

Physicians are coming out strongly against the habit of smoking while riding which is so largely indulged in by a number of male riders. This practice overworks the heart, to say the least. According to a prominent physician, "the exertion of riding causes an increase in the strength of the heart's action, not excessive where the exercise is moderate, but sufficient to give the organ all it can do. When tobacco is used in addition to this, there is an extra stimulus to the nerves about the heart and the beat is intensified to a dangerous degree."

A Tale of Woe.

I cannot mind my wheel, mother;
I cannot mind my wheel.
It slips upon the mud, mother,
As if it were an eel.
I thought when Robin taught me
No secret he'd conceal,
But I am still at sea, mother,
Upon this silly wheel.
I feel as if I'd rushed, mother,
Upon some awful fate.
I wonder if I'm flushed, mother,
And if my hat is straight.

If cart or cab comes near me,
I know that I shall squeal.
I cannot mind my wheel, mother;
I cannot mind my wheel.
Like bark on angry foam, mother,
I seem to rock and reel.
I would I were at home, mother,
And at our evening meal.
I hate to see you there, mother,
Upon an even keel,
While I am in despair, mother.
Oh, mother, mind my wheel!

FOR POSTAL PURPOSES.

Agreement Arrived at as to the Sum to Be Appropriated.

Some of the Senate Amendments Concurred In.

The Limitation of Deliveries One of Those Eliminated.

Washington, May 14.—The postoffice appropriation bill has been agreed on in conference. It will be reported to both houses in 10 days or a fortnight, the delay being due to the necessary absence of those in charge of the measure. The following senate amendments were agreed to in conference: Appropriating $12,085,400, which the senate had reduced from $13,085,400, for pay of letter carriers in present postoffices and for substitutes and temporary carriers at summer resorts, holiday and election service; creating a joint commission of three senators and three representatives, appointive by the vice president and speaker, to investigate during the coming recess whether excessive prices are paid railroads for mail transportation and postal car service, and also investigate postal revenue and expenditure, and postage rates; appropriating $50,000 for temporary postoffices at military posts or camps during the existing war; prohibiting additional contracts for pneumatic tubes or similar service unless hereafter authorized by law; providing that correspondence of any government official or to any person or official on departmental business franked shall not exceed two ounces in weight, and providing for notifying senders, if known, of non-delivery of undelivered matter of second, third and fourth classes to afford opportunity to prepay return postage. The appropriation for rural free delivery was fixed at $150,000.

The following amendments were rejected: Limiting expenditures for cancelling machines to $200 for each 50,000 population or fraction thereof above 25,000, and authorizing one cancelling machine in every office; prohibiting payment to sub-contractors of any part of the amount for inland mail transportation, and providing that contracts shall not be let to any person who does not actually carry the mail on star routes; authorizing the postmaster general to reject excessive bids therefor and readvertise; making it a misdemeanor and punishing by heavy fine the failure of railroads to furnish suitable postal cars, or to transport mails when required and on the fastest trains.

The Business Situation.

New York, May 14.—The business situation, as reviewed by Bradstreet's, gains rather than loses in attractiveness. While the situation in cereals is still manifesting itself in many sections of the country, other causes combine therewith to make the outlook for business for the current year a flattering one. Following the rapid advances in prices of wheat which apparently culminated for the time being early in the current week in a quotation for cash wheat unequalled with one exception for 25 years, there has come a reaction from the abnormally high prices.

Perhaps one of the most encouraging features of the week is the reported slight improvement in inquiry and in tone in the wool market at several centers. While as yet unaccompanied by much in the way of new business, the change is none the less a gratifying one. The price situation is still one of great strength, but particularly so in food products, which are, with few exceptions, notably coffee and sugar, higher on the week.

Bank clearings bear testimony to activity, speculative and otherwise, in a total for the week of $1,378,000,000, 17 percent larger than last week, 37 percent larger than in this week a year ago, and 35 percent larger than in 1896. Compared even with the corresponding weeks in 1890 to 1893, inclusive, there are gains varying from a fraction of 1 percent to as high as 17 percent.

The aggregate earnings of the various railroad companies for April show few effects of the dullness, and even depression, complained of in some sections of the country.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

The weather in New England will continue fair till Sunday, followed by increasing cloudiness, and probably showers by Sunday afternoon or night. The foulness depends on the eastward movement of the Texas disturbance. Cooler, followed by slowly rising temperature, variable winds.

BOSTONS CLIMBING.

Another to Their Record of Victories Added by Friday's Game.

Boston, May 14.—Brooklyn's trolley dodgers, unfortunately for the borough of lesser New York, continued their rapid transit act downward on the big league toboggan shute yesterday with the Boston champions. The fielding was about a standoff. Willis went in for the home team and gave another winning exhibition. He had fine control of the ball and kept nearly all of the Brooklyn team guessing. The home team benefited materially by numerous gifts to first base, and of the six runs scored by Boston only one could be counted as earned by stick-work. Collins' lifter in the seventh inning took a home run ride for Boston on a train top outside the left field fence. Miller, a young New England league twirler of one year's experience with Portland of the Maine league the first of last season, and with Fall River until the finish, was in the box for Brooklyn, and gives evidence of being a winner. He had good speed and a nice curve ball, but his wildness was enhanced by a loss of many apparent strikes on home hitters

LACHANCE.

Tucker, Boston's ex-first baseman and coacher, and Ryan, played winning ball for the visitors, and both were given an ovation. "Tom" had his voice tuned up for the occasion. Lachance handled himself well for so large a man at short field. His throwing makes him valuable in the new position. The score:

The Fall Rivers sustained their third defeat of the season when the Pawtuckets succeeded in winning by a score of 5 to 4. They took the lead at the start and held it until the seventh, when a base on balls and two singles gave the Pawtuckets the lead.

Griffith and Connor of the Chicagos had an off day yesterday. This, with the team's inability to solve McAllister gave the Clevelands an easy game, 7 to 3. Tebeau had an argument with O'Day and was sent to the bench in the first inning.

The Phillies defeated the Baltimores in a close and interesting game, 5 to 4. The contest throughout abounded in brilliant bits of fielding in which Lajoie took a prominent part.

The Pittsburgs shut the St. Louis browns out in the best game seen in Pittsburg this season. The features were Padden's long drive to left field for a home run and Donovan's throw from deep right to home, completing a double play. Score: 3 to 0.

The only bright spot in a long drawn out and uninteresting ball game in New York was in the seventh inning, when two doubles, a single and a triple scored three runs for the New Yorks, who won, 9 to 5. The errors on both sides were numerous and rank.

Although Sechrist gave the spectators an attack of heart disease in the ninth inning, the New Bedford players succeeded in winning by the close score of 2 to 1. The Newports stood in a fair way to win in the ninth, when they got one tally and had none out, but a fast double play blasted their hopes.

The Tauntons outbatted the Brocktons, but the superior team work of the latter won the game, 5 to 4. The Tauntons tried Breckenridge at first and Bergen behind the bat, and both did well. Some of Lyons' decisions were objected to by the visitors.

Collapse of Buildings.

New York, May 14.—Several men were killed and a number of others were terribly injured by the collapse of two 5-story flat buildings in course of erection on East 116th street. The rear and side walls fell with a grinding crash that was heard for blocks, carrying some 25 or more bricklayers and laborers with them. When the work of rescue was stopped the list of killed was: Eric Lidden, Fr d Dickeleke, Albert Kaminiski, Peter Saldewario and Frederick Hartman. The wounded are: Peter Pasquale, Sebastian Welsbacher, Frank Riezor, William Cochran and Paul Muller.

Saxon, New Orleans; lecturing knight, Henry D. Cozzens, Des Moines; secretary, George A. Reynolds, Saginaw, Mich., re-elected; treasurer, E. S. Orris, Meadville, Pa., re-elected; tiler, George Meyer, Jr., Pittsburg.

WEIGHT OF THE BALL.

Few Golfers Realize the Importance Which It Plays In Putting.

Few golfers realize the important part which the weight of the ball plays in putting. Most of them have an idea that when they are on the putting green there are only two essentials to make them successful—a good putter and a fair knowledge of the ground. The ball itself is left out of the reckoning, but if a trial is made with two different kinds, say, a 26 and a 28, the result will show that it is quite as important as the others. A stroke that will land one ball in the hole will leave the other several inches short. One may be too strong and the other not strong enough. The same thing will affect the accuracy in approaching, for until a player has gauged the exact qualities of the sphere and knows to a nicety what it will do he can hardly expect to pitch on to the green with confidence.

As a rule, the man who announces his intention of "trying a new ball" declares his own defeat. His partner, who holds fast to the kind he is familiar with, has every advantage. Even two balls of the same make may sometimes vary. In a recent test in London of some of the most popular varieties it was shown that the Henly ball weighed nearly 28½ pennyweight. The Eureka, marked 27½, weighed actually only 26½; the Silvertown, 26½; the Woodley Flier, marked 27½, was 3½ grains overweight, and the Medford, marked 27½, was by actual weight only 27 pennyweight.—Boston Herald.

A "DUMMY BATTER."

Introduced at Princeton University to Give the Pitchers Practice.

The Tigers introduced quite a novelty into their baseball practice the other day. A "dummy batter" was set up by the side of the home plate, and the Princeton twirlers took turns at pitching to it. The idea was to give the pitchers practice in accurate throwing without subjecting the batters to the dangers of being hit or having to dodge.

Last year Professor Hinton invented a "dummy pitcher," but it was found to be impracticable for regular use, and the professor is still experimenting with it at the University of Minnesota, to which place he has moved since last year. It is thought that the "dummy batter" will be more serviceable, as there is no machinery to be operated or put into action.—Philadelphia Press.

TIMELY TURF TIPS.

George West has three pacers with records below 2:09 in his stable.

Marin, Jr., 2:13, is in training at Guttenburg and has trotted a half in 2:10 this season.

Exploit, gray horse, by Clay, is reported to have paced a mile in 2:14¼ thus early at Selma, Ala.

Barley is the principal horse feed in California and is now bringing $26 a ton, with prospects of a rise.

W. Wood, pacer, 2:07, who has been shipped from California to Honolulu, is the fastest light harness horse ever sent abroad.

James Welsh has at the Hartford track Pearl Onward, 2:06½, pacing; Sphinxetta, 2:08½, pacing, and Inta, 2:21¼.

Thalberg, the perennial performer, has been retired from the track at last. He has to his credit 208 heats better than 2:30.

The members of the Belmont Driving club own 42 trotters with records from 2:09¾ to 2:30 and 16 pacers with records from 2:08¾ to 2:30.

The Kinwood Driving association has been organized by some 50 horsemen of Norristown, Pa., the object being matinee races. Dr. C. Z. Weber is president and John Rex secretary.—Turf, Field and Farm.

Pennsylvania's Cricket Captain.

Arthur W. Jones, 1900, who was recently elected to succeed William Morice as captain of the University of Pennsylvania cricket team, was prepared at Penn Charter, although a native of the home of American cricketers, Germantown. He is 18 years old, and for two years has been a member of the first eleven of the Germantown Cricket club. As a member of the varsity eleven in his freshman years his sterling qualities, which have elected him to his present position, were manifest. His playing with the Colts against the Englishmen last summer earned for him the praise of the experts, and his executive ability and thorough knowledge of the game in all its details will undoubtedly make him one of Penn's most successful cricket captains.—Philadelphia Press.

Little Men Prove Their Strength.

Physical Examiner Raycroft of the University of Chicago recently tested the strength of Kyo and Speaner, two of the Eskimos visiting the Field museum in the varsity gymnasium. The little men, though diminutive in stature, proved themselves as strong as the average varsity student. Applying the tests used in the physical examination of university students, it was found that their total strength was 2,136 and 2,284 pounds each. The average total of students entering the university is less than 2,000 pounds. — Chicago Times-Herald.

Work of Cornell Athletes.

"Outside of the lack of fast sprinters and strong shot putters," says a Cornell man, "there is no event but has good men trying for it. We have men doing 21 and 22 feet in the broad jump. Powell can do six feet in the high jump. Walters and Clark in the low and Yale, Ripley and Alexander in the high hurdles are running close to the record. Four of our quarter milers run under 53 seconds, while the competition in the distance runs is as keen as could be desired."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning May 15. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Our bodies God's temples.—I Cor. iii, 16-23. (A temperance topic.)

Christians, both collectively and individually, are referred to in the Scriptures as the temples of God. It is well for us to remember that not only as churches but also as individuals we are God's temples. The Corinthians were forgetting the former. Factions and contentions were marring the church of Christ, and Paul asks them if they did not know that they, as a church, were the temple of God, and reminded them that God destroyed those who defiled his temple. We may forget that our bodies are the temples of God, God's habitation, God's dwelling place, and may defile them, but we should not forget it. It is too important a fact to be forgotten, and its constant remembrance would be a strong barrier to defilement. Who either by meat or drink could defile his body while he remembered that it was the temple of God?

1. The body, as God's temple, should be dedicated to God. It should be given to Him. Both the tabernacle and the temple were dedicated to God when completed. The body should be dedicated to God. It should be used in His service and for His work, and if so dedicated and so used it could not become the tool of appetite or of passion. It would be used temperately in all the relations of life.

2. The body as God's temple should be the dwelling place of God in the person of His Holy Spirit. The temple was the dwelling of God. It was not erected as a place of meeting for the people, but as a house for God to dwell in and there at the mercy seat in the holy of holies He dwelt. "The spirit of God," says Paul, "dwelleth in you." God's Holy Spirit makes our weak and imperfect bodies His habitation, His dwelling place. What a condescension! But how can He dwell where there is sin or defilement?

3. Our bodies as God's temples should be free from defilement. "If any man defile the temple of God, him will God destroy." This was the law in Old Testament times. Those who defiled God's dwelling place were punished by Him. The sacredness of God's temple had to be emphasized, and it always was. Wherever God dwells there should be no defilement and no uncleanness. If, therefore, He dwells in our bodies, they should be every whit clean. The tongue, the hands, the heart, every organ of the body, should be kept clean and pure for God's spirit. This would make intemperance in any direction impossible — intemperance in thought, speech or action. It would forever destroy drunkenness, lust, passion, excessive worldliness or whatsoever would tend to make unclean or to defile.

May this be our aim—to live a life of such purity that our bodies may be a fit dwelling place for God's Holy Spirit.

Bible Readings.—Prov. xx, 1; xxiii, 29-32; Isa. i, 16; v, 11, 12; xxviii, 7-10; Rom. xiii, 12-14; I Cor. vi, 9-13; II Cor. vi, 14-18; Eph. ii, 19-22; Gal. v, 19-26; Heb. iii, 6; I Pet. ii, 1-5.

His Equals In Beauty of Soul.

As there is a higher and holier state for the church, so there is a fairer form for human society, industry and government. It is impossible to set before man an ideal of individual character which attracts him and lifts him up without his soon perceiving that the individual ideal includes a social ideal, and if he be a true man he will be true to both. If as he learns more of Christ he discovers that the only righteous course is one that will diminish profits, lessen influence and alienate friends, will he hesitate? Not for a moment. He will recognize the call of the cross and go forward, toiling up a new Calvary, to the coming crucifixion.—Rev. Frank G. Tyrrell.

The Curfew Custom.

An encouraging "sign of the times" is the somewhat unexpected success which has attended the revival of the curfew custom in some 300 cities in this country. The plan is to require all children under 15 years of age to be in their homes by 9 o'clock in summer and by 8 o'clock in winter. The reduction of arrests of young people has in some places been 75 per cent. May we be speedily delivered from false notions of liberty which do not give young people the wholesome attention which they so much need. Young people who receive street education as "toughs" and "flirts" will make poor citizens.—Moravian.

The Tree of Life.

If any man or woman, any sinner, however unworthy, will begin now and faithfully hereafter shun evils as sins against God (meaning by "God" Him who was the incarnation of unselfish divine love), that same God will dwell with him and be his God and fulfill for him all the promises written in this book, wipe away all tears from his eyes, give him to drink of the water of life freely, lead him in by the gates into the city, but, above all, will impart to him His own life of unselfish love, plant in his heart of hearts the tree of life.—Helper.

The Church and the Congregation.

In the minds of many Christians, congregation begins with a capital C and church with a small c. Nothing is needed so much just at present as to teach them the reverse of this distinction. The church is the greater thing and the congregation many times the lesser. The one is the whole of which the other is but a part, and a part should never seem greater than the whole.—Lutheran.

Trust Him.

Trust Him for a way when there is no way, for light when there is no light, for all things when you have nothing, for joy when there is only sorrow, for life when you are in the midst of death. Thus you will find at last that faith is not only righteousness, but life and joy and peace.—T. T. Munger, D. D.

In olden times mistaken enthusiasts used to inflict upon themselves all manner of painful and horrible tortures. Men scourged themselves with whips and hot irons, and rubbed vinegar into the wounds and wore hair-cloth next to their skin day and night.

Nowadays such cruel torture is discountenanced. Nevertheless, men and women go on torturing themselves, only in a different and more serious manner than of old. They neglect their health, and neglected health means physical torture of the worst description. It means slow starvation. Because a man forces food into a weak and impaired stomach, it does not follow that he feeds his body. The life-giving elements of the food taken into an impaired stomach are not assimilated into the blood. Instead, the impurities of the sluggish liver and bowels are taken up and carried to all parts of the body. The consequence is that the body is not only starved but poisoned. The immediate result is physical suffering from which the old time zealot would have drawn back in horror. The final result is disease and death. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a scientific remedy that acts according to natural laws. It is not a violent spur to nature or a mere artificial appetiser. It gently, but surely and permanently, promotes the natural processes of secretion and excretion. It creates appetite, makes the assimilation of the food perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It builds up firm, muscular flesh. It cures nervous exhaustion, debility, sleeplessness and all the evils that follow in their train. Found at all medicine stores. Accept no substitute that may be represented as "just as good."

"I can heartily recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets' to anyone troubled with indigestion and torpid liver," writes M. G. Crider, Esq., of Leonard, Harlan Co., Ky. "My disease was chronic. Our family physician could do nothing for me. I could not walk nor help myself. I could not eat anything but it caused a horrible distress and gnawing in my stomach. I have taken four bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one vial of your 'Pellets' and can work all day."

A PRIZE ESSAY.

Miss Jeanie J. Joss Writes on "Nature Study."

Nature is man's greatest and grandest teacher, his companion and counselor a part of man himself. She is full of thought for the poet and full of ever-changing pictures for the artist. Therefore the study given to nature ought to be one which is most especially cared for, and in which is felt the greatest interest.

It is not by the chief and mighty wonders of nature that we learn to appreciate her, but it is by those tiny almost unnoticeable, yet most noticeable objects, that her beauty is realized, and becomes impressed upon our minds. In order to feel the existence of this great body we must exert ourselves and look around that we may obtain a wide and clearer view of each separate part and its own work Thus the interest of many famous men has been awakened by the close examination of the commonplace objects, and gradually the way has been led to the natural science of botany and geology.

Nature may be regarded as not only a story book for children but also one for man, presenting to his mind the fuller deeper meaning of life. A true lover of nature not only observes and fully appreciates her pictures, but he also knows that there is something which lies in the great beyond giving the study a reverent side. He learns of a God; no matter what little faith he has, or if he has any, nature forces him to believe, for she not merely gives him the facts but shows them to him. It is not only the result of man's labor presented to our view, but it is God's domain we are treading on.

It is impossible to say how much one would lose if he did not observe the growth and formation of plants, the way and peculiarities of different birds, and in fact all parts of nature. A man who lives without taking note of the things around him does not live at all. He misses the one point in existence which produces beauty. On a bright day in the opening of spring a man takes a walk through the neighboring wood. The warm sunshine has enticed the early songstress back again, and coaxed the tiny vines and creepers from their winter bed into one of soft moss. The rich green carpet upon which he walks makes every step sink deeper into its soft and smooth velvetness. Finally he stops to examine the material of which it is made and how it is constructed. But he is mystyfied. Nothing was ever more wonerfully made than this piece of moss which he holds in his hand. Even man as he stands there strong and great possessing all the powers and abilities of his race, is not more mysteriously formed than the perfectness of this small green plant. This is one little specimen of the outside world yet how much it envolves, and what extent of knowledge one may obtain from it, whose attention is drawn in that line. One of nature's greatest lessons taught by the flowers, the ordinary daisy found in the meadow, and the common every day clover by the roadside, all try to show us how competely their flower life is finished. If we make our lives as perfect and perform our duties as faithfully and honestly as our; flower friends, each year bringing forth all that is expected of us, and giving gladness and beauty to the world, thus cheering and brightening the lot of others, much of the sadness of earth would be done away with.

Keith's Theatre.

Miss Rose Coghlan's success in the vaudeville has been the most pronounced of any legitimate player who has yet appeared in the continuous performance houses, and the increased attendance was the best indication that the enterprise of the management in securing such a high-salaried player was fully appreciated by the theatre-going public. The week of May 16 Miss Coghlan will appear in a new one-act play, dealing with Colonial history, entitled "Washington's surrender," having to do with his capitulation to Martha Custis, however, and not to the British. Other entertainers will be: Edmund Hayes and Emily Lytton, in a burlesqe on "Camille"; Ray L. Royce, the prince of mimics and impersonators; Rossow Midgets, lilliputian acrobats and boxers, a great act for the cnildren; Falke and Semon, musical comedians.

Abraham Lincoln Said:

"You can fool some of the people all the time." Many bicycle riders are fooled in buying new wheels by a fictitious allowance on their old one.

It is the Easiest Thing in the World

To list a cheap Western wheel $25 more than it is worth. An unscrupulous dealer pushes a wheel of this sort and makes a leader of it, instead of better and more reliable makes, because he can allow far more on a second-hand wheel and still make a bigger profit.

People should remember that no one sells bicycles for health or pleasure, but to make money.

WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

For plans, prices and terms, apply to DR. N. S. HUNTING, 214 Hancock St., Quincy, or to MR. GEO. G. SAVILLE, 5 Greenleaf street, Quincy, and John Hancock Bldg., Devonshire St., Boston.

SPANISH GAME OF HIDE AND SEEK.

Keeping Out of Danger as Long as Possible.

TRYING TO REACH CUBA.

Speedy Termination of War Hangs on a Meeting.

IT IS POSSIBLE TO REACH CIENFUEGOS.

Plan to Destroy the Enemy's Fleet Now Off Martinique.

Washington, May 16.—Every energy of the administration is being turned to bring about a meeting with the Spanish fleet in West Indian waters. The capture or destruction of the fleet which is now cruising through the Caribbean sea is the all important and essential preliminary to the speedy termination of the war and the accomplishment of the result for which the war was begun. So long as the Spanish men-of-war are at liberty either to convey aid and comfort to Blanco's beleaguered forces in Havana or to undertake offensive operations against American vessels anywhere or against exposed ports on the gulf or Atlantic seaboards, the United States will be seriously hampered in its plan of campaign and the day for evacuation of Cuba will be delayed.

The Spanish admiral appreciates this fact as much as it is appreciated by the government in Washington, and his sole purpose, apparently, is to avoid a meeting with the fleets until he shall have been able to carry out the mission which was intrusted to him when he left Cape Verde islands. Thus far he has succeeded admirably in his purpose, and with his swift flying cruisers he has been able to evade our fleets and to secure positions from which it may be possible to carry out the project which he has in view. He has the natural advantage which always comes to the one who is evading a pursuer. He can select his own course and can keep his pursuers guessing what he intends to do. Sooner or later he must be caught, and the point now is to cathc him before he shall have been able to do any harm.

The failure of Admiral Cervera to steam toward Havana has left the administration in doubt as to what his immediate purpose may be. It was the obvious course for him under the conditions which were known to exist when he left Martinique to make all haste for Havana and relieve the garrison there, while the most effective ships of the American navy were hundreds of miles away. But the obvious course would have been foreign to the Spanish mind, which delights in roundabout operations calculated to throw an enemy off the scent. It is now thought that the Spanish fleet will try to make Cienfuegos ahead of the American squadron, and by occupying the harbor there open up communication with Blanco, or else to leave Cuba altogether out of the present calculations, and in seeking the gulf of Mexico prey upon the cities of the coast. It is possible for Cervera to make Cienfuegos before either Sampson or Schley can cut him off, and should he do this he might work a great deal of damage by picking up the smaller boats of the American fleet which are cruising along the Cuban coast. But once in the harbor he would be bottled up, and it would be a question of only a day or two when the heavily armored ships of Schley and Sampson would appear, ready to do battle.

Having information that several Spanish vessels are attempting to blockade the Harvard in St. Pierre, beside that relative to the Terror, the naval war board has taken steps to insure the safety of the auxiliary cruiser, to destroy the Spanish vessels engaged in blockading and to capture or destroy the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer.

There is reason to believe that orders have been cabled to the commanding officer of the auxiliary cruisers Yale and St. Louis and the protected cruiser Montgomery to destroy the Spanish vessels outside the three-mile limit of the island and to blockade the Terror in Fort de France.

This counter-move is most important. If the Spanish vessels in the neighborhood of Martinique are destroyed, and the Terror is effectually blockaded at Fort de France, the Spanish squadron will, of necessity, be compelled to go to her relief. If she should attempt to escape, and is destroyed or captured, the Spanish force will be crippled by the loss of one of its most effective vessels—a boat that is intended for service against armorclads or against small ships, and that can be used for scouting duty. It is not believed that Spain would leave her destroyer at the mercy of the American ships, so that it is possible Admiral Cervera's squadron may find it necessary to come to the relief of the Terror.

The army's first move of an aggressive quality has proven a failure, Captain J. H. Dorst, the army officer who conducted an expedition to Cuba with supplies and munitions for the insurgents, has returned to Key West. He was unable to effect a landing, and wherever an attempt was made he found the Spanish soldiers awaiting him.

Army officers say that the failure of this preliminary expedition was due to the fact that the navy had not been asked to co-operate with this military movement. They believe it would have been possible to carry out the plans of the war department had the navy furnished proper protection.

It does not appear that the services of naval vessels were requested, and the Dorst party seems to have been independent of any force which the navy is maintaining in Cuban waters. It was said that the expedition was one of very little importance, but it would doubtless have been followed up had some effective means been established of furnishing supplies to the insurgents.

Secretary Long has received this cablegram from Admiral Dewey: "Am maintaining strict blockade. Reason to believe rebels are hemming in the city by land, but they have made no demonstration yet. Scarcity of provisions in Manila. Probable the Spanish governor will have to surrender soon. Can take Manila any time. May 12 captured the Spanish gunboat Callao trying to run the blockade. Have plenty of coal. One British, one German, one French and one Japanese warships here, coaling."

In Adjutant General Corbin's office important action in the assignment of volunteer troops to the various mobilizing points was taken Sunday. The order of assignment shows that there has been some change regarding the points to which volunteers shall be sent, as a great portion of them go to Chickamauga, while those who will come to Washington are less by 10,000 than was originally assigned to this city. Maine, Vermont and Massachusetts will be represented in Chickamauga by one regiment of infantry each; one regiment of Massachusetts infantry will go to Key West and another to Washington; and to department commanders will be assigned one regiment of infantry, and a battery of light and two batteries of heavy artillery from Connecticut, one battery of heavy artillery from Maine, one regiment of heavy artillery and a regiment of infantry from Massachusetts, and a regiment of infantry from Massachusetts.

ADJUTANT GENERAL CORBIN.

War department officials are gratified at the progress being made in the mustering of the force of 125,000 volunteers called for by the president. Reports up to Sunday indicated that 65,000 volunteers had been mustered. Before the call for volunteers was issued the adjutant generals of the various states were requested to inform the war department how long it would take them to put their forces into the field ready for duty. Some of the replies put the time as low as 24 hours; but it has developed that a much longer time than was generally fixed has been required. While some of the volunteers are well equipped, the majority are not. Telegrams indicate clearly that the troops are by no means ready for the field. One battery commander wired the department that his command was in complete readiness for service, except that he yet lacked guns, gun carriages, horses, harness, ammunition and uniforms. Many of the volunteers have gone into the state camps without sufficient or proper clothing. The telegrams received from almost every state show that something material is needed to complete the equipment of every regiment. It was for the reason that the necessities lacking could be better supplied at the permanent camps than at the state camps that urgent orders were issued that the volun-

TOO EXPERT AND FAST

Worcester's Indignation Over Oarsman Ten Eyck's Treatment.

Caustic Letter to Britishers on Rejection of His Entry.

Accused of Being Afraid to Meet Last Year's Champion.

Worcester, May 16.—The Wachusett boat club of this city, of which Edward H. Ten Eyck, the Henley champion of 1897, is a member, has prepared a letter that is to be sent to the stewards of the Henley regatta, asking for reasons why Ten Eyck's entry was rejected this year. The letter closes with the following: "But one natural conclusion follows, and that is accepted by this club as the real reason for the rejection of the entry of Mr. Edward Hanlon Ten Eyck for the diamond challenge sculls, and that is that he is too expert a sculler and too fast for the contestants in the Henley royal regatta."

E. H. TEN EYCK.

The shell in which Ten Eyck won the championship at Henley last year was wrecked by his father while he was taking a spin at Lake Quinsigamond. He poked the nose of the boat into the shore while going at a rapid rate and sprang the boat from stem to stern, tearing off the covering for abut three feet from the bow. The shell may be repaired, but it cannot be used in a race again.

Brady Takes Water.

Boston, May 16.—It develops that there was a large sized cord attached to Corbett's $25,000 offer and $10,000 side bet for another meeting with Fitzsimmons. At a meeting between the managers of the two men, Martin Julian said to W. A. Brady: "I understand, Billy, that Corbett offers Bob $25,000 if he does not stop him in 10 rounds."

"Oh, no," replied Brady. "What Jim does offer is a purse of $25,000, with the proviso that if Fitz is on his feet at the end of 10 rounds the fight shall go to a finish."

Then Julian asked Brady: "Will you agree to meet Fitz for $25,000 and a side bet of $10,000 in private?"

"Well, I guess not," replied Brady. "Why should we put up the money when we can get some club to put up the $25,000 purse?"

More talk followed, but nothing was done toward making a match. While the managers were chatting, Fitz came along, and after nodding pleasantly to Brady, approached his manager and asked: "Did you do anything?"

"No," replied Julian emphatically.

The meeting was interpreted by those who knew of it as practically settling the question, "Will Corbett and Fitz meet again?"

Deserted by His Backer.

New York, May 16.—Although he has been deserted by his financial backer, Peter Maher is to be given another chance to prove his superiority over Joseph Goddard, who defeated him so easily last week. It is to be for a purse of $7500 and is to come off before the Greater New York Athletic club at Coney Island on Saturday evening, May 28.

The Irish champion feels considerably done up after the summary licking he received from Goddard, but he is fully alive to the importance of avenging that defeat.

Paragraphs on Baseball.

Nine errors tell how the Clevelands won in Chicago yesterday, 5 to 2. Only four hits were made off Isbell's delivery, but his support was about as bad as ever happened.

The Cincinnatis won an 11-inning game from the Louisvilles yesterday on a double, a sacrifice and a put out in the final inning. The game was replete with sensational fielding. Score: 4 to 3.

Lester German, the whilom pitcher, is playing third base for the Rochester club of the Eastern league.

The veteran Sam Wise is holding down second base for the Buffalos in first-class style, and is hitting strongly.

Lajoie, Sheckard and McCarthy are a trio of New England league graduates who are raising the mischief with pitchers this season.

Street Railway Blocked.

The travelling public who use the street cars on Hancock street between Quincy and Neponset are justly kicking at the way they are being inconvenienced by the slow progress being made by the contractor who is building the sewer between West Elm avenue and Woodbine street, for he has blocked up the tracks. Until the sewer is out of the way it is impossible for the street railway to run its cars and passengers must go via Norfolk Downs or Wollaston which is somewhat longer than the direct route. The contractor has until the first of July to complete his contract but at the rate the sewer is progressing now he will not be able to complete it in the specified time.

He has a deep cut to make but that should not hinder his advancing more rapidly as he could if he would put on a few more men than he now has at work. For some reason, best known to himself, he does not seem inclined to hasten matters any, although the time given him in his contract to have it completed is drawing near. It is rumored that realizing that he can not complete the section within the specified time he is about to apply to the Sewer Commissioners for an extension of time. If this is so the citizens should enter their protest and the Commissioners should demand that he finish the section within the specified time or forfeit his bond and throw up the job.

Q. Y. C. News.

The regular meeting of the executive committee of the Quincy Yacht club was held at the Adams building on Saturday evening. The challenge from the Savin Hill Yacht club for the cup was read and accepted. The style of lettering to be placed on the challenge cup was adopted. The House committee was authorized to purchase a new uniform for the janitor. Secretary Whiting and Mr. William H. Shaw were deputed to take charge of the handicap races. It was ruled that no yacht can sail in a handicap of the club which has previously sailed in more than one race given under the auspices of the Association, or intends subsequently to sail in any of the races given under the auspices of the Association during the season.

The Quincy Yacht club house went into commission on May 15, as is the usual custom.

Odd Fellow's Funeral

Nearly one hundred Odd Fellows representing Mt. Wollaston lodge, No. 80, and Shalom encampment, No. 12, of Dorchester attended the funeral of Past Grand Dudley Folsom at West Quincy, Sunday afternoon. They met at the lodge room and took a special car to the house. Rev. C. W. Wilder of the West Quincy M. E. church read from the Scriptures and led in prayer, and spoke in eulogy of the good old man. Noble Grand Furnald and Chaplain Macleod performed the Odd Fellows' burial services at the house. There were many beautiful floral offerings including an emblematic pillow from the lodge. Bros. C. M. Jenness and N. B. Furnald escorted the remains to Laconia, N. H., today.

FOUGHT IT OUT.

Drinking and Dispute Which Led Led to Stabbing.

There was a stabbing affray at the rooms of the Lone Star Athletic club on Centre street, Sunday night. During a quarrel William Phillips received five stabs at the hands of James Smith. From what has been learned the two men had been to Nantasket during the day and had drank more or less liquor. Quincy was reached during the early evening and they started for their homes at South Quincy. On the way home the two men got into an argument of some kind, and being unable to agree they decided to settle the argument with their fists. For this purpose they adjourned to the rooms of the club. There was also present Michael Owens, John and Joseph McCarthy. How long the fight lasted or who was getting the best of it is not known, but suddenly Smith drew a knife and plunged into Phillips, until he had been stabbed eight times and fell to the floor from loss of blood. One cut was in the abdomen, three on the body and four in the arm.

Of the eight cuts one only is considered serious. This one penetrated the left lung. When the others present realized that a knife had bene used someone went for the police and Officer Bradley was soon upon the scene He summoned Dr. Dion, who dressed the wounded man and he was removed to his house near by. Whether the stab in the lung will result fatally can not as yet be determined, but if everything goes well it will be several weeks before he will be able to appear in court.

Smith, who had in the meantime left the scene, was later arrested at his home by Officer Bradley. Owen and the two McCarthys who were present were also placed under arrest.

Administered Whitewash.

Adams defeated Salem High for the second time Saturday in a well played game. Adams played a clean game, making but two errors. In the third inning Burchsted made an elegant catch, taking in a long hit when the ball was close to the ground. In the seventh, Taylor put the ball into right field for three bases. Salem High put up a good game although they were not used to the grounds.

SIDEWALK ORDER.

A Protest from One Who Thinks It Arbitrary.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The order which has been put into the City Council directing the city to expend the sum of $25,000, for the construction of concrete sidewalks over certain sections of specified streets has attracted wide spread attention and diverse opinions from the citizens. It is not to be wondered at, as this is a radical step for the city to propose to take.

Before this order reaches its final stage in the Council it would seem to be well to examine into it closely and endeavor to understand what its effect will be upon the city as a whole and also upon the abutters, who are compelled by law to assume at least fifty per cent. of the cost of construction. Throwing aside the fitness of the location of the sidewalks as specified, the order proceeds to deal with a principle of a far wider character, a principle which few cities have dared to undertake to solve, and which in our larger cities, Boston included, are considered unwise and manifestly unjust. The contention set forth in the order is represented as being an application of the fact that the city may order citizens to do whatsoever it decrees. To be sure the order comes under general sidewalk law of 1897, but it is extremely doubtful if those who drafted the bill supposed that it would work a grievous wrong upon people.

The order says that so many feet of sidewalk shall be built on Hancock street, or Granite street, as the case might be, regardless of the fact that there may already have been laid good sidewalks of binding gravel or some other good material, and that these shall be torn up and a concrete sidewalk laid in front of these several premises. Now, the law under which this order is drawn distinctly states that the sidewalk can be made of gravel. In a great many instances this despotic application by the Council will work a great hardship to people who are in moderate circumstances.

An instance has been brought to the writer's attention of a gentleman in Ward One who resides on a street upon which it is proposed to construct one of these sidewalks. He was born and brought up on the place upon which he now lives. He is getting along in years and has hard work to make both ends meet. His lot has a frontage of 300 feet. It is computed that calling the edgestones set at 64 cents a running foot and the concrete was at a dollar a square yard that his share of the assessment would be about $200. And, he pathetically added, "I can't pay it; I've got to let the city sell the old homestead and struggle along the best that I can somewhere else." His case is but one of many.

Another case which has been cited, is where there is a stretch of 1100 feet of this sidewalk opposite some vacant land. The owner lives in Buffalo The property is not in the market. It is estimated that his share will be $500, and the lot in question abuts upon one of the best gravel sidewalks in the city with curbing nearly the whole length.

On the other hand if the city would appropriate $25,000 or perhaps a less amount and not specify the location, allowing property owners who are well to do to take advantage of the provision as in years past the a great good would be done.

It is almost unprecedented for a city to pass such an arbitrary order as the one which is now before the council.

With the sewer assessments which will also soon be levied, it makes double taxation for many people, making them assume obligations which it will be extremely hard for them to meet. Quincy is not a rich city, and, as a rule its citizens are not. This fact should be taken into consideration by the Council.

Live and Let Live.

The Public Landing.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Will you kindly permit a few lines in your paper regarding a public landing at Quincy Point bridge. It is a very dangerous arrangement. For a person familiar with a boat and the current, it may be safe, but for persons green, or amateurs in handling a boat, it is dangerous, as the current at the point suggested is swift and strong.

The space being narrow, if they miss the landing and are carried against the piles to the bridge, they are liable to capsize their boat, and possibly drown someone. The proper place would be above the steam boat wharf of the electric railway, and I have no doubt the company would give their consent But, where it is contemplated to put it, I strongly protest, as being dangerous to life. The fact that the Class of 1901 prize was divided between these young ladies was a bit confusing. The essay by Miss Joss on "My Favorite Books" will probably be printed in the Ledger next Saturday.

QUINCY. TWO STORES. NORWOOD.

The People's Choice.

The community decides which shall be the most popular wheel for the season. The stirling qualities of the DAYTON have pushed it well to the front.

There are no "outs" about this wheel. It is an all-round good bicycle. Even mildly-enthsiastic bicyclers grow eloquent in its praises.

All the standard wheels for 1898 are in our stock.

WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

The DAILY LEDGER now has correspondents in different parts of Weymouth, but solicits news from all citizens and invites correspondence on matters of local interest. News agents sell the Ledger.

Rev. F. B. Cressey of the First Baptist church of this place started in on the second year of his pastorate for that society. Brief as has been the period which Mr. Cressy has been here, both the financial and social conditions of the church have been imp.oved. The membership has also been increased.

The steam roller is at work on Bridge street, making a fine road, and this will make a smooth surface from Quincy Point bridge way through Weymouth.

Bert Delano spent Sunday in town.

Harry Silver has purchased a new wheel. Harry had one stolen from his shed last Sunday night and now has reached the conclusion that instead of putting a lock on his wheel, it would be a pretty good scheme to put one on his shed.

Mrs. George Bates and Miss Alice Allen of Lynn are visiting Mr. Joseph Taylor.

Miss Maud Townsend sang May 10 at the Sons of Veterans' fair at the Odd Fellows' opera house at East Weymouth.

Rev. F. B. Cressey took for the subject of his sermon Sunday morning "Watchfulness and Salvation." In the evening he delivered an interesting discourse entitled "God's Love and Spain's Hate."

A May Basket party will be held in the Porter M. E. church Monday evening.

Charles Pierce who has been spending several days with Charles Willoby has returned home.

At Pythian Hall Sunday Rev. H. S. Snyder paeached a very interesting ser mod entitled "Persistent Prayer."

Miss Maud Townsend has resigned her position, at the Union church, South Weymouth and taken a position as soprano in a quartette at Brockton, in the South Congregational church.

Mr. Edward Howley's house has been newly painted.

The residents of Lovell's Corner are very patriotic with their decorations of flags.

At 3 o'clock Sunday, afternoon the corner stone of the new Union Congregational churce of Weymouth and Braitree was laid. The ceremony was performed by Mrs. Martha Loud, one of the oldest members of the society, and the only surviving daughter of Rev. Jonas Perkins, pastor of the society from the year 1815 to 1860. The services were simple, but impressive, consisting of:

Singing Doxology.
Scripture Reading, by Rev. H. S Snyder, present pastor of the society.
Lords Prayer. Audience.
Laying of stone,, Mrs. Martha Loud
Song, America, Audience.
Benediction, Rev. H. S. Snyder.

Before the close of the ceremony, Charles T. Crane, secretary and treasurer of the society, read the list of the contents of the which was placed under the stone. TWO WEEKS OR LONGER

Consideration of Revenue Bill May Take That Time.

Republicans to Work For a Bond Proposition.

Outline of the Measure For Taking the Next Census.

Washington, May 16.—The war revenue bill will occupy the attention of the senate this week almost to the exclusion of other business, and there is no probability that it can be disposed of during the week. The opponents of the bill disavow any intention unnecessarily to delay the perfection of this legislation; but they do not conceal their purpose of taking time to present their views on the various questions involved, and it looks as if it would be impossible for them to do this within less time than two weeks. The principal portion of the debate will be on the report of the Republican members of the committee in favor of restoring the bond provisions. The probabilities are that this proposition will prevail if the war continues, but before a vote can be reached upon it there will be a great deal of talk for and against it. The entire financial question will be involved to an extent, and probably most of the senators who opposed the bond issue will be heard before the conclusion of the discussion.

NEXT CENSUS.

Radical Departure From Others In the Scope of Inquiries.

Washington, May 16.—If a new bill which the senate committee on the census has reported as a substitute for the one that has been on the calendar for some time is passed, the 12th census will be a radical departure from the 10th and the 11th in the scope of its inquiries and the bulk of the resulting publications.

The bill provides that the census shall be restricted to inquiries relating to population, mortality, and products of agriculture and mechanical and manufacturing establishments. The enumerators will have at most but four schedules to master and carry in their rounds, against 13 at the 11th census. In cities with an acceptable system of registration of mortality statistics and with the manufacturing schedules in the hands of special agents, there will be but two schedules. Regarding the publications in connection with the census it is provided that there shall be only the volumes relating to the four subjects of inquiry name. These volumes, it is believed, will be of only moderate size, four in number, and it is expected that they can be available for general use in 1902. Past experience shows that the census reports can be published thus early.

Realizing the existence of a demand for statistical information on a great variety of topics more or less intimately related to, but not necessarily and inseparably connected with, the taking of the decennial census, the bill provides that after the census proper has been completed the director is authorized to collect statistics relating to special classes, including the insane, feebleminded, deaf, dumb and blind; crime, pauperism and benevolence; births and deaths in registration areas; social statistics of cities; public indebtedness, valuation, taxation and expenditures; religious bodies; electric light and power, telegraph and telephone business and street railways. The statistics thus collected need not necessarily relate to the year 1900, but may be brought up to date giving the reports a greatly increased value.

If congress does not assign to the census bureau the work of collecting statistics on the special topics referred to, then the work of the bureau would naturally terminate with the completion of the 12th census. The committee is of opinion, however, that if congress deems it necessary to collect statistics upon any of these topics, the provisions for continuous work by the bureau must be retained in the bill, or the effort to abridge or limit the scope of the 12th census, so as to secure more prompt publication of the reports must be abandoned.

An interesting feature of the bill is the part which deals with the appointment of employes for the bureau. It provides that they shall be appointed by the secretary of the interior, subject to examination by the director of the census, as was done in the 11th census. The argument for this runs: "The director, who will be charged with responsibility for the prompt and efficient performance of the task assigned him can, and undoubtedly will, devise and strictly adhere to a system of examination calculated to test the fitness of applicants for employment destined to lead to more satisfactory results than could possibly be hoped for through any other channel. Rules and regulations promulgated with special reference to the steady and unvarying employment in the regular departments of the public service could not with propriety be inflexibly applied to a clerical force to be quickly assembled and rapidly diminished as the work approached completion. The director of the census should not be restrained and hampered by laws, regulations and rules not having special reference to the requirements of the particular and exacting service he will be called upon to render."

Great Step Forward.

Washington, May 16.—H. H. Hanna, chairman of the executive committee representing the Indianapolis monetary convention, speaking of the banking bill ordered reported to the house by the banking and currency committee, said: "The bill seeks to maintain the parity of all monies or currencies; to favor silver as the larger change or market money of the people; to create an issue and redemption division of the treasury; to put the burden of the redemption of the greenbacks upon the national banks; to restrict the reissue of greenbacks redeemed by the government except in exchange for gold; to provide for the cancellation of greenbacks by use of idle gold in the treasury, and to authorize a test beginning of the use of general credit currency by the national banks. It is a great step forward."

"Live the Americans."

London, May 16.—The Hong Kong correspondent of The Standard says: "After the seizure of the gunboat Callao for trying to run the blockade, the crew were released on parole and the Callao was paraded in full view of Manila city, accompanied by the United States cruiser Concord.

"When Mr. Williams, the American consul, landed at Cavite last week, he was received with great enthusiasm, and followed through the streets by a crowd of 2000 people, shouting: 'Live the Americans.' There were no signs that the Spanish authorities in Manila were prepared to capitulate. All the Spanish inhabitants and many British and German families have sought safety in the suburbs, taking all their belongings. In the business quarters the buildings are covered with foreign flags, the British predominating, with a view of protection should the insurgents capture the city.

"There is much feeling against the British residents; but fortunately the number of foreign men-of-war off Manila is constantly increasing, and the position of Europeans is daily becoming less precarious. Aguinaldo, the former insurgent leader, is now in Hong Kong, actively negotiating, I understand, with President McKinley. I have reason to believe that he is seeking to arrange for the future government of the Philippines by a native administration under the protectorate of the United States. At present there is a great deal of discussion among the rebel faction, some of which are negotiating with the Americans and others with the Spanish authorities. Whether Aguinaldo possesses enough influence to reconcile these differences and to influence the insurgents to pursue a common policy is questionable. Admiral Dewey is well advised in waiting for reinforcements, since the fall of Manila would produce anarchy throughout the island."

Officers In Revolt.

Boston, May 16.—It is likely that some of the officers of the Massachusetts naval militia will send in their resignations and refuse to serve longer on the ships of the regular navy unless prompt action is taken. "At the very first all of these men," said one officer, "stepped to the front and freely and gladly offered their humble services. Many of the officers have given their time and attention to the duties aboard the Minnesota and the monitors Catskill and Lehigh. Almost all of them being in business, they have suffered much financial loss. They have been obliged to make some outlay besides, and to engage men to take their places in business, besides furnishing their mess aboard ship. They have received no state pay, nor have they received any money from the national government. Almost all of them have taken their examinations and passed favorably, and all expect reasonably enough to receive their commissions in the regular service; but the commissions have not yet arrived, and neither has word of them come from Washington. Many of the men of the brigade have been mustered into the regular service and are now full fledged man-of-warsmen. Of course, it is not the intention of these officers to resign from the naval brigade. They will simply resign from their present volunteer posts on the auxiliary crafts."

Admiral Sampson's Movements.

Cape Haytian, Hayti, May 16.—The United States torpedo boat Porter and the storeship Supply, which have been here waiting orders, have sailed to join Admiral Sampson's squadron. The squadron passed Cape Haytian Sunday. It is uncertain whether it will turn southward to meet the Spanish fleet, or go first to Key West.

City Not Bombarded.

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, May 16.—Inquiries have been made from the United States regarding the facts about the opening of the bombardment of San Juan, the capital of Porto Rico, it being reported that Spain claims that the city was bombarded, and that the action of Admiral Sampson was an act of vandalism, to which the attention of the powers would be called by the government of the queen regent. The contention of the Spanish government that the city itself had been bombarded is false in every particular. There would have been no firing at all had not the foolhardy garrison at Morro begun it.

Admiral Sampson acted at Porto Rico exactly as he did while blockading Cuba. So long as the batteries there did not molest his ships his orders were that there was to be no shooting, but when the Spaniards fired on his vessels the latter were instructed to destroy the batteries. These orders were not issued until the Spanish fire at different Cuban ports became so irritating to the American bluejackets that discipline was in a measure threatened; but as soon as the men learned that they were to no longer remain passive targets for the Spaniards, but were to return any shot against them, all grumbling against inaction ceased, and the world knows the disastrous results to the Spaniards at Matanzas, Cardenas and other ports which opened fire on the American warships.

Evangelists and the Army.

Tampa, Fla., May 16.—When the United States troops at Tampa embark for Cuba they may be followed soon after by some of the famous evangelists in the United States. General O. O. Howard, retired, now an evangelist, arrived Sunday, accompanied by Major D. W. Whipple. As most of the regiments are without chaplains, the sending to Cuba of several noted divines to work among the soldiers is contemplated. It is hardly probable that they will accompany the soldiers when the expedition moves out; but when the army is settled in Cuba and the campaign against the Spanish forces is fairly on, evangelical work will be actively begun.

GENERAL O. O. HOWARD.

News From Havana.

Madrid, May 16.—The Official Correspondence publishes a note as to Cuban affairs which is much commented upon. The note asserts that affairs in Cubba wear a more reassuring aspect; that the submission of numerous insurgents is expected, and that the Spanish negotiations with the principal insurgent chiefs offer possibilities of success.

The Madrid press and the people are elated over the alleged smartness of Admiral Cervera in sending Admiral Villamil to Martinique 36 hours after the former was well on his way to Havana. While it was supposed that Villamil was scouting ahead, he was really the squadron's rear guard, the Spanish thus gaining invaluable time.

Mr. Gullon, in reply to a newspaper representative, said the Americans were blameworthy for bombarding towns without giving warning, and added that the government would address a note to the powers on the subject. He declared also that a red book would be presented to the chamber on Wednesday next, in which the government "declares the blockade of Cuba ineffective and expresses the hope that the powers in Europe and America will refuse to recognize it."

Will Not Sue For Peace.

London, May 16.—A dispatch to The Times from Madrid confirms an official denial at the Spanish capital that the cabinet changes are connected with a peace movement. The correspondent says: "The conclusion to be drawn from the reorganization, that they are seeking a peaceable solution of the question, has for the moment been abandoned, and the war will be prosecuted vigorously."

Goodbye to the Soldiers.

South Framingham, Mass., May 16.—The chief event of interest to the volunteers in camp yesterday was the announcement that the Eighth regiment would leave at once for the south. The camp was crowded all day with friends of the soldiers, many of whom called to say goodbye, as it seems probable that before another Sunday all three of the regiments will be in the south or on their way there. Religious services were held at the headquarters of all the regiments.

A telegram was received at midnight from Washington ordering the Sixth regiment, Colonel Woodward, commanding, out. The order is to proceed immediately to Washington and report at Fort Meyer. The Sixth may leave this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 16.—The Advertiser is of the opinion that if "the present Madrid government contemplates any important military or naval movement, it is likely to be one which could be carried out, if at all, within two or three weeks, and which, if it fails, will probably be followed by an appeal for peace."

"Between a subsidized press and their own amazing illiteracy the Spanish people," says The Journal, "are persuaded that the war is going pretty well for them, and they are, most of them, determined that it shall continue. When the inevitable clash of the two fleets in the West Indies comes, Spain is liable to have a rude awakening."

It looks to The Globe "as if our opponents had possessed themselves of but one point of superiority, greater speed capacity, and at most that should only aid them to run away and live to fight another day."

The Post says: "There is one chance of salvation for the Spanish Cape de Verde fleet, and that is to go back the way it came. It will not be safe even in Porto Rican waters."

Death of Violinist Remenyi.

San Francisco, May 16. — Edward Remenyi, the Hungarian violinist, dropped dead at the Orpheum theater Sunday afternoon while performing. Three thousand persons were in the audience, and the famous virtuoso played as though inspired. When the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" ceased, there was a torrent of bravos. The applause was almost deafening, and continued for several minutes. Remenyi and his accompanist, E. S. Rosner, came forward and in the response to another burst of applause, the great Remenyi commenced to play "Delibes Fizzicatii." He had just played a few bars of the difficult fingering when he leaned forward as if to speak to one of the musicians in the orchestra, continuing his piece. He seemed to pause for a moment and then slowly fell forward on his face. One of the musicians caught him just before he struck the stage and prevented him from rolling off. All was over. He was carried from the stage and physicians immediately summoned, but the aged musician was past medical aid. The doctors worked upon him for some time, but their efforts were futile. Remenyi had seemed overwhelmed at the reception given him.

In addressing a gathering of friends at his hotel Remenyi said among other things: "I will play three-quarters of my life; I will play all my life, and I will play after I am dead. My hands are still limber and my arms are still strong." Remenyi was born in Hungary 84 years ago. He leaves a widow, a son and daughter in New York.

The warehouse of Ball Bros.' fruit jar glass works in Muncie, Ind., was destroyed by fire. Loss, $285,000.

Hattie Jordan, 17 years old, took a dose of rough on rats in Haverhill and died. The parents can assign no reason for the act.

The Heine monument, rejected by four American and two German cities, was secretly accepted by the municipal art commission of New York on May 5.

There has been little material change in Mr. Gladstone's condition since Friday. His debility is extreme and seems to be increasing. Happily he is free from suffering and his mind is perfectly placid.

The Spanish steamer, Montserrat, left Cienfuegos on the 6th for Spain. Marquis de Comellas, general manager of the Spanish Trans-Atlantic company, gave Captain Deschamps, her commander, $10,000 for having saved the ship and her important cargo.

Three unoccupied cottages in Nantasket, Mass., owned by P. J. Maguire of Boston were almost completely destroyed by fire. Two of the cottages had just been completed, while the third was nearly finished. Each of the buildings was valued at $2500.

The plant of the Baltimore Biscuit company was damaged $60,000 by fire. Three hundred men had worked all day on "rush" orders for the government, and this stock, as well as a large quantity of flour, was consumed and the machinery practically ruined.

Nicholas Castronuoro of Providence resented an insulting remark which was made to his daughter by Salvator Boecassa. The latter drew a revolver, shot Castronuoro and ran away. He was captured by the police in a house in "little Italy." The victim's wound is not serious.

A state demonstration of the Ancient Order of Hibernians was held in Pawtucket, R. I., Sunday. There were over 1000 men in line, including two companies of Hibernian rifles. Services were held in the afternoon at St. Mary's church and an address was delivered by Rev. James Murphy. At the close the entire audience united in singing the "Star Spangled Banner."

Andrew Athy, the most prominent representative of the Irish race in Worcester, Mass., and one of the best known in the state of Massachusetts, died Sunday. Although he never sought office, he frequently was put into official positions because of his well-known ability by the Worcester Democrats, whose leader he was considered for many years.

According to dispatches from various parts of Italy, Rome, Milan and the other large towns continue quiet, but it is understood that the state of siege will be maintained until parliament has adopted the necessary repressive measures. Altogether six members of the chamber of deputies have been imprisoned, and there have been 300 arrests in Rome alone.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

Another Call For Volunteers Contemplated.

NEEDS EXCEED ESTIMATES

Spanish Believed to Be Coaling at Venezuela.

THE LOCATION OF SAMPSON'S FLEET.

Navy Department's New Policy of Keeping Judiciously Mum.

Washington, May 17.—President McKinley has determined to issue another call for volunteers, and the number named will be 100,000, as recommended by Secretary Alger. President McKinley has been urged for a fortnight to issue a second call, but hesitated to do so, hoping that it would not be necessary. He has determined, however, to issue the call in order that the additional men can be getting ready to serve if needed.

The first call has practically absorbed the national guardsmen, and most of the additional volunteers will be absolutely green, and it will take time to season them. More men will be needed for Cuba, the Philippines and Porto Rico than was estimated, and the need may increase.

A war department authority told the president that 100,000 men would not be enough for Cuba and that 150,000 might have to be sent there, while from 40,000 to 50,000 would have to go to the Philippines, where climatic diseases would be more disastrous than in Cuba.

These estimates seem exaggerated, but they indicate possibilities that the president felt could not be disregarded. It would be easier, too, to get the volunteers now, with nearly a million waiting to offer and so many regiments organized, than later, and the daily demands for an opportunity for their constituents coming from senators and representatives would be met. The president has been advised by some to call for 200,000 more men to meet demands and supply all possible needs.

Had prompt action been taken by the naval war board and the navy department two weeks ago, in accordance with information placed in their possession, Spain's men-of-war in the West Indies would not be hunting a coal pile. Ttis information, which came from a reliable English source, was to the effect that colliers flying the English flag and carrying about 8000 tons of coal had left England just before that government declared her neutrality, ostensibly for one of the South American countries, but really for the "mouth of the Venezuela," where they expected to meet the Spanish Cape Verde fleet. The statement that their destination was the "mouth of the Venezuela" was subsequently corrected and it was learned that the destination of the colliers was the "north coast of Venezuela."

The enemy is believed to be harbored in the gulf of Venezuela. Nothing is known as to his future movements. Again the Spaniards have made another very clever strategical move. They have evidently been told by the Madrid government that their presence at Curacoa was made known to all the world over the cable which runs to that island. Over in the gulf of Venezuela there is no tell-tale cable office, and unless this government can exercise some surveillance over the fleet, the latter can stay there indefinitely, and move away without having its departure heralded. More than this the gulf of Venezuela affords a splendid ambush from which the Oregon can be attacked as it moves along the Venezuelan coast in the direction of Cuba or Key West.

While the location of the Spanish fleet is definitely known, it is impossible to make an accurate statement as to the whereabouts of Admiral Sampson.

A bulletin was made public at the navy department yesterday, saying that Sampson was off Cape Haytien, that his original plan of proceeding to Key West had been changed and that he would go immediately to Cienfuegos on the south coast of Cuba. This information is to be received with considerable caution. It may be true. On the other hand there is something strangely suspicious in the fact that the navy department voluntarily made the information public, when everybody in Washington knows that under Secretary Long's latest orders every movement of the American vessels is kept a profound secret.

It is the policy of the naval strategists to defeat the Spanish fleet before it has an opportunity to get into Havana. This may be easier said than done. The necessity for this action is evident by reason of information which has reached this government. This shows that General Blanco is sadly in need of shot and powder, a fact which convinces the administration that the Spanish fleet will undoubtedly try to reach Havana, or some other point on the Cuban coast, in order to supply the defenses of the former city. Unless this help comes Blanco will not be able to fight over two days, and less time than this if he has to divide ammunition with the land defense force, which is practically without a supply of fighting material.

Orders have been given Commodore Watson, in command of the blockading fleet, to level all fortifications along the Cuban coast. This is believed to foreshadow an immediate movement looking to the occupation of Cuba just as soon as Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley shall have been able to capture or destroy the Spanish fleet, and it will incite the Spanish admiral to come to Blanco's relief if anything can drive him ... his apparent purpose of annoying and harrassing, without making an effective stroke. The fact that the order was sent to Commodore Watson is an indication that Sampson and Schley are to be left free to search out the wandering squadron which has just left Curacoa, and it is believed that Schley and Sampson will soon be able to bring the tantalizing uncertainty with regard to Cervera's movements to an end.

President McKinley has said rather sharply that he does not want to lose another opportunity to invade the island. When the moment arrives, at least 60,000 American soldiers will be ready to pour into Cuba. This allotment will be augmented by 20,000 more, if in the meantime General Miles considers the increase necessary. Havana will not be struck with a feeble blow. The attack upon the city, as now planned, will be sharp and terrific. Trifling with the enemy will not be tolerated. The advance guard will be made up of cavalry troops, backed by artillery and infantry in overwhelming numbers.

The sum total of the information published by the bulletin board yesterday under this rule was a notice of the intention to start the Philippine relief expedition, and of the permission given to some foreign neutral vessels to pass the blockade at Havana. In explanation of the issue of this order, the naval authorities say that some of the newspapers have been so far lacking in patriotism as to print plans of campaign and projected movements of naval ships, with the result that the war board has been obliged completely to revise its plans in the knowledge that the Spaniards had promptly taken notice of the publications and were prepared to profit by them.

The war department rushed ahead its propositions for the mobilization and thorough equipment of the volunteer army, and the progress which is being made is most gratifying. The important development of yesterday was the definite selection of the corps commanders. The announcement, however, does not contain any surprises. Though Major General Wesley Merritt is accredited to the department of the Pacific, such designation is made formally, but it is known that he will go to the Philippines in command of the army there and will be accompanied by Major General Otis. The designation of General Fitzhugh Lee as commander of the Seventh corps, with headquarters at Tampa, would seem to indicate that he is to accompany the army of invasion to Cuba. The assignments were as follows: Major General Wesley Merritt, the department of the Pacific; Major General John R. Brooke, the First corps and the depart-

McKINLEY'S "I FORBID"

Disapproves a Bill Aimed at the Federal Treasury.

Would Reopen a Claim Case Long Since Settled.

A Mild Rebuke of Congress For Its Apparent Laxity.

Washington, May 17.—The first veto message from the president during the McKinley administration was submitted to congress yesterday on a bill to confer on the court of claims jurisdiction to retry and determine a case brought by the representatives of Isaac P. Tice against the United States in the court of claims in 1873 to recover from the government $25,000 for use of distilled spirits meters invented by Tice. The bill further confers jurisdiction of alleged claims of Tice and others for money collected on account of the meter, but not paid over to him or them, amounting to $140,000. The president says it does not appear who are the other persons by whom this latter sum is claimed and that the claim must have accrued prior to July, 1871.

President McKinley in the message makes some interesting observations on the statute of limitations and estoppel, and closes in the following words: "I fail to see any reason in the facts connected with these claims for granting to these parties relief of this extraordinary nature. The treasury of the United States ought to be very carefully guarded against attacks of those who come forward with such claims, and especially from attacks of those who have already been fully heard according to the methods prescribed by the statutes. To approve this bill would be to furnish a very dangerous precedent which would open the door to demands upon congress in other cases which have been fully heard and delivered. For these reasons I am constrained to withhold my approval from this bill."

BEFORE THE SENATE.

Mr. Allison Presents the Revenue Measure With Its Amendments.

Washington, May 17.—In presenting the bill for war revenue in the senate yesterday, Mr. Allison said that the calculations of totals as reported independent of the Democratic amendments were based upon estimates on the same articles from the office of the commissioner of internal revenue for the fiscal year ending in 1899, and that the exact figures were $151,000,000. He was satisfied the estimate on the revenue to be derived from fermented liquors was less than it should be, and he thought the increase would bring it up so as to cause it to exceed $30,000,000. While the tobacco schedule had been materially changed, the total yield of the bill on this score as reported to the senate would not greatly exceed that of the house bill. The senator thought it reasonable to estimate that the increase that the bill would give over the present returns on these items would not fall below $60,000,000. On the other hand possibly the estimate on theatre and circus licenses would fall below the figures given. As a matter of fact the estimates were all necessarily far from accurate, as they were based largely upon the returns of the census of 1890. He gave illustrations to show the rapid increase of business for the purpose of showing how impossible it was to estimate upon past year's bases.

Appended is a recapitulation of the amount of revenue to be derived by the government under the present law and under the bill as it was reported from the senate committee on finance. It will be noted that the estimates include the amounts raised under the present law and the increases proposed in the pending bill:

Fermented liquors, $58,906,120; tobacco and snuff, $43,840,560; cigars and cigarets, $16,302,465; tobacco manufacturers and dealers, $307,102; bankers, $2,384,600; exchange brokers and pawnbrokers, $1,500,400; commercial brokers, $213,094; theaters, circuses and other exhibitions, $1,820,447; bowling alleys and billiard tables, $166,967; stocks, bonds, merchandise, etc., $10,000,000; bank checks, $5,000,000; inland bills of exchange, $1,500,000; foreign bills of exchange, $500,000; express and freight, including all bills of lading, $10,000,000; life insurance, $1,277,000; mortgages, $2,041,599; other articles in schedule A, including tax on receipts, $28,000,000; proprietary preparations and perfumeries, $20,000,000; chewing gum, $1,000,000; legacies and successions, $9,275,475; total, $214,045,829.

Add to this the revenue to be derived from articles not included in the pending bill, on the basis of receipts of 1897: Spirits, $82,008,542; brewers (special tax), $160,927; retail dealers in malt liquors, $191,071; wholesale dealers in malt liquors, $273,801; oleomargarine, $1,034,029; filled cheese, $18,902; miscellaneous receipts, $375,468. Total estimated revenue, $293,113,659; less revenues for 1897, $146,619,593; revenue provided by senate bill. $151,494,066.

Good Afternoon.

It may be that the sidewalk order now in the City Council will need some perfecting amendments but there should be no postponement of the movement to obtain sidewalks in Quincy. There can be no argument as to whether or not they are needed. The city has too long been held up to ridicule for the lack of them. Strangers who hear us boast of our inexhaustible granite think it outrageous to put up with such sidewalks as we have. To be beneficial, sidewalks must be continuous and only the city can accomplish this.

It has been suggested that inasmuch as the sewer is now getting into the advance stages of construction that it would be unwise at this juncture for the city to initiate this year its first liberal expenditure for sidewalk construction as it would practically result in levying upon a great many taxpayers two direct assessments besides the regular taxes which would be a hardship upon many people.

But the sewer will be in process of construction for the next ten years. Are we to wait until 1908 before we begin to build sidewalks? To avoid to assessments on the same property in one year, let the sidewalks and sewers be constructed on different streets. The sewer will not probably be extended this year over Washington street to Quincy Point, or via Granite street to Brewers' corner, or through more than one-tenth of the streets.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Annual Appropriation Order Passed.

Effort to Further Curtail Not Successful.

Public Hearing on Hancock Street Widening.

There was considerable business of importance for the meeting of the City Council Monday evening, including two public hearings which prolonged the meeting until nearly 10 o'clock. The absent members were Councilmen Badger, Jameson, Swithin and Willard.

1897 WATER DEBTS.

The City Auditor forwarded a communication stating he held bills of the Water Department for coal for 1897 amounting to $107.24 and there was no balance in the Maintenance appropriation. To Committee on Finance

PETITIONS.

Petitions for State aid were received from Ira Blanchard and Harriet C. Joy, and soldier's relief from Thomas Smith. Referred.

Councilman Newcomb presented a petition for one incandescent light at the corner of Elm place and Chubbuck court. To Committee on Streets.

A number of petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Finances reported ought to pass an order for fire alarm box at the corner of Quincy avenue and Howard street. Passed to be ordained under suspension of the rules.

The same committee reported ought to pass on orders authorizing the printing of one hundred copies of the rules of the Council for 1898. Passed to be ordained.

The same committee reported ought to pass, with an amendment, increasing the number to 500 copies, on the order authorizing the printing of the City Charter and Ordinances. Passed to be ordained.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order granting a number of minor licenses which was adopted.

The same committee reported leave to withdraw on the petition of Peter Haverley for a common victualler's license.

Councilman Merrick replying to a question said the place was in no way prepared to serve meals.

Councilmen Cain and Packard, McGrath and Poland thought this a worthy case, as the man was blind and the Council should stretch a point, as it would be an act of charity.

The report of the committee was accepied by a vote of 10 to 8.

The Commmittee on Licenses gave Lemuel Millet who petitioned for a Common victualler license leave to withdraw. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order and resolve laying out Payne street as a public way, and appropriating $1000 for the same. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Streets reported an order and resolve relocating High street at the corner of Franklin street. Ordered to second reading.

The Committee on Streets reported an order and resolve laying out East Elm avenue as a public way, and appropriating $500 for the same. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Streets reported an order and resolve laying out Putnam street as a public way and appropriating $200 for the same. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for an oil light on Chubbuck street. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported leave to withdraw on petition for lights on Sea street. Accepted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order appropriating $1000 for widening North street.

The Committee on Streets reported leave to withdraw on petition for a sidewalk on Chubbuck street. Accepted.

The Committee on Streets reported leave to withdraw on petition for a sidewalk on West street. Adopted.

The Committee on Ordinances reported correctly engrossed an order for two poles on Newcomb street extension and an order transferring $35.50 from Miscellaneous Receipts of 1897 to appropriations for Public Burial Places of 1897. Passed.

The same Committee reported the annual appropriation order as correctly engrossed.

Councilman Cain moved the items be taken up separately but later withdrew.

A motion to go into a committee of the whole was lost.

Councilman Cain asked the reason the appropriation for Fire Department had been increased $2000.

Councilman Sidelinger said the committee had given the order careful attention. The storm required $1,300, the purchase of the battery which was now hired $600, and the increase of permanent men also required $1000 more. The hose was in a bad condition.

Councilman Cain intimated that there was politics in the matter and moved to cut the appropriation to $22,000.

Councilmen Freeman and Packard said the committee were unanimous, and cut the appropriation down all they could.

Councilman Little resented the intimation that there was politics in the order. The committee had given it careful attention.

Councilman Cain's motion was lost.

Councilman Cain then asked about the appropriation of the Department of Public Works and thought that he should get along with a few less boses.

Commissioner Knowlton explained the items and said the matter of bosses was in his hands and he could have as many as he pleased.

The order was then passed to be ordained.

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

At 8 o'clock a public hearing was given on the relocation of the street at the southerly corner of Washington and Canal street which will abolish the water way. No one appeared pro or con and the matter was recommitted to the Committee on Streets.

HANCOCK STREET.

There were two public hearings on widening of Hancock street; first on the west side between Music Hall block and School street; and second at the corner of Granite. The former by taking off a slice tapering at both ends a line being drawn straight between the points, which makes the greatest cut on the estate just purchased by John R. Graham, 6 feet, 3 inches.

The main object of the widening being to get a wider sidewalk.

The cut at the Breisler estate is by a graceful curve which takes fifteen feet at the corner and tapers both ways, the city taking 915 square feet.

H. M. Faxon thought it an opportunity to do a lasting service to our city. All this land being in the main business street would soon be built upon, and an obstruction. City Square was of good width to the Briesler corner. At the other widening no buidings were in the way and the land damage would be slight. Land was taken principally from Mrs. James Edwards, Henry H. Faxon and John R. Graham.

Henry M. Faxon said it was not a Faxon shceme, but it had his endorsement. It would be a great benefit to the street. For his land taken between Music Hall and School street he would willingly take what was awarded. If the betterment was adjudged equal to the land taken, all well and good. The land damage at the Briesler corner ought not to be over $500. In reply to Councilman Kane he thought 75 cents per foot enough to pay.

W. H. Glennon also favored and no one opposed.

The hearing closed and the order was recommitted.

MOTIONS, ORDERS, ETC.

Councilman Newcomb offered an order appropriating $200 for a public landing at Quincy Point. Referred.

To joint committee on Finance and Public Grounds.

Councilman Freeman offered an order appointing Alex. McDonnell a field driver and Councilman Merrick an order appointing William Mahoney field driver. Adopted.

Councilman Sidelinger offered an order authorizing the Board of Health to issue slaughtering license. To Committee on Licenses.

Councilman Cain offered an order instructing the Mayor to give all employes of the city except the Police and Fire Department Saturday half holiday during the months of June, July and August.

Councilman Little questioned whether the Mayor has power to do this.

Councilman Sidelinger moved the matter be laid on the table. Adopted.

Adjourned at 9.52.

ON A FURLOUGH.

Co. K Returns and Expects to be Called.

Co. K arrived home from its tour of duty at Gloucester, Monday night, reaching the armory at 5.15. There was no demonstration of any kind over the arrival home for it was not known what time the company would arrive. Capt. Kincaide when seen this morning said their trip had been an uneventful one, and although the boys were brought right down to army rations, there was no complaint of any kind and they thrived well upon it, and there was no sickness of any kind among the company. That the boys did so well was somewhat of a surprise, as it would naturally be expected that being taken from their homes and put on army rations would be somewhat of a hardship, but it did not seem to be.

Capt. Kincaide was located at Rockport and with him all the time was one platoon, the two platoons alternating. The work was all guard duty of the coast, although they were all drilled, in attacking and defense the whole time being put in with routine duty and drill. As a whole it was a week's outing for the boys.

The President having issued a call for an additional 100,000 volunteers, Capt. Kincaide had no doubt but what Co. K and the 5th Regiment would see all the active duty they desired, for unless the war was speedily settled, it might be a year or more before they were discharged, for it would take at least 100,000 men for the Phillippine islands alone.

The length of service would, in his opinion, depend much upon the result of the coming battle between the American and Spanish fleets. If the latter is defeated it would tend to shorten the war, but should the outcome be against us, the war would doubtless be prolonged for an indefinite period.

The present pay per day of officers and enlisted men of infantry when in the service of the State is as follows: Major general, $20.83; brigadier general, $15.29; colonel, $9.72; lieutenant colonel, $8.33; major, $6.95; captains, $5; first lieutenant, $4 17; second lieutenant, $3 89; first sergeant, $3; sergeants, $2; corporals, $1.75; musician and privates, $1.50. Enlisted men, after serving a full term of enlistment, three years, are entitled to 20 cents a day additional pay during their second and third term of consecutive enlistment. In case the guards are called into the service of the United States the pay of commissioned officers remains as above, but the enlisted men receive the pay of men in like grade in the regular army, which is from $13 to $26 per month.

Memorial Church.

At the Atlantic Memorial church Sabbath morning, a fine display of Easter lilies and branches of double cherry blossoms made the church seem very attactive. The pastor preached from the text, "I came that men might have life" in which he presented progressive ideas in a manner which revealed that modern thought and progress need not be at all divorced from spiritual power.

Miss Miriam Heidenrich sang a selection from Rubenstein, and "Jerusalem" by Henry Parker; her singing which is always a musical treat, was marked by exceptional life and power, combined with sweetness and smoothness of tone.

In the evening Miss Susie Hall and Miss Annie Hall sang a duet which was warmly praised by all who had the pleasure of hearing it. Rev. I. H. Green of B. U. S. T. gave an address on "Faith."

Plea for Fragments.

The sale, supper and entertainment on Wednesday, May 18, by the Fragment Society, which has been in existence over forty years, has always "Lent a hand" in need, never stopping for nationality, sect or creed. The last winter many little bare feet have been covered, bodies clothed, and the treasury needs replenishing for the still harder times anticipated; and can only hope all the people of Quincy will come to aid the good object.

A meeting of those interested in the formation of a tennis club was held Monday evening at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., when the Quincy Tennis club was organized with these officers: President, T. B. Pollard; vice president, George H. Brown; secretary and treasurer, W. T. Isaacs. The club will hold its first play Saturday afternoon on the Y. M. C. A. field from 3 to 7 o'clock.

SECRET MOVEMENTS.

But Little News from the Warships Today.

New York, May 17, 2 30 P. M.—The telegraph wires all over the country that have been kept hot for some weeks with war news, rumors, and fake war news are quiet today, and have been for a day or two. This is not due to any lack of activity on the part of the government but to the fact that the government has adopted a new policy in relation to giving to the public of the facts which it had at hand, and of the movements of its fleets. Up to within a few days almost every movement the American fleets have made has been immediately thrown broadcast throughout the country by the newspaper men stationed at the several points.

The result of this has been that not only have the people of America been kept informed of the movements of our warships from time to time, but our enemies, the Spaniards, as well, and to this fact is probably due in a great measure the reason Admiral Sampson has not found the famous dodging Cape Verde fleet and annihilated it. The Spanish Admiral being kept posted on our movements has been enabled to keep out of the way. But now that Uncle Sam is taking a hand in the dodging business the present quietness in regard to war news may mean the quietness that precedes a storm.

From what dispatches that are forwarded, it seems likely that the crisis is near at hand, and the news that the two fleets have met may be flashed over the wires at any moment. The Ledger is in constant communication by wire with the American Press Association and our readers may be assured of receiving the latest war news with promptness.

While the country is waiting for the sea forces to meet, there is great activity among the army, and troops are being hurried south and west. Troops will be sent to control the Phillipine Islands and relieve Admiral Dewey, while another force is being massed ready to invade Cuba as soon as the perplexing questions of the Cape Verde fleet is settled. If the Spanish fleet is defeated, it means the end is in sight, but should the American fleet be defeated, which no one believes will happen, it will mean but the beginning of a prolonged war.

Not Captured.

Philadelphia, May 17—The schooner Anna Louisa Lockwood from Gonaives Hayti, for Chester, Pa. which was reported to have been captured by the Spanish passed up the Delaware bay Monday afternoon.

Blown Up.

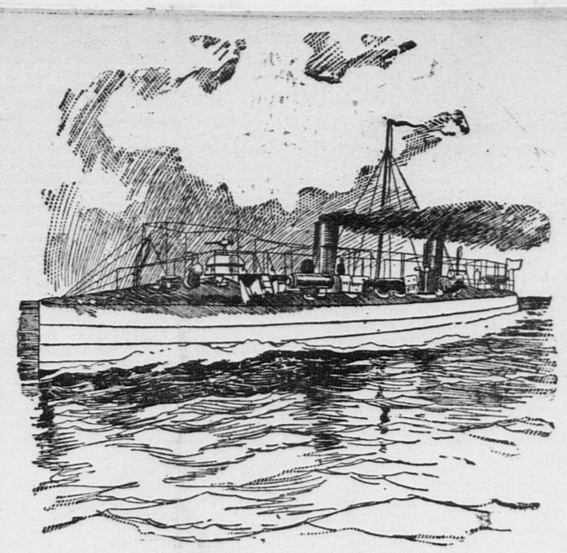

Madrid, May 17—A despatch from Havana says a small naval vessel was blown up off Cardenus resulting in the loss of seventeen lives. The nationality is not stated.

Three Sighted.

Kingston, Jamaica, May 17—Three war vessels are reported off Moran Point at the east end of the island. They were seen last night by the lighthouse keeper who however could not make out their nationality. They were bound south.

A Strange Fleet.

Santa Lucia, May 17.—A large, strange war ship was sighted last night off the west coast of this island. Other war vessels have been seen to the north. It is believed to be a Spanish squadron laying in wait for the Oregon which may pass here on its way north

TORPEDO BOAT FOOTE.

The Foote is swift as the wind. She can do 24.5 knots an hour and has 2,000 horsepower. Her displacement is only 142 tons, and she cost $97,500. Numerous torpedoes and six small guns are her weapons of offense and defense.

Weld—Amory.

A wedding of local interest is reported in the Boston Journal, which says, roses and spirea in lavish display against the background of palms in Trinity Chancel made a beautiful setting for the bridal party gathered there at noon Monday. The bride, Miss Anna Amory, daughter of Mr. William Amory of 478 Beacon street, was given in marriage by her father to George Weld, a theologian, who has studied at the Institute of Technology and Harvard. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Donald, Mr. Chase of New York acted as best man. The bride was unattended by maid of honor or bridesmaids.

The ushers advanced by the side aisles and stood grouped at the right and left of the bridal couple during the ceremony.

Mr. Whitney, President of Merchants' and Miners' Association, was the head usher. He was assisted by Edward Griffin, a New York lawyer; George Fiske of the Episcopal School at Cambridge; Mr John Huntington, Harvard Law School, Mr. Gardiner, Mr. Amory, Mr George Amory, Mr. Mellish and Mr. Huntington.

Flag at Post Office.

Postmaster Hammond and the carriers and the other employes of the Quincy post office do not propose to be behind the times, and Monday afternoon they had a flag raising. At 3 30 a handsome flag was put out. There was no band of music and no flow of oratory, but each one of the employes was enthused with the patriotic spirit that fills the hearts of all American citizens, which is fully as desirable. It was intended to suspend the flag over the entrance but this part had to be delayed owing to the non-arrival of the necessary apparatus to fix it in place. It was therefore placed temporarily in the show window. The engineers in the quarries who had been made aware of the event that was taking place sounded their whistles in honor of it.

Should Be Hurried Along.

The annual report of the Metropolitan Water Board says: A main line has been begun and half completed, running from Chestnut Hill reservoir southerly through West Roxbury, Dorchester and Milton to Quincy.

During the year 27.7 miles of pipes have been laid, making with the pipes laid in the preceding year, a total length of main pipes of 42 75 miles. Of these 20.71 miles are 48-inch pipes. About 10 miles of pipes are to be laid in order to make a proper connection with all of the cities and towns now included in the metropolitan water district.

Unless connection is speedily made, Quincy may run short of water this summer.

Bicycle Roads.

The opinion of our streets from a bicycle standpoint is shown in the road bulletin of the L. A. W.

South shore district—Massachusetts av. from Swett st. to Boston st. is rough; Adams st., Nepons t av. and River st., Boston, are in poor condition; macadam from Neponset bridge to Quincy sq is rough, with sewer excavations near Beale st. on Hancock st., while the sidewalks are fair. From Quincy through North Weymouth to Hingham macadam is good. Both Quincy and Dorchester sts. are daily deluged with water, making riding dangerous. From Quincy to Weymouth landing new car tracks make riding almost impossible, so that to get from Quincy to Weymouth landing and towns south it is necessary to go through Braintree.

It is recommended that cyclists desiring to reach the south shore go by way of the parkway to Forest Hills and Morton st. to Milton Lower Mills, as the roads are much better, even if it is necessary to climb Milton hill to get to Quincy.

Liquor Raid.

Chief of Police Litchfield and Officers Ferguson, Morrissey and Newcomb overhauled Thomas Holloran of Randolph on Randolph avenue Monday afternoon and seized from him 70 bottles of beer, two gallons of rum, three gallons of whiskey and some empty beer bottles. They also arrested Holloran for violation of the liquor law.

COAST NOT IN DANGER

Needlessness of the Present Patrol Pointed Out.

Senator Gray Makes a Protest to the President.

Says the Ships Should Be With Sampson or Schley.

Washington, May 17.—Senator Grey and other influential men have made strong protests against the Columbia and other fine warships being kept on the New England coast when the enemy's ships are in southern waters. Senator Grey had business with the president and called his attention to the matter.

"It is stated that these ships are kept on the New England coast to allay apprehension," said Mr. Grey. "Well, that is all foolishness. Here these ships are kept on this coast when there is not a particle of danger, while the Spanish squadron is not far from southern shores. I do not believe that anybody has an idea that the Spanish fleet would attempt to sail 3000 or 4000 miles from its present position to attack the New England coast and be without a base of supplies when it got there. While our ships remain on the New England coast the southern coast, much nearer to the Spanish, is unprotected. So is the coast of the middle Atlantic states. Our ships should be with one or the other squadrons."

It is said that several New England senators take the same ground as Senator Grey.

Spain's Reserve Fleet.

Madrid, May 17.—A dispatch from Cadiz to El Heraldo de Madrid says the port authorities at Cadiz announce that the reserve fleet, composed of the first-class battleship Pelayo, the armored cruisers Emperador Carlos V and the Alfonso XIII, the newly equipped cruisers Rapido and Patria, with the torpedo boat destroyers Audaz and Procerpina, will be ready for sea this week.

A Terrible Cyclone.

London, May 17.—A dispatch to The Standard from the Hague says: "According to a private telegram from India a terrible cyclone has destroyed a great part of Bima, a seaport town of the island of Sumbawa, Malay Archipelago. The shores of Sumbawa bay are covered with the bodies of thousands of victims. The town of Kupang, island of Timor, escaped the force of the hurricane."

A Terrific Battle.

Louisville, May 17.—The greatest prize fight ever seen in this section of the country was that pulled off last night by the Louisville Athletic club between Dick Case of Seattle, champion lightweight of the northwest, and Bobby Dobbs of Memphis, colored lightweight champion of the world. The colored man won in the 20th round after a terrific battle.

Dorst Is Satisfied.

Washington, May 17.—General Miles has received a telegram from Captain J. H. Dorst, who has been in command of the expedition which was sent to the coast of Cuba to take supplies of rifles and ammunition to the insurgents. Captain Dorst says he is satisfied with the results of his trip and not disheartened.

Abraham Lincoln Said:

"You can fool some of the people all the time." Many bicycle riders are fooled in buying new wheels by a fictitious allowance on their old one.

It is the Easiest Thing in the World

To list a cheap Western wheel $25 more than it is worth. An unscrupulous dealer pushes a wheel of this sort and makes a leader of it, instead of better and more reliable makes, because he can allow far more on a second-hand wheel and still make a bigger profit.

People should remember that no one sells bicycles for health or pleasure, but to make money.

An Ironical Critic.

London, May 17.—The mystery surrounding the movements of the Spanish fleets is held here to show that the science of naval scouting is still in its infancy. The Morning Post asks rather ironically: "What have the American's swift cruisers been doing since the commencement of the war? Apart from the single possibility of Admiral Cervera's efforts proving successful, more crass inaptitude has never been displayed than in the present war. The failure of the beautiful mercantile cruisers on both sides is calculated to support the opinions of those who think the money expended in England in subsidizing cruisers might be much better employed."

The Daily Chronicle, referring to the same subject, admits the failure of the scouts, but says: "England would have done better under similar conditions, because of late years our naval maneuvers have been devised with a view of obtaining instructions in this direction. We greatly doubt that the Cadiz cruisers have arrived at Martinique, first, because they are not ready and, second, because they are wanted to convey reinforcements to the Philippines."

Disposed to Go Far.

London, May 17.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "Very conflicting news has reached Madrid from official and private sources concerning the state of affairs in the Philippines. Captain General Augusti seems confident that he will be able to resist the American war vessels for some time. His reports as to the disposition of the garrison and inhabitants are excellent. The principal difficulties are the rise in prices, the scarcity of provisions and the unsettled state of the interior of the country. General Augusti hopes to overcome these directly relief comes from Spain if he is also allowed to promise to grant the natives a part of the reforms demanded by the leaders of the insurrection which were before submitted to Marshal Rivora during his governor generalship.

"Spain is disposed to go far in conceding administrative and municipal reforms, but she cannot easily comply with the native aspirations as regards the vast property and influence of the religious orders in the Philippines and other archipelagoes. These orders are too powerful in Spain for any government to curtail their colonial action, or to attempt to tax them heavily, unless the pope again steps in to assist the government of the regency, should Spain retain possession of the archipelagoes at the end of the war. The church and the Catholics are very anxious as to the fate of the Philippines on account of these orders, which they consider have been the best auxiliaries of Spanish rule since the discovery of the isands by Magellan. The Spaniards resent the idea of Protestant powers like the United States, Germany or England harboring designs against the archipelagos."

Doesn't Propose to Go.

New York, May 17.—Major General Wesley Merritt may not go to the Philippine islands in command of the troops to be sent to the assistance of Rear Admiral Dewey and to take charge of the territory when in American possession as military governor. Ever since his return from Washington, whither he was summoned last week for conference, General Merritt has been busily arranging for his departure.

GENERAL WESLEY MERRITT.

When seen by a reporter, General Merritt gave the first intimation of the possibility of his not assuming the new duties. "I may not go to the Philippines at all," said he. "It is proposed to give me 15,000 men, 1000 of them regulars and the rest volunteers who have had little opportunity for training and discipline. I have asked the department for at least 4000 more regular troops for I believe that they will be required. The only way I could get more regular troops would be to take them from the army now in Florida for Cuban invasion; but I feel that I do not want to go on this expedition unless I have an entirely adequate force. The department promises to send on more men, but history and experience show that in such expeditions all depends on the first force sent. General Otis may be willing to go on with only 1000 trained men and 14,000 undisciplined ones, but I am not. I do not propose to go without a force that is suitable to my rank."

May Do Coast Duty.

Boston, May 17.—Military men at the state house do not think the first heavy artillery or the Ninth regiment, under the orders issued Sunday, will go south at all. The instructions are clear that one regiment is to go to Chickamauga park and that the Sixth is to go to Washington; but different construction is put upon the clause directing the various commands to report to department commanders. Under the head, "to department commanders," Massachusetts has two regiments. This is taken here to mean that two of the Massachusetts regiments are to report to General Merritt at ..ew York undoubtedly for Atlantic coast defence, General Merritt being the department commander of that division. If this is the correct interpretation of the orders, then the First and Ninth will be stationed for the time being along the Atlantic seaboard, either in this commonwealth, or further up or down the coast. It has all along been promised by the military men of the state that the First would be kept here for coast defense.

Provisional regiments are to be raised as necessity demands, and the same will be entirely distinct from the existing militia. In other words, the old companies will not be used as a basis for the provisional companies. Members or officers of the militia who did not pass the examinations and were thereby deprived from enlisting in the United States service will be given the preference of the provisional militia as contemplated.

Off to Chickamauga.

Concord, N. H., May 17.—The First New Hampshire volunteers received their ammunition last evening, 10 rounds to each man, and the regiment was ready to start for Chickamauga. Reveille was sounded this morning at 4 o'clock, and the troops marched into the city at 10, being met by an escort including the G. A. R. posts, forces from the police and fire departments, and the postoffice, the high school cadets, the Wonolancet club and other organizations. The day was practically a holiday in the city, as the schools closed and many of the manufacturing establishments were shut down. The event of the day was the review by Governor Ramsdell and the presentation of the flag to the regiment by Moses Humphrey. This ceremony completed, the troops marched to the depot, where a special train awaited them.

Exercises In the Open Air.

Raleigh, N. C., May 17.—The United States and North Carolina yesterday paid noble tribute to the memory of the gallant ensign, Worth Bagley, the first officer killed in the war with Spain. Nothing to approach the funeral pageant was ever seen here. The love of all classes of people for the dead officer was shown in the stream of callers and the wealth of floral tributes. The latter came from near and far, and most of them were red, white and blue.

The body emained at the house until 2:30 in the afternoon, when it was taken to the capitol and placed in the rotunda, which was draped in the national and state colors. A steady stream of people flowed by for two hours. The face was not exposed. It had been reported that it was disfigured by the explosion of the shell, but this was inaccurate. The face wore a smile. The casket was removed from the rotunda at 5 o'clock and placed in front of the statue of Washington, where the exercises were held in the presence of the family, the city clergy and 10,000 people, including all the federal, state and city officials, military, veterans, cadets and school children.

Tecumseh Sherman's Son.

Chicago, May 17.—Rev. Thomas Ewing Sherman of the society of Jesus, connected with St. Ignatius college, Chicago, has been appointed chaplain of the Fourth regiment, Missouri national guard, Colonel Corbin, commander. Almost all of the men in the regiment are Catholics. Father Sherman is the son of General W. T. Sherman, and is enthusiastic over his appointment.

Another Jesuit father of St. Ignatius college has been notified that his application to serve as chaplain has been accepted. A number of Jesuit fathers of the Missouri province, which embraces a territory of 10 states, have signified their willingness to serve as chaplains and their superior, Father Fitzgerald of St. Louis' university, St. Louis, has tendered their services to the military authorities.

Massachusetts Volunteers.

South Framingham, Mass., May 17.—One more regiment of United States volunteers made up of Massachusetts boys has marched off the parade, and is now rapidly speeding south. The Eighth regiment, Colonel Pew commanding, in obedience to orders, yesterday afternoon broke camp and headed for Camp George H. Thomas at Chickamauga. The departure was attended by an outburst of patriotism which was fully as vigorous, although not so extensive, as that which gave the Second regiment its sendoff.

During the day the Ninth and Sixth regiments had excitement enough of their own to keep them wideawake. The Sixth will go to Washington, and during the afternoon Colonel Bogan of the Ninth received a telegram to report to General Merritt, commanding the department of the east at Governor's island, New York. The time when either regiment will leave is unknown. The Ninth is practically all equipped, but the Sixth is not so fortunate, as there is not equipment enough on the grounds to fit out the companies.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 17.—The Globe "confesses it cannot restrain the feeling of satisfaction which it has received from a Washington report to the effect that the advisability of giving a freer hand to Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley is under consideration."

"Supposing the next call for Massachusetts volunteers requires four, five or six regiments, where are they to come from?" asks The Post. "The extremely unfortunate attitude of our state authorities has discouraged the formation of volunteer companies and regiments by public-spirited men all over the state."

In The Advertiser's opinion, "it has become only too painfully evident that the carrying into effect of plans of relief must wait until the Spanish fleet in West Indian waters is captured or destroyed, in order that an adequate force of war vessels may convoy and protect our supply ships."

Boxed Twenty Rounds.

New York, May 17.—David Sullivan, the Irish pugilist, met Sammy Kelly of this city last night before the Lenox Athletic club, and after fighting 20 rounds was declared winner by Referee Dime of Amsterdam, N. Y. The boys were matched some time ago to fight at 118 pounds, but Sullivan was six pounds overweight and had to pay a forfeit of $250. Sullivan was the favorite in the betting at 100 to 50, but owing to the difference in the weights of the contestants all bets were declared off before the boys began the fight.

It was a pretty contest all through, and if it were not for Kelly's tactics in the patter part of the bout, when he frequently grabbed Sullivan's arms, the referee's decision might have been a draw. Fully 5000 persons witnessed the three contests on the bill. Among those present were prominent horse owners, bookmakers, jockeys and trainers.

In the 20th round neither showed much of the effects of their hard work. Kelly jabbed his right on the neck and Sullivan countered on the face with his left. Dave led for the stomach and got a hard left on the face. Kelly again grabbed Sullivan's arm and looked towards the referee. Kelly slipped to his knees on the ropes, but regained his feet instantly. Sullivan planted a very hard straight left on the mouth and followed with several jabs on the same spot. Kelly managed to get back with one left on the face. This was all Sullivan's round.

When the gong ended the bout there were cries of "Kelly," "Kelly," and counter cries of "Sullivan wins." Some people thought that Kelly was given the fight and "Spike" Sullivan jumped into the ring to protest. He was put out by the police, and soon as partial order was restored Announcer Harvey said: "The referee decides that Sullivan has won." The decision was not a popular one.

To Exclude the Insane.

Washington, May 17.—Representative Danford of Illinois, chairman of the house committee on immigration, has introduced a bill to amend the immigration laws. It adds to the excluded classes of aliens all persons who have been confined to an insane asylum, or who have been insane before landing here, or who shall within two years after arrival become insane, unless the insanity is due to causes arising subsequent to arrival.

The section to facilitate enforcement of the immigration and contract labor acts is amended by adding required statements as to each immigrant "whether ever insane or confined in an asylum for the insane." Aliens falling under this prohibition, whose return to the country migrated from is provided for, shall on proper demand be transported back to that country by owners of any vessels doing business between any port of the United States and any foreign port in the line of travel to that country, companies or owners violating these provisions to pay a fine of not exceeding $500, the fine also to be a lien on any vessel of the company or owners found within the United States.

Mr. Walker's Bill.

Washington, May 17.—Representative Walker of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee on banking and currency, has introduced a bill to "so change the national bank act as to secure people in all sections an equal opportunity to freely use paper money." It is his former bill made very brief, and Mr. Walker will press it in the house in antagonism to the bill reported by his committee as the result of the work of a special sub-committee.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 17.—The state senate passed to be engrossed the bill providing for the election of one alderman and two councilmen from each ward in the city of Boston. An amendment providing for a referendum to the voters of Boston was defeated.

There was a hot fight on the bill providing for the appointment of assessors for a term of three years, and the appointment of a state deputy collector, but it was ordered to a third reading.

The bill to allow the restoration to the public service of persons leaving it for the military service in the war was passed to be engrossed on the first call of the calendar.

A long and animated discussion followed on the bill to prohibit associations or combinations from issuing stock or other securities upon the property, franchises or stock of gas or electric light companies. The whole gas situation was passed in review, and companies as well as individuals were attacked and defended. The measure was passed to be engrossed.

Praise for Muscle Oil

CURED OF RHEUMATISM IN LEG.

PEABODY, Mass., Sept. 7, 1894.

Muscle Oil Co.:—

Gentlemen: Last spring I was greatly troubled with rheumatism in my leg and was not able to do anywork for four months. After using several other so-called sure cures, I tried Muscle Oil, and after using five bottles I was able to work every day and now feel as well as ever.

Yours truly,

WILLIAM STRINGER, Kerry St.

Nov. 7, 1895.

Have had no return of the trouble since.

WILLAM STRINGER.

These cold, raw days mean exposure to sudden changes. Fortify yourself against rheumatism by keeping Muscle Oil on hand.

A woman who takes chances with her health is simply gambling with the Black Devil of Disease. If she has any weakness or derangement of the delicate organism of her sex, to rely upon an unskilled, inexperienced, general practitioner is to risk her health upon a gambler's hazard. Her only real safety is in the careful well-digested advice of a physician who has had wide, special experience in diseases of this particular class.

The chief consulting physician of the famous Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. R. V. Pierce, has devoted thirty years of special study and practice to the weaknesses and diseases peculiar to women. His grand medicine, the "Favorite Prescription," has done more to restore perfect health and strength to women than any other medicine. It is the only proprietary medicine devised for this purpose by an educated, skilled specialist in woman's peculiar ailments.

A woman writing to Dr. Pierce regarding herself may feel absolute assurance of receiving, free of charge, the best professional advice by means of which the most obstinate of these delicate troubles may be promptly relieved and permanently cured.

Barbra A. Mudd, of Indian Creek, Monroe Co., Mo., writes: "I am very thankful for what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did for me. I was all broke down from nervous prostration, but since taking this medicine I have had more relief than from all the doctors. Your 'Favorite Prescription' did me a world of good."

DOWN ON THE CAPE

You've got to show 'em. They want to "see." Last Sunday in a church in a small town, where it is customary to send notices of one thing and another, and one kind and another, up to the pastor, so that he may read them aloud from the pulpit to the congregation, one notice was read that did not just exactly convey the meaning the writer intended. A young naval officer, brave and wanting to fight, had been ordered to join his ship. His mother-in-law wanting to secure the prayers of her pastor and her neighbors for his welfare, and at the same time call a little attention to herself, sent a notice to the pulpit which should have read: "Lieutenant Smith going to sea, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Jones, desires the prayers of the congregation." She didn't punctuate it just right, leaving out the comma after "sea," and this is the way it sounded, "Lieutenant Smith going to see his mother-in-law Mrs Jones, desires the prayers of the congregation." The congregation knowing Mrs. Jones, gave him their prayers. Sometimes a pause makes a great difference.

When you are in need of a spring suit and the same old thought (I will go to Boston) comes to you, always pause. Think it over and say to yourself, "sez you," "There's that new store that everyone is talking about. They say they sell good goods cheap. They have a buyer in the market every day, and he should know what is going, and if they can buy 'what's' going as close as Boston merchants, it seems to me as if their less expense should enable them to sell cheaper."

That pause will save you money. For example, you can come any day this week, you can buy a nice Blue Serge or Brown and Gray Check, all-wool Suit for $9.50. If you think it's only as good as a regular $8.50 suit, you're mistaken. It's better.

Desirable House Lots.

WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

For plans, prices and terms, apply to DR. N. S. HUNTING, 214 Hancock St., Quincy, or to MR. GEO. G. SAVILLE, 5 Greenleaf street, Quincy, and John Hancock Bldg., Devonshire St., Boston.

TO RUSH SCHEME OF INVASION.

Original Resolution to Be Carried Into Execution.

NOT TO AWAIT THE FLEET.

Hoped to Have 50,000 Soldiers on the Island.

THE SCARCITY OF SUPPLIES THE CAUSE.

Number of Troops to Be Sent to Help Admiral Dewey.

Washington, May 18.—Developments of the last few days have convinced the administration that the invasion of Cuba should not longer be delayed. The president is convinced that if the war is to be brought to a close, the Spanish forces must speedily be driven from the island, and he is also convinced from the evasive movements of the Spanish fleet that it will not be wise to delay action much longer while waiting to find out what the fleet is about. Sampson's fleet and Schley's can attend to operations by sea; but operations by land will no longer be held dependent upon the result of a naval battle.

The president has also been brought to this decision by the great pressure from all parts of the country to send relief at once to those starving in Cuba, and to lose no time in carrying out the purposes for which the war was begun. It has been forced home upon him that the continuance of the present policy will only result in aggravating conditions in Cuba, and that it may lose us the sympathy of the non-combatants there, who have been looking to the United States for relief.

General Lee has said that to defer operations till the middle of June would be fatal, as it would not be feasible to carry out an effective military movement after that time. By the first of June, for that matter, it will be difficult to conduct artillery operations in the interior, as the roads will soon become impassable from continuous rains. Fortunately the army of invasion will be able to confine itself in a large measure to the neighborhood of Havana, where the roads are fairly well made, and in fairly good condition.

Troops will be hurried to the south more rapidly than ever, and every energy will be bent to equipping them and organizing them in brigade formation. It is hoped that within a fortnight it will be possible to throw 50,000 men into Cuba, and others will be sent if necessary, just as soon as they can be obtained. The operations have been handicapped by the failure of the war department to obtain supplies of various kinds, and even now the red tape by which the movements of the department have been tied is very much in evidence.

Some who have been urging delay in sending troops to the Philippines say that it will take much more than 15,000 men to make occupation effective, but the best military authorities do not agree with this view. It is pointed out that Great Britain keeps only 40,000 English troops in India to maintain its occupation of the immense territory there, with millions of natives. Only 20,000 English troops are required for the occupation of Egypt. The great bulk of the troops in India are sepoys, and in the same manner when our occupation of the Philippines goes into effect it is believed that not more than 15,000 or 20,000 American soldiers will be necessary. If any other troops are needed they can be made up of natives under the command of American officers.

Despite statements to the contrary there is every reason to believe that Sampson and Schley will soon form a combination at Key West. Under the convoy of the battleships and cruisers the transports will be safely escorted from Key West to some landing place in Cuba. If necessary the American guns will clear the pathway. If the haste which has again become apparent in the military bureaus is effective, the army can be hurried from Chickamauga to Tampa, placed upon transports, reach Key West and be on its way to Cuba before the Spanish fleet can get within 500 or 1000 miles of the scene of action.

Fired with impatience, a number of senators and representatives called at the war and navy departments Tuesday and complained about the slowness of operations in the Pacific. They wanted to know why 10 days had elapsed since the receipt of official advices from Dewey without a single soldier or ship being sent to his relief.

"If anybody can do this job any quicker than I am trying to have it done," remarked Secretary Alger with some sharpness, "he is welcome to take it off my hands."

The delay is explained as being entirely due to the impossibility of promptly securing supplies on the Pacific coast. A sample case is cited in the fact that 1000 cans of beef had to be borrowed from the Alaska Commercial company, because there was no other avenue of supply. Secretary Alger insists, however, that the first detachment of regulars will surely go by the City of Peking this week and that there has been no abandonment of the policy of sending 15,000 men to the Philippines as soon as they can be assembled, equipped and supplied. The Charleston is booked to sail today.

News With a Spanish Coloring.

Havana, May 18.—The captain general of Porto Rico has cabled to Captain General Blanco saying that, although the bombardment of San Juan de Porto Rico took place at rifle shot distance not a gun of the forts was silenced, and, he adds, the Spanish losses were only 18 men wounded, among the troops composing the garrison, and a few persons wounded among the civil population of the place.

The Lucha, in an editorial, said: "The American government gave the Spanish government 48 hours to remove its troops from this island, and it now finds, after 23 days of blockade, that it cannot land American troops. Apparently the island contains more soldiers than they thought. Such a number could not be removed in 48 hours." This last remark was intended to be sarcastic.

News received from Porto Rico confirms the report that Freeman Halstead, the American newspaper correspondent, has been sentenced by a military court at San Juan de Porto Rico to nine years in prison, after having been convicted of taking pictures of the forts with the use of a camara.

All sorts of war rumors are in circulation here from Spanish sources. Among them it is said that a number of Americans in a boat recently tried to remove some torpedoes at the entrance of Cardenas bay, whereupon one of the torpedoes exploded and the boat, with its crew, is alleged to have been blown up. The report, however, is not officially confirmed. Another report has it that documents taken from the American correspondents confined in the Cabanas fortress are in the possession of Captain General Blanco.

Officers Much Chagrined.

Tampa, Fla., May 18.—Every newspaper correspondent at Tampa has been notified that in future no mention must be made of small expeditions similar to that of the Gussie last week until the success of the expedition has been assured by the return of the boat. Army officers are much chagrined over the failure to place the sorely needed arms, ammunition and supplies which the Gussie carried in the hands of the insurgents. They believe that had not such publicity been given the affair the chances for success would have been much greater.

The correspondents have also been notified that the paper publishing such a story before it is permissible to do so will be debarred from sending any reporter into Cuba. The intention is to keep a close watch on news sent out regarding movements of troops or ships from Tampa, and to endeavor to follow out the policy of the government in keeping from the Spanish government any news whatever that would help it to frustrate any plans for such movements.

Blockade and Famine.

London, May 18.—The Hong Kong correspondent of The Standard says: "It is expected, owing to the strict blockade and the famine resulting from it, that the city of Manila will soon be compelled to capitulate to the American blockading squadron under Admiral Dewey."

The rebels are useless as allies of Admiral Dewey. They are utterly disunited, quite half of them being in favor of Spain. As a means of keeping the natives loyal and inducing them to refrain from assisting the Americans, Governor General Augusti has instituted a consulting assembly, composed of 15 members of mixed and native blood. Its president is Paterno, who achieved the late peace and accompanied the rebels to Hong Kong in December.

Faithful Vigil of the Villagers of Hawarden.

Physicians Think That He Has Uttered His Last Words.

Hawarden, May 18.—Despite the rainfall last night the griefstricken villagers went singly and in groups of two or three to the castle to glance silently at the rainbeaten scraps of paper bearing intelligence of Mr. Gladstone's condition, and then as silently disappeared into the darkness, only to return later.

W. E. GLADSTONE.

The patient was sinking rapidly this morning, and his physicians think that his last words have been spoken. Dr. Dobie doubts that Mr. Gladstone was conscious at any time on Tuesday, though he said "Yes" and "No;" nor does the physician believe that anyone was recognized. Nevertheless he suffered no pain whatever, but just lay with his head facing the light, his eyes closed, his hands sometimes outside the counterpane and sometimes hidden beneath.

His grand face bears a peaceful and beautiful look. A few days ago the deeply written wrinkles that so long marked it were almost gone; but now, strangely enough, they seem strong and deep as ever. He looks, too, in wonderfully good color.

A bulletin Tuesday morning afforded the first intimation of the serious condition of the patient. For some hours no additional information became public: but there were indications that a crisis had been reached. The little village postoffice, from which the telegraph wires run, was suddenly manned by a staff to work the special instruments which had been silent since they were fitted up last Saturday in readiness for the emergency. During the day wherever one went one would hear general expressions of deep regret among the working people, at Hawarden, Sandy Croft, another little village situated below, at the foot of the gentle slopes, and in Chester. Cottagers, porters, signal men, laborers, shopkeepers and lodgekeepers met during the day, all asking: "How is the old gentleman?" in sympathetic tones which nobody could mistake.

QUINCY CAN HELP.

Contributions Asked for Christian Commission.

Many will remember the work of the "Christian Commission" among the soldiers and sailors of the late Civil war and how that this whole land responded to its call for assistance. Every church was activley interested. Every mind gave it its thought. It was an oragnization founded and in control of the Young Men's Christian Association through the International Committee.

Again, while in combat many men will go to the front and face awful results for the honor of our country and flag, and it is no more than fitting that the Young Men's Christian Association should again be the pioneers in the field.

As the soldiers and sailors are young men, and this association is the largest young men's organization in the country, and has the facilities and buildings at the various points where bodies of soldiers are likely to be gathered; and branches in every part of the Union, and the precedent and inspiration afforded by the representatives of the Association in the Civil war; it would seem eminently fit that this work should be again undertaken by the International Committee, who have named the following committee as the Army and Navy Committee: Hon. Alfred E. Marling chairman, C. W. McAlpin, W. E. Dodge, John J. McCook, W. D. Murray, John M. Foster, Joshua Levering, T. DeWitt Cuyler, Dwight L. Moody, General James A. Beaver, Henry M. Moore, Joseph Hardie, Maj Gen. O. O. Howard and several others representing nearly all the states in the Union.

Permission and authorization have been secured from the officials at Washington, who have given their hearty endorsement to the plan. The movement now begun is not designed to stop with the war, but to be hereafter a permanent work in the regular army.

The plan of the Army Committee is, therefore, to locate one or more large tents at each U. S. camp, with experienced general secretaries in charge, who will establish friendly relations with the soldiers, conduct the meetings and do personal work. The tents will be equipped to offer the soldiers a reading room, with the daily papers, magazines and other reading matter; games of skill and recreative sports; facilities for correspondence; entertainments; music; meetings and as many other social and religious privileges as possible, the aim being to make these places of resort, home-like and attractive to the men and surround them with wholesome and uplifting influences.

Today large military camps exist in all our States, and from nearly every town and city young men are going into their country's service. They are passing through a crisis in their lives. Away from home and church influences, in the midst of demoralizing camp life, with many hours of the day in idleness, and yet making ready to face death by disease or battle, they will be easily influenced either for good or evil.

This undertaking, so much needed will commend itself to every patriotic Christian. Churches, young people's societies and individuals are requested to make offerings for the support of of Christian work at such camps as may be established.

Bibles and testaments will be needed, and many other necessary requisites, but what is needed most is money. General Secretary Hoehn of the local association can furnish any information desired. The Ledger will take up the matter and urges its readers to respond to this call. Checks may be made payable to the "Army Committee" of Quincy Young Men's Christian Association, and should be forwarded to the publishers of the Ledger, Geo. W. Prescott & Son, acknowledgment of which will be made daily in the Ledger.

It might be well to add that the post office at the various camps will be at the Y. M. C. A. tents, and the National Society of Christian Endeavor has decided to co-operate with the Association in this work.

Caught in Shafting.

A Worcester dispatch to the Globe reports that Chester F. Penniman, an engineer in the employ of the Webb granite and construction company on Crescent st. was so badly injured Monday that his death occurred at the city hospital soon after.

He was caught in the shafting while running the chipping machine. His clothes first became entangled and he was whirled around several times.

The belt at the machine where he was working slipped off and he climbed a ladder to set it on again. It was while on the ladder that his clothing became caught. He made no outcry and the first his shopmates knew of the accident was when they saw him being whirled over the shafting. His clothes were completely torn from his body.

His left leg was torn off and thrown some distance from his machine. His right leg was broken and his body was a mass of bruises when the machinery stopped. He never regained consciousness after being taken to the hospital. He was married, but leaves no children.

Death of Popular Young Man.

A particularly sad death is that of Mr. Samuel E. Oxford, a well known and highly respected young man, which occurred Tuesday at his home on River street of consumption, after a brief illness. Mr. Oxford has been employed at Durgin's pharmacy for several years, and it was while thus employed several weeks ago that he had a hemorrhage of the lungs. He was removed to his home, where he had since been confined. It was at first thought that he would soon be able to be out again, but the disease took a turn for the worse, and rapidly developed into quick consumption. Mr. Oxford was exceedingly popular among the young people of Quincy, who keenly feel his loss. His age was 20 years. Funeral services will be held from his late residence Friday, May 20, at 2.30 o'clock.

QUINCY, MAY 14, 1898.

GENERAL ORDER NO. 1.

COMRADES: Once more the solemn day is near when we place grateful garlands upon the graves of the honored dead, who fell in battle or perished since the war. Becoming it is that this day of tender memories, of tearful regrets, is appointed for this beautiful season of awakening nature. A season so full of instruction and consolation. When flower and leaf and bud are bursting into life and beauty around us, and when we behold on every hand so much that teaches by analogy that

There is nothing of us that doth fade,
But doth suffer a sure change
Into something rich and strange.

When we place the sweet flowers of spring symbols of hope and immortality on the graves of Comrades loved and lost, we testify to our faith in the immortal life of man. When we raise above their silent tents of green the colors in whose dear defence they fought and fell we renew our allegiance to all that the flag of our country symbolizes.

The coming Memorial Day should be an occasion of special significance for more than thirty peaceful years we have faithfully performed this ceremony, but now the drums' wild beat proclaims the advent of another war; again the bugle calls and throughout the land is heard the tread of freedom's sons, hurrying to answer the call of humanity, to bear the boon of liberty to a long oppressed race, and to avenge the insulted honor of the nation to the sailor on the deck, to the soldier in the field, to the statesman in the cabinet, to patriots everywhere there comes from the hallowed graves of the soldiers of the union, an inspiration to noble deeds, heroic sacrifices and unswerving loyalty to God, to country, and to mankind.

The memorial season furnishes an opportunity of impressing on the minds of the rising youth of our land that it is their duty to as nobly live as others have nobly died for the Republic. Let us gather around there sacred places and perform this beautiful and touching ceremony while a survivor of the war remains to honor the departed [illegible] Railway

Let us all pray that heaven may give our army [illegible] over every enemy of our government and flag, and while war lasts that each and every one be loyal and true to the Government.

Memorial day demands that in our churches we return grateful thanks to the Almighty for the civil and religious liberty that the Republic guarantees to us all.

On Sunday, May 29,

the Post will assemble in full uniform at Headquarters at 9.45 A. M., for the purpose of attending Memorial Service at the Presbyterian Church, Rev. R. W. Peach; and the Post will assemble again at 7 P. M., to attend St. John's Church, to hear the oration preached by Rev. Julian E. Johnstone.

Francis L. Souther Camp, No. 27, Sons of Veterans, Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps, No. 103, and all soldiers and sailors are invited to be present at both services.

Contribution of food and flowers from our many friends will be gratefully received and can be left at the following residences: Mrs. F. P. Lund, Ward 1; Mrs. H. O. Souther, Ward 2; Mrs. Edward Richardson, Ward 3; Mrs. John Farrell, Ward 4; Mrs. G. A. Stokes, Ward 5; Mrs. Moore, Ward 6.

The principals and teachers of the schools are invited to request their pupils to bring flowers to the schoolhouse on the morning of May 28, when they will be collected for the purpose of decorating our Comrades' graves on Memorial Day. Bring flowers that no soldier's or sailor's grave may be unremembered by this beautiful tribute.

Delightful Camp.

Boston, May 18—The Journal says, the Second Massachusetts Regiment, which has gone into camp at Lakewood, cannot help being entirely satisfied with the surroundings. Lakewood is much cooler than Tampa and the scenery is delightful. The place was selected by Vice President Brown who lived for many years in Boston. Lakewood is 247 feet above sea level. Within a radius of five miles are 20 lakes, containing the purest water. The city has 1600 people, the streets are paved and lighted by electricity. The troops ought to fare well in camp, as many of the lakes are full of fish The district is famous throughout for its fruit and vegetables.

Accident to Braddock.

In the United States District Court this week was heard before Judge Lowell the case of the Staples Coal Co. et al. vs. J. F. Shepard et al. Libel to recover for damages to the barge Braddock caused by grounding on a boulder. Libts. the Staples Coal Co. of Taunton and the Susquehanna Coal Co. of Philadelphia, Pa., are the owners of the barge Braddock which was loaded with coal for J. F. Shepard & Sons of East Braintree. The barge left South Amboy, N. J., July 9, 1897, with 1237 tons of coal on board, and upon reaching Boston harbor was towed to East Braintree, and on July 17 grounded. Libts. claim that the damage to the vessel and the losses by detention amount to $2,500, which sum they now seek to recover, upon the ground that libelees were bound to provide a place for landing that was safe and free from obstructions. Defence claims that it ordered the coal from a Philadelphia firm and was in no way responsible for the condition of the surroundings of the wharf. Arguments heard and decision reserved. Carver & Blodgett for libellants; A. P. Worthen for libelee.

TOO MUCH FORCE.

Granite Manufacturer Fined for Assaulting Committee.

A little trouble occurred at the granite plant of H. W. Adrian at South Quincy on Tuesday, between Mr. Adrian and a committee of the Granite Cutters' Union which resulted in Mr. Adrian being summoned into court for assault on William Norrie. According to the testimony, Mr. Norrie and another stone cutter named Rendle waited upon Mr. Adrian Tuesday, as a committee from the Granite Cutters' Union, in relation to the price paid an Italian cutter in Mr. Adrian's employ. After some conversation Mr. Adrian ordered the two men off his premises. They left but going around the building again went upon the premises and were talking to the employes, when Mr. Adrian came upon them and again ordered them off accompanying his command with a blow which landed upon Norrie's ear making a severe wound. After some further trouble Norrie and Rendle left the premises and the employes also threw down their tools and left.

In summing up the case, the court said more force was used than was necessary and imposed a fine.

WAR BALLOON FOR CUBA.

It Will Be a Means of Keeping a Sharp Lookout Over the Country.

A big war balloon will accompany the army of invasion of Cuba and provide a means of keeping a sharp lookout over the country within a radius of 40 miles of the armed and intrenched camp which will be established there. The balloon to be used is the only one possessed by the army, although two others are in the process of manufacture, and they will also be sent to Cuba when they are completed, probably in the course of 20 days. This military balloon was formerly at Denver and was brought east for the defense of New York harbor, where experiments with it under the direction of Lieutenant Maxwell of the signal corps have been in progress recently.

The comprehensive system of telephonic and telegraphic communication already established at that harbor rendered the uses of the balloon superfluous, the range of vision of the signalmen utilizing it from the Staten Island station barely exceeding that of the lookouts in the outer range of forts. The excellence of the mosquito fleet system off the harbor also contributed to render balloon work at New York unnecessary, the enemy necessarily advancing from the open sea. In Cuba, however, the conditions will be reversed, the enemy being in possession of the interior of the country and cut off from distant vision by the ranges of hills. With the balloon it will be possible to keep a close watch by day as well as by night and thereby minimize the chances of a surprise.—Richard Lee Fearn in Chicago Record.

THE PRESIDENT'S WAR MAP.

Its Length Is About Eighteen Feet and the Width Ten Feet.

Not many of the president's visitors are admitted to the war room. Those who are thus favored see something novel in the way of war planning. A very large map has been prepared and mounted with a wooden back. It shows the Atlantic ocean with the coasts of both sides and the islands between. The map covers that part of the ocean from the banks of Newfoundland to the mouth of the Amazon. When the measurements are given, some idea can be formed of the scale. The length of the map is perhaps 18 feet and the width is 10 feet.

Little paper ships have been cut with the names plainly printed. These ships, representing the two navies, are fastened in their places on the map with pins, and are moved from day to day to correspond with the movements of the ships. The president, the secretaries of war and the navy, Lieutenant General Schofield and members of the war council and strategy board have before them the exact positions of the navies up to the latest information as they discuss the plans from day to day. The whole game of war, so far as the Atlantic is concerned, with the locations of the pawns, is before them.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

TELLS OF GOMEZ'S JOY.

American Visitor In Cuba Writes of Scenes at the Camp.

The story of the reception by Gomez's army of the news of congress' resolution to expel the Spaniards from Cuba is related in a letter recently received in Chicago from Fred Clarke, a former St. Louis newspaper man. The letter bore the postmark of Kingston, Jamaica. Mr. Clarke has been representing an American sugar house in the Antilles, and boasts of a personal acquaintance with the great leader of the army of liberation.

At the time the communication from the Cuban junta at Key West arrived at Gomez's headquarters, Mr. Clarke says, he was in the camp at Cayaguani, Santa Clara province. Part of the letter is as follows:

"It was about 4 o'clock the afternoon of April 22 when a scout came hurrying in through the camp with dispatches in his hand. It was the first news the commander in chief had received from the United States since a brief of McKinley's last message had been forwarded to him. Gomez's eyes fairly blazed with delight. He examined the seals on the dispatches, perused them again, as if his sense of sight had betrayed him, and then tossed his hat in the air like a 10-year-old boy. The aid-de-camp seized the dispatches and sounded the signal of alarm by striking a huge bell. Instantly the area reserved for the officers was crowded with soldiers. Gomez's aid stood on the log and shouted out the word that made history. I hastened into the tent of the commander in chief. Gomez's face was buried in his hands. He was weeping for joy." Mr. Clarke paid a high tribute to the courage of the Cuban soldier.—Kansas City Times.

It Is Our Job Now.

The European powers that object to the possession of the Philippine islands by the United States should bear in mind that if they had taken Spain up by the neck we should not have had to. Had they compelled her to give up her tenuous hold on Cuba the war might have been averted. They did not take hold, and we did.—Hartford Courant.

WAGES IN COTTON MILLS.

Report of a Legislative Committee That Investigated the Reduction.

Boston, May 18.—The findings of the labor committee in its inquiry as to the causes of the reduction in wages in cotton mills have been embodied in a conservative report to the general court. On the question of salaries paid to officers of the mills the committee says: "We have not been able to get any definite testimony as to the salaries of the officials from the officials themselves, but have some indirect information which leads to the conclusion that the salaries paid are, on the whole, very good, and some are large."

The report reviews the situation minutely and finds that the principal cause of the reduction is the great increase in production of cotton goods at a time of widespread business depression, and the competition arising therefrom. It also shows that some of the mills have not used sufficient of their earnings in repairs and improvements, and because of this have continued to make the more common grades when the growing demands of business have been for finer and better grades.

The report says in part: "The committee believes that if nothing else has been accomplished as the result of the extended hearings given, both employes and employers understand conditions better than they did before. The committee acknowledges that the southern mills are large competitors in business, but not sufficiently in the opinion of the committee to menace the industry in New England seriously. Wages paid cotton operatives in Massachusetts are substantially the same as those paid in other New England cities. In the south they are much less. On the whole the committee finds that there is no overcapitalization. The stock quotations have fallen off somewhat, but do not show a proportional decline. This indicates that the holders believe that the adverse conditions are not permanent."

Concerning Massachusetts laws governing the hours of labor the report says: "It is urged on the part of the manufacturers that the law limiting the hours of labor of women and children to 58 hours per week be repealed. We have heard both parties very fully on this question, and think the law should remain as it is, because we think that all the goods the markets require can be produced in shorter hours than at present prevail, and that other states should reduce the labor hours to the Massachusetts standard. We are informed that the mills in other New England states are in no better condition than those here, and so conclude that they derive no benefit from the longer hours they run. The employes, on their part, ask for some amendment and addition to the labor laws; but we think the present time, so soon after the business depression, is not favorable to the enactment of further limitation upon the rights of capital."

National Lawmakers.

Washington, May 18.—Considerable progress was made by the senate in onsidering the war revenue measure. Mr. Jones presented the views of the Democratic members of the finance committee. He maintained that the taxes imposed by the bill ought to be levied upon property and not consumption; that the policy of the Republican party always had been to impose taxes upon consumption, while that of the Democratic party was to impose it upon property. He believed that taxation that would raise $150,000,000 would be amply sufficient to be carried by this bill, and he said that, if the exigencies of the war should demonstrate that more money was needed, congress could provide it later. He opposed the proposition to issue bonds and certificates of indebtedness far in excess of the requirements of the war, and declared a peference for increased taxation.

A bill was passed providing that the pay and allowance of the volunteers enlisted in the United States army shall begin on the day of their enrollment at the state camps, with a proviso that volunteer troops sent to the Philippines may draw a month's pay in advance. It was explained that the bill applied only to those who had as volunteers entered the United States army.

Two important bills affecting labor were passed by the house—one limiting the labor of persons employed upon government works and in government service to eight hours daily and the other providing for the appointment of a non-partisan labor commission to consider legislative problems affecting labor.

Bolt at a Convention.

New Bedford, Mass., May 18.—The Thirteenth district Democratic congressional convention held yesterday afternoon was attended by scenes of confusion and excitement, and ended in the bolting of a majority of the delegates and the placing of a second candidate in nomination.

Patrick J. Doyle of Fall River was chairman of the regular convention and James W. Murphy secretary, and there were 46 delegates present. The first ballot for a nominee for congressman showed 48 votes cast, 26 for Charles S. Randall, who is a Republican ex-congressman, and 22 for Charles T. Luce of this city. Amid cries of "fraud" and "traitors," and after much wrangling, in which the New Bedford delegates accused those of Fall River of voting for Mr. Randall, a second ballot was taken, resulting: Randall, 25; Luce, 20; John I. Bryant of Fairhaven, 1.

The convention then adjourned, and the bolters, 27 in number, repaired to another hall, where John N. O'Brien of this city was chosen chairman and Henry W. Butler secretary. Mr. Luce was placed in nomination for congressman.

Vermont Odd Fellows.

St. Albans, Vt., May 18.—At the afternoon sitting of the grand encampment of Odd Fellows 38 new members were received, and the following officers were elected and installed: E. F. Smith of Barre, patriarch; Charles H. Lockwood of Springfield, high priest; Henry C. Farrar of Rutland, senior warden; Charles W. Farrar of St. Johnsbury, scribe; David W. Dudley of Montpelier, treasurer; G. E. Mellen of Middlebury, junior warden; H. R. Kimball of St. Albans, sentinel.

Case of Fratricide.

New York, May 18.—Cateldo and Angelo Laferado, brothers, quarrelled in Brooklyn over the sale of a barber shop. Cateldo tried to stab Angelo, and the latter shot Cateldo in the breast. Cateldo died in half an hour. Cateldo Decorma attempted to interfere, and was fatally shot by Angelo. The murderer escaped.

HAWAIIAN QUESTION.

Its Presentation to the House In a Committee Report.

Strategic Importance of the Islands.

Acquisition Not In Contravention of Our National Policy.

Washington, May 18.—Chairman Hitt presented the majority report of the house committee on foreign affairs in favor of the annexation of Hawaii by joint resolution in the house yesterday. It states that the proposition is not new to either government. For 50 years it has been apparent that so small and feeble a government must be merged with a stronger power. The report states: "There is no undue pressure on the part of the United States as a greater power; no surprise of anyone; no possibility of objections by other governments. It is simply the obvious result of the natural course of events through a long period of years, thus completed with the cordial consent of the sovereign powers of both governments. The only question involved is whether the proposed possession of the Hawaiian islands would be advantageous to the United States." The strategic importance of the islands is then discussed, also the risk of delaying acquisition, as there is danger of the islands falling under Japanese influence and control. American commercial interests would be promoted, and annexation, the report says, would do away with foreign complications of the islands.

CONGRESSMAN HITT.

A brief argument is made upon the subject of acquiring territory by legislative act, and it is declared that there is nothing in the annexation to prevent such acquistion. In conclusion, the report says: "The acquisition of these islands does not contravene our national policy or traditions. It carries out the Monroe doctrine, which excludes European powers from interfering with the American continent and outlying islands, but does not limit the United States; and this doctrine has been long applied to these very islands by our government. As Secretary Blaine said in 1881, the situation of the Hawaiian islands, giving them strategic control of the North Pacific, brings their possession within the range of questions of purely American policy. The annexation of these islands does not launch us upon a new policy, or depart from our time honored traditions of caring first and foremost for the safety and prosperity of the United States."

The minority report sets out eight reasons against annexation, and offers a substitute resolution practically establishing a protectorate over the islands. It declares that the Hawaiian people have not been consulted, nor the American people, and charges that the only hope for annexation is under the cry of "war emergency" before the people can be consulted. The other counts specified against annexation are that annexation in the manner proposed is unconstitutional; the islands are too remote, and furnish too much additional coast line to be defended; the population is not racially nor religiously, nor otherwise homogeneous with our own; political dominion over the islands is not commercially necessary; the islands are not, from a naval or military standpoint, necessary to our defence; and admitting that their foreign occupation would be dangerous to us and that "there exists a single nation willing in the face of our repeated diplomatic declarations of our position, to incur the dangers of war with us in order to seize or hold them," this danger may be met when the first overt act or open declaration shows its actual existence, or may be prevented by the passage of the minority resolution heretofore cited.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

While the Mary Ellen was coming to anchor at Gloucester, Mass., David Farnsworth of Owl's Head, Me., 17 years, fell from the starboard rail and broke his neck.

There are meagre reports of violent tornadoes along the Republican river in south Nebraska. Many houses were torn to pieces, and many head of stock killed. It is feared that a number of persons lost their lives.

While Charles Walker was riding a tandem with a young lady in Fall River, the wheel slipped and Walker struck his head against the curbing, fracturing his skull. He died in the ambulance. His companion was uninjured.

A bill of equity has been filed with the clerk of the supreme court by the village corporation of Farmington, Me., to compel the Farmington Water company to carry out the terms of a contract concerning the purchase of the works and rights of the company by the village.

Camp Dewey in South Framingham, Mass., had the appearance of an old-time camp yesterday, as to the number of visitors and military movements, the Sixth and Ninth regiments occupying the parade grounds nearly the entire day, the latter being engaged in drill for over three hours during the forenoon, and the Sixth following suit during the afternoon.

COULDN'T HIT LEWIS.

The Bostons' Newest Pitcher Too Much For the Brooklyns.

Boston, May 18.—Ed Lewis, having passed the examination last week at Newton theological seminary, felt that a little recuperating exercise would not be amiss yesterday, and out for business he went against the club he has a knack of beating. Lewis pitched gilt-edged ball, having accuracy, speed and all the requisites to hold Brooklyn in check, and but one safe hit was made off his skilful twirling. For the most part he retired the visitors in order of coming to bat, three men only reaching first on balls, Yeager on a clean hit in the ninth inning. The team was never in danger of scoring except in the last inning, when Captain Griffin reached first by forcing out Yeager at second. When Jones was "passed" to first, Mr. Griffin went to second. He stole third, where he was left as Dunn struck out, and the game was over.

The local players accorded Lewis magnificent support in the field, and the batting was hard and clean. Herman Long figured in 10 plays himself, and every chance he had was a difficult one. He duplicated almost the same play he accomplished Saturday, a back-running catch on an apparent hit of Dunn's, and despite the slow ground, picked up clean every fast shooter coming his way, and fly balls in all directions were safely plucked. The Syracuses' hitting was a trifle more opportune than that of the Providences, and that gave an evenly contested game to the New York team. The Providences kicked continually on Doescher's decisions, and Manager Murray threatened to protest the game. Score: 5 to 4.

The New Yorks took both games from the Washingtons, the first because of their ability to hit Swayne effectively, and second by a lucky streak of batting in the ninth inning, when they were four runs behind the senators. Shortstop Davis injured his right hand in the first game and will be unable to play for a week. Catcher Grady was sent to the bench in the second game for disputing a decision. Scores: 9 to 3; 11 to 10.

The Newports turned the tables on the New Bedfords, and gave them a sound thrashing, 10 to 3. Riley held them down to two hits until the seventh, when they opened on him and batted out 10 runs in two innings.

Taylor of St. Louis was easy for the Pittsburgs, and has two shutouts in the present series recorded against him. Second Baseman Padden deserted the Pittsburg club because of a fine which he considered unjust, and Eagan played his position. Score: 6 to 0.

The Baltimores took two games from the Phillies with the greatest ease. The Quakers used two pitchers in each game. The first game was fairly well played, but the second one was uninteresting and was stopped on account of darkness. Scores: 9 to 5; 17 to 2.

The Pawtuckets played listlessly while the Tauntons played in championship form yesterday and won easily, 9 to 5. Breckenridge played finely at first for the Tauntons and made two terrific home runs.

The weakness of the Fall River team as compared to the Brocktons was vividly shown yesterday afternoon. The visitors were played to a standstill, the Brocktons making another great up-hill fight. Score: 8 to 5.

Battery errors and poor play in the third and ninth, followed by a bunching of hits, gave the Chicagos an easy victory over the Clevelands. Score: 13 to 6.

Bay State Congregationalists.

Greenfield, May 18.—The first session of the 96th annual meeting of the Congregational churches of Massachusetts was held yesterday afternoon, there being 300 delegates present, comprising ministers and laymen. The report of Secretary Hazen said in part: "To our roll we added seven churches this year, but with two lost, the gain is only five. We added 7092 to our membership, 5038 are removed from the state, and we lose 1828 by death. Our gain of members should be according to these figures 2026, but this is reduced by discrepancies in the report, making our net gain 1738."

There were on hand the beginning of this year $4063; the total receipts including that sum were $8833; expenditures during the year were $8832, less $1921. The auditor's report provides for an assessment of 3½ cents on the total church membership in the state, which is 111,228, and will bring in a revenue of $3889.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 18.—Tuesday the house ordered to a third reading the bill to provide for the payment of bounties to Massachusetts veterans of the civil war entitled to same. All amendments were finally rejected. The substitute gives a bounty, limited to $125, to all veterans who were promised bounties, including those enlisting from towns whose votes for bounties were later declared invalid.

In the senate there was a protest against striking from the resolve for improvements at the Worcester lunatic hospital an item of $40,000 for a new administration building, on the ground that at present attendants and physicians are obliged to sleep among the insane. The provision was retained and the bill ordered to a third reading.

The bill to appropriate $5000 for a boat for temporary use in patrolling Buzzard's bay was favorably reported by the fisheries and game committee.

FIRE IN JEWELRY TOWN.

Three Thousand Workmen Are Without Means of Employment.

Attleboro, Mass., May 18.—The catastrophe that for years has been feared because of the crowded situation of the jewelry factories of Attleboro came to a dread reality early this morning. The fine factories on Mill street caught fire at 12:30 o'clock and were burned to the ground with their entire contents. Very little of a property worth $1,000,000 was saved. Three thousand skilled workmen are thereby thrown out of employment with little hope of soon obtaining means of livelihood.

Four large factories, several smaller ones, a dozen or 15 dwelling houses, four or five barns, marble works, carpenter shops, and several other buildings of various character were destroyed at 1:30 o'clock this morning—just one short hour after the fire was first discovered.

The majority of the shops in the section destroyed were in charge of a watchman, who also has the care of the fires in the boiler rooms. The watchman was startled by an explosion, and on investigation he saw the whole north end of the Bates & Bacon watchcase building a mass of flames. In half an hour four shops were totally destroyed and the flames had spread to nearly a score of buildings. At 2:30 o'clock the fire was under control, but it had then swept almost everything within an area of four acres.

Contemplated Legislation.

Washington, May 18.—Senator Chandler, from the senate committee on naval affairs, reported a bill providing a retired list with three-quarters pay for enlisted men and petty officers who serve 30 years in the navy.

Representative Faris of Indiana has introduced a bill for the removal of all charges of enlistment in the confederate army now standing against any soldier who served in the union army in the late war as a regular volunteer where the enlisted man was held as a prisoner of war and afterwards rejoined his company and was honorably discharged.

The house committee on military affairs agreed to report favorably the bills prohibiting the photography of guns, which would give the strength of any fortification of the United States; increasing the number of post quarter sergeants of the army and suspending the provisions of the statute that limits the number of army hospital stewards to 100 and that requires the steward before appointment to demonstrate fitness by service of not less than a year as acting hospital steward.

New Postmasters.

Washington, May 18.—These appointments of postmasters were made Tuesday: New Hampshire—George H. Hitchcock, Hanover; George P. Dustan, Peterborough; Luther H. Merrill, Tilton; Bertha Cottrell, Epsom.

Massachusetts—Joseph A. West, Provincetown.

The Newspaper Men.

Madrid, May 18.—It is announced here in a dispatch from Havana that after the arrival of the Uncas off that port the captured newspaper men were examined, and it is added that the inquiry revealed the fact that they could not be considered as prisoners of war, but must be looked upon as spies, one being, it is claimed, a Cuban employed in Havana. It is further alleged that upon the prisoners were found revolvers, cartridges, interesting documents and a camera.

Gunboats on the Pacific.

San Diego, Cal., May 18.—Captain Lentz, commanding the Alert, now in this harbor, reports that there are two Spanish gunboats of about 150 tons at Guayaquil, Ecuador, and that they have been there much longer than neutrality laws allow. This is the first news of any Spanish warships being on the west coast of America. The news was given to Captain Lentz by the captain of a Panama steamer which called at Guayaquil.

Arrest of a Spy.

St. Louis, May 18.—An unidentified man, suspected of being a Spanish spy, is under arrest at Jefferson barracks. He was found in the mule corral. A lot of Spanish correspondence was found on him. He speaks Spanish fluently. The man spends his time in the guard house cursing the American flag.

Rashness of Youth.

Concord, H. H., May 18.—Carl I. Gienty, 18 years of age, shot himself through the head and died. He had been very anxious to enlist as a soldier with the First New Hampshire regiment, but was unable to obtain permission of his grandfather, F. L. Kelley of this city, who was his guardian, both of his parents being dead. The deed was evidently carefully planned, as Gienty wrote a letter and two orders for bankbooks belonging to him before laying himself down on the bed in his room at home and firing the fatal shot.

Bryan Commissioned as Colonel.

Lincoln, Neb., May 18.—W. J. Bryan is to organize a third regiment of Nebraska volunteers and tender their services to the president as soon as mustered in. Governor Holcomb has issued him a commission as colonel with authority to proceed, and Mr. Bryan will accept the commission.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 18.—"Another call by President McKinley for 100,000 volunteers," says The Journal, "will find the country ready and eager to respond to it."

"It cannot be repeated too often," in The Advertiser's judgment, "that the surest way to prolong the war is to suffer an American defeat; and that the surest way to end the war is to win one or two crushing American victories."

"There is no censorship of the press in the United States as there is in Spain, but the necessities of war," argues The Post, "impose some natural restrictions upon publicity which are not found in times of peace."

"For the sake of the moral effect upon ourselves and upon others, the necessity of urging the war to a quick termination is paramount to every other consideration," declares The Globe.

AGGRESSIVE TACTICS.

Pacific Blockade of Cuba to Be Altered.

TO DIVIDE BATTLESHIPS.

Two to Be Used In Covering Landing Parties.

NO DEPENDENCE UPON THE INSURGENTS.

Suffer From Lack of Numbers and Absence of Organization.

Washington, May 19.—The aggressive tactics of the war board are taking definite shape. Three squadrons are to be formed, any one of which will prove the equal of the Spanish fleet. Two of these squadrons, under Sampson and Schley, will be used to convoy the troops to Cuba, guarding the channel between Key West and the island. The other will be composed of the battleship Oregon and the monitors Puritan, Amphitrite, Terror and Miantonomoh, and will be stationed at Havana harbor to prevent the Spanish fleet from gaining entrance there.

THE OREGON.

The Oregon and the Marietta are safe. They have reached the Barbadoes, one of the Winward islands, not far from Martinique, where the Spanish fleet was first reported.

The lines are tightening about Captain General Blanco in Cuba. No longer is the blockade of the island to be pacific in character. The formal evacuation of the Spanish troops is near at hand. Emboldened by partial success in driving off insignificant, ill-advised expeditions, the fighting spirit of Blanco's forces is, perhaps, thoroughly aroused, but now, instead of meeting frail craft with small guns and few men, the Spaniards are to be confronted with gigantic ironclads that will blaze the way for our army and signal the approach of Cuban independence. Morro and all the fortifications will be razed, if necessary, to insure the carrying out of this program.

Action no less decisive than Admiral Dewey's brilliant attack at Manila is the order of the hour.

There is every reason to believe that the invasion will be carried out in accordance with the original plan which has been urged upon the administration by General Miles, whose idea is to conduct operations in Cuba without expectations of any assistance from the insurgents to speak of. He has held that the insurgents were neither numerous nor well-organized enough to render effective military operations carried on in a large way according to the accepted principles of war; and the information which has been received by the war department from its emissaries in Cuba has tended to confirm this belief.

Meanwhile, Blanco is to be completely isolated by the destruction of every method of communication between the island and the outside world. Of Admiral Cervera's erratic fleet the only certainty is that destruction awaits it. There are no misgivings as to the result of the great naval engagement now impending. The Americans are eager for battle. They are amply prepared for it, and there is no hope for the Spaniards, unless they hide or run away.

Commodore Schley has arrived at Key West, where he will be joined by Admiral Sampson's squadron.

The board of strategy may have information concerning the elusive enemy, but it is doubtful. All the news of the movements of the fleet which it obtained previously came from newspaper sources, and this avenue of information has been cut off by the rigid censorship which has been established. If the fleet has reached San Juan it is because Admiral Cervera has learned of the departure of Admiral Sampson's fleet from that point, a fact of comparative ease three days ago, before present stringent cable regulations had gone into effect.

Food Supply Assured

Madrid, May 19.—An official dispatch from Havana says: "The food supply is assured for a long time. Vessels are arriving here from all parts, even from the United States, with provisions."

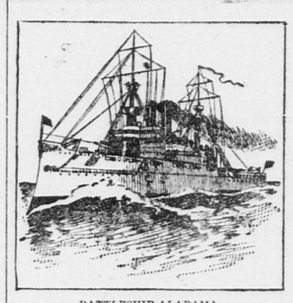

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, May 19.—Over 30 Porto Rican refugees, mostly women, with very little money, arrived here last night on board a French steamer. It is reported that the governor general of Porto Rico has issued a proclamation saying eight soldiers were killed and 34 were wounded as a result of the bombardment of the forts of San Juan by a portion of Admiral Sampson's fleet on May 13. He adds that two guns were dismounted at Morro castle, which was otherwise little damaged. He also says the other forts were not damaged much. In the town one shot, it is alleged, penetrated the palace and the corner of a powder house was carred away. The Spaniards as usual claim they won a victory, basing this assertion upon the fact that the American warships departed upder fire; but the refugees say that the city of San Juan is still terrorized, its inhabitants being in hourly fear of the reappearance of the American fleet and a repetition of the bombardment. People are camping in the country out of the range of the American guns.

The Spaniards claim that Freeman Halstead, the newspaper correspondent who was captured and sentenced to nine [illegible] imprisonment for photographing the fortifications of San Juan, was wounded by a shot which struck the town jail, but the refugees say he was probably shot by the Spaniards.

Feared Spanish Treachery.

Philadelphia, May 19.—Mary E. Morgan, daughter of Senator Morgan of Alabama, had the honor of breaking the traditional bottle of wine on the prow of the big fighter Alabama as it slid from the ways yesterday.

The bow of the boat was hung with great festoons of magnolias, gray moss and roses gathered by ladies of the state of Alabama and sent here for the occasion. Only a few hundred people witnessed the launching, as against the tens of thousands that usually gathered in the yard on such occasions. For some time the yard has been closed to all visitors, and the rule was not relaxed to any extent yesterday. Fear of Spanish treachery has made the government and the Cramps extremely cautious, as a single bomb exploded by a hostile visitor would do almost incaluable damage. "The war time launching" was for this reason almost a private affair. If the armor is contracted for now and delivered promptly, the ship will be ready for commission within a year.

BATTLESHIP ALABAMA.

San Deigo Bombarded.

Madrid, May 19.—A dispatch from Havana says that Santiago de Cuba has been bombarded, but "no great damage has been done."

Purchasing Without Advertising.

Washington, May 19.—When the senate went into secret session yesterday on the quartermasters' bill, Mr. Hawley read a letter from General Flagler, chief of the bureau of ordnance, requesting that authority be given for the purchase of ordnance without waiting to advertise, saying that such delay at times like these might be of very serious consequence. The letter was not notable in any respect except that it was an official acknowledgment of the fact that there are still many articles to be secured for the equipment of the army and that expedition is considered necessary in securing them.

The reading of the letter led to a brief discussion of the status of the military operations, and some impatience was expressed regarding the apparent delay in getting the military expedition to the Philippines started. Senator Lodge made a brief speech on this point, expressing the hope that, that if the passage of the bill would expedite in any wise the movement of this force it would be put through without further delay. He

ENGLAND'S LION DEAD.

The World's Greatest Statesman In Eternal Rest.

No Return of Consciousness Before the End.

National Honors Befitting Gladstone's Greatness to Be Paid.

Hawarden, May 19.—England's grand old man and the world's advocate of liberty is no more. William E. Gladstone passed away this morning shortly after dawn.

He had been unconscious practically all day, though at times he seemed to recognize for a moment some of the watchers about him. Certainly he did recognize his wife, who was beside him all day except when the physician prevailed upon her to rest. She tenderly clasped her husband's hand as she watched him. Apparently he slept a good deal; and occasionally he uttered a few words in an incoherent, dreamy way, words which those who were watching were unable to catch. Their only consolation was that he was not suffering pain. No narcotics were administered.

At 4 a. m. it was learned Mr. Gladstone was on the very brink of the grave. All the family had met in his room. They included his frail and worn wife, clasping the beloved hand; Helen Gladstone, Herbert and Henry Gladstone, the Rev. Stephen Gladstone, Mrs. Drew, Mrs. Wickham, Mrs. Henry Gladstone, Mr. Phillimore, a life-long friend, and, on the outer fringe of those near the dying man stood, almost as much affected, the doctors and two faithful nurses. One hour later the end came.

Every topic in Great Britain yesterday dropped out of sight before the passing of Mr. Gladstone. Hawarden focussed the attention which, from the highest to the man in the street, was respectful, sincere and profound.. The time had come when, as Mr. Chamberlain said last evening at the Civil Service club banquet, the greatest statesman of our time and generation was passing to his rest. In two places perhaps was the tension most keen and most heartfelt—the house of commons and Hawarden.

Just before the house rose a telegram from Herbert Gladstone reached Lord Stanley, announcing that his father was sinking. In the minds of all it was the last of a long series of bulletins anxiously awaited and mournfully received. Already before his death the hush of grief seemed to fall over the scene of his triumphs; and from the present men turned to the past, recalling his sayings and doings. A great lion lay dying, his old colleagues, his one-time enemies and followers watching his last, long fight with hs last and implacable foe as they watched in past days his fights against foes whom he could overcome. True to himself, he was yielding slowly, inch by inch. It was generally felt at St. Stephens that his dying was but the sequel to that great scene witnessed four years ago when, his last speech spoken, he quitted the house without one word of spoken adieu.

Anticipating the inevitable, the members of the government discussed the appropriate procedure to be observed, and resolved that no effort on their part should be wanting to mark a suitable sense of their loss and the loss of the nation. Disregarding recent precedents, it was decided that when the end should come the procedure in parliament should be the same as that adopted in the cases of the Earl of Chatham and of the younger Pitt, namely, an address to her majesty praying for a funeral at the

You've got to show 'em. They want to "see." Last Sunday in a church in a small town, where it is customary to send notices of one thing and another, and one kind and another, up to the pastor, so that he may read them aloud from the pulpit to the congregation, one notice was read that did not just exactly convey the meaning the writer intended. A young naval officer, brave and wanting to fight, had been ordered to join his ship. His mother-in-law wanting to secure the prayers of her pastor and her neighbors for his welfare, and at the same time call a little attention to herself, sent a notice to the pulpit which should have read: "Lieutenant Smith going to sea, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Jones, desires the prayers of the congregation." She didn't punctuate it just right, leaving out the comma after "sea," and this is the way it sounded, "Lieutenant Smith going to see his mother-in-law Mrs. Jones, desires the prayers of the congregation." The congregation knowing Mrs. Jones, gave him their prayers. Sometimes a pause makes a great difference.

When you are in need of a spring suit and the same old thought (I will go to Boston) comes to you, always pause. Think it over and say to yourself, "sez you," "There's that new store that everyone is talking about. They say they sell good goods cheap. They have a buyer in the market every day, and he should know what is going, and if they can buy 'what's' going as close as Boston merchants, it seems to me as if their less expense should enable them to sell cheaper."

That pause will save you money. For example, you can come any day this week, you can buy a nice Blue Serge or Brown and Gray Check, all-wool Suit for $7.50. If you think it's only as good as a regular $8.50 suit, you're mistaken. It's better.

THE MINSTRELS.

Ledger Press Caught and No War Extras.

Hardest Hits on Employes of the Street Railway.

A Large Chorus and Some Popular Solos.

When the curtain arose upon the platform at Music hall a little after 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, it disclosed seated thereon forty of the blackest white men as one ever saw, the only gentleman whose face was not blackened was that of George S. Waterhouse, the interlocutor, who also impersonated a general in Uncle Sam's Army.

It was the much talked of Minstrel show of the employes of the Quincy & Boston street railway, and those in the semi-circle were for the most part conductors and motormen employed on the road. The conductors were easily distinguishable from the motormen, for the former wore brilliant diamonds on their fingers and shirt fronts, and everybody knows that motormen are on the wrong end of the car to support diamonds Other than this, so completely disguised were they, that it was next to impossible to call any of them by name.

There were ten end men and these were as follows: Bones—Henry W. French, William Chubbuck, John P. Bigelow, Jr., Charles Austin and Charles Horne. Tambos—Dan Haley, F. Munroe Perry, Mr. Woodward, John McAloon and Walter Anderson.

Mr. William Wilson presided at the piano and from the time of the opening chorus until 11 o'clock he was kept busy.

The opening chorus was a melody of popular airs, and at its close the air was full of jokes, the Ledger being the first to be mentioned, the purport being that no extra was issued Wednesday, for everthing had gone to smash at the Ledger office. Asked how this was, Mr. French replied, that the press caught (Prescott).'' There were many other local hits distributed premiscuously among the employes of the railroad, and to those any way acquainted with the boys many of the hits were timely and disclosed the weakness of those who were made the butt of the joke. Among those hit were John Kelly, Charlie Austin, Charlie Murphy, Richard the III, the boy-faced motorman, Harry Putman, Romie Dunham, Robinson and Gardner. Supt. Weeks and Treasurer Smith were also pleasantly remembered.

The individual solos were all excellent and encores were demanded and given on each. The one particular song that brought down the house was the last verse of ''The Warmest Baby in the Bunch,'' by John P. Bigelow, Jr., which paid tribute to one of Quincy's well-known characters.

The grand finale was a melody of patriotic airs, closing with ''The Star Spangled Banner.'' As the company arose to sing this air a large American flag was unfurled. The audience also arose and joined in the chorus, while the scene was illuminated with colored fire.

Part two of the programme consisted of fancy dancing by little Mabel McClusky; a musical sketch by Messrs. Groves, Taylor and Groves; ten minutes with Dan Haley; selections by the Quincy Male quartette composed of Messrs. Glover, Pierce, Turner and Anderson; sketch by Messrs. Moorhead and Appleton; banjo and harmonica duet by Charles Barron, and a comical farce entitled ''Dr. Snowball'' by John Phelan, John Ross and R. J. Gray.

Of this part particular mention should be made of the dancing of Mabel McClusky and the selections by the Quincy Male quartette. The voices of the latter blended finely and their selections were a rare treat and they were recalled several times. Dan Haley was a full team.

As a whole, the entertainment provided was a good one and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience present.

"THE FRAGMENTS."

Successful Sale, Enjoyable Supper and Entertainment.

The sale, supper and entertainment of the Fragment society Wednesday afternoon and evening at the First church chapel was a pronounced success. The sales tables were arranged on the sides of the room, the walls back of them being prettily decorated with flags.

At the left of the entrance was an Apron table at which were Mrs. William B. Rice, Mrs. J. Henry Emery, Mrs. George S. Keyes, Mrs. Ellery C. Butler, Mrs. J. Frank Faxon, Mrs. Pierce and Miss Field.

Next to this was the Pitcher table, where pitchers of every design and make were offered for sale. This table was in charge of Mrs. A. E. Sproul, Mrs. Walter B. Holden, Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, Mrs. C. A. Price and Mrs. A. Dewson.

Near the platform was a figure dressed as McGinty and upon the payment of a small sum Mrs. F. A. Tupper and Mrs. George G. Saville would permit you to put your hand into McGinty's pocket and draw forth a prize.

On the opposite side of the room was the confectionery table. This was in charge of Mrs. E. E. Davis, Mrs. G. E. Pfaffman, Miss Gurna Saville, Miss Irma Tilton, Miss Beatrice Tisdale and Miss Steele.

The sale opened at 2 o'clock but trade was not very brisk until evening after supper. This supper was one of the features. It was served at 6.30 o'clock and so many were there who wanted to partake of it that two tables were necessary. The supper consisted of cold meats, salads, rolls and coffee.

At 8 o'clock there was a ''Fragmentary Entertainment'' by some of the ''Fragments.'' As the curtain was drawn aside the ''fragments'' were seen seated on the stage in a semi circle. They were dressed for the most part in red, white and blue, and were seated against a background of flags and bunting. Miss Edith Randall was in charge of the miscellaneous entertainment which consisted of vocal selections and readings, those to take part being, Mrs. Gurney of Wollaston, Miss Hastings, Miss Emery, Miss Chamberlain, Miss Sibley, Mrs. W. M. Packard, Miss Randall, Miss Sprague, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Miss Field and Miss Andrews. Mrs. Gurney's readings were very fine and were greatly enjoyed, as were also the solos by Miss Hastings and Miss Emery. Miss Chamberlain's French dialect recitation and Miss Sibley's humorous selections were very cute. The selection ''The Cat Came Back.'' was loudly encored, and the comb orchestra conducted by Miss Randall brought down the house, and the applause was so prolonged, a repetition was given. Miss Randall is remarkably versatile and is a whole entertainment in herself, so that of course the ''fragmentary entertainment'' by the ''fragments'' was a great success.

The whole affair was very successfully carried out and a good sum was realized by this worthy society for a worthy object.

K. & L. of H. Anniversary.

Maple lodge, 313, Knights and Ladies of Honor, observed its eighteenth anniversary Wednesday evening by a large gathering of the families and friends of the members. A number of the grand officers were present among whom were Grand Protector C. V. Blanchard; Past Grand Protector Lewis Tibbetts; Deputy F. A. Ober; Grand Guide Harding and Grand Chaplain Hoyt. Each of the grand officers made short addresses in relation to the work of the order. There was also an interesting entertainment, consisting of selections by the orchestra, piano trio by the Misses Marnock and Miss Milne; reading by Miss Richardson; solos by Mrs. Laura Tirrell and Mrs. Leonard Hewson and graphophone selections by Mr. C. F. Crosby.

A bountiful collation was served and the evening's festivities closed with a social dance. Much of the success of the affair was due to the efficient committee composed of Charles Crane Miss M. Lizzie Furnald, Miss M. Jennie Davis, Mrs. Rhines, Mrs. Mary A. H. Crane, Mrs. Emma Marnock, Mrs. George Monk and Howard Rogers.

Abraham Lincoln Said:

"You can fool some of the people all the time." Many bicycle riders are fooled in buying new wheels by a fictitious allowance on their old one.

It is the Easiest Thing in the World

To list a cheap Western wheel $25 more than it is worth. An unscrupulous dealer pushes a wheel of this sort and makes a leader of it, instead of better and more reliable makes, because he can allow far more on a second-hand wheel and still make a bigger profit.

People should remember that no one sells bicycles for health or pleasure, but to make money.

WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

A guard is placed around the water tower and magazine, and about midnight the picket on duty saw a dark complexioned man. He challenged him, at which the fellow jumped at the picket, and throwing aside his gun threw him to the ground. The picket gave the alarm, and two others of the guard hastened to his assistance. Upon their approach the fellow ran away, and passing through the water tower, picked offa picket and escaped.

He is at present a resident of Dorchester.

In 1863 he served on the schoolship Macedonia. From the latter part of that year to 1865 he was on the Shenandoah with the North Atlantic blockading squadron. MR. FAXON IN LUCK.

In a Grand Smashup, but Escapes Serious Injury.

Henry M. Faxon had a narrow escape from a serious accident Wednesday afternoon, but fortunately escaped with a severe shaking up. He was driving out of North street at Quincy Point when his horse shied at first one electric car and then another, and striking a pole threw Mr. Faxon out. He hung onto the reins and was dragged some distance. The animal thep dashed across the street and struck another pole demolishing a wheel and smashing the top of the carriage. The animal then dashed up Washington street, with three wheels and the running part, at a breakneck pace.

Ex-Engineer William who saw the runaway, whipped up his horse and dashed after the frightened animal. Mr. William's horse proved to be the faster of the two animals, and passing the runaway he drove in front of him and by keeping in the way gradually slowed Mr. Faxon's horse down, so that when City Square was reached he was going moderately.

As the corner of Coddington street was reached the horse ran into his stable and the runaway ended. It was a reckless thing that Mr. Williams did and but few would have taken the chance of being smashed that he did.

SENATOR TURPIE SPOKE.

Addressed the Senate In Favor of the War Revenue Bill.

Washington, May 19.—In beginning his address on the bill for war revenue yesterday, Senator Turpie declared that it was very easy to say that the country was at war and that the congress must supply the money for its conduct; but this was not the language of statesmanship. It must be realized that dependence could not be placed upon the Dingley bill for war revenues, for the bill was not what its promoters had expected it would be. "It is an excrescence," Mr. Turpie said, "as it has always been an anomaly." Mr. Turpie thought the tax on succession was one of the best features of the bill. It was a tax on accumulation, while the tax on beer and tobacco was a tax on consumption. The senator strongly urged the proposed tax on corporations, estimating that this provision would yield $100,000,000 and the inheritance tax $50,000,000 more. This would supply the amount necessary to be raised by taxation. The remaining $150,000,000 necessary could be raised by the coinage of the silver seigniorage and the issue of legal tender notes. The majority of the finance committee had deemed it wise to propose the coinage of the seigniorage in deference to the wishes of the 15,000,000 citizens who in the last national campaign had made evident their desire for such coinage. The section of the bill providing for the issue of greenbacks was proposed by the majority of the committee as a substitute for the bond section of the bill as it came from the house. He thought it ought to be revised, and that the government should be provided with sufficient money to pay its expenses. Mr. Turpie said that the pending bill carried a provision for a basketful of certificates of indebtedness in order to meet the deficiencies caused by the Dingley law The Democrats had been sharply criticised because of the monthly deficiency of the so-called Wilson law, but the Dingley law was showing similar deficits without criticism. Now it was proposed in the pending war measure to take care of all the Dingley law deficits with the certificates of indebtedness.

SENATOR TURPIE.

Referring to the proposed issue of bonds, Mr. Turpie said he entertained a suspicion that the bond rider had been placed on the pending bill voting supplies to the government for the war in order to force those who were in favor of supporting the government to vote for it. The promoters of the scheme, he was satisfied, were convinced that the bond issue could not stand on its own merits. They therefore had put it as a rider on this bill in order to place congress in durance. No man could excel him in desire to bring the war to an honorable and auspicious conclusion, but he deprecated the administration's resort to a bond issue at a time when its "policy remains yet in the mystery of abeyance."

Mr. Turpie turned his remarks upon the subject of the independence of the Cubans. The recognition of the independence of the Cubans, he said, had been promised, but where, he asked, was that recognition?

Mr. Hale had risen and Mr. Turpie declined to yield, but at this juncture he interjected the question, "And where is the Cuban government?"

Mr. Turpie paid no attention to this remark. Discussing the Monroe doctrine, he declared he would as lief recede to Great Britain Staten island as he would recede to Spain any portion of Cuba. Every shot fired from the days of Lexington and Concord to the days of Gettysburg and Appomattox had pointed to the present position of the United States asserting our primacy in the new world. Spain had been the first and it would be the last to deny this primacy. He predicted undisputed triumph, and said it would be more than a national victory; it would be a victory of even-handed justice.

Considerable progress was made in the reading of the bill, which included, naturally, the consideration of the amendments proposed by the committee. Through the influence of Mr. Gorman (Dem., Md.) the imprisonment penalty was stricken out of some of the sections relating to violations of the stamp tax. After an extended debate, part of which occurred in secret legislative session, the conference report on the bill suspending certain parts of the existing law relating to the purchase of supplies by the war department was adopted.

STAMPED ON THE FLAG

Hatred of This Country Displayed by a Spanish Mob.

Refused to Load a British Vessel For America.

Threatened to Kill the Crew and Destroy the Craft.

Baltimore, May 19.—Captain Wood of a British steamship, which has arrived here from Huelva, reports that he had an eventful experience in the Spanish port. He reached there April 22 to take on a cargo of 3200 tons of sulphur for Baltimore. Public sentiment was running high against America and Americans, and he gave it out that his cargo was destined for Rotterdam. He had loaded 2200 tons by April 27, when he thought it discrete to leave.

"When the Spaniards found out I was going to the United States," said Captain Wood, "they became wild with rage and refused to put another pound of cargo into the ship. A mob came down to the dock and began rioting. They were armed with sticks and stones, as well as big knives. They expressed hatred for Englishmen just as much as for Americans and declared they would destroy my ship and all on board. I decided to get away as soon as possible.

"I gave orders to get ready for sea and visited the Venezuelan consul, who represents the Unted States government, to have my papers attested. I no sooner left the ship than a crowd began following me, hooting and jeering. I reached the Albion hotel, where the consulate is located. The fast increasing mob gathered outside the hotel, and when they discovered I was in conversation with the consul of Venezuela they stormed the place. The American flag which was in the consul's office was torn into ribbons and trodden upon in the streets, and the American coat of arms was shattered. The eagle was kicked in the mud and spat upon. The mob went for me. They bombarded the hotel with stones and smashed every window in it. They threw a dozen or more huge stones at me, several of which just grazed my head. They then drew murderous-looking knives, and, declaring I was an American, tried to kill me. I slipped out of the back way, and by making a detour reached my ship unmolested.

"As soon as I got aboard I heard the mob coming down the quay yelling like mad to renew the attack. I ordered the lines cast off, and as the tug was alongside we were soon out of their reach. We went out a little way and anchored, after which I got back ashore on the tug and secured my papers, and we sailed immediately.

"Soon after we left Gibraltar, two small craft were sighted astern, and we soon made them out to be Spanish torpedo boats. For 30 miles they followed us, but when night came we put on full steam and kept going lively all that night. When day dawned our pursuers were nowhere in sight."

WEDNESDAY'S GAMES.

Members of the New Bedford Team Besieged an Umpire.

The Brockton team yesterday afternoon defeated the New Bedfords in a warm game, 3 to 1. Both teams made Umpire Hunt's life miserable, and in the ninth, when he called a hit to right field from Jake Weihl's bat a foul, the New Bedford team pounced on him like a tribe of cannibals on a missionary. Weihl shook him and was sent to the bench. By this decision the crowd became angered, and when the game was over Hunt was obliged to stand much abusive language.

The Syracuse and Providence teams split even in a double bill. The games were characterized by much kicking on both sides. Doescher ordered Rudderham to the bench in the first game and afterwards called him back.

A base on balls, a hit batsman, an error and a single gave the Pittsburgs two tallies in the second. In the other innings the visitors could do nothing with Nops' delivery, and lost to the Baltimores, 9 to 2.

The St. Louis team beat the Chicagos chiefly because Thornton hit three batsmen in succession and was pounded safely four times in the fourth inning, six runs resulting. Score: 11 to 4.

The Springfields defeated the Wilkesbarres in a 10-inning game, 7 to 6. Coakley was wild, sending nine men to first on balls.

Manager Whiting's Pawtucket team gave the "statesmen" from Newport the worst beating they have had this season, the score being 7 to 2. Todd and Gallagher pitched good ball, although the Newporter was hit hard at some stages.

The Fall Rivers smothered the Tauntons, batting McGamewell hard, while the losers helped along the run getting by loose fielding. Ladd and John Smith led at the bat, the former making four hits, three of them two-baggers, while Smith reached second twice on long hits. McGamewell, in spite of his punishment, was kept in the game. Score: 18 to 1.

An Incendiary Fire.

Old Orchard, Me., May 19.—A fire of incendiary origin was discovered in the St. Elmo cottage at 11:30 o'clock last night, and for two hours the firemen fought desperately to save the large number of hotels and cottages near the sea wall. The total loss of the buildings destroyed is about $13,000.

The St. Elmo was quickly destroyed, the flames spreading to the Granite State cottage, the Lawrence cottage, and two other cottages, which were all destroyed. The Cleaves house was damaged to the extent of about $200, while a cottage owned by Edward Morst of Barre, Vt., suffered a damage of nearly $300.

The Congregationalists.

Greenfield, Mass., May 19.—The principal event yesterday at the Congregational convention was the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Home Missionary society, and the following officers were elected: President, Franklin Carter of Williams college; secretary, Rev. Joshua H. Coit of Concord; treasurer, Rev. Edwin B. Palmer; auditor, Nicholson Boughton.

AGGRESSIVE TACTICS.

referred to the battle of Manila as the most notable naval triumph of the world because of its remarkable one-sidedness, and expressed surprise and disappointment that 18 days should have been allowed to elapse before troops sufficient to enable us to follow up the naval victory with an attack upon the Spanish land forces at Manila had been put in readiness to start upon their mission.

Sir Julian Amused.

Washington, May 19.—The British ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote, was amused at published reports that he had been asked by the state department to have Mr. Polo, Spain's former representative here, expelled from Canada on the ground that he was directing a system of spying. The subject has never been mentioned between the state department and the ambassador. From the standpoint of the British officials, Polo's course in Canada may be open to criticism in the matter of good taste and diplomatic usage, but it does not involve any breach of law which could receive attention at the hands of the British authorities.

The lecture of Dubosc, first secretary of the former Spanish legation, severely criticising several members of the American congress, has been received in pamphlet form at several of the embassies and legations here. The use of the mails for circulating this kind of a document may involve an offense on the part of Mr. Dubosc, of which the Canadian law would take cognizance. The understanding here is that Polo and his entire retinue are about to sail for Spain, and the disposition in official and diplomatic circles is to have them go without any delay for inquiry or prosecution.

A Statute on Enemy's Ships.

Washington, May 19.—It will be good news to the families and friends of the men on Dewey's fleet to know that they have not been altogether debarred from naval prize money, and that they are to have something more substantial than a medal and the praise of their countrymen for the destruction of the Spanish fleet at Manila on May 1. Officers of the navy department have discovered that section 4635 of the revised statutes authorizes the payment of a bounty of $100 for each man on an enemy's ship of war that is destroyed in action. The reports from Manila are that the Spanish fleet was double manned in the expectation of conquering the American fleet and requiring prize crews for the captured vessels. In this case it is likely that there were no less than 2000 men in the fleet, which would mean an aggregate premium of $200,000 to be divided among American sailors. The naval officers are taking steps to ascertain the exact number of Spaniards on the 11 vessels destroyed as a basis for the payment to be made.

Sixth Regiment Commissions.

Camp Dewey, South Framingham, Mass., May 19.—Governor Wolcott reviewed the Sixth regiment yesterday, and when it was finished the regiment was drawn up in three battalion formation and the governor presented the commissions to Colonel Woodward, Lieutenant Colonel Chaffin and staff and 36 line officers. Governor Wolcott addressed them as follows: "Men of Massachusetts and army of the United States, you are about to follow your comrades in arms, the men of the Second and Eighth, who departed before you to fight the battle of your country. Your ancestors at Concord fired the shot that was heard 'round the world,' and you, whose fathers marched through Baltimore, should you march through that city today, would receive the plaudits of the people, who would wish you godspeed; and as you go forward to engage in battle with a foreign foe you will have the wishes and approbations of the citizens of this commonwealth, and on your return from a series of victories you will receive the glad welcome that Massachusetts can give to its soldiers."

Colonel Woodward responded as follows: "Your excellency, the Sixth regiment has always been faithful to its duty in the past and will try to do its duty in the future."

Nearly all women look forward to the ordeal of motherhood with so much dread and anxiety that only after the baby has safely arrived and made a warm little place for himself in the mother's heart, does she fairly realize that it was indeed a good angel who brought this wee nestling to brighten and sweeten her life.

Women who are approaching motherhood with a sense of fear and solicitude, or in a weakened physical condition, need the help of that marvelous "Favorite Prescription," invented by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and designed expressly to restore healthy vigor to the delicate feminine structure involved in motherhood. It takes away all of the danger and most of the pain attendant upon motherhood, and confers on the baby that lusty hardihood which is a joy to a mother's heart.

An Ohio lady, Mrs. Lefa Hoffmire, of Clarington, Monroe Co., in a letter to Dr. Pierce, says: "I had always been healthy until four years ago. Before the birth of my child I suffered almost death a dozen times. Had what we call milk leg for four years. Could not stand it to be on my feet long at a time without swelling dreadfully. Before my last baby was born, I had every symptom of a return of the trouble. My leg swelled badly. I read of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and thought I would try it. I took six bottles, and when my baby was born I was not sick at all after I was out of labor, which lasted only a short time. In times previous, labor had lasted twelve to fifteen hours. I am a well woman to-day, and have been since I got out of bed, when my little boy was nine days old. I give the credit all to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I will never do without it during such a time."

ENGLAND'S LION DEAD.

public charge and a monument erected in Westminster abbey.

Throughout the whole kingdom every public gathering has added its words of deep grief to the volume of national mourning clearly voiced in the telegram from the Prince of Wales to Henry Gladstone: "My thoughts are with you, your mother and your family at this trying time you are experiencing. God grant that your father do not suffer."

At the banquet of the Home Counties Liberal federation last evening Vernon Harcourt, Liberal leader in the house of commons, instead of delivering an important party address, only uttered a few words of grief and left the room.

In other places, Lord Mayor Horatio Davies, Lord George Hamilton, secretary of state for India; Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and many others in London, as well as in Birmingham, Swansea, Cardiff, Liverpool, Edinburgh and elsewhere—at all sorts of gatherings, politicians, divines, reformers, agitators and women joined in the expression of national and individual grief, while the press without exception published columns of details and columns of editorial comments. It was the topic of the hour in Great Brtain; but abroad the evidences of sympathy have been almost as universal. Mr. Faure, president of the French republic, daily enquired and regularly received every bulletin. The press of Belgium, France, Italy and Greece, in a spontaneous outburst, recalls how many oppressed peoples during Mr. Gladstone's life have offered hymns of praise for his intervention in their behalf; while in Madrid the prospect of his death caused a 24 hours' suspension of war animosity against England. Not the least point in this tribute to Mr. Gladstone has been its profound unanimity.

Though a national funeral will probably be accepted by the family, there is little doubt that the remains of Mr. Gladstone will be laid to rest in the peaceful graveyard at Hawarden adjoining the church where he was married more than half a century ago. At Hawarden the happiest portion of his life was spent.

Swept by a Tornado.

Clinton, Ia., May 19.—Over a score of lives were lost and thousands of dollars worth of property was destroyed by a tornado which swept Clinton and Jackson counties. The storm jumped into western Illinois near Savannah, and it was at that point that the loss of life was greatest. Telegraph and telephone facilities are paralyzed and the full extent of the storm is yet to be learned. The dead so far reported are:

At Preston, Ia.—Charles Flora and wife and three of their children.

At Quigley, Ia.—William Omeara; child of John Clark.

At Riggs Station, Ia.—Martin Hines; daughter of Michael Solon.

At Stanwood, Ia.—Michael Maloney; Luke Maloney.

At Delmar Junction, Ia.—Oba Allison, Sauren Clemenson.

At Savannah, Ills.—Four persons, names unknown.

The storm started shortly after 3 o'clock a mile south of Stanwood. From Stanwood it moved rapidly in a northeasterly direction, passing over the northeastern part of Clinton county and then over the southeastern portion of Jackson county. This section of the state is thickly settled. No towns were in the path of the storm, but farmhouses and barns were torn to pieces by the score.

The wind tore through the little village with frightful velocity, leaving scarcely a house standing. Five persons lost their lives here, Charles Flora with his wife and three children having their home hurled to pieces and being crushed to death under the falling walls.

The cyclone crossed to Illinois between Savannah and Thompson. One family of four persons were wiped out near Savannah. Passing to the east much damage was done, but it was confined almost entirely to outbuildings. No lives are thought to have been lost anywhere in Illinois except those near Savannah.

Telegraph and telephone wires are down in all directions, but it is believed that the storm spent its force shortly after passing Savannah.

Grand Court of Foresters.

Brockton, May 19.—J. W. Slattery of Westboro was elected grand chief ranger of the Foresters of America, receiving 156 votes to 106 cast for W. H. Stafford of Lowell, at yesterday's session. The other officers elected were: Sub-chief ranger, Daniel W. Fitzgerald; treasurer, William H. Harrigan, Lowell; secretary, J. J. Gallagher, Lowell.

At present there are 139 courts with a membership of 26,116 and funds amounting to $159,191.63, a gain for the year of 10 courts, 2711 members and $4,571.79 in funds, and a gain for three years of 41 courts, 9389 members and $58,629.75, or over 50 percent in membership and funds for that period. There have been disbursed during the past year for death benefits $22,236.60; sick benefits, including physicians' services and medicines, $99,927.30, and benevolent grants, $5,861.22, a total disbursement of $128,070.22, as against $98,030.96 for the year previous, and $90,765.52 the year before.

Thousand Poultry Dead.

Oldtown, Me., May 19.—A large hennery, the property of the university of Maine at Orono, was destroyed by fire yesterday. One thousand hens and chickens were burned, and the loss to the state will be about $3000.

Fire In Springfield.

Springfield, May 19.—A stubborn fire in a factory, owned by Elisha Morgan and occupied by O. W. Bullock & Co., Cashin Card & Glazed Paper company, the Springfield Machine Screw company, the Tucker & Cook Manufacturing company, manufacturers of yarns, and the Brooks Bank Note company, caused an aggregate loss of from $50,000 to $75,000. It is evident that the fire had been burning sometime before beng noticed.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 19.—The senate had a sharp debate yesterday, and as a result the bill for a board of trustees for children was substituted for the committee's adverse report on the children's bureau bill. The board differs from the children's bureau in that it will remain under the control of the state board of lunacy and charity. It was substituted by a vote of 18 to 14.

Local option for Boston, the city to be divided into eight license districts, found but scant favor, and by an overwhelming vote the house refused to substitute a bill calling for such for the adverse report of the liquor committee.

The bill for the exemption of college property used by members of the faculty as residences from taxation was defeated in the house by a decisive vote.

The bill to prohibit deductions of wages of women and children employed in manufacturing and mechanical establishments was engrossed.

The house, after a short debate, rejected the bill to grant all express companies equal privileges on all railroads in the state.

The bill providing for a special agent in no-license towns to see to the selling of liquor for medicinal purposes, under a special commission, was defeated.

By a vote of 12 to 9 the bill for the election of assessors for terms of three years was amended by the senate by striking out the section for this provision and then engrossed, 17 to 5, the remainder of the bill providing for a deputy state tax commissioner and for a more uniform system of assessing taxes.

An act on street railway taxation assesses companies whose annual gross receipts per mile of track are $4000 or less, ½ of 1 percent of the total annual gross receipts; companies whose gross receipts are more than $4000 and less than $7000, 1½ percent; more than $7000 and less than $14,000, 1¾ percent; more than $14,000 and less than $21,000, 2 percent; more than $21,000 and less than $28,000, 2¼ percent; more than $28,000, 2½ percent. The excise tax thus provided shall be in addition to the taxes now provided by law. The excise tax shall be applied toward the construction, repair, etc., of the public ways and the removal of snow therefrom. Street railway companies shall not be required to keep any portion of the surface material of the streets, roads and bridges in repair, and may, as an incident to their corporate franchise, without fee, open any street where the railway is located to make repairs or renewals of the railway.

WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

For plans, prices and terms, apply to DR. N. S. HUNTING, 214 Hancock St., Quincy, or to MR. GEO. G. SAVILLE, 5 Greenleaf street, Quincy, and John Hancock Bldg., Devonshire St., Boston.

LATEST WAR BULLETINS On Page Three.

A SAFE HAVEN.

No More Guessing as to the Spanish.

CERVERA IS AT SANTIAGO.

Position Conceded to Be Highly Advantageous to Him.

Washington, May 20.—It was semi-officially announced today that word had reached the navy department confirmatory of Paris advices of the safe arrival in Santiago of the much-discussed Spanish squadron. The naval war board is considering strategic movements based upon this information. In proceeding to that port the, the authorities say that Spain has made a decidedly good move, and that her agents have been keeping Admiral Cervera very well advised of the position of Rear Admiral Sampson's squadron. The navy department desired it to be known on Monday that Admiral Sampson had cabled from Cape Haytien that he was going to Cienfuegos. Had this been true, he would have passed Santiago de Cuba long before the Spanish fleet's arrival, and, if bound for Key West, Cervera would have nothing to fear.

Now that the fleet is safely in Santiago, it will be extremely difficult to lock it up in that harbor. In the first place the armorclads are at Key West, about 800 miles away, and they cannot reach Santiago under 60 hours. By that time it would be possible for Admiral Cervera to be approaching Cienfugos, to destroy the blockading vessels there, provided Captain General Blanco informed him of the departure of the American vessels in an easterly direction.

ADMIRAL CERVERA.

If at Santiago, another point of advantage is that Admiral Cervera is in constant communication with Captain General Blanco, notwithstanding the American men-of-war and the cutting of the cables which was accomplished at Cienfuegos. Furthermore, the Spanish fleet is at a base of supplies, where it can secure both coal and provisions, and make any repairs that its voyage may have made necessary.

Rear Admiral Sampson, with the division of the north Atlantic squadron under his command which attacked San Juan, Porto Rico, has returned to Key West. This means that he has under his command the battleships Iowa, Indiana and Massachusetts, second class battleship Texas, and armored cruisers Brooklyn and New York, which make him superior by two armor-clads to the Spanish fleet.

Although the impression has been lately received in the war department that the invasion of Cuba would be made within a week, it is now said that such is not the case. No action will be made against Havana until Admiral Cervera has been disposed of and the ships can sail to Cuba without fear of attack.

As a matter of fact, the government does not wish to send the United States army to Cuba for as long and difficult a campaign as that in Cuba promises to be until the volunteers have arrived in a state of perfect organization and are properly equipped and supplied. Both the quartermaster general and the commissary general are having much trouble in getting the necessary supplies for the new army. Very few men, even in the army, realize how poorly prepared the volunteer troops are at the present time for actual service.

When Admiral Sampson has reported to the government that no more fear may be felt in regard to the Spanish flotilla, there will be no delay in sending the army to Cuba. The regiments are now ready to move on Cuba at a moment's notice. All the necessary transports are chartered, and could be used by giving one day's notice.

More than 50 regiments of the volunteer army either have started for or reached the mobilizing point to which they were directed to proceed by the secretary of war. Fifteen or 20 other regiments have reported their readiness to start for such points. In order to prevent confusion at the camps and any congestion in the railroad traffic, the war department officials are deferring giving orders for a number of the volunteer regiments to start. The volunteer regiments which were directed to go to San Francisco, except those from North and South Dakota, have left their rendezvousing points for the golden gate. The greater portion of the men composing these organizations are destined for the Philippines.

The prison-exchange efforts have succeeded, and Colonel Cortijo and Surgeon Julian, now at Fort McPherson, Ga., are to be exchanged for the newspaper men, Thrall and Jones, now in Morro castle, as is indicated by the following telegram to the state department from Alex Gullan, British consul general at Havana: "All arranged. You can send prisoners at once. Please wire me day and hour departure from Key West and probable arrival off Havana. Immediately flag is discerned Spanish steamer with Thrall and Jones will be sent out to meet and exchange."

Squadron In North Atlantic.

Montreal May 20.—A new feature of the Spanish-American war, one in which it is asserted Polo y Bernaba and his associates are keenly interested, is the probable advance of the Cadiz squadron into the North Atlantic. One barrier alone has been standing between the New England coast and the Cadiz fleet. It is the lack of coal for the warships when they get to this side of the ocean. It has been planned to secure a coal supply. Spanish ships now carrying it may be well on this side of the Atlantic; indeed, according to information received from a correspondent at North Sydney, C. B., it is possible that even at the present time Spanish coal ships are in the waters about New Foundland.

The advices from Cape Breton point out that Polo has been in communication with an agent or correspondent on the island of St. Pierre, the coaling station of France in the North Atlantic. There is a constant exchange of trade between Cape Breton and St. Pierre, and the gossip of one port is more or less current in the other. For the past week lookout operators on the New Foundland coast have reported the appearance of strange vessels in those waters.

Fired Eighty Shots.

Madrid, May 20.—An official dispatch received here from Havana says that some American ships fired 80 shots during the reported recent bombardment of Santiago de Cuba, but that no damage was inflicted. The dispatch adds that the batteries replied to the fire of the ships, and that one of the latter was damaged.

In spite of the veto placed upon the publication of Spanish naval movements the newspapers have been allowed to announce that Admiral Comara's squadron, consisting of the Pelayo, the Carlos V, the Patriota and Rapido, formerly the Hamburg-American line steamers Columbia and Normannia; the Alfonso XIII, the Antonio Lopez, three torpedo boat destroyers and the Giralda, will shortly sail from Cadiz, while the reserve squadron will be organized immediately.

Meat Searcher, Perhaps.

South Framingham, Mass., May 20.—The intense excitement which to all appearances pervaded the entire camp yesterday has subsided owing to the fact that the sensation was builded on very questionable ground. The startling report that a Spanish spy had tried to reach the powder house, in the rear of the camp, during the night and had been overhauled by a sentry and driven off went through the camp like flame to tinder, and the story was retailed to civilian visitors as a choice experience.

The tale was that Private Tracy of company H, Ninth regiment, who was on guard, had tried to hold up a man

BRITAIN'S GREAT DEAD.

Grief and Sympathy Pervading the Two Continents.

Vice President Regards the Death as a Calamity.

Family Likely to Waive Objections to a National Funeral.

London, May 20.—The universal expression of grief and sympathy gathers volume hourly. Memoirs and reminiscences of Mr. Gladstone are flooding the press, which everywhere shows column rules reversed. Almost every court in Europe has wired condolences.

Vice President Hobart cables The Chronicle as follows: "Not even in his own land was Mr. Gladstone more highly esteemed and venerated than in the United States. His death has been well-nigh a national calamity to us, and it occurred at a time when our people are closely drawn by ties of sympathy and mutual interest toward the nation to which his long career of public usefulness was so generously dedicated."

Captain Alfred T. Mahan, the naval expert, cabled: "The thing that always most impressed me was the profound homage his massive intellect paid to the christian scheme of faith. That an ever-deepening faith in thought and practice should be the result in such a brain of so long an experience of public life will perhaps be the most lasting and the deepest influence left by this very great man."

Sir Henry Irving, in a sympathetic tribute on behalf of his profession, says: "Mr. Gladstone took the interest in the theater and in the piece he was witnessing, upon which his remarks were always characteristic. For example, when seeing 'King Lear' he remarked that he was surprised at the lack of patriotism shown to be existing at the time of the play when the invader was made welcome."

Francis Kossuth, leader of the Hungarian party advocating an independent Hungary, says: "Mr. Gladstone personified the typical Englishman. His death is a blow to all lovers of freedom in Europe.

The body was removed to the large bedroom today and placed in an oak coffin surmounted by an oak cross, extending nearly the whole length of the lid. At its foot will be the inscription. Three panels are on each side, the center of each being of raised dark metal. The date of the funeral has not been fixed, but probably Tuesday will be chosen. The preparations continue for a burial at Hawarden. Up to last evening the family has received no notice of the national funeral which will be voted in parliament today. The general opinion favoring an interment in Westminster abbey, the family will probably give way to the national request. Mr. Gladstone did not leave any wishes on the subject. Dean Bradley of the abbey has selected as the most suitable spot the nave.

In consequence of the death of Mr. Gladstone, the state ball at Buckingham palace, which had been fixed for Monday next, will be postponed.

DOWN ON THE CAPE

You've got to show 'em. They want to "see." Last Sunday in a church in a small town, where it is customary to send notices of one thing and another, and one kind and another, up to the pastor, so that he may read them aloud from the pulpit to the congregation, one notice was read that did not just exactly convey the meaning the writer intended. A young naval officer, brave and wanting to fight, had been ordered to join his ship. His mother-in-law wanting to secure the prayers of her pastor and her neighbors for his welfare, and at the same time call a little attention to herself, sent a notice to the pulpit which should have read: "Lieutenant Smith going to sea, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Jones, desires the prayers of the congregation." She didn't punctuate it just right, leaving out the comma after "sea," and this is the way it sounded, "Lieutenant Smith going to see his mother-in-law Mrs. Jones, desires the prayers of the congregation." The congregation knowing Mrs. Jones, gave him their prayers. Sometimes a pause makes a great difference.

When you are in need of a spring suit and the same old thought (I will go to Boston) comes to you, always pause. Think it over and say to yourself, "sez you," "There's that new store that everyone is talking about. They say they sell good goods cheap. They have a buyer in the market every day, and he should know what is going, and if they can buy 'what's' going as close as Boston merchants, it seems to me as if their less expense should enable them to sell cheaper."

That pause will save you money. For example, you can come any day this week, you can buy a nice Blue Serge or Brown and Gray Check, all-wool Suit for $7.50. If you think it's only as good as a regular $8.50 suit, you're mistaken. It's better.

MYLES STANDISH.

Monday Evening Club Listen to Historic Paper and Music.

The Atlantic Monday Evening club held its meeting at the Atlantic Memorial church, May 16.

First upon the programme was an interesting paper by Mrs. Nelson V. Titus "How Myles Standish First came to Quincy." Its historic value in connection with its local interest and pleasant presentation gained the closest attention of the audience who expressed their enjoyment by generous applause.

The intermission for social converse immediately followed, succeeded by a fine rendering of a "Minuet" by Sherwood by Miss Curtin. Later in the evening she gave another piano solo equally meritorious.

Miss Johnson of Boston favored the club with two groups of soprano solos, "The Hawthorn wins the Gentle Breeze," "The Song That My Heart is Singing," "Fairy Lullaby" and "O Mistress Mine," accompanied by Miss Lincoln of Boston. She has a sweet voice and her execution was with great ease.

Miss Sanborn of Savin Hill gave four selections; one "The Tea-Kettle and the Cricket" from Dickens and two from Arnold, the last two in particular being very pleasing.

Miss Annie Hall of Atlantic sang a contralto "Lullaby" with clear, sweet expressive voice and well-sustained tones, and delighted the club. Miss Gertrude Hall was her accompanist.

A tenor solo "Ouvrez Tes Yeux Bleux" by Prof. Mareau of the Quincy Mansion school was received with decided expressions of enjoyment, and the professor responded to the encore. Miss Helen Bemis accompanied.

The evening was in charge of the Music Committee, Mrs. Charles Cummings, Miss Maude Rice and Miss Bessie Drew.

The annual meeting occurs next Monday eveing.

HONORED IN BUFFALO

Jacob Schenkelberger Passes Away Mourned by Many.

We note by the Buffalo, N. Y., Daily Times of Wednesday the death of the father of Mr. Albert T. Schenkelberger of this city, one of Buffalo's most honored Germau-American citizens, who served in the army, and who had an excellent record as a pension agent.

The Times says: Generous, good hearted, genial Jacob Schenkelberger has been gathered to his fathers. As brave a man as ever breathed the breath of God's pure air, he served throughout the Civil War, earning a record for himself that was the pride of all.

Always ready to be of assistance to the needy and the suffering, his death will cause sorrow in many a humble home where his beneficence has been the means of saving many from want and starvation. Few, if any men, in this city were better known than he. In every quarter good words were spoken of him and his death will be mourned by a great multitude of people.

As Pension Agent he was always obliging and considerate. The old pensioners had a friend at court when he was around and they, many of them old comrades in arms, will mourn his loss.

When the grim monster, Death, first made his appearance, he bore his sufferings and tribulations with a fortitude that was remarkable in the extreme. In life he was a brave man, a man in whose vocabulary the word of fear, unless it be fear of his Maker, was missing, and as such he died.

Jacob Schenkelberger came to Buffalo, more than half a century ago, in 1845. He was born in Harxheim, Hessen-Darmstadt, Germany, May 7, 1835. He attended Schreck's private school and public school No. 12 in this city. When the war broke out be went to the front as lieutenant in Battery I. 1st New York Artillery, and served in every engagement in which his battery participated, up to and including the second battle of Bull Run. His experience and heroism in that sanguinary struggle have been made a thrilling story which has been often told. Left with orders to hold an exposed position, and apparently forgotten by the staff officer, he held it with the greatest bravery until one of his legs was shattered. For twelve hours he lay on the battlefield, and when finally found and taken to the surgeons, there was no thought that his recovery was possible, but he survived the amputation and eventually returned to his home. He received his discharge at Washington on November 17, 1862.

From 1863 until 1868 he was in charge of the New York State Arsenal at Buffalo. Subsequently he turned his attention to the hotel business and for many years Schenkelberger's restaurant at Ziegele's Hall was a most popular place. In 1888 President Cleveland appointed him United States Pension Agent at Buffalo, his term extending from May 1, 1888, to January 3, 1893, in President Harrison's administration. Since then he has lived a retired life. He leaves a wife and six children. He was a member of the Military Order, Loyal Legion and Chapin Post, No. 2, G. A. R.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

An orchestra of six pieces furnished the music, America" was sung by the school standing. After listening to a few addresses from the members of the Brotherhood, Little Miss Madeline Brown and Miss Carlena Walker both spoke patriotic pieces, which received loud applause from all. Prof. Clare gave his entertainment which never fails to please. At the close refreshments were served and all announced it a grand success.

EARLY CLOSING.

An Open Letter to the Grocers of the City.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The subject of early closing is at hand, and is one that admits of more consideration than the time I have today will permit me to make. In this progressive age, when the existing conditions in the different branches of trade and skilled labor are vastly improved as compared with days gone by, grocers must admit that the clerks are plodding away at the same old gait, hustling from 80 to 90 hours a week as compared with from 50 to 60 hours, which is the average that the stonecutters and ordinary laborer works.

The grocery clerk not only has long hours, but he performs hard manual labor, as compared with the workmen in other business. He gets less salary, wearsout more clothes, and in fact comes as near living a life of drudgery as any intelligent man who earns an honest living.

The most forcible argument that presents itself under this head is, wherein lies the remedy? I say, in organization. Workmen in other trades are organized and receive great benefits therefrom, but it seems the world over, that the fate of the grocery clerk is to work late and early for in many cases only sufficient salary to keep body and soul together.

What are the conditions arising from this state of affairs? There is not a man within the limit of our city that can deny the assertion I make, that not over twenty per cent. of the salesmen employed in the grocery business are competent to judge the value of teas, coffees, spices and many other items requiring study and ski l in putting a true value on.

The long hours which the grocery clerk puts in at the store, unfits him at the end of the day to devote any time to study. The small wages received for his work offers no inducement for him to post himself intelligently as to the growth of tea, the cultivation of coffee, or the adulteration of spices. The employment of green help at about the same wages as a thoroughly trained clerk receives, prevents many young men who would pursue these studies from going ahead. In these days of wooden nutmegs, and manufactured coffee beans, the average clerk simply submits to existing circumstances, and plods away from early morning until late at night, going home for supper almost at bed-time, and arising at daylight to begin the battle over again. Working on Saturday almost a day and a half, and feeling so tired and worn out on Sundays that when he does not indulge in the wrong pleasures to drive his tired feeling away he may go to church to yawn or sleep feeling too tired to follow intelligently the sermon which is provided for his good.

I say in all sincerity, that the sooner grocery clerks join the Clerks' union the better. It will be better for the grocer's own interest. He will be benefitted from this state of affairs just as soon as you will demand it. Chase the greenhorn out of your business who gives 18 ounces to the pound. He is morally as bad as the clerk who gives 5 1-2 ounces of nutmegs for a quarter of a pound. This is the result of employing poor help, not educated to the business, and who are too careless to devote any study to it. A dago in the trenches works fewer hours, works no harder, and receives more pay for his work than the average grocery clerk. Let this cease, and let the conditions be improved. With shorter hours to work and more time to study, grocers will get more intelligent clerks. Grocers will themselves as merchants, receive many benefits, and will be encouraging a work which will be a credit to them from a moral as well as from a business standpoint. Hoping grocers will consider this, as for their own benefit as well as the employes,

Sec. of the Retail Clerk's Asso.

The car was stopped and a search was made for it, but it could not be found.

Abraham Lincoln Said:

"You can fool some of the people all the time." Many bicycle riders are fooled in buying new wheels by a fictitious allowance on their old one.

It is the Easiest Thing in the World

To list a cheap Western wheel $25 more than it is worth. An unscrupulous dealer pushes a wheel of this sort and makes a leader of it, instead of better and more reliable makes, because he can allow far more on a second-hand wheel and still make a bigger profit.

People should remember that no one sells bicycles for health or pleasure, but to make money.

Strengthening and Encouraging.

To the Editors of the Ledger;

I know from experience the worth of the work of the Christian Commission during the late war. Not only was it invaluable in its charities, but it approached the soldier on the moral side, greatly strengthening and encouraging this essential element in his nature. I think its service will be just as valuable in this crisis.

Appeals to Everyone.

To the Editors of the Ledger:

I take pleasure in adding my small contribution to the fund being raised for the furtherance of the work of the Christian Commission. From what I have read of the work done by this Commission at the time of the Civil war, I believe that it appeals to every one who is in any way interested in the welfare of the men who go to the front.

Yours truly

HOUGHS NECK.

The stormy disagreeable weather thus far this month has made the season at Houghs Neck somewhat backward and but few of the summer residents have arrived as yet for the season. Many, however, have visited the beach to get their cottages in readiness, and if we can only have a few days of settled weather it will be all that is necessary to send the host of summer residents down. A number of new cottages have been erected since last year and other improvements have been made, notably at the lower end of Sea street, where Mr. A. A. Meyer of Boston has expended a large amount of money in the erection of a large hotel, bath house, pavilion, etc. With any kind of weather, this year should see one of the busiest seasons at the beach. A more extended description of the new plant of Mr. Meyer's will be published soon.

New Fortifications.

Boston will have another fortification as the United States Army Engineer Corps at Boston has been authorized by the War Department to proceed at once with the construction of a new gun battery in Boston harbor. The selection of site was left to the discretion of Col. S. M. Mansfield, Chief of the Corps, and it has been decided to place the new works at Hull, on the high land inside of Telegraph hill.

This new battery was provided for in the plans prepared some time ago for complete defensive works in Boston harbor, but in view of the great amount of work that it was absolutely necessary to do at Winthrop, Fort Warren, Long Island Head and Paddock's Island, it was not deemed advisable to proceed at once with the erection of the Nantasket Head fortifications.

Lieut. Sewall, Col. Mansfield's assistant, has accomplished so much during the past few months that the War Department saw it would be possible to complete at least, one new battery during the present season, and consequently Col. Mansfield was ordered to begin work where he saw fit immediately.

The money will be provided out of the $50,000,000 coast defence appropriation, and is outside the Boston works contemplated in the regular fortification bill.

It is probable that ground will be broken at Nantasket Head in about three weeks. Lieut. Sewall, at the time surveys were being made at Paddock's Island, took time by the forelock and surveyed Nantasket Head, with a view to being prepared to begin operations at any moment. His plans are all prepared, and constructive work will therefore be delayed but a very little time.

The battery at Nantasket Head will mount rifles of large calibre, probably 10-inch, like those at Long Island Head, but there is said to be a likelihood that two or more of the new 13-inch guns will be placed there. It is designed to get these works in condition for actual service by October, if possible.

THE WATERMELON.

Interesting Items From the Georgia Experiment Station.

On putting in the seed they should not be spared. Field mice, crows, pigeons, poultry and other depredators frequently prevent a perfect stand when but few seed are used, and the time lost when replanting is found necessary can never be regained. Twenty seed to the hill are not too many. Thirty would be preferable to less than 20. They should be planted by hand, and the method ordinarily pursued is to push each seed separately down into the mellow soil with the forefinger.

Some growers instead of making one planting of a large number of seed prefer to put in half a dozen seed only at a time, say on the south side of the hill, and in a week or so, without waiting for the first seed to come up, making another planting on the west side, followed by a third and fourth planting at intervals on the other two sides, until a stand is secured. Thus no time is lost.

Be sure to plant shallow. Pushing the seed in to too great a depth is a very common fault, even with experienced manipulators. It must be remembered that the ground is comparatively cold at planting time, and as the surface of the soil of course warms up sooner than the lower strata the seed should receive the benefit of the daily increasing temperature as soon as possible. Therefore an inch is abundantly deep. This will insure sufficient moisture and yet leave the seed close enough to the surface to respond readily to the sun's warmth as the season advances.

As soon as the seed are well up they should be thinned down to three or four plants to the hill, and a little later to one vigorous plant. Some growers are in the habit of leaving two vines to the hill, but while by this practice they certainly get more vines and sometimes, too, more melons the latter are always smaller and less salable than when one lusty vine has the hill and the fertilizer all to itself.

Old melon growers never plow their plats while the dew is on the vines, but wait until midday before putting in the plow. To what extent the crop would be injured, if at all, by early morning cultivation yet remains to be proved.

POWERFUL INFLUENCE.

Senator McLaurin on the Army That Would Raid the Treasury.

Washington, May 20.—The proposition to place a stamp tax upon proprietary articles and perfumeries now in stock aroused a lively discussion in the senate yesterday. It was regarded as retroactive legislation and as such was opposed by many senators. The paragraph was not disposed of finally.

A. J. M'LAURIN.

Senator McLaurin, in advocating the Democratic amendments, said that there was an influence at work in this country more powerful than the president, more potent than congress. It was the silent, secret influence of the money power, which was endeavoring to force an issue of bonds. Once the senate, the forum of the people, yielded to the clamor and became entangled in the meshes of the money octopus, the people would suffer indeed. "There is an army in this country," said he, "just as anxious to raid the United States treasury as our volunteers are to raid Cuba. These jobbers and speculators form a greater menace to us than the war with Spain." He strongly urged the adoption of the proposition to issue legal tender notes. "It is the dealers in futures," declared Mr. McLaurin; "the financial speculators and cormorants, the transportation companies, the manufacturers of ammunition who make money out of the war—upon these the financial burdens of the war ought to fall, and not upon the families of the men who go to the front to fight for their country."

The rising of Mr. Tongue (Rep., Ore.) to a question of personal privilege to answer a circular now being circulated in his district injected interest into the house proceedings. The circular in question, he said, was an anonymous document attacking his record in the present congress, and contained no statement that was not wholly or in part false. He read from the circular and replied to the charges that were being used for the alleged purpose of accomplishing his defeat. Mr. Tongue asserted that the circular was being sent out with the apparent sanction of the Democratic congressional committee, and he supposed it was the deliberate work of senators and members of the house. He was proceeding to criticise Senator White, chairman of the committee, when the speaker called him to order.

When Mr. Tongue concluded, Mr. Handy and Mr. Brucker were upon their feet. Being members of the committee in question, they made an effort to have the circular read in full in order to get it in the Record. A point of order against the reading was made and sustained, Mr. Handy remarking meantime that the gentleman's statement seemed like "a clear case of confession and avoidance." Then the house adjourned until Monday.

Mr. Grosvenor called up the labor arbitration bill as amended and passed by the senate. In reply to a question from Mr. Livingston, intimating that he wanted the bill to make arbitration compulsory instead of discretionary, Mr. Grosvenor said: "If the gentleman will declare his willingness to vote to make arbitration of labor disputes compulsory and will put himself in the line of fire from the labor organizations, I want to say he will need a search warrant to hold a funeral over his political ambition." The bill was passed.

Tornado In Three States.

Milwaukee, May 20.—Iowa leads the list with 19 fatalities as a partial result of the devastating effects of the tornado that overspread parts of three states. Fourteen deaths are reported in Illinois. Wisconsin reports nine known dead, with unconfirmed stories bringing the total in that state up to 37.

In Wisconsin the storm was more violent than anywhere else, but it originated in the lumbering districts of the northern counties, swept along the line of the "Soo" road and spent its force in the pines. Nine people are known to have been killed. There are vague reports to the effect that 18 bodies of lumbermen from a camp near Heafford Junction are lying in the railway station at that place. It is stated, too, that 10 lumbermen were killed near Elmshurst. The property damaged in Wisconsin, while quite heavy, will doubtless fall much below that done in the fertile farming districts along the Mississippi in Iowa and Illinois.

Gathering of Women.

Boston, May 20.—The representatives of nearly all the state organizations in which women are active workers met at the state house yesterday in response to a call by the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid association for the purpose of arranging for the aid of the children of the soldiers of the state at the front. Eben S. Draper, chairman of the executive committee of the association, presided, and for an hour listened to all sorts of suggestions. At the close of the meeting Chairman Draper said that the meeting had achieved its object of finding out who were interested in the work of the association. The addresses of all those present were taken, and as soon as the aid association gets its plans systematized and finds out what is most wanted in the way of co-operation, the women will be told in just what manner their assistance is desired.

Suicide of a Lawyer.

Manchester, N. H., May 20.—Nathan Currier, a prominent lawyer of Boston, committed suicide in Enfield by shooting on the family lot at Oak Grove cemetery. He was born at Enfield in 1858, and was educated in the public schools there. Mr. Currier had spent the past five weeks in Enfield and contemplated returning to Boston next Monday. Interment will be on the spot where death came.

FAITH OF DEMOCRACY.

Judicial Ruling In Massachusetts Affecting It.

Point Involved the Title to an Office.

Gold Democrat Eligible to Selection Under the Statute.

Boston, May 20.—By a decision rendered in the case of H. J. Jaquith vs. the selectmen of Wellesley, the supreme judicial court declares that while silver and gold Democrats may differ politically in speech and spirit, in the eye of the law they are all alike. The court holds that under chapter 417 of the acts of 1893 as to the eligibility of one to be a register of voters, the law knows no factions or divisions of a party in the testing of the qualifications of a register.

Mr. Jaquith is a prominent silver Democrat, and is chairman of the town Democratic committee, which declared John H. Sheridan, who is registrar of voters in the town, to be not a Democrat, because Mr. Sheridan is a gold Democrat. He held the place for some time, being appointed under the 28th section of the statute, authorizing the selectmen to appoint the board from members of "the two leading political parties." The claim was that Mr. Sheridan had ceased to be a member of either the leading parties because of his affiliation with the gold Democrats. The silver Democrats complained to the selectmen, who held that Sheridan was all right.

This petition was brought by Mr. Jaquith asking for a writ of mandamus to compel the selectmen to remove Mr. Sheridan and to appoint a silver Democrat. The petitioner contended that, by the words, "two leading parties," the statute intended those which received the two highest number of votes at the last preceding election, and only those were members of them who had adhered to all the declarations of their platform and supported all their candidates. The court holds that this is not so; and that the only test which the statute gives is that the registrar shall act with one of the two leading political parties which he was appointed to represent.

BOSTONS DEFEATED.

A Change of Pitchers Interfered With Their Hope of Winning.

Cincinnati, May 20.—The Bostons gave Ten Thousand Dollar Breitenstein a drubbing in the fourth inning of Thursday's game, causing the reds' star twirler to be sent to the bench. "Pink" Hawley was substituted, and his delivery proved as much of an enigma to the champions as Nichols' did to the Cincinnatis. The score is not well balanced; with corresponding figures in the base hit and error colums the Bostons would win nine out of ten games; but the same luck which has characterized the play of the Ohio team thus far this season was with them, and they won an exciting game before 4000 people. Jake Beckley won the game with his stick. He made three-baggers the first three times he faced Nichols. Score:

The Brooklyns narrowly escaped a shutout in Louisville. A triple by Tucker and an infield out gave them their only run. Cunningham pitched a fine game. Score: 4 to 1.

The Pawtuckets hit life fiends, and won easily from the Brocktons. Thatcher held them down to one hit for three innings, but was then set upon. The visitors' three singles and a homer in the fourth netted four runs. Score: 11 to 7.

The New Bedfords won from the Fall Rivers in a most exciting finish. In the last inning, with the score 3 to 0 against them, the Fall Rivers had three men on bases with only one out. The best they could do, however, was to score one of these. Score: 3 to 1.

The Newport-Taunton game was never in doubt after the first three innings, in which the Tauntons batted out a lead that stood until the end. Horner, an old timer, made his first appearance of the season in the box, and struck out four of the Newports in succession. Score: 8 to 5.

The Washingtons batted Isbell of the Chicagos off the rubber in the first inning. The Chicagos made two on battery errors at the start, but could do nothing with Mercer excepting in the seventh. Score: 7 to 6.

Kitson made his initial bow in league company yesterday and has a shutout to his credit in the Baltimore-Pittsburg game. Score: 6 to 0 for the orioles.

The St. Louis team was defeated by the New Yorks by a score of 7 to 1.

Fire In Lawrence.

Lawrence, Mass., May 20.—Fire broke out just before 4 o'clock this morning in the Spicket mill, a 2-story wooden structure located near the Arlington mills, and the building with its valuable contents is a total loss, which will exceed $10,000.

IN SAFE HAVEN.

who was prowling around in the dark. The stranger grappled with the sentinel, and as he had closed in the latter could not use his bayonet. A tussle ensued, and as the sentinel was getting the worst of the fight he called for help, and a sergeant of the guard responded. The stranger then disappeared in the darkness, and, although search was made, no trace of the individual was found.

The incident became noised about, and in a couple of hours it was positively and definitely known that a Spanish spy had tried to run the lines in order to set the magazine afire and destroy the 100,000 rounds of rifle ammunition. Descriptions of the spy were numerous, all agreeing that he was of dark complexion and medium height. All descriptions accurately admitted that darkness prevented the guard noting further details. In official quarters the midnight intruder is believed to have been a "hobo" who was headed for the mess house to try and get a lunch, and who had run into the guard, to both the latter's and his own surprise. The incident, however, served to keep the soldiers busy answering questions.

Strengthening Defenses.

London, May 20.—The Madrid correspondent of The Daily Mail, commenting upon the great activity displayed in strengthening the coast defenses of Spain, says: "Special naval and military vigilance committees have been formed to watch the approaches to the harbors. The reasons for this are unknown, but possibly there are fears of an American naval raid, or there is a prospect of European complications."

The Cienfuegos Fight.

Key West, May 20.—During the recent engagement at Cienfuegos 300 Spanish were killed and several hundred wounded. Great damage was done along the coast.

Soon after the engagement the Marblehead picked up several Cubans in an open boat some miles down the coast. They reported that the Spanish losses and the damage wrought by the shells from the warships were very heavy. The hospitals at Cienfuegos, they said, were full of wounded; and fear prevailed everywhere that the American warships would return to complete the work of destruction.

During the engagement the Marblehead threw 450 five-inch shells into the Spanish forces and 700 shots from her secondary battery; the Nashville as many more shells and 1500 shots from her secondary battery. Fifteen hundred Spaniards were stationed in an improvised fortress on a neck of land, and upon this the ships concentrated their fire, and it was here that the most terrible destruction was wrought. During the heavy fire of shells and just after the lighthouse was blown up, five Spaniards who were running together in an attempt to escape were picked off by a shell from the Marblehead, the gunner being ordered to fire upon them by Ensign Pratt. They were torn to pieces.

The Eighth Massachusetts.

Chickamauga National Park, May 20.—With last night's arrivals the three divisions of the first provisional volunteer army corps will be completed. Twelve trains of an average of 15 cars each stood on the siding of one road at noon yesterday awaiting a clear main track to the park, but shortly thereafter they began to move.

Yesterday was the busiest day at the park since the volunteers began to ar... and the forces of the various supply departments have been taxed to the utmost to dispose of the business promptly and without confusion. The quartermaster's department has received all the supplies needed in the matter of tents, uniforms, ammunition, food supplies, etc., but no ordnance for the artillery or guns for the unarmed volunteers have been received.

The following commands arrived yesterday and were assigned to camp: The Fifth Pennsylvania, Twelfth Minnesota, Twenty-first Kansas, Eighth Massachusetts, the Ninth Pennsylvania and Twelfth New York.

In Camp at Lakeland.

Lakeland, Fla., May 20.—As the men of the Second Massachusetts huddled beneath their wind whipped tents yesterday afternoon, listening to the raindrops splashing on the canvas, they realized that Florida had something in her commissary department beside hot weather. Fortunately, the storm was of short duration, and before supper time the sky was again clear and the air cool and bracing.

From Jamaica.

Kingston, Jam., May 20.—Two American warships, whose names were not discernible from the shore, appeared off Santiago de Cuba Wednesday while the steamer Adula, which has arrived here from that port with refugees, was in the harbor. They approached and drew the fire of the batteries at the entrance. It is not certain whether the warships replied to the fire. The firing continued from noon to 1 o'clock. Captain Walker of the Adula, when coming out, could not see any marks on Morro castle, and inferred that the American ships drew the fire of the batteries to learn the range.

There was much excitement in the city. The regulars and volunteers were called out and new earthwork batteries were erected on each side of the harbor entrance. The number and caliber of the guns are unknown, but it is known that there are 21 torpedoes in the channel electrically connected with the shore.

The cruiser Mercedes, whose boilers are disabled, has been anchored so that she can rake the channel for 300 yards, and the merchant ship Mexico of Barcelona, mounting four small, quick-firing guns, is in the harbor. Several coasting steamers and schooners are at the wharves.

Senator Pettigrew Objects.

Washington, May 20.—A large number of staff nominations for the army were confirmed by the senate in executive session. There was no comment, except a brief inquiry by Senator Pettigrew, who asked Senator Hawley, chairman of the committee on military affairs, if the committee had made due investigation as to the military training and qualifications of the young men nominated to these positions, mentioning some of the sons of prominent men. Senator Hawley replied that the committee had inquired sufficiently to learn that the appointees had all been recommended by senators or congressmen from their own states.

"They will gain experience in the field," Senator Hale suggested.

"That is what I object to," responded Mr. Pettigrew. "If they are not experienced military men it is hardly fair that they should be appointed to command others."

Naval Auxiliary.

Washington May 20.—The senate committee on naval affairs has decided to report favorably with amendments the joint resolution authorizing an auxiliary naval force, which has already passed the house. One of the amendments strikes out the provision confining the duties of the proposed force to coast defense, thus leaving it of general utility. Another limits the force to 3000 enlisted men, whereas the bill as passed by the house left the number to the president's discretion. A third amendment reduces the appropriation from $4,000,000 to $3,000,000. Before the committee acted, statements were heard from Secretary Long, Assistant Secretary Allen and others, all urging the importance and need of early action.

The Rendezvousing.

Washington, May 20.—Hempstead, L. I., has been definitely selected as a rendezvousing point for troops from the New England and middle states section and it is expected that 19 regiments eventually will be quartered there.

The torpedo boat destroyers provided for in the appropriation bill are to be of larger type than any vessel of that kind we now have in the service, about 400 tons, but the torpedo boats will be about the size of the average boat now in use, namely, about 150 tons.

Work on the three monitors, Mahopac, Canonicus and Manhattan, at League island has advanced so far that the department expects to have them in service within a week or two. They have been supplied with tubulous boilers in place of the rusted out boilers they have carried since the war.

Naval authorities are relieved of a good deal of embarrassment by the consent of the French authorities at Martinique to allow the Harvard to remain in St. Pierre until her repairs are completed. It was at first supposed that she would be allowed only seven days' stay and at the end of that time would be forced out to risk attack at the hands of an ambushed Spanish cruiser or torpedo boat.

The regular troops which are to accompany the expedition to the Philippines have been determined upon, and orders for them to proceed promptly to the coast will be issued. These, with the volunteers from California, Colorado, Kansas, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Oregon, Utah, Wyoming, North and South Dakota and Idaho, will make up the sum total from which are to be taken the troops who are to be sent to reinforce Admiral Dewey and enable him to take Manila.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 20.—The Journal considers that "Admiral Sampson's plan of action at San Juan showed the perfect skill and forethought of the accomplished naval tactician. It affords the most gratifying kind of augury of the later and momentous result when the American and Spanish fighting squadrons meet to decide the mastery of the Caribbean."

"There is no need of a scare," says The Post. "Dwellers in our seacoast towns will not be awakened by the explosion of Spanish bombs during this war."

Says The Globe: "It has been remarked that he can't starve a Spaniard without stepping over the dead body of a reconcentrado to do it. But we may soon be able to dispose of the Spaniards without the necessity of starving them."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 20.—In the house the ways and means committee reported a bill for a $400,000 appropriation for state highways, $300,000 of which are to be spent this year and $100,000 to go over for the early work in 1899. The bill further provides that none but citizens of the commonwealth shall be employed on work.

The committee on judiciary today reported in the house a bill to authorize the adoption of the Torrens system of land transfer.

The bill to regulate the business of bakeries and the hours of labor of the persons employed therein came up for a third reading in the house. After several amendments had been adopted the bill was refused a third reading. Notice of a motion to reconsider was given.

Senator George moved a reconsideration of the vote by which the senate passed to be engrossed the bill preventing the reduction of wages of women and minors in manufacturing establishments, and then on his motion the whole matter was put over until Wednesday.

By a vote of 26 to 66 the house refused to substitute a bill for the taxation of property bequeathed to foreign trustees and accepted the adverse report of the committee on taxation.

Spanish View of the Blockade.

London, May 20.—The Madrid correspondent of The Standard says: "The blockade of Cuba and Porto Rico is considered illusory, as Spanish warships and merchant vessels are frequently moving from port to port between the islands. The mail steamer Alfonso XII went out from San Juan de Porto Rico to meet the vessels detached from Admiral Cervera's squadron, and then continued her voyage to Spain after delivering an important communication for the commander. The success of Admiral Cervera in avoiding the American fleets and keeping them on the alert excites much enthusiasm and causes the press to clamor for a prompt dispatch of the reserve fleet to the front."

Received a Knockout Blow.

New Haven, May 20.—Irving Webster, 20 years of age, a semi-professional boxer, received a knockout blow in the third round of a friendly bout with James Eagan and died three hours later. Eagan is under arrest pending the investigation of Coroner Mix. Both men were employed by the New Haven Manufacturing company, and the bout occurred during the noon hour.

NOON WEDDING.

Lieut. Downs and Mrs. Nicholson United at Christ Church.

The marriage of Lieut. John Downs and Mrs. Henrietta Nicholson, which was somewhat hastened by the war, Lieut. Downs having been called by the government into active service, was solemnized today at 12 o'clock noon at Christ church by Rev. Walter Russell Breed.

The wedding was a quiet one but none the less a very pretty affair. The decorations at the church were by Ring and were very elaborate. The interior of the chancel was one mass of beautiful hydrangeas and magnificent ferns while large ferns were placed in each of the windows.

Mr. Charles Dunster of St. Louis presided at the organ, which under his wizard-like touch gave forth enchanting music during the arrival of the guests. The body of the church was filled many being present from out of town.

The ushers were Mr. Herbert W. Barker, Mr. William S. Osborne, Mr. Raymond Burke, Mr. Walter Burke, Mr. F. F. Downs and Henry Nezro.

Promptly at 12 o'clock the organ pealed forth a wedding march and the bride entered the church leaning upon the arm of Dr. Wiliam Everett, her uncle, who met at the chancel by Lieut. Downs, who was attended by his brother Mr. P. H. Downs.

The bride wore white tulle over pink with lace trimmings. She also wore a hat of the same and carried a large bouquet of jacqueminot roses while the groom wore his uniform as Lieutenant in the United States Navy.

As the bridal party left the church the organ gave forth the inspiring strains of "America."

As the carriage in which Lieut. and Mrs. Downs left the church yard it was noticed that the whip of the driver was ornamented with a white satin bow while suspended from the back of the carriage by white ribbon was a golden slipper. Owing to the military duties of the groom there was no reception.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS

In Profusion at Funeral of Mr. Samuel E. Oxford.

The funeral of Samuel E. Oxford, the popular clerk at Durgin's pharmacy, was held yesterday afternoon from his late residence on River street. There was a large attendance of the young man's friends who had gathered to take one last look of him who in life they had known so well. The services which were according to the impressive Episcopal ritual, were conducted by Rev. Walter R. Breed. During the services a quartette, consisting of Miss Mary V. Hastings, Mrs. Ernest Fitts, Mr. W. W. Osborne and Mr. Walter Hersey, sang, "Lead Kindly Light," "O Paradise" and "When Our Hearts are Bowed with Woe."

The remains were encased in a black broadcloth covered casket, which was almost buried beneath a profusion of flowers whose fragrance mutely gave their testimony of the love and appreciation in which the young man was held by those who knew him.

The flowers were most beautiful. There was a pillow marked "Sonny," from his parents; a pillow marked Sam" from Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Durgin; a broken column marked "Brother" from Mr. and Mrs. George E. Bates; a large set piece, "The Gates Ajar," upon which was perched a pure white dove, from the Quincy club; a crescent and star from Mr. and Mrs. George Shepherd and family and Mr. E. Sargent; crescent from the Neighborly whist club; mound, Mrs. H. O. Souther and family; set piece, from Mrs. Daniel Flowers and family; standing wreath, from four friends; wreath and sickle from employes at Graham's factory; a mound supporting a stand and wreath from the clerks in the stores in City Square; bouquet of pinks, Mr. Edgar Emery, bouquets from Mr. and Mrs. Hewson and Misses Rosa and Isabel Bills. There were also flowers from Mr. D. J. Ring, Mr. J. C. Dorgan, Reaper's Circle King's Daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Charles French, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Dorley, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Packard, Miss Mary A. Marden, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. O. Wilkins and family, Joseph Alden, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bates, Miss R. Bates, Miss M. Lizzie Furnald, Mr. George Wendall Mr. Dexter E. Wadsworth, Miss Emma Biganess, Miss Mary Dinnie, Mrs. Albert Parker, Master Albert Parker, Mrs. C. Talbot, Mrs. Frank Burrell, Miss Emerson, Mrs. John Emery, Mrs. Mitten, Miss Grace Batson and others.

At the conclusion of the services at the house, the remains were taken to Mt. Wollaston cemetery and placed in the family lot.

WATER FOR FORTS.

Pipes to be Laid Through Quincy, Beginning Monday.

Mr. McInnis of the Boston Water board visited City Hall last evening and had a consultation with Mayor Sears, Commissioner Knowlton, City Solicitor McAnarney, and the Committee on Streets of the City Council, in relation to laying a new water supply main through Quincy to Moon island, from which point Long island and Fort Warren receive their water supply. These places are at present supplied by a six-inch main, which owing to the new machinery the government has recently established at Long Island and Fort Warren, and the large number of men stationed there, is inadequate and unless some additional supply is obtained it is feared that there will be a drought of water during the summer months.

The present main comes across Neponset bridge into Quincy and thence to Squantum and Moon Island, and it is proposed to lay a twelve-inch main in the old trench which, with the present main will practically give the city of Boston an eighteen inch water supply main to these points, which it is thought will be sufficient for all times. The permission to open the streets in Quincy was readily granted and Mr. McInnis said that it was intended to begin work laying the new main next Monday.

War vs. Arbitration.

After the usual preliminaries, the debate last week was continued at the meeting of the Q. H. S. Debating Society on Wednesday Mr. Lewis '98, Mr. Hewitson, '98, Mr. Field, '98, Mr. R. McDonnell, '98, Mr. Pitts '99 and Mr. McLean, '98, spoke on the comparative merits of "War and Arbitration."

The partisians of war maintained that right always prevails in war. The doctrine of the survival of the fittest was declared to be particularly applicable to warlike affairs.

Those who favored arbitration declared that right might prevail in war, but that arbitration is employed by the most civilized nations. The present war with Spain was regarded by both sides as a just war. The verdict of the board of decision is awaited with interest.

WILLIAM E. GLADSTONE

Life Sketch of the "Grand Old Man" of Merry England.

HIS WAS A MARVELOUS CAREER.

His Character a Paradox—Consistent Inconsistency a Feature—In Early Life an Extreme Conservative; In Later Years a Radical of the Radicals.

The name "Gladstone" was for many years one of power in all the English speaking world. Not only has the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland felt the impress of his genius in every part of her government, but Canada and Australia, the Cape Colony and other self governing dependencies have molded their institutions largely according to his ideas, while in the United States he has had as many devoted admirers as in his native island. "Grand Old Man" was his title here as well as in English lands, and here it was even more freely accorded than there.

HON. W. E. GLADSTONE.

And yet his character presents a paradox No other politician of modern times, none probably of any time, has changed positions so often or so radically, and it is scarcely possible to find any defined principle advocated by him during his later years that he had not at some time in the past assailed with vituperative eloquence. Yet there was always a certain consistency even in his changes. Contrary to an almost universal rule among students of society and government, he steadily grew more radical as he grew older, less cautious as he grew physically weaker and less tolerant of criticism as his course raised greater armies of critics.

His supporters claimed consistency on his part by one plea: He declared and was often able to show that, while sound reasoning on the facts then known sustained his first position, later experience taught sensible men the true view, and hence that an advocacy which was once only a mistake was later the outcome of mere obstinacy in opposition to justice and truth. He entered parliament as a Tory of the 18th century sort, grew into a mild Conservative, held office as an advanced Whig and then led the opposition to victory in 1892 as a Liberal so very radical that many English radicals abandoned him, and even Irish radicals had sometimes to restrain him.

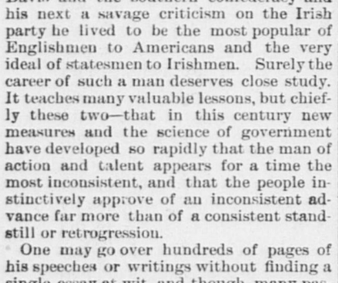

Sometimes Inconsistent; Always Earnest.

He took office as a protectionist, but aided in establishing free trade; launched into literature with a plea for the union of church and state so extreme that even the Tories repudiated it and ended by destroying the Irish establishment, and though his first public utterance to be generally noticed in America was a eulogy on Jefferson Davis and the southern confederacy and his next a savage criticism on the Irish party he lived to be the most popular of Englishmen to Americans and the very ideal of statesmen to Irishmen. Surely the career of such a man deserves close study. It teaches many valuable lessons, but chiefly these two—that in this century new measures and the science of government have developed so rapidly that the man of action and talent appears for a time the most inconsistent, and that the people instinctively approve of an inconsistent advance far more than of a consistent standstill or retrogression.

One may go over hundreds of pages of his speeches or writings without finding a single essay at wit, and though many passages show geniality it would be hard to find one that is distinctly humorous. In the case of any other man, or of the same man in any other country, especially in the United States, this very uniformity of seriousness and awful dignity would have made him the subject of satire. Dozens of names would have been invented for him. But let him take what position he might, Englishmen have unanimously credited him with being terribly in earnest. In fact, if they had thought him less earnest his opponents would have thought him much less dangerous.

Whatever his position might be at a given time, he really believed in it. It became a part of his religion. And it so happened that nearly all the great issues of his time have been closely connected with religious tenets. To have men of such unyielding convictions is well, but that they are not a majority among the public men of any country is also well.

Americans find no difficulty in understanding why Mr. Gladstone has been so fiercely hated or so cordially liked by different factions in England, for the controversy there bears an unpleasantly close resemblance to that in the United States immediately following the civil war. It is, however, a little strange that the most fanatic attacks should have come from such a scientist as Huxley, the most venomous assaults from the poet Swinburne and the keenest thrusts from the philosophic Lecky and the historian Froude.

HAWARDEN CASTLE.

His Conservative Youth.

His father, John Gladstone, was a prominent merchant, and his mother was of Scotch royal descent. The family was of the old conservative kind, and the father held office as a Tory at Liverpool, where William Ewart Gladstone was born Dec. 29, 1809. After the usual course at Eton he entered at Christ's Church, Oxford, and apparently absorbed all the conservatism of that intensely conservative old Tory stronghold. He passed through the excitement then prevailing on church affairs—it soon after produced the so called "Tractarian movement" and the conversion of John Henry Newman, late cardinal—and was not even shaken; he witnessed the frantic war against Sir Robert Peel, member for Oxford, on account of his advocacy of Catholic emancipation, and yet was not moved to liberal views; he listened to the eloquence of the young reformers and as far as can be judged regarded it with contempt. In short, the youth was almost unnaturally conservative.

Gladstone and the United States.

As is well known, Mr. Gladstone's sympathies were with the south during the civil war. During the later years of his life his views concerning America, like his views on almost everything but Homer, underwent a decided change, and for many years he was an ardent admirer of the United States, its people and its government.

"America has a magnificent future," he once said to an American friend, "if the people are only true to their possibilities. Before the close of the 20th century the vast continent embraced within the limits of the United States, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Gulf of Mexico to the great lakes of the north, will be the home of 300,000,000 of freemen, representing every nation upon earth, vaster in extent and population than the Roman empire in its palmiest days, but free from the danger that attended the extension of that empire among barbarous peoples, which was the primary and potent cause of the decline and fall of the greatness of Rome. Every true Englishman should be proud of the progress of the United States, for the Americans are our kith and kin, having the same literature, the same language and the same sturdy love of political independence. The wresting of Magna Charta from King John prepared the way for the battle of Bunker Hill and the Declaration of Independence."

His Political Career Summarized.

In 1831 he was graduated with a brilliant triumph, and the next year entered parliament in the good old Tory way—"accepting the seat for Newark by the grace of the Duke of Newcastle." He continued to represent that borough till 1846, but as Gladstone then showed signs of becoming liberal the duke gave the seat to another, claiming, as he said, "the right to do what he would with his own." In 1834 Gladstone first "took office" as under secretary for the colonies, Sir Robert Peel being premier. Being "thrown out," as the English phrase is, by the defeat of Peel in 1835, he employed his leisure in literary work and published the once celebrated—perhaps one should say notorious—"Church and State." It is now remembered chiefly because of Macaulay's savage criticism of it in the Edinburgh Review.

In 1840 he put forth another peculiar work on church affairs. In 1841 he again took a place in the cabinet and soon became eminent as a financier. In 1845 he resigned because the government favored the Catholic college in Ireland, but soon came in again. In 1847 he was chosen to represent Oxford, and then, for the first time, began to advocate liberal measures, the first being the bill for removing the disabilities of the Jews, which he had opposed in 1841. In 1851-2 he became a leader of the Liberals and entered on that long contest with Disraeli, which continued without truce till 1876, when Disraeli became Beaconsfield and entered the house of lords.

Mr. Gladstone was four times prime minister of England, first taking office in 1868. In 1873 his ministry was defeated by a coalition of Tories and home rulers on the education question, but as the opposition could not organize he was restored only to be again defeated the next year. Six years later, in 1880, having during his retirement conducted a vigorous campaign against the government both on the platform and by means of pamphlets, directing his attacks mainly against the policy which resulted in the treaty of Berlin, under which the Turks were left rulers of millions of oppressed Christians, he was again raised to power. This time his ministry endured until 1885 by a combination of Tories and Parnellites on the budget. In 1886 he regained the reins, but held them for a short time only, the home rule problem proving fatal to his continuance in power. Lord Salisbury was then chosen prime minister, and Gladstone was out until 1892, when, after an exciting general election, parliament showed a majority of 40 against the Conservative government.

The Mobbing of Gladstone.

"Gladstone in danger from a mob. He takes refuge in a hallway!"

To Americans who read it now this statement will seem incredible. Yet it was a fact, and so late as 1878. The English people had on one of their periodical war fevers, and were consequently insane. It is not too strong an expression. The war fever often rises to a sort of insanity, and even in the tolerant United States it has twice happened that the veterans of one war were mobbed for not being sufficiently zealous in the next.

In the autumn of 1878 the party of Mr. Gladstone had apparently sunk to the lowest depth it ever reached. Lord Beaconsfield (Disraeli) had returned from the Berlin conference bringing, as he said, "Peace with honor," and all the men who opposed the pro-Turkish policy of the government were stigmatized as "friends of Russia"—consequently traitors. The masses took up that false and foolish cry, so often heard when war is thought near at hand—that the opponents of war were only such because they favored the hostile country as against their own. London was almost unanimous for sustaining Turkey at all hazards against Russia, and the music halls rang every night with war songs, the favorite refrain being—

We do not want to fight; but, by jingo, if we do,
We've got the ships, we've got the men, we've got the money too.

So the war party came to be called the "Jingoes." The Turks had perpetrated most atrocious massacres in Bulgaria, and Russia had marched her armies toward Constantinople. Beaconsfield as prime minister ordered the British fleet to that city and began to concentrate troops at Cyprus, while Mr. Gladstone denounced the Turks and declared that the time was past when England could honorably sustain them. Beaconsfield excited the popular hatred against Russia and carried the day. The Russians were restrained when within sight of Constantinople, and on the invitation of Bismarck the powers convened at Berlin and patched up an arrangement which gave Turkey a little longer lease of life.

The people were pleased to see England appear once more as a sort of dictator in European affairs. All the morning papers of London except The News took part with Beaconsfield and denounced Gladstone in no measured terms. The "peace men" were occasionally hissed or otherwise insulted in public places, and at length Mr. Gladstone and his wife were "hustled," as the phrase goes, in the public street. As the event produced much indignation, the London papers were not anxious to give publicity to the details, and by way of apology it was stated that "a little mob of patriots returning from a Jingo carnival" created the disturbance.

The fact remains. The statesman who had served England so long and well was while walking with his wife pressed upon, derided and insulted till, the danger of assault seeming to them imminent, they took refuge in the hall of the nearest house—and that's all the London papers admit. But a reaction was at hand. When all the particulars of the Berlin settlement came out, the people were disgusted. The Tory party was completely overthrown at the next election, and in 1880 Gladstone became for the second time prime minister.

Gladstone's Victory In 1892.

The scene in the house of commons accompanying the overthrow of Lord Salisbury's government Aug. 12, 1892, though perhaps less dramatic than that attending the downfall of Mr. Gladstone's government in 1885, was full of exciting episodes. Mr. Asquith had moved a vote of "no confidence." The house was full, 10 members only abstaining from voting. A singularly brilliant and caustic piece of rhetoric from Mr. Chamberlain was followed by extemporaneous remarks by Mr. Chaplin, who, because one or two members of the ministerial minority were late, spoke largely against time. He was frequently interrupted by indignant Irish members with groans, cries of "Vide! Vide!" loud laughter and much talking. Dr. Tanner, a privileged jester, even went so far as to march solemnly up to Mr. Chaplin's side with a glass of water, but the orator kept on despite interruptions until noon, when the tardy ones arrived, and he sat down, while the house called for the division. It took fully 20 minutes to count the votes. Mr. Gladstone was among the very last to return from the lobbies by way of the bar, and he was received with vociferous cheering. First the Irish members and then the regular opposition rose en masse and shouted and waved hats until their chief had seated himself. Mr. Balfour received a similar ovation from the ministerial minority when he took his place behind the chair.

Then Mr. Majoribanks, the government's new chief whip, entered with the figures of the majority, which he whispered to Mr. Gladstone before he took his place in front of the table and to the right of the speaker, always reserved for the successful tellers. The whole house was so noisy and excited that it was a long time before silence for the reading of the figures could be secured. There was more wild cheering when the figures were given out, and cries of "Evicted," "Remember Mitchelstown," "Down with coercion," arose from the Irish members. Mr. Balfour moved adjournment, and in 10 minutes the house was cleared. Mr. Gladstone had a great reception from the crowd outside as he drove away with Mrs. Gladstone, who had watched the scene from her usual corner in the ladies' gallery.

His Marriage and His Home.

Mr. Gladstone was married July 25, 1838, to Miss Margaret Glynne, of a Welsh family, who brought to him a considerable property, which included famous Hawarden castle. She inherited it through a long line of descent from one Sergeant Glynne and his son, the Baronet William Glynne. They obtained it at the close of the great civil war, and the former owner, James, earl of Derby, had lost his head. Of course it has a history, like all the old places in Great Britain. The old castle, whose ruins still interest the visitor, was one of the posts by which the English first held the conquered Welsh in subjection, and its Welsh name (of which Hawarden is a modified form) means "fort on the bridge." Prince Llewellyn at one time lived there.

MRS. GLADSTONE.

It was dismantled in 1645, and the present mansion was built early in the 18th century. The old castle ruin and adjacent park are open to the public, and in any part of the wood where ancient or decaying trees needed clearing away the visitor might not very long ago have seen evidences of the work of Gladstone, the woodchopper. The last day he spent at his favorite exercise was just after a great storm, which had played havoc with the trees. The air was damp and chilly; the sight of so much debris stimulated him to unusual exertion, a severe cold and illness resulted, and his old time exercise was abandoned.

The Gladstone Family.

Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone. One daughter died in infancy, two daughters are married, and Helen, still single, holds the honorable place of vice principal of Newnham college at Cambridge. She ranks high among the educated women of the world, and the institution over which she presides is noted for its position on the advanced education of women. Of the four sons, one is rector of Hawarden, another is in parliament, the third is active in politics, and the fourth is in business at Calcutta.

There has always been a naive simplicity in Mrs. Gladstone, especially when speaking about her husband, often amusing and sometimes affecting. She was never backward in helping his canvass and evidently considered him the greatest statesman England ever produced. In an address at a home rule meeting of the campaign of 1892 she assumed as an admitted fact that no one was at heart really opposed to her husband, and of Earl Compton, the Liberal candidate, she said to the voters, "You are supporting a good and an honest man; but, more than that, you are supporting my husband in his fight for justice to Ireland."

A Sunday at Hawarden was not long ago described as follows:

"A curious group about the door of Hawarden church waited to see the Gladstones arrive. The great statesman used to sit in a seat just in front of the pulpit and usually read the Scripture service for the day. When the anthem was ended, Mr. Gladstone walked swiftly but noiselessly up to the lecturn—a splendid eagle with outstretched wings, done in carved oak—and read the story of Naaman and the little Syrian maid. His style was the perfection of simplicity, so simple that one was almost tempted to believe it the perfection of art.

"Between the first and second lessons he seated himself on a small square stool directly in front of the reading desk, and here again he took up his position during the sermon. After the service Mr. Gladstone returned to his seat. He waited for the communion, and as I passed out he and Mrs. Gladstone were both bowed in the oblivion of devout prayer."

"ALL AROUND POLITICIAN."
[Cartoon in Punch.]

Their son, Stephen E. Gladstone, the rector there, follows the practice of college chapels, where one of the students is usually selected to read the Scripture lesson. The selection of devout laymen for this office, however, is a common practice in the English church, as it was in the early churches and in the Jewish synagogue.

Mr. Gladstone's Town Life.

Columns on columns have been written of Mr. Gladstone's wonderful strength as an old man. It is doubtful if the world has seen such another. When in 1892 he was made prime minister for the fourth time, he was 84 years old, and though he had just passed through a most exciting campaign he entered upon his duties as head of the government with seemingly unimpaired vigor. It was doubtless to his extreme simplicity and purity of life that he owed his phenomenal virility.

His time was usually about equally divided between London and Hawarden. When he was prime minister his London residence was of course the famous house in Downing street, that has for so long been the official home of the premier. At other times he has rented. Between 1886 and 1892 he was the yearly tenant of a house in St. James' square, Pall Mall, where he had for neighbors the Dukes of Cleveland and Norfolk, the Earl of Derby, the Marquis of Bristol, Earl Cowper and other great men. His rising hour when in town was 8:30. He dressed for the day at once, and if the weather was good, sometimes when it was bad, took an airing before breakfast.

The morning meal was always a plain one, lasting half an hour, during which time he usually absorbed all that was of interest to him in three or four morning newspapers. After breakfast he disposed of his correspondence in his library. When he was in office he always employed several private secretaries. When "out" he had but one assistant, usually his son. After his letters were attended to it was his custom to devote the remainder of the morning to reading. Luncheon was usually taken alone and consisted of a small slice of beef or mutton and a glass of claret. The afternoon, and often the evening, was devoted to political duties. For many years Mr. Gladstone was accustomed when in London and not busy with politics in the evening to dine out. He rarely gave dinners. Sometimes he visited the theater or opera. Midnight was his hour for bed, and he used to light himself to his room with a candle. He used to say that he always left business outside his bedroom door, and hence always slept well. He never used tobacco in any form. His drinking was confined to claret, of which, however, he was not a professed connoisseur.

He was always neat but never smart in his attire, and he had a profound dislike for old clothes. In town in winter he used to wear a tall black hat and black clothes, which included a short overcoat with a long, queer cape. In summer he wore gray cassimere and a tall white hat. To Mrs. Gladstone was left the task of caring for his wardrobe.

Gladstone's Scholarship.

In 1886 Mr. Gladstone visited Winchester college, which had in his student days been a sort of rival to his own college at Oxford. Of course the students gave him a royal welcome, and their orator for the day addressed the premier in a somewhat lengthy speech in Latin. Mr. Gladstone listened with the closest attention, as politicians and statesmen always do on such occasions, and the waggish ones probably thought his attentive manner mere form and politeness. To their surprise, however, he replied at once with equally classic Latin and in such detail as to show that not a statement in the address had escaped him.

An average lifetime had passed since he left college, and in that time he had been one of the busiest men in the world, yet his knowledge of the classics had constantly improved. The principal Latin authors were still as familiar to him as the English authors of the same rank, and Greek as his second native tongue.

Every American college has its standard jokes about the various Englishmen who have put forth so many varying views on the "Iliad" and "Odyssey," the same man sometimes changing his views completely within a few years, but Mr. Gladstone is always honored as the consistent and almost convincing advocate of the unity of Homer.

It is a very curious fact that down to the middle of this century American scholars and colleges were practically unanimous in maintaining the unity of Homer; that a change came so rapidly that at one time the great weight of authority was the other way, and that in many cases the same passages were relied on to prove various authors that had been to prove unity, while many men who had when students thought Gladstone's reasoning unanswerable lived to wonder that it should ever have seemed to them weighty.

In his "Studies on Homer and the Homeric Age" (1858) Mr. Gladstone maintains that one man wrote the entire poems, and that they are historic—that is, there was a real Troy which was destroyed by the Greeks. In his "Juventus Mundi" (1869) and his latest work on Homer (1874) he goes still further and attempts to fix the date of Troy's destruction. The argument is, if anything, abler, yet the first convinced, and the last did not. The world is now in an era of skepticism as to all ancient stories. The most ardent admirers of Gladstone's genius merely smile at his views on such subjects and say that he is by nature a devotee, whether as to the literalness of the Pentateuch, of Homer or any other ancient work.

Mr. Gladstone's Library.

Mr. Gladstone's library contains about 25,000 volumes, and he was fully three-quarters of a century collecting it. Scarcely

GLADSTONE EULOGIES.

Memorable Episode In Nation's Parliamentary History.

Worth of the Statesman Testified to by All.

Westminster Abbey to Be the Place of Sepulture.

London, May 21.—The eulogies of Mr. Gladstone in the parliament formed a historic episode. There were more members assembled in the commons than upon any occasion since Mr. Gladstone himself introduced the home rule bill. They filled every seat and clustered on the steps of the speaker's dais. The peers' gallery was crowded with the foremost members of the house of lords. The United States ambassador and all the members of his staff were among the diplomats present. After prayers they silently awaited Mr. Balfour for a quarter of an hour, and when he rose all heads were bared.

Mr. Balfour's speech was remarkably eloquent and displayed good taste, while Sir William Vernon Harcourt's encomiums of his dead leader were delivered in a more glowing style. The Liberal leader's voice thrice broke with emotion, and he was compelled to pause and wipe his eyes.

Mr. Dillon was in his most oratorical style, and when he described how Mr. Gladstone's sympathies were unbounded by nationality and embraced the oppressed of all races, the Irish benches responded with murmurs of assent.

In the house of lords there was a full attendance of members. The Marquis of Salisbury spoke feelingly of Mr. Gladstone, who, he said, "was ever guided in all his efforts by a lofty moral ideal." Continuing, the premier said: "The deceased will be remembered not so much for his political work as for the great example, hardly paralleled in history, of the great christian statesman."

The Earl of Kimberley, the Liberal leader, followed with a touching tribute, and the Duke of Devonshire expressed generous appreciation of Mr. Gladstone's services in behalf of the Liberal-Unionists, saying their severance from the statesman was a most painful incident; but, he added, he could recall no word from Gladstone which added unnecessarily to the bitterness of the situation.

The Earl of Rosebery delivered an eloquent panegyric on the deceased statesman.

The Gladstone family does not oppose the nation's desire regarding the place of sepulture, and the only direction the deceased left was that he should be buried at Hawarden unless there was an unmistakable national wish for an interment at the abbey. Mrs. Gladstone's only objection is the natural wish to be buried in the same grave devoted to her husband; and it is rumored that arrangements are in contemplation whereby this feeling need not prove an insuperable obstacle to a burial in the abbey. Herbert Gladstone is coming to London to arrange the matter.

The Daily News, on the authority of Lord Rendel, confirms the report that an arrangement is contemplated whereby Mr. Gladstone and his wife may eventually sleep in the same grave in Westminster abbey. It is probable that the funeral will be postponed until after Whitsuntide.

Petersham's Former Treasurer.

Athol, Mass., May 21.—New developments have just been made public in the case of the alleged defalcation by the treasurer of Petersham. It appears that the town authorized a loan of $3000 last May, which was placed with a bank at Gardner. Several months ago, when the town officials inquired about the money, ex-Treasurer Glasheen informed them that it had been paid. It has recently been learned that the note has not been paid, which makes the alleged defalcation $4300. Nothing has been heard from the missing treasurer since he disappeared last month.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, SUNDAY, MAY 22.
Sun rises—4:16; sets, 7:06.
Moon sets—9:22 p. m.
High water—12:30 a. m.; 12:45 p. m.

The unsettled conditions in the west make the weather for Sunday somewhat uncertain at this time, but while there may be considerable cloudiness, little if any rain seems probable. It will probably be warmer than today, with winds becoming southerly.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The First regiment, Augusta, Me., will leave for Chickamauga Monday on a special train that will be divided into three sections of 13 cars each.

Consul Thackera at Havre has informed the state department that the French chamber of deputies has passed an act largely increasing import duties on pigs, fresh and salt hog meat and hog products.

The jury in the case of Walter S. Pratt of Charlton, Mass., charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Napoleon Duquette by shooting with a revolver, May 2, returned a sealed verdict of not guilty. Pratt was discharged.

The royal birthday honors in England are characterized by innumerable military rewards for services in the campaign against the rebellious Afridis on the northwestern frontier of India. No fewer than six Victoria crosses are awarded.

The report from Heafford Junction, Wis., that 18 dead bodies were in the depot at that place proves to have been greatly exaggerated. The latest news gives only two killed from the Stewart and Goodyear camps and 16 injured. All the camp buildings were razed by the tornado.

The French brigantine Dienne, from Sydney for St. Pierre with a cargo of coal, has been lost with all hands off Point Platt, Miquelon islands. The body of one of the crew was found on the rocks, and a stern board bearing the name of the vessel was picked up in the same locality.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PLATE.

HELIOTROPE MOUSSELINE DE LAINE GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

Among the new skirt effects are those produced by various methods of decorating the front and sides. A model with a Parisian color combination of dark red and pale heliotrope is made of mousseline de laine. The skirt is cut in two parts—a close-fitting upper part, and a full circular flounce attached. This flounce is cut away either side of the front, and a cluster of fan pleats in satin of the same shade as the gown is inserted in each space, which causes it to hang gracefully at the feet. Black bands of Satin and velvet, in deep points, trim the skirt above the fans, producing the effect of an over-dress—a mode towards which French fashions are slowly drifting. The trimming continues in apron effect towards the back, framing the fulness spaced with a close effect in the centre. Four yards is the width of the skirt at the foot.

A dark red satin under-bodice is disclosed by the blouse, which is cut in pointed decolete; overlaps slightly at the bust, where it is attached, and is open again below.

Trimming the upper part and falling over the tight gigot sleeves is a bertha in jabot effect—wide and square at the lower edge, and diminishing at the shoulder, where it terminates in a fan-shaped frill, ornamented with a gold buckle. The jabot is bordered by a wide black velvet ribbon, with a narrower one of satin each side of it, which finishes also the pointed neck behind. The corsage is fitted snugly at the waist in the back, and the belt is of red satin clasped with gold buckles. The collar is plain and high, and the sleeves are terminated at the wrists by deep points. The proper cut of the gown can be obtained only from the cut paper pattern, published by Harper's Bazar where it appears.

Approximate quantity of material—10 yards 36 inches wide; satin for under-bodice, 3-4 yard; satin for pleatings, 1 1-2 yards; velvet ribbon, 1 piece; satin ribbon, 2 pieces.

USE AND ABUSE.

The Bicycle Should Be Ridden With Care and Intelligence.

Any reader of the news of the day can add instances of misdirected enthusiasm in a sport which, enjoyed as it should be, is of the highest and most invigorating influence. And yet we hear of a misguided wheelman who has set himself the stint of 365 centuries in the calendar year, and in France in the examinations for military service the regimental surgeons are rejecting professional bicyclers because of weakness of the heart. The "bicycle heart" is a term that has already gained a place in pathological nomenclature.

This is the abuse which inevitably follows the popular adoption of any good thing, and fortunately the good which there is in the bicycle preponderates far over the evil caused by its misuse. There stands to the credit of the wheel the most wonderful development of interest in out of door exercise of which we have had experience. How much it has added to the health of the American people, how much to their resources of rational enjoyment, how much to the education of the multitude of youth penned up in cities and ignorant of the glories and beauties of nature until revealed to them in their courses awheel, who can tell?

Why, then, strain for "centuries?" Why seek the empty honors of a "record" when the greater, more permanent satisfaction of a rational use of the wheel can be enjoyed? The bicycle makes for health, fun and refreshment. Its misuse may bring fame in a small way, but at the cost of the real enjoyment which with prudence is inexhaustible.—Boston Post.

CYCLE POINTERS.

Back pedaling bicycle brakes are rapidly coming into popular favor. They have been introduced from time to time in the past, but as a rule received but little recognition.

Frederick Villiers, the distinguished war correspondent, made good use of a bicycle during the Greco-Turkish war and will take his wheel on his forthcoming trip to the Sudan.

In order to get the best service out of chainless wheels riders who use them should not pound on the pedals, but should maintain an even pressure and motion as nearly as possible.

It is admitted, even by chainless wheel advocates, that it is an open question whether the extra weight of the chainless at the rear that has to be dragged up hill does not offset whatever gain there may be in the easier pedal motion.

The competition this year in the sales of the bicycle lamp shows that to wheelmen the principal sundries like the lamp and saddle are of almost as great importance as the models of the various firms. A rider who possesses a good lamp is envied by the one who doesn't.

Dealers in bicycles have found that there is a demand among cyclists this season for narrow handle bars and a corresponding decrease for the ram's horn or drop bars. The reason assigned for this change is that a wheel can be more perfectly controlled when the distance between the grips is less, and it is not so tiresome on the arms, as they rest nearer to the body and in a more natural position.

The cleaning of a bicycle is anything but a pleasant task. The pores of the hands get filled with dirt and graphite, which makes them exceedingly hard to wash. A wheelman suggests that before cleaning a bicycle the hands be well rubbed with neatsfoot or lard oil or tallow. The oil left on the hands prevents the dirt getting into the pores, and soap and water readily removes the oil and dirt after the cleaning of the wheel has been completed.

An English inventor has devised a machine for retail bicycle dealers that enables riders to quickly ascertain what height of frame, adjustment of saddle and handle bars, length of crank, etc., are most desirable. As things are now managed a would be buyer may have to mount several different bicycles in the store, and a great deal of experimenting is certain to be necessary before the most satisfactory position is found. The new invention is a dummy bicycle full of sliding joints and is arranged so that the machine can be readily adjusted to any rider and an opportunity afforded to learn precisely what position and what style of cycle is most suited to him.

The Present Standing of the Series In Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, May 21.—The league leaders were defeated Friday by the league champions, the score of Thursday being reversed. Four thousand people, including 500 ladies, saw the great game.

Willis did the business for the reds, who were unable to hit him. His pitching at critical points was remarkable. When a man mows down such batters as McBride, Beckley and Peitz without a hit, strikes out three men, including the mighty Elmer Smith, and allows but five safe hits, he is pitching ball. That is what Mr. Willis did.

The reds made a desperate effort to tie the score in the eighth. Miller was hit by a pitched ball. Corcoran tripled to right, scoring Miller. Steinfeldt flied out to Hamilton and Corcoran scored. Peitz fouled to Stahl. Hill went out, Lowe to Tenney. Neither side scored in the ninth. The score:

Wet grounds and showers interfered with the game in Cleveland, but it was played to a finish. Wilson was a trifle weak. The Philadelphia club batted out a victory in the seventh inning. Score: 6 to 3.

The Chicagos could do nothing with the Washingtons, and were outplayed at all points, narrowly escaping a shutout. Score: 6 to 1.

Everything went the way of the Providences yesterday, and the Springfields were beaten, 20 to 5. The winning team gave Egan errorless support in the field and fattened scoring and batting averages.

It was a snappy game of ball that the Fall Rivers and Tauntons played. McDougall was in the box for the Tauntons and was batted rather lively, 14 hits with a total of 18 bases being secured off his delivery. In the sixth the Tauntons opened on Kattall and by the aid of four hits and a base on balls scored four runs, taking the lead at this point. He was taken out after this inning and Cronin substituted, the Fall Rivers securing a victory by the score of 8 to 5.

The Dartmouths defeated the Amhersts by a score of 23 to 6. In all the Dartmouths made 22 hits. McAndrews' batting was terrific, including a home run, a double and three singles.

Charles Esper pitched for the St. Louis team in his old form, holding down the New Yorks to six scattered hits, and helping to beat them, 6 to 2.

It took the first inning for the Pawtuckets to guage Eagan of the New Bedfords, and in the next three succeeding innings they hammered him right and left. With the assistance of timely errors by Doe's players 10 runs were chalked up. Two more were added in the seventh for luck. New Bedford tallied but once, and that in the second.

With the exception of the fourth inning both Pond and Gardner pitched magnificent ball in Baltimore. The muff of an easy fly by Stenzel and three bases on balls, aided by daring base running, gave the Pittsburgs three runs and the game. Score: 3 to 1.

FOREIGN DEMAND.

That the Leading Feature of the Country's Trade Today.

New York, May 21.—The excellent foreign demand at good prices for most products of American agriculture constitutes, as for some time past, the leading feature of the country's trade, as reported by Bradstreet's. Second only to this, and of necessity forming an important link in the chain of good trade may be mentioned the almost uniformly good crop situation, furnishing the best evidence that foreign remands now and in the future will be adequately met.

An increased willingness to regard the existing war as merely an incident in the country's business seems evident in the trade reports received this week. The volume of bank clearings, reports of railroad earnings, the movement of prices and the reports received from the iron and steel trades all seem to concur in indicating a maximum volume of business for the period year, with even greater hopefulness manifested than for some time past as to a continuance of favorable conditions.

In manufacturing lines the reports from the woolen goods trade are no more favorable, except where the stimulus of army orders imparts activity to some lines of manufactured products and raw materials. Rather more tone is visible in the cotton goods industry, and there is a firmer tendency in prices, print cloths having recovered slightly from their unprecedentedly low quotation.

Rather more irregularity is visible in prices this week than for some time past, but declines where noted are of a small volume. While wheat, pork, beef, cotton, print cloths and bessemer pigiron are all higher, corn, oats, flour, coffee, butter, cheese and steel billets are slightly lower.

Business failures number 211, a falling off of 39 from last week. Bank clearings are very heavy for the time of year, aggregating $1,325,091,000—3 percent smaller than last week, but 36 percent larger than in this week a year ago, 24 percent larger than 1896, 19 percent larger than 1895, 55 percent larger than 1894 and 7 percent larger than 1892. Returns of railroad earnings for the first quarter this year are the most satisfactory reported for some years past, the gains reported being progressive in that they succeed other gains shown one and two years ago.

When a man is struck down by a poisoned arrow tipped with the venom of the deadliest of serpents, he knows that his time has come. Death is only a question of moments; but not one man in a thousand realizes that when a little extra bile gets into his blood his whole system is being poisond just as truly as if a venom-tipped arrow was sticking in his vitals.

Rattlesnake poison is a good deal quicker than bile-poison but the latter will do just as deadly work if it keeps on accumulating in the system. Probably two-thirds of the cases that end in consumption begin with "liver complaint" and indigestion. These troubles would never get as far as consumption if Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was used before the bile-poisoning got fairly under way. This remarkable "Discovery" invigorates the torpid liver and gives it power to filter the poisons out of the system rapidly and thoroughly.

It strengthens the digestive fluids and enables them to make rich red nourishing blood; it builds up healthy muscle, steady nerve force and enduring strength.

The experience of Mr. Val Burkard, living at 65 Mohr Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., is given in his own words: "Five weeks ago I followed your advice and took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and also two bottles of the 'Pleasant Pellets.' I consider myself entirely cured, as there have been no eruptions since I finished the last bottle. I think it is the greatest remedy on the globe for blood and digestive disorders. My appetite increased wonderfully and I have also gained flesh. I would like everybody to know the true value of Dr. Pierce's medicines as I am confident by persistent use they cure all ailments for which they are recommended."

No household should be without a reliable doctor's book. Send 21 one-cent stamps for Dr. Pierce's 1000-page "Common Sense Medical Adviser" to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. A heavier cloth-bound volume 31 stamps.

It is natural enough that the movements of the war do not keep pace with the wishes of the sanguine, who is always impatient for quick results. Cooler heads, however, are prepared to wait patiently for the outcome of operations extending over a line of 85,000 miles and which have the whole area of the Atlantic for maneuvering in. An army of 150,000 is not marshalled and trained in a day; and wise strategists will never encourage staking great battles upon raw recruits. As a rule, the more preparations the more certain are results. It might be well if our many thousands of amateur strategists would call to mind the maxim of our great commander General Grant, who would undertake nothing until he was well ready, and never under-estimated the recources of the enemy. The Government may make a great mistake if it surrenders its better informed judgment to the ignorant "on to Cuba" clamor which is now creating a serious danger from over precipitancy.

Some of the historic naval wars afford lessons of patience which our many would-be-admirals might study to their advantage. The Spanish fleet is playing a game similar to that which its admirals played nearly 93 years ago, in 1805, with Admiral Horatio Nelson. Nelson had blockaded the French fleet in the harbor of Toulon for nearly a year and a half. At length the Spanish fleet joined the French, ran the blockade and escaped to the West Indies, anchoring at Martinque on the 12 of May, 1805, the very same day of the same month in which Admiral Cervera came there in 1898. The combined fleets escaped Nelson once more, but he followed them across the Atlantic and came up with them at Trafalgar, where he utterly defeated them, capturing 19 out of their 35 vessels, while his fleet was only 27 in number.

Nelson had predicted to Captain Blackwood, a short time previous to the battle, that he would take 20 of the enemy's ships. He came within one of it, and then died in the arms of "Victory," which was his memorable flagship. It took Admirable Nelson from May, 1802, to October, 1805, to accomplish this victory, yet some people around think that Rear-Admirals Sampson and Schley are slow if they don't accomplish a similar feat within a week. Nelson "got there" all the same, breaking the naval power of two great nations. We may safely hope that Sampson and Schley will do likewise with respect to Spain. if time is permitted them to make their plans secure.

A PRIZE ESSAY.

"My Favorite Books," by Miss Jeanie I. Joss.

When turning over a box of old books in the attic, I sometimes come across my first favorite book, a dilapidated, much-worn copy of Mother Goose's Rhymes. These rhymes were said, sung, and read to me long befoe I could safely handle a book,—far less read it. I know we children never tired of them and bestowed much pains and paint in heightening the beauty of the illustrations. Blessed old Boston dame! beloved by countless generations of children, whose fame is assured, for who could imagine children that would find no interest in "Little Bo-peep," "Boy Blue," and the other members of Mother Goose's family.

Next came the fascinations of "The House that Jack Built," "Cinderella," "The Three Bears," and "Jack, the Giant Killer." No repetition dulled my interest in them. Like Oliver Twist I demanded "more."

At the close of my second year at school my teacher gave me the first bound volume of St. Nicholas. I remember how proudly I carried it home, the joy of possession so filling me that the weight was no burden, though I was so small and the book so big. What a treasure-house it proved during the vacation! How we revelled in Trowbridge's "Fast Friends," and in the story of "Nimpo's Troubles." Indeed, I have turned to it again and again, in the ten years that have elapsed since then, and have never forgotten the kindness of my teacher.

As soon as I could read fairly well I began a most interesting course in fairy tales. I first read Grimm's and I remember of being especially delighted and amused with "Faithful John," "One Eye, Two Eyes, Three Eyes," and the Robber's Cave." Indeed the whole book was a source of pure satisfaction to me.

How pityingly I followed the disguised prince and princess in their wanderings, after their cruel stepmother had turned them out in the cold and snow, in a paper dress, or some such flimsy garment. How anxiously I accompanied them through their heart-rending trials and perilous escapes, and how satisfactory it was to find that everything came out all right in the end and "they lived happily ever after."

Another of these enchanting volumes was Andersen's and the one which I read and re-read so many times was "The Ugly Duckling." Other favorites were "The Tinder Box," "Thick-headed Jack," and "The Wild Swans." When I read the life of Andersen it seemed as though I better understood his writings. The pathos of his boyhood and early youth, with their hard and bitter experiences, his richly poetic nature, keenly sensitive alike to kindness and to unjust criticism, his child-like character, are all clearly shown in his "Fairy Tales" and other works. One always feels glad that his mother lived to see her beloved son famous, and his native town of Odense illuminated upon his return.

About this time I made the acquaintance of that much-loved friend of all girls, Louisa May Alcott. Her many readers all hold her in their hearts with a peculiar personal affection. And no wonder! She is so companionable, whole-hearted, and jolly! What real girls and boys live in her books! With what zest and satisfaction we read and re-read "Little Women" and "Little Men." Having once become acquainted with Meg, Jo, Beth, Amy, Laurie and the other delightful characters, they are friends for life, in whose company we delight. What a fine out-of-doors life we find "Under the Lilacs." We enjoy the pranks of Bab, Betty, Ben, and that gifted dog, Sancho, and sympathize with them in their scarpes. In Miss Alcott's books I found that scorn of meanness, that high courage and love of truth and right which appeals to what is best in us, and tends to make us dissatisfied with the thought of just getting through life in the easiest way possible.

Another favorite book which I often take down from the bookshelves, is Margaret Sidney's "Five Little Peppers and how they grew." What delightful visions are called up by the names of Mamsie, Ben, Polly, Joel Davy and little Phronsie 'Pepper! visions of the "Little Brown House" and the brave, true lives of self-denial and happiness that were lived there. They had such nobility of nature and sunny tempers' that in spite of poverty and anxiety, they had such genuine "good times" as filled Jasper King, the rich man's son with envy. No wonder old Mr. King recovered when he got Phronsie's "gingerbread boy.

Our course of reading at the grammar school, made me acquainted with Washington Irving, and aroused such interest that I read with pleasure many of his books. "The Alhambra" showed me Spain and the Spaniards—in "Bracebridge Hall" I found an excellent and very interesting account of rural life at the house of an English Squire of the olden time, with much quaint folklore, old customs and supestitions. "The Tour of the Prairies" helps us to realize the wonderful changes that have taken place in our country in the course of fifty or sixty years. Indians and buffaloes have alike disappeared, great cities and busy towns have arisen, the lonely solitudes described by Irving are now fertile and cultivated lands, whose harvests are transported from one end of the continent to the other.

In my later reading I have taken up Dickens and Scott, finding friends among those children of their fancy which seem so real to us now. "Little Nell," "Little Dorritt," David Copperfield, Mr. and Mrs. Micawber, Oliver Twist, Bill Sykes and Nancy, Mr. Pickwick and Sam Weller, we laugh and cry over them and quote their sayings as if they were real personages.

The love and fame of Sir Walter Scott becomes more secure as the years go by. He has so truly painted the lights and shadows of Scottish life,—of Cavalier and Roundhead, of Saxon and Norman, in those far-off unhappy times, that Ivanhoe, Rebecca, Flora McIvor, the Baille, Meg Merrilles, the Dominie, Jennie Deans and his other characters, find kindred all over the world. We take them to our hearts as personal friends. How much more so their author. Especially when we think of the heroism of his last years:—the old man, lonely, broken in health, yet toiling on, writing day after day, in order to pay off that vast debt, that he might die an man "owing no man anything."

"Better a death when work is done than earth's most favored birth; Better a child in God's great house, than the king of all the earth."

Flag Raising in Wollaston.

With no fuss and no feathers or war paint, just a little red fire and explosives Hodenosaunee Tribe of Red Men flung to the breeze last evening an American flag from the front of Odd Fellows' building. The flag is not large, but as it is the only one in the block facing the depot it is quite ornamental and serves to show passers-by that there is some patriotism in Wollaston. The previous evening Hodenosaunee raised three brothers to the Warriors' degree and will adopt five palefaces and confer degrees at next council.

The trustees of the Quincy and Hingham bridges have voted to comply with the petition that the Quincy and Hingham bridges be lighted, and lights will be put in immediately. Five lights of the thirty-two candle power series will be maintained upon the bridge between Quincy and Weymouth, two of which will be at the draw and the others distributed along the bridge where most needed. The Weymouth Electric Light company will supply the current for four of the lights and the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co. will supply the current for the fifth light. The expense will be borne by the trustees.

Desirable House Lots.
WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

For plans, prices and terms, apply to DR. N. S. HUNTING, 214 Hancock St., Quincy, or to MR. GEO. G. SAVILLE, 5 Greenleaf street, Quincy, and John Hancock Bldg., Devonshire St., Boston.

DOWN ON THE CAPE

You've got to show 'em. They want to "see." Last Sunday in a church in a small town, where it is customary to send notices of one thing and another, up to the pastor, so that he may read them aloud from the pulpit to the congregation, one notice was read that did not just exactly convey the meaning the writer intended. A young naval officer, brave and wanting to fight, had been ordered to join his ship. His mother-in-law wanting to secure the prayers of her pastor and her neighbors for his welfare, and at the same time call a little attention to herself, sent a notice to the pulpit which should have read: "Lieutenant Smith going to sea, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Jones, desires the prayers of the congregation knowing Mrs. Jones, gave him their prayers. Sometimes a pause makes a great difference. She didn't punctuate it just right, it over and say to yourself, "sez you," "There's that new store that everyone is talking about. They say they sell good goods cheap. They have a buyer in the market every day," can buy 'what's' going as close as Boston merchants, it seems to me as if their less expense should enable them to sell cheaper." That pause will save you money. For example, you can come any day this week, you can buy a nice Blue Serge or Brown and think it's only as good as a regular $8.50 suit, you're mistaken. It's better. Gray Check, all-wool Suit for $7.50. If you

The Tale of an Ancient Wrong.

The following poem, by Alfred Austin, poet laureate of England, has a deep significance and is attracting much attention:

What is the voice I hear
On the winds of the western sea?
Sentinel, listen from out Cape Clear
And say what the voice may be.
'Tis a proud, free people, calling loud to a people proud and free.

And it says to them: "Kinsmen, hail!
We severed have been too long.
Now let us have done with a wornout tale—
The tale of an ancient wrong—
And our friendship last long as love doth last and be stronger than death is strong."

Answer them, sons of the selfsame race
And blood of the selfsame clan.
Let us speak with each other face to face
And answer as man to man,
And loyally love and trust each other as none but free men can.

Now fling them out to the breeze—
Shamrock, thistle and rose,
And the star spangled banner unfurl with these—
A message to friends, to foes,
Wherever the sails of peace are seen and wherever the war wind blows—

A message to bond and thrall to wake
For, wherever we come, we twain,
The throne of the tyrant shall rock and quake
And his menace be void and vain.
For you are lords of a strong, young land, and we are lords of the main.

Yes, this is the voice on the bluff March gale.
We severed have been too long.
But now we have done with a wornout tale—
The tale of an ancient wrong—
And our friendship last long as love doth last and be stronger than death is strong.

Spain's Chief Industry.

Spain's bullfighters made money last year. Mazzantini, in 66 fights, killed 168 bulls and made 396,000 pesetas; Reverte's score was 71 fights, 160 bulls and 276,000 pesetas, while Guerrita, with 76 fights and 147 bulls slaughtered, earned 456,000 pesetas, or $91,000.

ARE READY TO INVADE.

Possibility of a Disarrangement of Cuban Plans.

Hectoring the President With Sapient Advice.

Naval Battle In Two or Three Days, Secretary Long Thinks.

Washington, May 21.—Everything is ready for an immediate invasion of Cuba. The regulars are prepared to start, and so are the volunteer regiments which have been recruited from the efficient militia forces of the New England states. But with nothing lacking save the word to advance the administration is beset with urgent appeals for delay. The officers of the regular army, almost to a man, are opposed to the idea of invading Cuba at this season. Chief among them is General Miles, who has been pleading with the president and the secretary of war to defer the embarkation of forces until the close of the rainy season, which is now imminent, and in the meantime to drill and season the volunteers for the arduous work of Cuban campaigning. Secretary Alger is opposed to further delay and wishes to put the troops in motion at once. Between the pressure of conflicting advice and opinions the president is full of the most anxious thought and hesitates to decide.

General Miles' policy with regard to the invasion of Cuba was adopted by the administration so far as it involved the abandonment of the early scheme to use the army merely as auxiliary to the insurgents who were to be allowed to bear the brunt of the military operations in the island. The discovery that the insurgents were quite unable to carry on a systematic and aggressive campaign left no alternative with the administration except to adopt General Miles' suggestion that when operations were undertaken invasion should be made in force and without regard to any assistance which the insurgents might render. But General Miles' plan involved in addition a postponement of all operations until fall, and he is as insistent as ever on this point. He is supported in his contention by almost every officer of high standing in the army, and in addition some of the president's closest and most influential friends are strongly urging delay.

The sea scouts, widely advertised and costing $25,000 a day, do not seem thus far to have proven very effective additions to the navy. It may be that if Admiral Cervera sails northward toward the Atlantic coast, the scouts will have the good fortune to intercept it, but if at the same time Sampson and Schley are pursuing a wildgoose chase in the Caribbean sea they will have some trouble in again catching up with the enemy.

It is no wonder that there is considerable rejoicing in Madrid at the success which has attended Admiral Cervera's efforts to elude the American squadron, even though he had not won a victory it is still not clear why he should have gone to Santiago. The town is several hundred miles from Havana, with railroad facilities between the two cities interrupted and with no possibility of sending supplies to General Blanco, except by a slow overland trip that would occupy several weeks and be extremely hazardous. On the other hand Santiago possesses a good harbor for refuge, and is in telegraphic communication with both Havana and Madrid, so that Admiral Cervera can be quickly informed of any new developments in the situation.

Schley's vessels are in the vicinity of Havana, awaiting the arrival of Sampson's armorclads, which departed from Key West last night, for a conjoint movement upon Santiago.

Sometime about Sunday or Monday, if Admiral Cervera is kind enough to delay his departure to accommodate the American ships, a battle may take place. Little faith, however, is placed in his willingness to engage in a conflict, and it would not be at all surprising if, when Sampson and Schley finally look into the nest, the bird will have flown. Secretary Long fully appreciates the uncertainties of the situation. "A battle may take place," he said, "within two or three days, or it may be two or three weeks, or two or three months."

Colonel Pew a Commander.

Chickamauga National Park, May 21.—General Brooke has completed the formation of the First provisional army corps, United States volunteers. The corps consists of three divisions with three brigades in each division and three regiments in each brigade. The first division is commanded by Major General Wilson, the second by Colonel A. K. Arnold, the third by Brigadier General J. S. C. Bates. The second brigade of the third division is under command of Colonel William A. Pew, Eighth Massachusetts, acting brigadier, and is composed of the Twenty-first Kansas, Twelfth New York and Eighth Massachusetts. The third brigade, whose commanding officer is not yet named, is composed of the Ninth Pennsylvania, Second Missouri and First New Hampshire. Until the complement of brigadiers has been appointed each brigade will be in command of the senior colonel. The first corps will be commanded by Major General Brooke, who will also be in command of the army of the gulf. Among the regiments to arrive yesterday was the First New Hampshire infantry, 12 companies, 1009 officers and men.

Ammunition on the Argonauta.

Key West, May 21.—Over 40 cases of ammunition were found yesterday on the Spanish steamer Argonauta, seized during the first days of the war. It was on board this steamer that Lieutenant Colonel Cortijo, Weyler's brother-in-law, was captured with other Spanish soldiers now prisoners in Fort McPherson.

The discovery of the war supplies will not change the status of her case before the prize court, as it had already been decided, before learning of the find, that the steamer was legitimately a prize of war, no claims having been filed by the owners of the ship or cargo. A like decision was rendered in the cases of Ambrosio Bolivar and the Candidita, Mathilda and Sopia. The only formality remaining to make these vessels the absolute property of the United States is the confirmation by the federal court authorities of the findings of the prize commission.

The case of the Buena Ventura, the first capture of the war, and the Pedro, Catalina, Miguel Joer, Panama and Guido, all large and valuable steamers, will have to be tried in regular form by the United States court, claims having been filed by the owners of the ships and cargoes.

Over Hundred Thousand.

Washington, May 21.—At 10:30 last night it was announced that 104,000 volunteers had been mustered into the army. It is expected that from now until the remainder of the 125,000 men called for have been mustered the work will proceed very slowly. The probability is that if the mustering of the required quota is not completed by the first of next week, the call, so far as the delinquent states are concerned, will be cancelled and volunteers will be accepted from other states. Telegrams were received from North Carolina indicating serious difficulty in organizing the necessary troops in that state.

Alger's Financial Wants.

Washington, May 21.—Secretary Alger has sent to the secretary of the treasury for transmission to congress supplemental estimates of appropriations aggregating $88,638,840 required by the war department for the support of the regular and volunteer armies for the first six months of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, in addition to the amounts appropriated in the acts of March 15 and May 4, 1898. The particular items for which appropriations are asked are given as follows: Expenses of the commanding general's office, $1000; contingent expenses, inspector general's department, $1000; signal service of the army, $114,000; pay, etc., of the army, $4,017,804; pay of volunteers, $25,026,266; subsistence of the army, $10,219,635; regular supplies quartermaster's department, $2,500,000; horses for cavalry and artillery, $2,000,000; barracks and quarters, $750,000; army transportation, $20,000,000; clothing and camp and garrison equipage, $13,000,000; contingencies of the army, $50,000; medical and hospital department, $354,000; ordnance service, $325,000; ordnance, ordnance stores and supplies, $3,394,000; armament of fortfications, $130,510; manufacture of arms, $640,000; equipment of engineer troops, $75,000; civilian assistants to engineer officers, $40,000.

GENERAL RUSSELL A. ALGER.

ANOTHER REGIMENT GONE.

Massachusetts Sixth Departs From the Camp In South Framingham.

South Framingham, Mass., May 21.—Notwithstanding the fact that the final order to the Sixth regiment to move did not reach camp until yesterday and therefore was not generally known at towns which were represented in the regiment by companies, there was a tremendous rush here of relatives and friends. Scarcely a "soldier boy" turned his face southward without a warm parting from some member of his family. The day reminded one of the regular June and July weather at muster. The heat, while not unbearable, nevertheless was burdensome and was in the nature of a preparatory blast from the region where New England's east winds are never heard.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the assembly sounded from the headquarters of the Sixth, and soon the company ranks were filled with men in full marching order. Dress parade followed with the Fitchburg band furnishing the music. The men stood like statues during the march past, but the music had stirred up thrills of emotion which were hard to suppress. The parade had not finished when the Ninth took up its old position to speed the third Massachusetts regiment with hearty cheers, just as it had to the two which had gone out before.

With Colonel Woodward and staff marching ahead, the star spangled banner and the white flag of Massachusetts streaming before the westerly breeze, the regiment swung into line for the final review. Down past the Ninth went the boys of the "old Sixth," grim and determined as in '61, while their friends on every side rent the air with parting cheers. Near the gate stood the governor, with his staff, proud that the commonwealth had such sons to fight for her, and hopeful that the solid ranks might still be intact when next he greeted them at the end of the war. When out throught the gates went the regiment, it was greeted by a still larger throng, which included a well-organized procession that escorted the boys to the train.

The first section started at 6:50, but ran only a short distance down the track when a stop was made for a number of regular trains to pass. The final start was made about 7:30 with the other sections following at 10-minute intervals.

No word has yet been received as to the movement of the Ninth, although the men are anxiously expecting the order to go to New York in the next few days.

Can't Coal There.

St. John's, N. F., May 21.—The government is taking steps to prevent the Spanish Cadiz squadron from getting coal in Newfoundland waters, and will at once dispatch the Fiona to patrol the south coast and report the presence of strange shipping. The British warships are also preparing to visit there.

The Portia reports that on Wednesday at midnight, while off St. Pierre, Miq., she sighted a strange steamer, apparently a torpedo boat. The stranger showed no light, but circled rapidly around the Portia twice and then steamed away. The captain of the Portia is positive that she was not an ordinary steamer.

San Juan Bombardment.

New York, May 21.—Steamer Arkadia, which sailed from San Juan, Porto Rico, May 14, reports that she was in that port two days after the recent bombardment by Rear Admiral Sampson's fleet. Captain Lloyd said that from 15 to 20 Spaniards were killed and about 60 wounded; many houses were damaged; one of the forts was destroyed, and two guns were dismounted. Some of the steamers in port were damaged.

Endorsed by Senator Hale.

Washington, May 21.—There was some discussion of the civilian appointments to official positions in the army in yesterday's executive session of the senate. Senator Pettigrew said that while he had not objected to appointments to other positions, he would insist that nominees to positions as engineers should be competent men, and he asked the committee on military affairs to give careful attention to such nominations. Senator Hale endorsed this request as reasonable in view of the importance of the office of engineer in the army.

Mr. Platt's Amendment.

Washington, May 21.—Senator Platt of New York has given notice of his intention to offer an amendment to the war revenue bill, providing for the funding of outstanding greenbacks and treasury notes at the pleasure of the holder into bonds bearing 2 percent interest. The principal of these bonds is made payable at the pleasure of the government, after the other interest-bearing debts of the government are paid, and until finally paid they are made reconvertible into greenbacks and treasury notes. The amendment also provides that hereafter the currency of this character shall not be receivable for customs or redeemable at the treasury department except in the bonds provided for that purpose.

The English Weeklies.

London, May 21.—The weeklies continue their pro-American comments upon the war and its international developments. The Spectator says: "The ultimate results of the war cannot be doubtful. Any check the United States may receive will only increase its determination to persist. The intervention of the powers would make that determination unalterable; and if European complications bring on a European war, every great power in Europe except ourselves and Germany will find what Italy and Spain have found already—that its government is sitting on a volcano."

Referring to Mr. Chamberlain's advocacy of an Anglo-Saxon alliance, The Spectator declares: "We would welcome anything in the direction of strengthening the Anglo-Saxon race, not as a security merely for Americans and English, but as a security that the best tendencies in social and political life will be given full play."

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 21.—"There is no reason in the world," The Globe argues, "why our government should not know everything that the most wideawake detectives can ascertain in Madrid and Cadiz."

The Journal declares that "unless Cervera can extricate himself from his boasted haven before the American squadron closes in on him, he is sure to find the same fatal trap which Montojo found his secure position behind barricades and batteries at Manila."

The Post insists that "if all the cables to the West Indies were cut, we might find another Dewey among the commanders of our Atlantic squadrons."

In the opinion of The Advertiser, "no reasonable person makes any objection against the new rules of the federal government whose object is to restrain the publication of news regarding the plans and movements of the army any navy."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 21.—Governor Wolcott sent two messages to the legislature yesterday, the most important being in relation to plans of the United States engineers for fortifications at Hull, recommending the cession of the land needed to the national government. The other message was merely to transmit a communication from the American Association for the Advancement of Science, suggesting an appropriation in connection with the coming convocation of the association. The matters were referred to the proper committees.

The house passed a resolve for a delegation to the Omaha exposition, making the delegation as originally proposed.

Gas was the one subject of consideration in the senate yesterday. It led to the liveliest kind of debate, abounding in personalities and sarcastic references, and ended by ordering to a third reading the bill providing for the approval by the gas commision of all issues of stock and bonds by associations or combinations engaged in gas or electric business.

The bill prohibiting the use for advertising purposes of the seal and coat of arms of the commonwealth was passed to be engrossed after the adoption of an amendment by Mr. Dubuque of Fall River that the penalty should not take effect until 1900.

Boston Notes Grouped.

Boston, May 21.—Mayor Quincy last night received a telegram from C. S. Homer of Scarboro, Me., stating that at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, four small steamers were sighted off Cape Elizabeth, steaming in a westerly direction. They appeared to be low in the water, painted black, and seemed to be sailing very swiftly.

Judge Gaskill sentenced Charles Devlin to the state prison for not more than 10 years nor less than eight for robbery. Devlin is said to be a New York pickpocket.

The reward of $600 for the apprehension of Lorenzo W. Barnes, the murderer of John Deane at Maynard, has been divided in the porportions of $250, $200, $75 and $37.50 each to five residents of Maynard.

The full bench of the supreme court has affirmed a judgment of $1130 in favor of William A. Drury of Framingham vs. Paul Butler and Adelbert Ames, administrators of the late General Butler's estate. The plaintiff alleged that General Butler neglected to properly conduct a case which he was to try, growing out of taking the plaintiff's land by the town of Framingham.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning May 22.
Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Christ our model.—Math. x, 24, 25; John xiii, 12-15. (A union meeting with the juniors suggested, to be led by the junior superintendent.)

Christ not only lived to work out God's plan of redemption, but also to give His followers the pattern of a perfect life. His life is the only perfect life that has been lived, and must be taken as a model by all who would live in such a way as will please God the Father.

It was divinely intended that Christ's life should be a model for all Christians. His life is stated to be an example for us, and we are commanded to do as He did, even to have the same mind as Christ had. After washing the disciples' feet, that He might teach them humility, Jesus said, "I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done to you." In John xv, 12, He says, "This is my commandment, that ye love one another as I have loved you." In exhorting servants to suffer patiently the abuses of masters Peter says, "Christ also suffered for us, leaving us an example that ye should follow His steps." Scripture thus conclusively proves that Christ's life was intended to be a model for all Christians. How important then to know what Christ did. How can we follow in His steps if we are not acquainted with the pathway that He trod? How can we do what He did unless we know what He did?

But we are not only in our actions to take Christ as our model, but we may also expect to be treated in the world as Christ was treated. The world persecuted and abused Christ. It maligned and ridiculed Him. Can we expect less from it? Naturally not so. Christ was Master, we are disciples; Christ was Lord, we are servants. Can disciples expect better treatment than their master received or servants than their lord? They would be foolish to do so. "The disciple is not above his master, nor the servant above his lord." Christ then should be our model in the reception of the adverse treatment and misrepresentation of the world.

The aim of every Christian Endeavorer should be to be like Christ. Christlikeness is Christianity. The more like Christ we are the better Christians we are. A Christian life is a Christ life. How can we become most like Christ? By having Christ dwell within us and make our lives His life. When puzzled as to how to act, we may well try to find out what Christ would do, and then do that, but the best way to live like Christ is to put self out of our lives and to let Christ into them, to surrender ourselves so absolutely to Christ as to no longer live, but to have Christ live in us. If we get Christ's spirit within us, we cannot but have a Christ life without us. Let us take Him as our pattern and model. At every step of life let us ask, "How would Christ walk?" At every moment of decision let us ask, "What would Christ do?" Then let us do it.

Bible Readings.—Math. v, 21-26, 48; vi, 9-15; xi, 28-30; Luke vi, 40; John xv, 1-12, 18-27; I Cor. xi, 1; Eph. iv, 31, 32; v, 1-5; Phil. ii, 1-11; iii, 14-21; Col. iii, 1-7; I Pet. ii, 21; I John ii, 1-6.

Follow Me.

Christ demands an open loyalty. Every call of His is a call to confession of Him. "Follow Me" was the message which the fishermen of Galilee heard and heeded. They left their nets and followed their Master. It was open following, not secret love. Matthew at the publican's bench heard the same message, and Capernaum's custom house had a vacant office after that call. "He forsook all and followed Him" is the simple yet significant symbol of confession. "Come after Me," says Christ to every disciple. Show your colors, declare your convictions, manifest your love, confess your loyalty. Christ demands positive allegiance as a proof of discipleship. Compromises never count in Christ's school of Christian life. "No looking back" if you would be fitted for the kingdom of God.—Christian Intelligencer.

The Father and the Son.

There is but one God. We must hold fast to that truth. This God is love. In our human thought love implies a beloved object. Therefore from eternity God generated the Son, who is the express image of His person. In the beginning this expression of Himself existed—this Logos, which we translate Word. It is the self revealing aspect of the divine self. It is that in Him which can be manifested. We know that the undivided ray of light can, without ceasing to be light or effulgence, manifest itself as color. Yet light and color are not two things, but one. So Father and Son are not two essences, but one.—American Friend.

Unrecognized Answers.

Sometimes by unrecognized answer God makes reply to special prayer. You pray, and apparently nothing comes of it. But as the days go you find that surely something has come of it. The causes for your trouble have dissipated slowly perhaps, but steadily and really. You have been answered, though at the time you knew it not.—Wayland Hoyt.

All One.

I will account no sin little, since the least works out the death of the soul. It is all one whether I be drowned in the ebb on shore or in the midst of the deep sea.—Bishop Hall.

Christ the Hope of Glory.

Christ in thee the hope of glory.
Shout His praise from sea to sea.
Tell with joy the gospel story—
How from sin He set thee free.

Christ in thee the hope of glory.
Let thy life the story tell
How in trials and afflictions
Jesus doeth all things well.

Christ in thee the hope of glory.
Let it thrill thy soul with love;
Let it make each moment brighter
With a radiance from above.

—Jacob Henn.

U. S. REGULARS AT PORT TAMPA. ARTILLERY CAMP DURING STABLE HOUR. FROM A PHOTOGRAPH TAKEN FOR HARPER'S WEEKLY.

Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

Very few people realize that today artillery is the most effective and important branch of the military service, and that it promises to develop more novel features in warfare and strategical science than either cavalry or infantry. It will accordingly be one of the most interesiing points of the coming struggle in Cuba to study the condition and strength of the United States artillery. We have now at Tampa about seven hundred artillerymen, in charge of sixty field guns, and a picture of the camp is printed this week, reproduced from an illustration in Harper's Weekly.

It is probable that the prospect of actual warfare was greeted with more satisfaction by our artillery than by any other branch of our army. Cavalry and infantry have alike distinguished themselves in the Indian campaigns, but the chances of the gunners have been few, and they are therefore impatient to be transferred to Cuban soil for action.

The value of the restraint and routine of camp life, so necessary as discipline and training for the militia, is little appreciated by the regular troops. They are all anxiously waiting for "the big thing," as the move on Cuba is called, and the quiet scenes of camp life, like the one depicted in the illustration, will be gladly exchanged for the stirring and exceedingly dangerous experience of an active campaign. The skill of American gunners, both on land and sea, is traditional and unquestioned. The country looks forward with confidence to the proofs of the efficiency of our light artillery in the field, and the men, in turn, are consumed with anxiety to outdo, if possible, the accuracy of aim which their comrades on shipboard have already displayed at Manila, Matanzas and Porto Rico.

WILLIAM E. GLADSTONE.

a day passed that he did not make some addition to it. For instance, on the day of Stanley's wedding he escaped as soon as he could from the gay throng and went to the shop of a bookseller on Southampton row, where he bought "The Life of Thomas Reynolds," in two volumes; "The Morning of Life," a Catholic religious book; "Ireland Before and After the Union," by R. B. Martin; "The Rise and Progress of Religious Opinion in Ireland," by Mrs. Thompson; "Lord Holland's Reminiscences," "Manchester College Lectures," containing an address by Cardinal Newman on classical literature; "Byron's Letters," "Lent Lectures," "The Laws of Honor," an account of the suppression of duels in France; "Le Bouddha," by Saint Hilaire; "The French Librarian or Literary Guide," by Ventonillac; "English Synonyms" and a Greek work.

He always had his books rebound, holding that any book worth having was worthy of a good cover. His library was so miscellaneous that he could not himself state what sort of books predominated, though he had personally divided it into many minute sections. Theology, he thought, comprised about one-fourth of the whole. There are about 20 editions of Homer and from 30 to 40 translations, whole or in part. He never sympathized to any considerable extent with the craze for modern first editions, but "I like a tall copy," was a characteristic remark made once to a friend. "And so far as regards a preference for ancient authors, in old but good editions, to modernized reprints, the verdict was emphatically in favor of the former."

Gladstone and the Caricaturists.

Mr. Gladstone's pronounced personality and his extended public career combine to make him an easy and always timely subject for the caricaturist's pencil. In fact, it is hard to imagine on looking over the funereal pages of Punch what its artists would have done had there been no Gladstone. These satirical pictures of the great Liberal leader have a certain value, however, for they show him in exaggerated measure, it is true, but still with a degree of fidelity at all periods of his life and as he appeared in every possible mood. The examples here given are copied from the pictures of John Leech, John Tennel, Linley Sanbourne and Harry Furniss as they were printed between 1859 and the present time. The picture with the exaggerated shirt collar is by Furniss, who delighted to portray the Grand Old Man's high collar as his most pronounced characteristic, often simply indicating with a line or two the top of his head and with a dot the eye, as in this case.

Among the pleasantest and most valuable customs of the staff of Punch has been for many years the eating of a weekly dinner with the editor, at which the policy of the paper and its caricatures are outlined and criticised. Mr. Gladstone was invited to be an honored guest at one of these dinners, and there was some previous speculation as to how he and Mr. Furniss would enjoy the meeting. Mr. Gladstone proved equal to the occasion. He came, and hardly was he seated at the table when the company became aware of a change in his familiar personality. A second look revealed its nature. Mr. Furniss started; somebody tittered; there was a smile, a ripple and then a roar of laughter.

Mr. Gladstone had on the smallest, slenderest and most inconspicuous of narrow turndown collars, assumed for that occasion only, and was quietly enjoying the artist's discomfiture. Mr. Furniss soon recovered himself and appreciated the joke as much as any one else.

Gladstone and the Queen.

Gladstone never was a favorite at the palace. Indeed the queen is reported to have said more than once with emphasis that she detested him, and said it in a way to imply that she also feared him. When Lord Salisbury resigned in 1892 to be followed in office by Gladstone, she is said to have accepted the resignation with expressed "regret," thereby breaking the unwritten law that British royalty should never express preference for either of the great political parties. There are stories to the effect that more than one discussion between the sovereign and Gladstone terminated in angry words, but the premier never flinched from facing royalty.

"You must take this action," he once said to her.

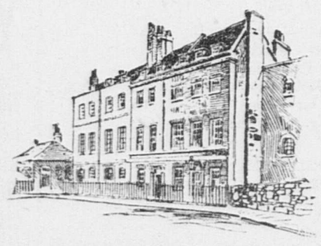

"Must! Did you say must?" she angrily retorted. "And do you know, sir, who I am?"

"Madam," answered Gladstone coolly, "you are the queen of England. But do you know who I am? I am the people of England, and in this emergency the people say 'must!'"

It is scarcely necessary to add that the "people" prevailed.

Gladstone's Pet Dog.

It is stated elsewhere that Mr. Gladstone never, so far as recorded, perpetrated a joke, yet he was far from being a gloomy man. Indeed his bouyancy of spirits was remarkable. He was frequently even gay, and his smile is likened by some one to a sunburst. He liked pets and during his later years possessed a little black Pomeranian dog named Petz, of which he was very fond. The little animal used often to accompany the statesman on long walks, and it was Mr. Gladstone's delight to throw sticks for the little fellow to run after, and he often told how on one occasion when he was felling a tree, with Petz as his only companion, the dog after a time thought some little attention should be paid to him, and that some of the chips should be thrown to him to fetch. So he kept picking up a chip now and again and dropping it at the woodman's feet in the hope of attracting his attention. Mr. Gladstone, appearing not to notice his little friend's efforts, went on with his tree felling, determined to try and tire him out. But at last, in dire distress, Petz picked up a large chip and dropped it on Mr. Gladstone's boot, at the same time looking up into the statesman's face as if his life depended on his wish being gratified. The gentleman had to give in, and Petz was made altogether happy.

THE HOUSE IN DOWNING STREET.

Gladstone as a Speaker.

Notwithstanding his abilities in other directions, it was as speaker that Mr. Gladstone possessed his strongest hold upon the English people. His voice was clear, vibrant, melodious and penetrating. It was quite audible in the corners of the largest hall, and it was rare that he was unable to reach the outskirts of the most extended outdoor audience. Even after he had passed the limit of fourscore years this was largely true, though during the last years of his life his magnificent vocal organs were somewhat impaired.

Though contrary to the impressions produced by the pictures of Mr. Gladstone, he was not a large man. His graceful attitudes and imposing appearance had much to do with the favorable impression he was almost invariably able to produce upon his audiences. His gestures were apparently unstudied and always seemed to emphasize the words he uttered. His style as a speaker differed materially from his style as a writer. Though it is undoubtedly true that he prepared most of his important speeches carefully in advance, he was never at a loss for a reply when interrupted by a dissenting auditor.

Public speaking is of even greater importance in English than in American politics. Certainly, judging from the reports, which are always printed verbatim in the English papers, long public speeches are much more frequent there than here. Mr. Gladstone probably made more speeches than any other English statesman. Thanks to his wonderful physique, he never flinched because of inclement weather, and among the marvels of his career was the way in which he would stand for hours in a pelting rain sometimes while he expounded to the voters his views on the vital topics of the day.

Mrs. Gladstone invariably occupied a place near him when he was speaking and was always ready with wraps and refreshments for him the moment he had finished. He was rarely treated with discourtesy, especially during his later years, but in the campaign of 1892 he suffered an injury to one of his eyes from a small missile thrown by a woman. He soon recovered from the effects of this, however, and continued speaking during the campaign, although it was feared that he might be laid up during the remainder of the contest.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Thomas Hollerhan for keeping a common nuisance at Randolph was called and again continued until June 18. The case against him for exposing liquors for sale at Quincy was also continued until June 18. Hollerhan was then arraigned for the illegal transportation of liquor at Quincy, Case continued until June 18. Hollerhan pleaded guilty on all the complaints.

Hugh Bresnihan was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Patrick H. Hand was arraigned for breaking and entering the premises of Peter Fryer at Randolph and the larceny of clothing to the value of $68. Hand was also arraigned for malicious mischief at Randolph. Both cases were continued until May 31.

The cases against Maurice J. Sheahan and James Hoane for drunkenness at Quincy were called and were placed on file.

The continued case of Thomas P. Heaney for drunkenness at Randolph was called and he was fined $5.

A case that is of peculiar interest to South Weymouth was heard. The particular case was that of Elbridge Nash, a well known druggist who was arraigned upon complaint of Henry B. Reed for the single sale of liquor to Henry H. Lawler. The peculiar part of this case is the fact that Mr. Nash and Mr. Reed are rival candidates for postmaster at South Weymouth. It is also a fact that was brought out in the hearing that Mr. Reed was President of the Law and Order League. Mr French appeared for the government and Mr. McAnarney for defendant.

It was admitted by Mr. Reed during the hearing that he had repeatedly said he would do what he could to prevent Mr. Nash from getting the office and that he desired to prove that Mr. Nash was selling intoxicating liquor and thus prove that he, Mr. Nash, was not a fit candidate for postmaster. Mr. Reed also admitted that he had told Col. Lovell, that if Mr. Nash would withdraw as a candidate for postmaster he would do all he could to help him.

Edward A. Garrity testified that he was a friend of Mr. John Hunt, Mr. Nash's rival for the postmastership. He went to South Weymouth April 3, and met Lawler on the outside of Nash's store and gave Lawler a dollar. That Lawler then went into the store and purchased liquor. He saw him from the door receive a bottle of liquor from Arthur B. Reed, the clerk at Nash's store.

Henry H. Lawler testified that on April 3, he went to Nash store and met Garrity on the outside. He gave him a dollar. Witness went in and bought two postage stamps. That was all he purchased.

The case at this point was continued until next Tuesday.

The continued case of Antonio Naclerino for the illegal keeping of liquor at Quincy was called and again continued until next Saturday.

Keith's Theatre.

One of the most finished and entertaining acts seen at Keith's during the past season was that furnished by M. Ruddinoff, the Frenchman, who was playing his first engagement in this country. His work was dainty and artistic to a degree, the beautiful smoked pictures he drew, his imitation of a flirtation between two nightingales and his shadowgraph work all stamping him as an entertainer of a class which we see to little of in this country. M. Ruddinoff will be welcome back too Keith's on Monday next by hundreds of those who admired his work on the occasion of his visit and his second engagement will no doubt prove even a greater artistic triumph. Other new turns will be: Alice Raymond and John Kurkamp in cornet and violin solos duets; T. H. Mitchell, illusions; Raymond and Clark, in a comedy sketch; Guyer and Daly, comedy acrobats, and Papinta, Rossow Midgets, Edmund Hayes and Emily Lytton, Miss Murray and the songsheet chorus, and Prof. Gies, all of whom hold over. The biograph, like the river goes on forever. A remarkable panoramic picture, introduced this week, shows famous Conway Castle, in picturesque Wales, on the line of the London and Northwestern Railway.

—Admiral Dewey made a characteristic display of Yankee coolness, as well as of Yankee grit, when he adjourned a naval battle to go to breakfast.—Boston Beacon.

The first public flag raising took place at the Baptist church, Thursday night at 6.45, when "Old Glory" was thrown to the breeze from the tower of the edifice.

"Christ our model." This will be the topic on Sunday evening, for the Christian Endeavor meeting. Leader, Miss Margery White; Bible reference, Mathew 10: 24-25; John 13: 12-15.

Castle Square Theatre.

The attraction for the coming week at the Castle Square Theatre will be almost a novelty as the play announced, "Sheridan" or "The Maid of Bath" has had but a limited number of performances in this city. "Sheridan" was written by Mr. Paul M. Potter, about five years ago, for Mr. Edward Southern, by whom it was produced at the Hollis Street Theatre in February, '94, making a pronounced success. Mr. Potter has dramatized the incidents of Sheridan's life at the time he was seeking a production of his comedy "The Rivals" by the managers of the leading London Theatres the time being 1795. Many of Sheridan's associates find a place in the action of the play and Mr. Potter has also introduced many lines built upon well known sayings of the dramatist. An interesting love story dealing with Lady Betty "The Maid of Bath" is interwoven with the more dramatic scenes of the play. Following "Sheridan" on Monday May 30th., there will be a production of the laughable "Niobe" written by the Paultons and seen at the Boston Museum a half a dozen or more years ago. At next Tuesday's matinee the souvenir will be a portrait of Rear-Admiral George Dewey.

M'COY WHIPS RUHLIN.

Had Best of Last Night's Bout of Twenty Rounds.

Mr. Corbett Expresses a Desire to Meet the Conqueror.

Syracuse, May 21.—Although Referee Siler gave the decision to McCoy in his 20-round encounter with Gus Ruhlin last night, few among the 3000 spectators were not of the opinion that the big and beaten man made a decidedly favorable showing with his more agile and skilful antagonist. McCoy looked in the pink of condition, but showed a marked sallowness. His hands were in bandages. There was a long wait before Ruhlin appeared, and McCoy walked around the ring shaking hands with his friends. When Ruhlin entered the ring McCoy shook him by the hand. Ruhlin's hands were also bound in bandages.

GUS RUHLIN.

The announcer read challenges from Goddard, who offers to stop McCoy in 12 rounds; Peter Maher and "Stockings" Conroy. Siler then called the men into the center of the ring and gave them their final instructions. Ruhlin loomed up in every way bigger than his opponent.

There was a great difference in the weight of the men, McCoy, according to his statement, weighing 157 pounds, and Ruhlin, according to Billy Madden, his manager, tipping the scale at 180 pounds. Sixty percent of the gate receipts are to be divided between the men, McCoy taking 75 percent and Ruhlin 25 percent, in place of a $2500 purse. George Siler of Chicago was referee.

Blood was drawn in the third round, when Ruhlin's mouth and eye began to bleed, after a clinch. In the eighth Referee Siler cautioned McCoy for using his elbow in clinches. The "kid" rushed Gus against the post and the big man nearly fell. They clinched as the gong sounded.

Round 9—Ruhlin's eye was badly cut and his seconds endeavored to stop its bleeding. Gus chased McCoy, but failed to land. Ruhlin jabbed his left to the face in a rush. He was badly handicapped by the bleeding eye.

Round 11—Ruhlin got his man to the ropes, but missed a great opportunity. McCoy's left jabs set Ruhlin's eye bleeding once more, and he was covered with blood. Gus sent a right to the face, and got a bad uppercut on the face.

Round 14—Gus started to do aggressive work, but the "kid's" cleverness kept him out of harm's way. Ruhlin finally landed a left swing that sent McCoy against the ropes. McCoy put right to face. Ruhlin rushed and uppercut very hard with left to face. Ruhlin got in two good blows in this round.

Round 17—Ruhlin jabbed a bad left to the jaw, and McCoy fell back. Ruhlin put his left to the face again, and McCoy swung his left on the ear twice. Ruhlin fought well in this round and appeared to be very strong.

Round 18—Gus put a hard left to the face and brought forth cheers when he repeated it. McCoy fell short on a right lead, and Ruhlin came back with a left. The "kid" rushed and tried to reach the jaw with a left swing, but failed.

Round 19—McCoy attempted to step out of the way of a right jab and nearly fell to the floor. Gus poked a terrific left to the face, and got inside of McCoy's right swing. The "kid" rushed and they clinched.

Round 20—Ruhlin sent his right to the face hard, and then poked his left to the body and his right to the head. He jabbed his right to the body and then to the jaw very hard, with little return. McCoy was given the decision.

Siler no sooner gave the decision than Jim Corbett leaped into the ring and asked McCoy to fight him, but the latter declined to consider the matter and refused to make any arrangements.

Accused of Uxoricide.

Philadelphia, May 21.—Mary E. Selner has been committed to prison by Coroner Ashbridge to await the action of the grand jury on the charge of having caused the death of her aged and wealthy husband, Reuben Selner, by administering poison.

The couple were married in 1896. The honeymoon was brief, frequent quarrels occurring, on account of the young wife's non-attention to her husband. Early in April the husband died under peculiar circumstances. After working on the case for nearly a month the police arrested the widow.

The testimony was to the effect that Mrs. Selner had on numerous occasions sent her servants to purchase strychnine and laudanum, and that she had said that she wanted to "get rid of the old crank." It was shown that Mrs. Selner had held clandestine meetings with one Murphy.

—Commodore Dewey appears to have used the same strategy to save his fleet as was pursued at Port Royal by keeping his vessels moving in an ellipse, making its shorter diameter longer each time around, thereby causing the enemy to fire over, because their guns were not enough depressed to meet the ships approaching nearer and nearer. His attack was both terrific and scientific carrying everything before it, showing both pluck and foresight making it evident that he knew what he was about during the engagement.—Boston Home Journal.

—Boston women are making comfort bags for the soldiers and sailors. They expect to make 10,000 at once. Each is fitted with safety pins, scissors, surgeon's plaster, buttons, needles, thread and bandana handkerchiefs.

THE INVASION OF CUBA.

Movement This Week Regardless of Circumstances.

Climatic Conditions Count No Longer.

Fleeting of the Fleets Felt to Be an Early Probability.

Washington, May 23.—No possible contingency can now arise, according to the war department officials, to prevent an invasion of Cuba during the present week. Those in direct control of affairs insist that climatic conditions will have to be ignored, and they can see no other reas[illegible] further delay.

The army surgeons who have been consulted about the movement of the troops into Cuba are convinced that it would be better to send our men immediately into the island rather than that the Spanish should be allowed to continue their work of devastation and cruelty. The doctors say that the unhealthy climatic conditions of Cuba have been greatly exaggerated, and that the soldiers will fare no worse than if they remained at Chickamauga or Camp Alger all summer. The regulars may be depended upon to live up to the strict sanitary rules which are laid down by the doctors. The volunteers have not yet been disciplined to this necessary extent. Many of the volunteers are young men who have given no thought to the necessities of hygiene and who know little or nothing about diet. The doctors feel consequently that they have an important task to perform in the present war.

Owing to the change in the plans regarding the number of troops that were to constitute the invading army, the administration was obliged to put off the combined attack on Havana until the volunteer army could be thoroughly organized, equipped and provided with ammunition. These preparations have now nearly reached the point of completion, and it is confidently expected that some important army movements will be made before the end of the week.

It is believed in the navy department that Admiral Cervera's fleet will be either completely destroyed or driven away from Cuban waters within the week. Secretary Alger, going upon this theory, is making every preparation to have about 70,000 men ready to leave Key West for Cuba on short notice.

If the American fleet does not meet the fleet of Admiral Cervera within the next seven days, it is now said that the administration will not any longer delay the army of invasion. The greatest secrecy is to be maintained in the war department when it is decided to make the move against Cuba. The government wishes to feel assured that the first intimation that Spain will have of troops leaving Key West will be when General Blanco sees the Americans on Cuban soil. Secretary Alger and Secretary Long have agreed in regard to the convoys that will accompany the transports carrying the troops. The advocates of delay are still using all their powers to get President McKinley to put off the invasion until the fall, but with very little success.

By every sign we are on the eve of a great event. It is believed that news of it may come anytime. It is possible that the climax toward which preparations have been hurrying for a week has been reached today. This is inferred from the faint glimmerings of intelligence which are allowed to escape the rigid censorship of the press prevailing at every possible source of news. Key West is shut off from the rest of the world, and so is Tampa. For 24 hours preceding yesterday no mail of any kind was allowed to leave the city. For days every dispatch filed at the telegraph offices has been subjected to the closest scrutiny, and not a word of certain information which seems to be generally known among newspaper men and officers at the two points has been allowed to escape. Only a suggestion or two received in a private way has led to the conviction that at anytime we are to witness a happening which would make history. These suggestions come from different sources, and in such form that they compel attention. So much for belief. What actually is known is nothing.

Should the Spanish squadron be shut in at Cienfuegos or Santiago de Cuba it is lost. There is a long narrow entrance to each harbor, only allowing ships to enter and leave the harbor singly, thus allowing the Americans to remain on the outside and destroy the vessels in detail if they attempted to force a passage out to stop the cutting of the cable, which has been repaired between Cienfuegos and Santiago de Cuba, thus restoring direct communication between Havana and Europe, via Bermuda.

News From Madrid.

Madrid, May 23.—Mr. Capdepon, minister of the interior, has denied in the course of an interview that the change in the constitution of the ministry would involve [illegible]eration in the foreign policy of Spain, all the new ministers being in favor of prosecuting the war with the utmost energy to the end. "Spain," said Capdepon, "went perilously near sacrificing her honor in the interest of peace, only making a stand when further concessions would have involved her disgrace and effacement as a nation. This she will never do, and in this resolve the new cabinet is as thoroughly determined as the old.

"The new cabinet entertains no illusions. It is aware that weakness and poverty are opposed to strength and wealth, but Spain is in the position of a duellist bound to defend her honor against the gross insults of a more powerful antagonist who, although he is convinced that the result is almost certain death, yet feels the force of the principle of the nobless oblige. Spain prefers a possible defeat to certain disgrace. Ministers know that the moral sympathies of the powers are with Spain and that, while hesitating to undertake the responsibility for action which might lead to a greater war, they may eventually intervene from motives of self-interest and public policy on behalf of Spain."

Captain Deschamps of the Spanish auxiliary cruiser Montserrat, which arrived unexpectedly at Corunna Friday evening from Cienfuegos, having escaped the American blockading ships, reached Madrid Sunday afternoon. In spite of the existing state of siege immense crowds awaited his coming in the approaches to the railway station. The station, the palace and other prominent places were cordoned by police. The populace welcomed the captain with the wildest enthusiasm, and the police surrounding the carriage in which he rode were scarcely able to restrain the surging crowd from unharnessing the horses. Captain Deschamps was driven to the residence of Marquis Comilas.

From 'Frisco to Manila.

San Francisco, May 23.—All the soldiers are impatient to start for Manila. Drilling at both camps is almost incessant, and a more willing lot of soldiers was never seen. The City of Peking may get away by tonight in the wake of the Charleston, but she will probably not start before Tuesday. The coast defense vessel Monterey is lying in the stream and will be ready to start as soon as she receives her supply of coal. Carrying an adequate amount of coal, the Monterey can reach Honolulu, and from that point to Manila she will be accompanied by a collier, or else taken in tow by one of the transports.

The City of Sydney and Australia may possibly be ready to sail Tuesday, and there is some talk of having them go with the Peking, but it is probable that the original plan will be adhered to and that each of these vessels will sail as soon as ready without waiting for any others.

The Charleston is well on her way to Manila. None of the forts in the harbor saluted the vessel, but the demonstration made by the 6000 soldiers gathered at the Presidio was tremendous. When the vessel was sighted coming down the bay the soldiers gathered on the beach to bid her bon voyage. They lined the beach for a mile, and cheer upon cheer rang out from the men who are to soon follow the Charleston to the scene of Admiral Dewey's triumph. The Charleston's big siren answered the boys on the beach time and again, and the whistling was heard from one end of the city to the other.

Castillo's Position.

London, May 23.—The Madrid correspondent of The Telegraph says: "One point of interest in the reconstruction of the cabinet lies in the obstinate refusal of Leon Castillo (the ambassador to France) to accept the foreign secretaryship. Every consideration has been brought to bear in vain. His first reply to the premier's request expressed the conviction that the best interests of Spain would be best served by his remaining at Paris. I am able to state that the ambassador's motive for refusal was the following: Sagasta's cabinet is by its own formal declaration determined to carry on the war with all possible vigor, while Castillo is aware that Spain's friends among the powers, France in particular, are resolved to insist upon her suing for peace at the first favorable opportunity. France possesses a two-fold interest in having peace concluded—financial and political. The former would be severely damaged if Spain were utterly ruined, and the latter would suffer if the United States retain permanent possession of the Philippines. To become a member of a war cabinet therefore at the very moment when the friendly great powers are resolved to press upon Spain a speedy peace appears imprudent to Castillo, who is in possession of all the threads of the negotiations.

Troops Piling In.

Chickamauga, May 23.—As a result of the few arrivals Sunday the railroads, which have been enormously congested with loaded and empty cars for nearly a week, were cleared to make room for the troops that began to arrive at a lively rate this morning. Twenty-five cars of provision arrived and were stored in the large warehouses now completed on the park grounds near the depot of the railroad company. Fifty-one of the latest and most improved ambulances, built with a special view to adaptability in a hot climate, arrived from South Bend, Ind., and will be distributed to the first corps.

The park force of men under the direction of General Boynton worked Sunday preparing for the pumps to be used in piping water from the Chickamauga river to the various camps. It has been definitely decided to erect improvised waterworks, and a contract has been let and all the material ordered. There is no scarcity of water now, but it is feared that some of the wells are from "wet weather" springs, and that later they will dry up, and the piping of water from the creek and Crawfish springs is a precautionary measure.

The Fourth Ohio regiment has been assigned to provost guard duty in Chattanooga by order of General Brooke, made necessary by the disorderly conduct of many of the young soldiers, who have been guilty of many breaches of discipline, in a number of cases of violence and of insulting ladies on the street.

DID IMMENSE DAMAGE.

Northwest Arkansas Visited by a Tornado.

Houses and Buildings Tossed Like Feathers.

Seven Persons Known to Be Dead and a Great Many Hurt.

Fayetteville, Ark., May 23.—The tornado which passed through a portion of northwestern Arkansas Friday night did immense damage to property and caused the death of at least seven persons. Reports of the destruction are coming in slowly, and it is feared that later details will add other names to the death list. The storm came from the southeast, passing through the great fruit belt of the Ozark region, and tore its way through the southern end of Benton county, spending its force in the White river valley.

Everything in its path was destroyed, the greatest damage being done near Elm Springs, Lowell and Mudtown, the latter place being entirely swept away. At Elm Springs, houses were blown down, orchards destroyed and stock killed. One man who had sought safety in a cellar was killed by falling timbers. The house blew away and the cellar was filled with debris. Two miles east of Elm Springs, a man named Killingsworth and his wife were killed. Their house was entirely destroyed, and they were crushed to death in the debris.

A mile away a house occupied by an Italian family was wrecked and the inmates were instantly killed. The residences of W. H. Holcomb and W. B. Pierson were destroyed. Twenty houses are reported blown away in the vicinity of Elm Springs, but details have not been received.

The storm was less severe in Crawford county, but one life was lost near Fort Smith. A Mrs. Nesbitt died from fright while the gale was at its height. The home of W. S. Kimbrug near Springdale was blown down and Kimburg was instantly killed. Several other farmhouses were blown down near Springdale and six to eight persons were more or less injured. Some damage was also done at Lowell, Rogers and Salmon Springs.

Collar and Cuff Combine.

New York, May 23.—A combination of six well-known concerns making collars, cuffs and shirts is in process of formation in Troy, and it is probable that public announcement of the completion of arrangements will be made within the next few days. The inventory of the combined stocks of the six concerns in the syndicate, it is estimated, will show an aggregate capital of about $15,000,000. Five firms have decided against the combination. Therefore the syndicate will not be a trust exactly, but it will be a powerful combination.

It is estimated that the combination will effect an annual economy of more than $1,500,000 in operating expenses. Under the combination one factory will be devoted to white shirts, another to colored shirts, a third to women's waists, collars and cuffs, and still another will produce men's collars and cuffs exclusively. Brands of goods which now conflict will be retired from competition

Is Likely to Die.

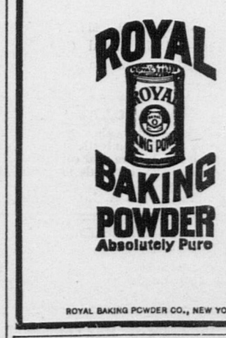

Williamstown, Mass., May 23.—Theodore Parsons, colored, was cut with a razor and probably fatally wounded near here Sunday morning. Jeffry Jones and Jerry Wilson, also colored, are under arrest charged with the assault.

The affair occurred in White Oaks, on the Pownal road. Parsons' right arm is broken and has a cut to the bone over three inches long. There are a 4-inch cut in the right leg, also to the bone; two cuts between the shoulders, one under the right axilla, and still another on the right hip. He is in the North Adams hospital and is expected to die. Several persons are held as witnesses. The quarrel was over the question of Parsons' daughter accompanying the party on a celebration.

The French Election.

Paris, May 23.—So far as known, the moderates have lost 12 seats in the second ballotings in the parliamentary general election, the socialists gaining four and the monarchists six. One hundred and sixty-nine results show the election of 66 moderates, 54 radicals, 34 socialists and 10 monarchists.

Desirable House Lots.
WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

For plans, prices and terms, apply to DR. N. S. HUNTING, 214 Hancock St., Quincy, or to MR. GEO. G. SAVILLE, 5 Greenleaf street, Quincy, and John Hancock Bldg., Devonshire St., Boston.

Sunday Morning Fire.

The alarm from Box 441 at 3.15 o'clock Sunday morning was rung in for a fire in an old unoccupied blacksmith shop on Quarry street near Frederick & Field quarry. The building was practically destroyed before the alarm was sounded, and when the department arrived nothing but a few smoking embers remained. There was plenty of evidence however that the cause of the fire was incendiary, as exclsior and old paper was scattered along the st eet. The loss will not be over $50.

Flag Raising.

There was a grand flag raising Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. Eben W. Sheppard on Greenleaf street. Mr. Sheppard had erected a large pole in the rear of his residence and just before sunset there was quite a gathering of ladies and gentlemen present to see "Old Glory" unfurled. Shortly before 7 o'clock the children in the neighborhood formed on Greenleaf street and marched to the beat of a drum to the flag pole and formed a circle about it. The flag was then run up and the children gave the salute to the flag. Following this all united in singing the "Star Spangled Banner" "America" and "Red White and Blue." There was also plenty of cheering.

Gladstone.

Dr. Gallagher, the principal of Thayer academy, conducted the service at Bethany church, Sunday morning, with Gladstone as his theme. The speaker said in college he was taught that ice and granite were the only nautral products of New England. Other states and countries had more advantages but New Enlgand was in advance because of her people. England's great power because of Christian civilization, of which Gladstone was a large part. He was prominent in the council of the nation from the age of 23 to 85, filling at times two positions. He was a wonderful man; a leader in Greek, in ecclesiastics, in finances. His intellect was not too large to underestimate the Christian religion, as is too often the case. Gladstone's life is a wonderful inspiration. He had been bitterly assailed at times and charged with inconsistency, but he was always willing to acknowledge his errors. His life will be estimated by Christian spirit and sized up by the general trend.

Electric Excursions.

Now that the warm weather is upon us there are few pleasanter trips than a ride over the lines of the Quincy & Boston street railway and its connections. There are several trips that one can take for a very small sum but the one popular route just at present is that to Boston. Cars leave near City Hall every fifteen minutes for Neponset where close connection is made with the Boston elevated road for any part of Boston. The running time to the shopping district is one hour and the fare from Quincy centre to any part of Boston is but ten cents. Other routes affording pleasant rides are those to Nantasket beach and Houghs Neck. Through cars at present run from Quincy Centre to Nantasket every hour on week days and every half hour on Sundays, while cars for Houghs Neck at present leave every hour. The fare to Nantasket from Quincy centre is but fifteen cents and to Houghs Neck five cents.

MOUNT WOLLASTON.

Quincy Proud of Her Beautiful City of the Dead.

As Memorial Day approaches, ones thoughts turn to Mt. Wollaston cemetery, Quincy's beautiful city of the dead, which under the care of Superintendent Nicol is becoming more and more attractive. Improvements are being made as fast as the limited appropriation will permit, although there are many improvements that could be suggested which cannot at present be carried out without the co-operation of the lot owners. This is particularly so in regard to the extension of the lawn system. Some improvements have been made in this line this year, notably in the vicinity of the Soldiers' monument, where several lots, that were so low that they were always overflowed with water during the winter months, have been raised and connected on the lawn system plan, which makes a marked improvement.

Again on the Greenleaf extension, several lots have been raised. Aside from this several lot owners whose lots were somewhat high have had them lowered and resoded and others have contracted for permanent improvements which will soon be made.

There are also many who have their lots cared for by yearly contract, and this year the number exceeds by nearly seventy lots the number cared for in any previous year. It needs but a visit to the cemetery to convince one that this is a wise plan as lots cared for are easily distinguishable from those whose owners neglect them from year to year, until it will require a considerable outlay to put them in any kind of condition.

It has been the plan in previous years to mow all lots before Memorial Day whether they contract for care or not, but this year lots not contracted for will not be mowed until after Memorial Day.

The new section near the Valley street entrance which was laid out last year has been surveyed into lots and it is known as Section A. As there was quite a demand for small lots half of this section has been laid out into lots that sell for $25 and several of these have already been taken.

Every year sees a number of new monuments erected and this year is no exception to the rule, and up to the present time a dozen or more have been erected, among which are those on lots of William Birnie, William W. Penniman, Henry Farrar, Abbott L. Melcher, William McCormick Jonathan Pratt, Peter B. Turner, Nathan Ames, R. D. Gordon, Charles Wilson, Ellen Owen, The Underwood, Johnson, Litchfield and Chapman lots and others.

It is not perhaps generally known that all foundations for monuments are now put in by the Managers of Public Burial Places. For years the rule was to set the monument upon a few small stones which in time became loosened with the result that the monument or stone toppled over and the effect upon the looks of the cemetery was bad. Now the foundations are made to last, each being five feet deep, consisting of granite chips laid in cement and there is no danger of the monuments when set, of ever toppling over. All this work is done under the direction of the superintendent, who has proved himself to be the right man in the right place.

Supreme Court Against Him.

The full bench of the supreme judicial court sent down on Saturday a decision dismissing a petition for a writ of certiorari brought by George A. Devlin vs. Adjt. Gen. Dalton and the board of examiners. Devlin, formerly of Quincy, was elected a captain of Co. F. 6th regiment, in 1893, and held the position for some time after that, and until, in January 1897, he was summoned to appear before the board of examiners and answer charges preferred against him. He appeared on Jan. 27, and was examined, answered some questions, and refused to answer others. The examination was closed, and subsequently it was reported by the board to the Commander-in-Chief that Devlin had failed to pass, and he was discharged. He applied for a writ of certiorari contending that he had, in reality been tried before the board on secret charges which had been filed against him by his Colonel, who was a member of the board, and that the board acted virtually as a court, though without having formal charges filed, or allowing him to be represented by counsel; and that, being a court, a writ, of certiorari may issue to correct its proceedings.

ADAMS VS. MILTON.

Another Victory for Quincy Boys in a Close Game.

Adams Academy played Milton Academy at Milton, Saturday, and defeated them in a close game. Up to the eighth inning Milton had a good lead, but in the first of the eighth, by three singles and triple aided by a fumble and a wild throw, Adams took the lead and maintained it to the end. Taylor pitched a fine game and was supported in fine shape by Manning behind the bat. For Milton most of the work was done by the battery, Raymond and Jaques.

Officer Barry completed his tour of day duty Sunday, and commencing tonight will go on duty at Brewers' corner to relieve Officer Bradley who commences his tour of day duty in the centre today.

Another column has today been added to the summary of noon temperature, so that the Ledger not only compares the temperature with the same day last week, but also with the same day of the month in 1897 and 1896.

Sunday was a charming day all round, the wind was cold in the morning being east but veered round in afternoon to southwest. Excepting a few broken chains and now and then a puncture, the bicycle riders had a good day to enjoy the sport.

Mr. William J. Thompson left this week for his home in Nova Scotia, where he is to engage in business. Mr. Thompson has been closely connected with the work of the Methodist church and will be greatly missed by the young people of that society.

Edward Bowlen of Atlantic has the honor of being the Quartermaster Sargeant of Co. C of th e the Regiment that is now stationed at South Framingham, and well deserves the title as he shows great skill in his management of the "Boys in Blue" in that company.

Rev. Preston Gurney, pastor of the First Baptist society Wollaston, preached a most excellent sermon on Sunday morning on "The Fear of Death," taking his text from Acts. 13:36 and Psa. 116:15. At the close of the service the quartette sang, "Crossing the Bar," the words being by Tennyson.

MAYOR VAN WYCK'S AX

Used Upon Police Commissioners and Head of the Department.

Penalty For Refusing to Do His Bidding.

Possibility of Retaliation by Senator Platt and the Governor.

New York, May 23.—Anent the new police regime, brought about by the summary removal of the two Republican commissioners and the retirement of Chief McCullagh as a pensioner, no difference was apparent in the enforcement of the liquor tax law Sunday over any previous Sunday within a year. The "Raines law hotels" did business as usual, but there seemed to be no attempt on the part of the liquor sellers to open their doors in violation of law, or in anticipation of a "wide open" administration. The lower part of the town had its customary Sunday aspect, and but little drunkenness was exhibited on the streets in localities where it was often noticeable in former times.

P. A. VAN WYCK.

Acting Chief of Police Devery, when asked as to what he proposed to do in his conduct of office, replied that he considered it too early to speak for publication on the subject.

Prior to the departure of Senator Platt for Washington, there was a conference of the leaders regarding police board matters. It was spoken of as a possibility that Governor Black would be applied to in the hope that he may find a way to punish Mayor Van Wyck for the removal of the police board. No move in this direction, however, is expected until Senator Platt's return the latter part of this week.

The charter, referring to the governor's power, says: "The mayor may be removed from office by the governor in the same manner as sheriffs, except that the governor may direct the inquiry provided by law to be conducted by the attorney general; and after the charges have been received by the governor he may, pending the investigation, suspend the mayor for a period not exceeding 30 days." The section referring to the removal of sheriffs, which is applicable to mayors, says: "The governor may remove any officer, in this section mentioned, within the term for which he shall have been elected, giving to such officer a copy of the charges against him, and an opportunity of being heard in his defense."

The Republicans declare with vim that Mayor Van Wyck deliberately violated the spirit and provisions of the bi-partisan law. In the appointment of Hess he had selected a Republican to whom had been distinctly and emphatically refused the recommendation of the Republican organization of the borough of Manhattan for the place of aqueduct commissioner, and who had been appointed police commissioner without the indorsement or recommendation of the Republican organization of the borough, the only lawful organization.

"I did the best I could," said the deposed official. "They could not make me yield. No infucement they could offer could induce me to take one step back from the stand I had taken. I am very much disappointed in Mr. York. I pinned my faith to him and believed him to be an honest man. I still believe he is financially honest. I am sorry to leave the force. I have spent the best years of my life in it. It is a good force. There is none better. It has material that any man might be proud of, but it will never be a real police force until power is given to the chief to hold his men responsible. Then either he is fit or not fit. That is the whole thing. Until politics are kept out of it and a man is put at its head who is entirely independent, and kept there, it will never be what it ought to be. I am going into business; I have to. I can't afford to be idle and will have to get something to do. I didn't want to go."

The Press says: "Governor Black, when he returns to Albany from the Adirondacks, will be requested to suspend Mayor Van Wyck from office if eminent lawyers who have been consulted advise that the mayor has disregarded the greater New York charter in his actions regarding the police board."

Rev. Dr. Parkhurst delivered his farewell sermon prior to his departure for Europe next Wednesday. He made no reference to the changes at police headquarters nor would he discuss the subject when seen later. His sermon was in the nature of a confidential talk to his parishioners.

DOWN ON THE CAPE

You've got to show 'em. They want to "see." Last Sunday in a church in a small town, where it is customary to send notices of one thing and another, and one kind and another, up to the pastor, so that he may read them aloud from the pulpit to the congregation, one notice was read that did not just exactly convey the meaning the writer intended. A young naval officer, brave and wanting to fight, had been ordered to join his ship. His mother-in-law wanting to secure the prayers of her pastor and her neighbors for his welfare, and at the same time call a little attention to herself, sent a notice to the pulpit which should have read: "Lieutenant Smith going to sea, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Jones, desires the prayers of the congregation." She didn't punctuate it just right, leaving out the comma after "sea," and this is the way it sounded, "Lieutenant Smith going to see his mother-in-law Mrs. Jones, desires the prayers of the congregation." The congregation knowing Mrs. Jones, gave him their prayers. Sometimes a pause makes a great difference.

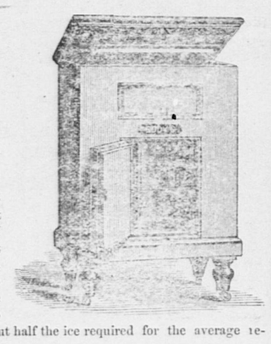

When you are in need of a spring suit and the same old thought (I will go to Boston) comes to you, always pause. Think it over and say to yourself, "sez you," "There's that new store that everyone is talking about. They say they sell good goods cheap. They have a buyer in the market every day, and he should know what is going, and if they can buy 'what's' going as close as Boston merchants, it seems to me as if their less expense should enable them to sell cheaper."

That pause will save you money. For example, you can come any day this week, you can buy a nice Blue Serge or Brown and Gray Check, all-wool Suit for $7.50. If yo think it's only as good as a regular $8.50 suit, you're mistaken. It's better.

A SUNDAY FAKE.

The Great Battle Reported Sunday Lacks Confirmation.

Boston, May 23—Little is said today about the "great battle" between the American and Spanish fleets reported in the Sunday press. It served as a sensation and there were many on the qui vive all day for the details.

Suspicious Craft.

Key West, May 23.—The British steamer Ardanmhor, chartered by the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Co., has been brought into this port in charge of an ensign. He was acting in a suspicious manner apparently trying to run the blockade. This is the same steamer that was sent back from Cuba several weeks ago.

Gen. Merritt en Route.

Chicago, May 23—Gen. Merritt has arrived here on his way to San Francisco. He will remain here a day or two and then go to San Francisco and take command of the forces for Manila.

Our Protector.

Provincetown, May 23.—The United States cruiser San Francisco arrived at this port this morning after an all-night cruise along the Atlantic coast. She will take on coal today.

Profoundly Touched.

Boston, May 23.—Governor Wolcott has sent the following telegram to the mayor of Baltimore: "The Commonwealth of Massachusetts is profoundly touched by the brotherly and enthusiastic welcome extended by the Mayor and citizens of Baltimore to the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment, United States Volunteers. In the name of the Commonwealth I beg you to accept her grateful thanks."

Prize Captured.

St. Thomas, May 23—It is reported that an American cruiser has captured a Spanish barque off San Juan.

No News of Fleets.

Washington, May 23—No news has been received from Admiral Sampson's for the Spanish fleets.

Italy Protests.

Paris, May 23—A Rome dispatch says that Italy has protested against the Cuban blockade on the ground that it is ineffective.

JEWELRY JOTTINGS.

Buckles for waist bands are made in gun metal, set with jewels.

A coiled serpent with a diamond in its mouth furnishes the unique design of a small brooch.

The old style stiff, round bracelet with snap fastener and ends connected with a slender chain is among the newest reproductions.

The flag in gold and colored enamels is in evidence in an increasing number of articles. It forms stickpins and brooches and depends from bracelets and ornaments, belts and hatbands.

Old modes and the styles of the sixties are reappearing. Especially are jewelers reproducing the bracelets and brooches of our grandmothers' days. The possessor of heirlooms can wear them with the proud consciousness that the latest things out are patterned after them.—Jewelers' Circular.

OUR PATRIOTIC WOMEN.

The boy who has gone is not a whit braver than the mother who is left.—Council Bluffs Nonparell.

We learn from the usually accurate Boston Herald that the women of that town are wearing red, white and blue garters.—Washington Post.

Every girl who reads the newspaper accounts of the departure of the state troops expects to see her sweetheart's name in bigger type than the others.—Philadelphia Record.

In this trying hour patriotic young women can wield a powerful influence by emulating the example of many firms and announcing that "places abandoned by young men will be held for them until they return."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Different Individuals.

Editors of Ledger and Patriot:

On account of prosecuting a man for assault, my name appeared on the court calendar along with that of Wm. Norrie who was arrested for drunkenness last week, and the impression has got abroad that I was the offender. I would take it as a favor if you would state in issue of both your papers, that although the names are similar, no connection whatever exists between the two individuals.

WILLIAM B. NORRIE,
Rodman Street.

TODAY'S COURT.

Thomas McCarthy was arraigned for assault on Rose McCarthy, and for drunkenness at Quincy. Both cases continued for two weeks.

Eugene Connors and Patrick Barry were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Weymouth.

John Sheahan was fined $7.00 for drunkenness at Randolph.

John Johnson was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Newey Ranson alias John Smith was arraigned for assault on John O'Meara at Weymouth. Case continued two weeks.

The continued cases of James Smith for assault with a knife on William Phillips at Quincy was called. This is the stabbing affair that took place in the Lone Star Athletic club rooms on Centre street, when Smith and Phillips had a row on the streets and went to the club to have it out.

Phillips testified that all had been drinking more or less and the row started by his telling Smith that he was easily jollied. When they arrived at the Lone Star rooms he stood up in front of Smith for a square fight, when the latter drew a knife and stabbed him.

Dr. Dion who attended Phillips, testified that he found eight cuts. One on the left side which penetrated the lung, four on the left arm and three in the abdomen.

A number of young men who were present when the row took place, testified substantially the same as Phillips.

Smith claimed that he did not use a knife but a spike which he used in self-defence. The court found probable cause and held him in $500 for the grand jury.

Patrick F. Connelly was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy. Connelly was also arraigned for evading fare on the Quincy & Boston street railway, and for assault on Fred Miller the conductor. Cases continued until Wednesday.

Buffalo Bill's Sdow.

Buffalo Bill's great exhibition will appear in Boston for week of May 30. In it you see veterans of the Fifth U. S. Artillery handling a double light battery exactly as if it was in front of an enemy; Cavalrymen from the armies of Russia, England, Germany, Mexico, Cuba, Egypt and other foreign lands show how soldiers of those nations handle themselves; their manouvers and tactics in fighting and their sports and pastimes in playing. Over 100 Indian warriors show the sort of fighting Buffalo Bill and his fellows had to do to win from them the vast expanses of the arid Western plains which have been made to blossom with the happy homes of thousands of our countrymen. There is not space here to mention all the features of this great exhibition but mention must be made of the insurgent veterans fresh from the battlefields, prisons and hospitals of Cuba; the magnificent military spectacle, Custer's Last Battle.

FASHION AND FABRIC.

The sale of shepherd's checks and fancy summer silks has been phenomenal.

The tilt of the hat over the eyes does not seem to prove as popular as the tilt at the side. Certainly it is not so becoming.

The new plain and silk striped French challie fabrics are brought out in very many of the beautiful designs popular in matelasse silks, pompadour satins, indias and foulards.

Toques composed entirely of flowers will be very much in fashion this summer. They are uncommonly pretty, genteel and becoming this year, as the blossoms are daintily veiled with tulle or fine meshed silk net.

Laces and embroideries in white and colors are prodigally used in the making up of "wash" gowns for next season, the majority of which, however, are not intended to ever pass through the crucible of the laundry.

In ordering lace gowns in black, white or ecru it should be remembered that watered silk as a foundation is thought by French ateliers to greatly enhance the beauty of all lace patterns, either in net or flouncing.

For millinery uses, for trimming handsome summer gowns, capes and fichus, great use will be made of point de venise laces. Some of the patterns are of a substantial quality, resembling guipure, and come in widths from 2½ to 10 inches.

This year there are many dress patterns of swiss muslin, linen lawn and organdie, which come with beautiful designs wrought upon them. Most of these are remarkably handsome, very effective when made up and moderate in price.

White dresses, hats and parasols will be in marked favor the coming season, and where color is added on the hat trimmed with soft white ostrich plumes it will, as a rule, be either yellow roses and satin ribbon or pink or mauve flowers and ribbon, if more becoming.—New York Post.

BILLHEADS

AT PATRIOT OFFICE.

Flour is Higher,

But some who claim to know the condition of wheat and grain supplies in this country and abroad, are predicting higher prices before the 1898 crop is available. We don't know, and therefore make no guesses.

We will sell for a short time only our GALAXY brand, very high grade, every bbl. and bag warranted, at $7.50 bbl., 95c. bag.

As this price is less than we can buy in car lots from the mil', cash must accompany the order.

Rye Flour, $4.25 bbl. 60c. bag.

Swell Dayton Bicycles.

They're built right from start to finish; skilled mechanics alone are employed in their construction. Every piece of steel is filed and accurately guaged. The finest materials in the world are used in their construction.

Three-point bearings reduce the friction one-fourth, and make Dayton Bicycles alone 25 per cent. easier running than any other bicycle manufactured.

Facts are stubborn things, and Dayton facts appeal to critical riders who want the best, and they keep the Dayton factories running night and day to meet the demands.

INVASION OF CUBA.

were present from all sections of the state to pay a visit to the volunteers of the Ninth regiment. The military duties of the day were carried out as usual, and an increased interest is being manifest by every member of the regiment, and all are anxious to receive orders to go south. At 10:30 o'clock the Ninth marched to the mess house and attended the celebration of mass. Father Peter B. Murphy, chaplain of the regiment, said mass for the first time since his appointment, and administered communion to about 50 members of the regiment. Music for the mass was furnished by a quartet from the Ninth. The chaplain spoke in an advisory way in regard to the volunteers' duties to their country, and related some experiences of his own when he was a member of the Massachusetts militia. The dress parade and review took place at 5 o'clock in the presence of 5000 people.

Sixth Reaches Camp Alger.

Washington, May 23.—The discovery of an amply supply of good water at Camp Alger, near Falls Church, Va., will render unnecessary the removal of the camp to Fairfax. Thus far the health of the men in camp, now numbering nearly 10,000, has been notably good. Sunday only three men were reported seriously ill; all are members of the Sixth Illinois, and are suffering from pneumonia.

The Sixth Massachusetts, 943 men, under command of Colonel Woodward, arrived at Camp Alger about noon, having spent the night on their special train at Dunn Loring, the camp railroad station. The regiment is excellently equipped. The men are singing praises of the people of Baltimore, who gave them a great reception Saturday. Regimental Adjutant Ames, a grandson of General Butler, is accompanied by the same body servant who attended his grandfather during the civil war.

Speculation In Key West.

Key West, May 23.—A few naval uniforms on the street are the only signs of the proximity of this languid town to the theater of war. There are only one or two ships in the harbor, and they are coaling with all haste to get away to join their fellows in an action which all are convinced is only a matter of days, perhaps hours.

Speculation is still concentrated on the whereabouts of Admiral Cervera's squadron, the general opinion favoring some point on the southern Cuban coast. As both sides of the island are now patrolled by United States warships, the naval authorities will not admit the possibility of Cervera's escape without the most desperate conflict in the history of naval warfare. Reports from Admiral Sampson's squadron say that all is quiet off the northern coast of Cuba. Nothing from Commodore Schley is expected before Tuesday.

Risked a Disadvantage.

London, May 23.—The Times, in an article reviewing the war, takes it for granted that Admiral Cervera's squadron coaled in Venezuelan waters from four British colliers. It suggests that the Vizcaya and Infanta Maria Teresa risked a disadvantage in being reported there in consideration of their ability to send dispatches to General Blanco, and then to have rejoined the flagship at a pre-arranged rendezvous and to have arrived at Santiago on the 19th.

The Times says: "Even if it took a longer route to escape observation, Admiral Cervera's force has been excessively deliberate in its movements, and his fast cruisers have not yet shown great speed. His strategy, so much boasted at Madrid, is not yet apparent. Possibly his movements are hampered by the torpedo boats; but the extreme slowness of his ocean steaming destroyed his chance of dealing an effective blow at Key West, at Tampa, or against the blockading force denuded of its most efficient vessels by Admiral Sampson's abortive raid on San Juan de Porto Rico."

To Attack Coast Cities.

St. John's, N. F., May 23.—Captain Strong of the brigantine Energy, which has arrived with a cargo of salt from Cadiz, reports that when he left Cadiz a fortnight ago the greatest activity prevailed in the naval arsenal there. The two Hamburg-American liners, Columbia and Normannia, purchased to be used as auxiliary cruisers and now named the Rapido and Patria, were being rapidly armored, and the warships refitting in the harbor were loading stores and munitions of war.

Captain Strong is convinced that at the time he was in Cadiz the Spanish government fully intended to send this fleet to attack American coast cities on the north Atlantic, preferably Boston. He says the Spanish populace was bitterly inflamed against the English and Americans, and that his crew dared not venture ashore.

Patriotism of Newporters.

Newport, R. I., May 23.—The suggestion that the people of Rhode Island have built a torpedo boat, armed and fully equipped to be turned over to the navy department, is being boomed by F. P. Garrettson, a prominent business man, who subscribes $1000 toward the fund. It is proposed to have the Herreshoffs build the vessel, which is to be the fastest boat afloat. The matter will be placed in the hands of a committee consisting of Governor Dyer, Senators Aldrich and Wetmore and Congressmen Bull and Capron when the subscription list has grown large enough. The vessel will be named Oliver Hazard Perry, ancestor of Oliver H. P. Belmont of Newport.

Soldiers Who Erred.

Chickamauga, May 23.—There was last night one prisoner in the guard house, Ernest Hunt of company M, who was under arrest charged with quitting his post while on guard. He may find this a more serious case than if he were at South Framingham, and he may be courtmartialed.

There are two other men from New England in trouble. William Burns and Fred Small of the First New Hampshire have learned that they cannot insult women with safety. They were arrested by the chief of police of Chattanooga, and were tried before Recorder Hope and fined $50. Not having the money to pay their fines they were assigned to the chaingang for 100 days and will assist the board of public works in improving the city's thoroughfares.

HIS WORK ENDED.

Death of Edward Bellamy, Author of "Looking Backward."

Springfield, Mass May 23.—Death has ended the career of Edward Bellamy, the writer and economist, the close taking place in Chicopee Falls Sunday. He had been in feeble health ever since he finished his "Equality" eight months ago. Indeed long before it was done he had the most significant warnings that his energies were being undermined, although it was not till August that his physicians definitely told him that one of his lungs was affected. At the earnest solicitations of his physicians and family he resolved to try the effect of the Colorado climate, and in September last removed with his family to Denver. He received, however, little or no benefit from the change, and when he recognized that recovery was impossible he became very anxious to get back to the homestead, where he was born and where he had lived his entire life. His brothers went to Denver to help him realize this wish, and on April 26, just a month ago, brought him back, very weak but very peaceful, to his old home.

Mr. Bellamy was born on March 26, 1850, and was the third son of Rev. R. K. Bellamy, for 35 years the pastor of the Baptist church at Chicopee Falls. After spending some time at Union college, he completed his education by a year of European travel and study, and by the study of law. He was at 21 years of age admitted to the bar of Hampden county. From the legal profession he went into journalism, and for several years was assistant editor of the Springfield Union. From there he went to New York city to accept a position as editorial writer on the New York Evening Post, where he was engaged for about one year, when he returned to Springfield and in copartnership with his brother, C. J. Bellamy, started the Springfield Daily News.

Meanwhile he published several books. It was in 1888 that his famous work, "Looking Backward," was published, the sale of which up to the present time is over 450,000 copies in America, and probably over half a million of copies have been sold in England and other countries.

The National Game.

Louisville, May 23.—Two games were played Sunday, the Louisvilles winning both, 3 to 0, 7 to 2. Fraser pitched giltedged ball in the first game, holding the Brooklyns down to one hit, and that was made in the ninth inning. The home team won the second game in the first inning. Ehret was very effective.

Sunday's game in Cincinnati was a pitcher's battle in which Hawley was given the better support, and the Pittsburgs were beaten, 2 to 0.

The Chicagos started after Mercer of the Washingtons early and batted him freely in all but two innings, winning by 10 to 3. Dahlen and Lange did too much questioning and were put out of the game.

In the ninth inning of the Buffalo-Toronto game yesterday Taylor made a home run, sending a man in and winning the game for the Ontario team.

Fully 10,000 persons witnessed Sunday's game in St. Louis. It was the first time that the New Yorks participated in a Sunday championship game, and they won it. Daniels gave the giants a lead in the first inning. Taylor succeeded him and in the fifth Gilpatrick was given a chance.

An attempt was made by the Indianapolis and Kansas City teams to play ball in Indianapolis Sunday. After two innings had been played, all the members of both teams and the umpire were arrested. The idea is to make a test case.

Saturday the Bostons won another close game from the Cincinnatis, and took third place from the Baltimores, who were unable to play the Pittsburgs because of wet grounds. The Cincinnatis' downfall was important for the reason that the Clevelands, by capturing two games from the Philadelphias, approached to within striking distance of the top. Tebeau's men are now 83 points behind the reds, and are playing faster ball than any of the western teams. The Chicagos' triumph over the Washingtons put them up in seventh place again, 20 points behind the Pittsburgs. St. Louis' club won from the New Yorks.

The Newports, Brocktons and New Bedfords were the winners Saturday in the New England league. In the Eastern league the Providences defeated the Springfields.

Murders In Maryland.

Baltimore, May 23.—Four murders, an attempted murder and suicide and a suicide are Sunday's record for Baltimore city and the state. Nearly all the principals were negroes.

At Lauraville, a suburb, Daniel Hall shot and instantly killed William Swigert, white. The murderer surrendered to the police.

Joseph Makel, colored, of West River, Md., stabbed his wife five times and then cut his own throat. The woman will probably recover, but the man will die. They were visiting this city.

Robert Cook fractured the skull of Frank Hutchins with a hatchet. The latter will die. Cook has not yet been captured. Both men are negroes.

At Petersville, Frederick county, Daniel J. H. Simons, a white saloonkeeper, shot and killed Harry Davis, colored. The men quarrelled about a bar bill.

Emma Riggs, colored, of this city, had a quarrel with her lover and ended her life by taking laudanum.

Senator Mason to Burglars.

Washington, May 23.—Saturday night the residence of Senator William Mason of Illinois was entered by burglars, and jewelry to the value of nearly $4000 was stolen. Not a clue to either the burglars or the jewelry has been obtained. Last evening Senator Mason issued to the burglars a characteristic appeal which he hopes will be heeded. It is as follows:

"To the gentlemen who robbed my house last night: I will pay in cash more than anyone else for the watch and pin you took last night and give you my word of honor that you shall not be prosecuted for the taking of them. The pin has a portrait of my little son who died years ago, and it was, as was also the watch, a present to me. You can communicate with me by mail or in person, and you can rely absolutely on my promise not to prosecute."

Killed the Wrong Man.

Alameda, Cal., May 23.—During an altercation with her husband, from whom she is separated, Mrs. Gregory, a medical specialist, shot and killed J. H. Williams, who was present. It is supposed the bullet was intended for Gregory, but the woman's aim was bad.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Patrick Reagan received injuries to his head in Newport, Vt., by falling down the cellar stairs that caused his death.

There is an unconfirmed rumor in Gibraltar that the Spanish squadron at Cadiz is about to sail for Cuban waters.

A locomotive ran off a trestle in San Francisco Sunday, resulting in the death of the fireman and the injury of the engineer and a trainman.

Samuel N. Chadbourn, aged 70 years, a prominent citizen and wealthy farmer of Sanford, Me., committed suicide by shooting in the head with a revolver.

W. G. Bowen, one of the most prominent lawyers in Cotulla, Tex., was assassinated not over 20 steps from his house. No clue to the perpetrator has been found.

Samuel A. Vining, aged 86 years, died Sunday. For nearly 50 years he was a successful boot manufacturer in Holbrook, Mass., and had a large acquaintance in the New England trade.

Catherine Hayes, aged 55, was badly burned in Lawrence, Mass., by the explosion of a gasoline stove. She will die. Michael Maloney, who tried to save her, was severely burned about the hands.

A union meeting of the brotherhoods and auxiliaries of the railway train service was held in St. Johnsbury, Vt., with a public service in the opera house. Special trains were run on all roads, and about 600 railroad men were in attendance.

The greatest crowd of the encampment visited the camp in Augusta, Me., Sunday, and witnessed the early dress parade of the troops, as well as to bid goodbye to the men, who departed for Chickamauga this afternoon on special trains.

A Patriot Indeed.

London, May 23.—The Brussel correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "United States Consul George W. Roosevelt, when asked to take an active part in the Hispano-American war, declined, saying: 'I was wounded in the war of secession a dozen times and have paid my debt to my country. An American never pays the same debt twice."

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 23.—"It is altogether likely," says The Journal, "that Admiral Cervera's squadron will have been destroyed long before the other Spanish ships can have crossed to his assistance. If they come here they simply invite the same fate before the guns of our superior fleet."

The Advertiser remarks: "While the amount of authentic and timely news is decreased, an effort has been made in certain quarters to make good the want by an unusually generous supply of 'fake' war stories from different points along the Atlantic coast and elsewhere."

Disease In Lowell.

Lowell, May 23.—Forty cases of scarlet fever were reported last week, with one death. Most of these cases came from one source. About three weeks ago a milkman, while suffering from an illness now known to be scarlet fever, continued to milk his cows. The milk was distributed to some of the best families in Lowell, and the disease broke out all along his route.

NEXT WEEK--PERHAPS.

Plan For Moving the First Detachment of Invaders.

To Be Landed In Sections Under Protection.

Another Call For Volunteers Among the Probabilities.

Washington, May 24.—Next week the administration expects to start the first detachment of the army for Cuba, if the expected victory at sea does not bring the Spanish government to its knees and make it unnecessary to send any large body of troops to Cuba, beyond the "immunes" and the colored troops, who would occupy the island through the rainy season.

The program is to land the army in sections. The 30 transports which have been secured will carry at least 25,000 men, and this will be the total of the first section of the army. The navy department, as soon as the Spanish fleet is disposed of, will afford the necessary convoy, and also be able to effect a landing for the troops by destroying the fortifications on the shore or effectually shelling any of the Spanish which may gather to oppose the landing of United States troops. When the first instalment has been put ashore the transports will return to Tampa or Mobile, and in the meantime the volunteer force at Chickamauga will have been moved down to the coast for embarkation. All arrangements have been made for landing troops on Cuban soil, but the date of departure and the place of landing are necessarily kept secret.

If the Spanish admiral has disappeared the American commanders will have to rely entirely upon the information brought to them by their scouts, and they will undoubtedly pursue the chase, no matter where it leads them. If there is one thing of which the war board is certain it is that the Spanish fleet must be destroyed or driven back to Spain. Otherwise, the military operations against Cuba will continue to be paralyzed. Not only this, but Cervera must be prevented from reaching Havana. In that port he would be a constant and real menace to American interests. He would have to be met by a large and formidable fleet, whose attack would be attended with great danger, as the fortifications at Havana are comparatively formidable, and the enemy is also well provided with torpedo boat destroyers.

It is proposed to call for more troops without regard to state quotas, and the next call will probably involve no preference for the national guard. This is not suggested by any experience the war department has had with the raising of the present volunteers, but it is deemed advisable on account of the large number of young men who have expressed a desire to join the army and who have not hitherto been allied with the state troops. The principal reason for calling for additional volunteers springs from the fact that it is desired to maintain the military force at its present strength.

With 700 Cubans on board, the steamship Florida left Port Tampa for Cuba just a week ago. It arrived at Key West on Thursday. This is the first expedition of armed Cubans from this country since the sending of such expeditions ceased to be against the law. The Cubans had been in camp at Tampa for some time. There were 700 of them in all, 400 under General Lacret and 300 under General Emilo Nunez. With them were many Cuban officers, several generals, any number of colonels and a horde of major and minor officers. Gen. Acosta was there, also, as were the Americans who are holding offices in the Cuban army. The Cubans had posts or respectable camps, and were drilled in the use of arms by regular army officers.

Much comment and some criticism has been caused by the delay in forwarding troops to the Philippines to support Admiral Dewey. Both the comment and the criticism had their origin in the desire of the people that the fruits of Dewey's brilliant victory should not be endangered by lack of assistance. It is known, however, that troops would have been sent to Manila before this had it been possible for the war department to secure transports on the Pacific coast. The utmost difficulty is being experienced in obtaining such transports. The coastwise trade on the Pacific is not large as compared with that on the Atlantic, and a majority of the vessels engaged in trade are of foreign register. Ships flying a foreign flag cannot be used as transports by the government, as such would constitute a violation of the neutrality laws of the nations whose flag the ship bore.

Miss Evans, daughter of Commissioner of Pensions Evans, received a telegram from an ensign at Key West, saying that the capture of the Mangrove and her crew had been reported there. The navy department would not or could not verify the report.

A Spanish View.

Madrid, May 24.—In the senate Monday Senator Cende, professor of international law at the Madrid university, warmly denounced what he was pleased to term "the base proceedings" of the United States, declaring that if Washington authorized such acts "it did not deserve the name of a civilized government." The professor then proceeded to unfold a lengthy indictment of the war methods of the Americans, insisting that they have shown "no respect for the right of peoples in the capture of merchantmen and bombardments," reiterating that the acts of the United States "are not those of a civilized country."

Earthquake or What?

Key West, May 24.—The officers of one of the cruisers which arrived here yesterday say that while off Cape San Antonio (the western extremity of Cuba), Sunday afternoon, a terrific explosion was heard from the direction of the shore, but apparently many miles away. There was an upheaval of water all about the ship and the cruiser herself vibrated with the shock from stem to stern. Many are inclined to think that the phenomenon was an earthquake. There are no batteries near enough to Cape San Antonio to account for a detonation of such volume; and it is thought that if any naval disaster had occurred news of it would have reached here.

Judge Locke, in the United States district court, heard arguments in three of the most important prize cases, those of the Buena Ventura, Miguel Jover and Catalina. A number of counsel appeared, and it was contended on an extended citation of authorities that all three vessels should be condemned as lawful prizes. Arguments against this contention were made by an array of counsel representing the various interests, including the owners of the vessels and their cargoes. Judge Locke reserved decision.

General Graham In Charge.

Washington, May 24.—Major General William M. Graham formally assumed command of Camp Alger yesterday. He made a thorough inspection of the camp, paying particular attention to the sanitary arrangements. Seventeen members of the Sixth Illinois are confined to the hospital. The illness of this regiment is due to the exposure of the men while en route to the camp. A hospital corps arrived from Fort McHenry, Baltimore, and will instruct the volunteers how to care for the sick. Today 9050 men are in camp and the total will be swelled tonight to about 12,000. It is expected that the regiments now in camp will be organized into brigades today.

GENERAL WILLIAM M. GRAHAM.

Arrest of a Suspect.

Tampa, May 24.—J. Castellanos, a young man who arrived from Key West about three weeks ago and who is registered at a hotel as from New York, was arrested by order of General Shafter as a suspected spy. Castellanos has been watched for two weeks. He was plentifully supplied with money, and wrote as many as 100 letters a day. This, together with the discovery that he was travelling under an assumed name, resulted in his arrest yesterday. The case will be thoroughly investigated.

A Relief Movement.

Philadelphia, May 24.—The national relief commission held a meeting yesterday and discussed means of caring for the dead and wounded in battle. It was decided to send an appeal throughout the country, and the governors of all the states will be communicated with as soon as possible. The appeal is addressed to the people of the United States and says:

"The primary object of this organization is to aid the United States government in caring for its soldiers, sailors, marines and others who may be disabled by sickness or wounds and to relieve the families of combatants if need should require. To accomplish these ends we call upon all christian and all philanthropic people in the United States, without respect to creed or party, to form auxiliary relief associations."

Praise of Bay State Troops.

Lakeland, Fla., May 24.—Drills are proceeding with the usual regularity, and the Second shows a great deal more proficiency than it did in Camp Dewey. Officers and men are becoming soldiers in the strictest sense of the word, and the little corners that conflicted with regular army discipline are gradually wearing off. Regular army officers here say they never saw better material in a militia regiment.

Massachusetts to Baltimore.

Boston, May 24.—Governor Wolcott was highly pleased at the reception accorded the Sixth Massachusetts by the citizens of Baltimore Saturday, and sent this telegram to Mayor Malster of that city: "The commonwealth of Massachusetts is profoundly touched by the brotherly and enthusiastic welcome extended by the mayor and citizens of Baltimore to the Sixth Massachusetts, U. S. V. In the name of the commonwealth I beg you to accept her grateful thanks."

In reply the governor has received the following from Mayor Malster: "The people of Baltimore city accept through you for Massachusetts the kind words contained in your dispatch to me. I trust no event in the future will occur to lessen the high regard and friendship now entertained by the citizens of Massachusetts and Maryland for each other. The brotherly heartthrobs of Massachusetts reverberate in the hearts of the true sons of Maryland. I extend to you the heartfelt thanks of the citizens of Baltimore for your kind expressions."

Water Not Good.

Camp Alger, Va., May 24.—The Sixth Massachusetts regiment passed a very busy day in camp, which is now in first-class shape, barring the one item of water supply, and the men are rapidly rounding into shape after their long trip by train. The only disadvantage they feel is the unusual warmth, for which they are overclad. The water that the men are compelled to drink is of the poorest quality, and Colonel Woodward has advised all to partake of it as sparingly as possible. There is no sickness in camp.

Bill For Increasing the Navy.

Washington, May 24.—Representative Pearce has introduced a bill for an increase in the naval establishment as follows: Five first-class cruisers to carry the heaviest armor practicable and the most powerful ordnance, to have a displacement of 11,500 tons, a minimum average speed of 20 knots per hour, and to cost exclusive of armor and armament not exceeding $4,000,000; 10 torpedo boats of about 150 tons displacement, to have highest practicable speed and to cost, exclusive of armament, not over $200,000 each; 15 torpedo boat destroyers, about 400 tons displacement, of the highest practicable speed, and to cost, save armament, not over $500,000 each; 15 steel gunboats of about 2000 tons displacement, with highest practicable speed and to cost, save armament, not over $650,000 each. No two of the cruisers, nor four of the torpedo boats nor five of the destroyers, nor five of the gunboats shall be built in any one yard or by one contracting party. All material for them is to be of domestic manufacture. One cruiser, three torpedo boats, three destroyers and three gunboats are to be built on the Pacific coast under certain restrictions.

Services to Be Simple.

Hawarden, May 24.—The body of Mr. Gladstone, uncoffined, is lying on a couch in the library of Hawarden castle—the room called the temple of peace. Today it will be viewed by the parishioners. The coffin will be placed in the center of the nave of Hawarden church Wednesday and lie there in state until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when a procession will be formed and the bier carried to Broughton railway station, where it will be placed upon the train for London.

The family, servants, friends, tenantry and local officials will walk behind the bier, which will be borne by relays of colliers, workmen on the estate, tenants and neighbors. The remains will arrive in London about midnight.

The ceremony will be the simplest possible. There will be no state pageant or flowers; only morning dress will be worn, and the chief feature will be the representative gathering in Westminster abbey of all classes and institutions in the kingdom. The Prince of Wales and the Duke of York will be among the pall bearers. The Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Cambridge and Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg, will precede the coffin. Political associations will not be represented; but the members of parliament will attend in procession headed by the speaker of the house of commons.

At a meeting of members of the American colony it was decided to send an expression of sympathy to Mrs. Gladstone. The suggestion was made that the United States should erect a monument, each state of the Union contributing a block of stone for the base. A committee was formed, under the chairmanship of Dr. Conwell, to take further steps in carrying out the suggestion.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 24.—Governor Wolcott returned to the legislature without his signature the bill for 25 aldermen in the city of Boston and the election also of 50 common councilmen. The governor refused to sign the bill on the ground that the two branches of the city government would be elected and be responsible to identical constituencies. The measure originally passed the house by 125 to 25 and the senate 25 to 5. Action on the veto is delayed until the bill is printed.

The Williams bill for a commission to investigate the conditions of cotton manufacturing in Massachusetts was rejected without debate in the house yesterday

The bill to provide for the payment of bounties to Massachusetts soldiers from the treasury was passed to be engrossed without material amendment.

The committee on labor reported reference to the next general court of the memorial of T. Jefferson Coolidge and others relative to the condition and prospects of the cotton manufacturing industry in this commonwealth.

The petition and bill of the mayor of Somerville that cities and towns be authorized to extend aid to persons and relatives of persons serving in the war with Spain were recommitted to the committees on military affairs and ways and means sitting jointly.

The petition that cities and towns be authorized to negotiate short-term temporary loans in anticipation of moneys to be derived from long-term loans was referred to the committee on cities.

Good Afternoon.

The reporter of the Milton News don't like to see the people of East Milton enjoy themselves, and speaks disparagingly of the village as follows:

"The successful completion of the replanking of the platform which surrounds the depot at East Milton, has not ceased to be a nine days' wonder. Even the barn-yard fowl are still cackling over the great improvement to the sleepy and dead-and-alive village. Nothing is capable of stirring up the male community but politics, and then the whole village turns out en masse and sweeps the town, making the heavy taxpayers tremble in their boots. If it wasn't for two or three individuals it is doubtful whether the Sabbatical stillness and lethargy would be broken from week to week. The demoralizing effect of Quincy has almost robbed the village of its individuality and social life. With the completion of the electric system it is expected that Quincy's spell will be broken and the village resume its normal condition."

It is not surprising that the people of East Milton, who were cooped up before the advent of the street railway now improve the opportunity to mingle in the social life of Quincy. We welcome them and enjoy their company. When the street railway is extended through Milton we shall be pleased to make excursions through the quiet shady streets.

No Obligation.

A case of interest to Granite manufacturers has just been settled. The defendant's exceptions are sustained by the Supreme Court in the case of Henry Houghton against the Milford Pink Granite Company. This was an action to recover a commission of $700 for alleged services in giving the defendant information which enabled it to offer its granite to a customer for use in a building. The court says that it thinks it is plain that the plaintiff did nothing for which the defendant offered to pay.

A DEMONSTRATION.

Grand Flag Raising to be held at Quincy Depot.

Through the efforts of Agent Coffin, Baggage Master Moran and other employes of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. at the Quincy station, arrangements have been made for a grand flag raising at the depot Saturday evening. The fifty foot pole which will support the flag will be erected on the south east corner of the depot opposite Carlson's store. The flag itself is a large one and was purchased by funds raised by popular subscription among the patrons of the road. That they may be present, the hour for the flag raising has been fixed at 7.30 o'clock.

Up to the present time there has been no public demonstration and it is proposed that this affair shall be a rouser. and that it may be so Paul Revere Post, G. A. R., and Francis L. Souther Camp, S. of V., have been invited to participate, and they will be escorted from headquarters by the City band. Arriving at the depot there will be the booming of cannon and the burning of red fire. Patriotic speeches will be in order, for Mayor Sears has promised to be present and Luther S. Anderson, Superintendent of the Quincy quarry railroad, will speak for the railroad men. Invitations to be present have also been extended to ex-Mayors Porter, Fairbanks, Hodges and Adams, Representatives Newcomb and Thompson and others, and it is probable they will also be present.

A patriotic song entitled, "Old Glory holds the Bay—Dewey's Victory at Manila," has been arranged for the band.

Contributions of fireworks are solicited.

New Residence.

Mr. A. L. Baker expects to move into his new residence on Winthrop avenue, Wollaston, next week. This is one of the most sightly in Wollaston with the great lawn extending nearly 200 feet in front. The house itself is of the modified colonial style of architecture. The interior arrangement is convenient. The front door opens into a vestibule, thence into a large square hall. At the right are double parlors, one finished in ivory white, the other in cypress with paper to harmonize. The view from the westerly parlor is magnificent, as is also the view from the dining room. Leading from the dining room is the pantry and kitchen. There are four chambers with large closets and a bath room on the second floor. The house is lighted by electricity and heated with a furnace.

Quincy Club Adopts Resolutions

WHEREAS,—The Lord, in his infinite wisdom, having called Samuel E. Oxford from this mortal life unto the life everlasting, we, his associates in the Quincy Club, of which he was a member, desire to express our sense of the loss we have sus'ained; it is, therefore,

Resolved,—That we shall always cherish with loving sadness the memory of his genial and friendly disposition, his simple and unaffected kindness, the honesty and sincerity of his character, the pleasure which his companionship afforded us,

Resolved,—That these resolutions be spread upon our records and a copy sent to the family of the deceased as a token of our sympathy with them in their bereavement, and that copies be sent to the newspapers.

Chief Engineer Dead.

Mr. Joseph C. Folsom, chief engineer of the Braintree municipal electric light plant, died on Sunday. Mr. Folsom was born in Nantucket, April 1, 1835. He was an old Forty-niner and ex-master mechanic of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad. He was also for many years chief engineer in naval and merchant vessels under the American and foreign flags. He was a member of the Massachusetts Charitable Association, the Stationary Engineers' Association of Boston and of Mount Tabor lodge of Masons of East Boston.

☞ The Norfolk County Commissioners have decreed that White street and Central avenue in Milton be located anew and widened, and that ten to twenty feet be reserved in each street for the use of the street railway, the county to pay $2,500.

THE CUP DEFENDER.

The Splasher a Freak Boat but will be a Racer.

In the small boat shop at Lawley's, says the Globe, the Quincy cup defender Splasher and a launch are to be seen. The Splasher is an odd craft and is bound to make a sensation. She is what most people call a "freak" boat. She is now planked out, and the peculiar lines of the hull are to be seen to advantage. With a length over all of of 38 feet, and a width of 10 feet 8 inches, the Splasher is to have a draft of but eight inches. That tells the story of her shape. She is the absolute pumpkinseed in her lines. Nothing flatter could be built and still have space between deck and floor. Her bow is so flat that the overhang looks as if it were to be about two inches free most of the way to the stem. She has a square stern at the end of a broad taper.

The materials from which the Splasher are constructed have been selected with a view of giving extreme lightness combined with all possible strength. Her planking is double, but of extreme thinness. One layer is 3-16th of an inch thick, the other 5-16ths. The two layers are fastened together with brass screws, and the timber fastenings are also of brass. The timbers are of white oak, and are rather flat, being about half an inch thick.

The boat is expected to be ready for the water June 10. She is built after plans by John R. Purdon. The original designs, as stated in the Globe, was for C. H. Adams 2d, and was drawn according to Mr. Adams' ideas of what a racing machine should be.

The syndicate for which this boat is being built is headed by Com. F. B. Rice of the club. It is understood that he will sail her himself with the best racing crew the club can furnish him.

The Herald adds: Unless all signs fail this boat should prove one of the fastest boats of her length ever built. It must be gratifying to small boat out-and-out racing men to know that such a boat is being built to defend the Quincy cup. One can learn something from her, because she is built out in the open, and not like those under "fence rule" now building in New York and Canada to race next August. The Quincy club races will benefit yachtsmen everywhere, not so with the races to be sailed in Canada under the "rubber" rule.

Klondike Travel.

Through tickets are now sold to Glenora via Wrangel, the rates from Vancouver or Victoria being $50.00 first and $35.00 second class; meals and berth included, but extra on river steamers between Wrangel and Glenora. The Canadian Pacific River Steamer "Hamlin" has made a round trip between Wrangel and Glenora in three and one half days since the opening of the river and will make the trip quicker as the season advances. Contractors are putting teams on the trail Glenora to Lake Teslin.

The following may be of interest; Wharfage at Skagway $2.50 per ton; horses $2.00 per head; dogs and pigs 25 cents per head. Packing—Wharf to Summit, including toll on wagon road 5 cents; Summit to Lake Bennett, 6 cents. Probable time occupied—one day to Summit and one day to Lake Bennett. Market prices—Hay $35.00 per ton, lumber $25.00 per M., potatoes $30.00 per ton. List of principal packers—Colorado Packing Co., 40 mules, J. H. Brooks, 130 mules, Humbert-Yukon Co. and O'Brien & Hicks.

Dyea—Literage from Skagway, $5.00 per ton; Packing, Tide Water to Cannon City 2 cents, Cannon City to Sheep Camp, 2 cents; Sheep Camp to Scales, 2 cents, Scales to Summit, 1 1-2 cents, Dyea to Lake Lindman, about 22 or 23 cents. Market prices—Hay $30. per ton, potatoes $30.00 per ton, lumber $12 to $18 per M. Principal packers—Dyea, Klondike, Trivin & Coburn, Chilcoot R. & Tr. Co.

Eddy Kites to be Used.

William A Eddy of Bayonne, N. J. who has acquired fame by taking mid-air photographs of landscapes at Blue Hill and elsewhere by means of kites, announces that he has provided Lieut. Wise of the Ninth United States Infantry, who has gone to Tampa, with apparatus to aid the capture of Havana.

Eddy says Lieut. Wise is to send up Eddy Kites by means of which midair photographs will be taken of the fortification of Havana. They will be bird's eye views, and of great value to the American invaders.

If this photography process is successful, another invention of Eddy's is to be tried. It is a scheme by which a series of very large kites with a charge of dynamite suspended is to be sent up. When the kites are over Havana the dynamite is to be allowed to drop into the enemy's camp and cause terrible havoc.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of Elbridge Nash for the illegal sale of intoxicating liquor at South Weymouth was called. Mr. Nash was found not guilty and was discharged.

Arthur B. Reed, a clerk for Elbridge Nash was also arraigned for the illegal sale of liquor and was discharged.

These were the cases arising out of a contest over the postmastership at South Weymouth, Mr. Nash and John Hunt being rival candidates for the office. One of Mr. Hunt's strongest supporters was Henry B. Reed, who swore out the complaint. Mr. Reed had made practically the same charges to Congressman Lovering, who desired proof of the truth of the charges which he attempted to prove by this case. The principal witness in the case was Edward Garrity, an employe in Hunt's store, who testified that he gave Henry Lawler money and saw him enter Nash's store and purchase liquor. Lawler on the other hand denied purchasing liquor, but said he purchased two postage stamps.

The continued case of Evan J. Evans for indecent exposure at Cohasset was called. He was found guilty and the case continued for sentence until Wednesday. The sentence will be three months in the House of Correction.

Flag Desecration.

Mrs. N. V. Titus of this city who is prominent in several patriotic orders has sent to the press the following open letter;

Editors of the Ledger:

Is it not time to offer a protest against the desecration of the American flag as shown in our shops and on our streets? With this great wave of patriotism sweeping over the land and our beautiful flag floating everywhere it seems deplorable that patriotic Americans will consent to use the glorious flag as a pocket handkerchief a neck-tie or, worst of all, as a napkin!

No true American will consent to this abuse of our flag, which is done thoughtlessly.

The red, white and blue without the stars, as used in decoration are the colors of France, but now when everyone wants to show his patriotic spirit let him respect the flag and use it for decorative purposes as a flag only, and not cheapen it by using it for any other purpose.

L. B. TITUS.

☞ The First Congregational flag at Woburn and the Phillips church of South Boston also float flags.

If the Spanish fleet should sail to attack Sampson's fleet, and the fact should become known to the War Department, it would be like Secretary Long to wire him according to the Scriptural formula—"The Philistines be upon thee, Sampson."

The Bulletin Face.

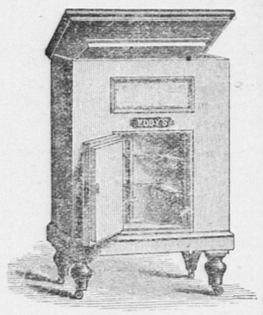

Have you noticed it on the faces of your friends lately. That sudden shifting of the eyes. That sort of an expectant, listening look; that quick, flashing, changing, joyous, wondering combination look? You have and didn't know what to make of it? That's the Bulletin Face. It's not an ingrowing affair or an incurable. It's just a look caused by trying to make out what is where and who is when; by trying to read the Bulletins down in Newspaper Row. He stands in front of the bulletin and reads, and reads, "San Juan has fallen." He does not know whether San Juan is a Spanish Hildago, a war ship or a town. But he hears someone say, "That is good!" so he smiles and wonders. Another bulletin says Cienfuegos has fallen. He hasn't any idea who Cienfuegos is, or where he worked before he got that way; but he knows it does not sound as if an American had surrendered, so he goes and drinks another and comes back to learn that Cavite and Admiral Cervera have sailed for Santiago de Martinique. That sounds well, so he goes and has another smile, and when he comes back he learns that Sampson has blown up 12 Spanish ships and but two American warships were disabled. He understands that and lets a war whoop that would drown the whistle on T. A. Whicher's shop. That's the cause of the new face you see on some of your friends.

When you see a man whose expression is just a settled smile, a continued "tickled to death" look, that's one of the Quincy Clothing Co.'s customers.—Chestnuts! did you say? That's wrong, we do not deal in them. All our goods are new, stamped "1898." No, sir; it's no chestnut. But when you pick up a Boston newspaper and read of the "Great Receiver's Sale," "Bankrupt Sale," or "Dissolution Sale," you may well say chestnuts, for it is the same old story.

We have for this week some suits at $6 50 and $7.50 in Blues, Grays and Browns, that we want to sell you. With every suit is a guarantee from the manufacturers as to their wearing and durability, and if they do not give perfect satisfaction you get a new suit. No Boston clothing merchant can beat the pants we sell for $1.48. For $2.48 we have a child's suit that cannot be equalled in this city for $3.50. You can save from 5 to 25 per cent. on any article you buy, and if you are not satisfied you can get your money back.

Hearty Believer.

My Dear Mr. Hoehn:

The Editors of the Ledger are doing a valuable service in agitating the work of the Christian Commission. I believe heartily in your work and hope you will meet with great success.

Very truly,
H. W. BEATTIE.

It is the purpose of the Christian Commission to maintain at South Framingham and Quonsett, and with each regiment from Massachusetts and Rhode Island at the front, whether in the United States or Cuba, tents equipped with reading tables, correspondence facilities, games and amusements, organ, singing books and other privileges. These will be places for social resort. Religious meetings will be held, and regular association work done in co-operation with chaplains and nurses.

The support of this movement will be secured through the press and Christian churches by means of collections and mass meetings, and preparations are being vigorously pushed at many places.

Whereby, with quaint intensities,
It greets each honeybee.
It yields its honey cheerily,
To all inconstant merrily:

SENATORS' THREATS.

Would Discuss Revenue Bill to Kill Annexation,

Besides Prolonging the Session All Summer.

Power to Admit a Dependency by Resolution Disputed.

Washington, May 24.—The question of the annexation of the Hawaiian islands has been revived in the senate to a certain extent since the Hawaiian resolutions were reported in the house, and the friends of annexation have been quoted as expressing a determination to press the house resolution in the senate during the present session in case it should pass the house, for fear that the short session would not afford time to secure its thorough consideration. The opponents of annexation declare they will not agree to the revival of the question in any way in the senate before the adjournment of this session, and some of the Democratic opponents do not hesitate to say that rather than have the Hawaiian question reconsidered they will debate the war revenue bill indefinitely.

Senator White, who has been one of the most persistent opponents of annexation, gave the Associated Press the following outline of his position on the question: "Before the present congress assembled, it was stated that the treaty would be pressed immediately on the opening of the session. This was not done. On the contrary, the matter was not called up until we were well into January. The debate was quite active for awhile; then the subject was dropped because the friends of the treaty were short of votes, and has not since been revived in the senate. If any attempt is made, now that the time for adjournment ought to be near, to reagitate annexation under the resolution theory, the result cannot be favorable to an early disposition of the important legislation pending in congress, but will keep congress in session all summer. The power to admit a territory or dependency by resolution is doubtful. Texas came in by resolution, but was admitted as a state under a provision of the constitution expressly giving congress the right to admit new states. This and many more equally cogent arguments will be elaborated whenever this interesting matter shall be publicly debated. The sensible thing to do is to suspend further proceedings on the subject of annexation until the war with Spain is over and we face the new problems resulting from our success at arms."

WAR REVENUE.

Mr. Chilton and Mr. Aldrich on the Coinage of Seigniorage.

Washington, May 24.—In the course of his remarks upon the inheritance tax, Senator Chilton expressed the opinion that next to a tax on incomes and upon corporations, the succession tax contained more elements of justice than any other feature of the pending bill. He defended the proposition of the majority of the finance committee to issue certificates against the silver seigniorage.

NELSON W. ALDRICH.

"That issue would amount," inquired Mr. Aldrich, "to about $42,000,000, I believe you to say?"

"Yes, that is true," replied Mr. Chilton.

"It is evident," said Mr. Aldrich, "if the present price of silver be accepted, the profit upon this so-called seigniorage would be far greater than $42,000,000. If you are going to issue fiat money, why do you not proceed to do it without the pretense of issuing money against a supposed seigniorage?" Taking a silver certificate from his pocket, Mr. Aldrich read from its face the statement that there were on deposit in the treasury blank silver dollars, "payable to the bearer on demand. If certificates are issued against the so-called seigniorage," continued Mr. Aldrich, "there will not be one single silver dollar deposited in the treasury. There has been none deposited and there can be none in the very nature of things. Why should we not issue fiat money and call it such?" Mr. Aldrich said that in accordance with the express terms of the law, the government stood pledged to hold this so-called seigniorage in the treasury as security for the outstanding certificates, and it could not properly be touched until those certificates had been taken care of.

"That is all a gratuity," replied Mr. Chilton. "The senator must know there is nothing of the sort he suggests in the law. We know precisely how much silver it will require to coin a specified sum in dollars. Why then should we not utilize this silver at once? Why should we wait until it is actually coined, when it can be used now to relieve our people from the burdens of taxation? There is no reason in law, in reason, in justice or in good faith why certificates should not be issued against this silver bullion already paid for and on hand." Mr. Chilton declared that the very prospect of the issue of bonds at an early date had caused the withholding of spare capital from the industries of the country, capitalists preferring to place their money in a long time loan to the government. Mr. Chilton said the people, the plain people, would rebel against bonds unless the issue was absolutely necessary.

Mr. Lodge felt that if the corporations were taxed by both the state and the national government it would result in shutting many of them out of business. Ultimately the states would be forced in levying state and municipal taxes to place additional burdens upon real estate, thus further oppressing the very people whom it was the professed desire of the corporation tax advocates to relieve. For the United States to tax the corporations would result in the destruction of a great source of revenue to the states. He objected to the corporation tax because it was unfair and inequitable, and he also opposed the tax on bank deposits, particularly those in savings banks. In Massachusetts, he said, the savings banks contained deposits exceeding $500,000,000. The average amount deposited was $364. This money belonged to the poor people, the wage earners of the state, and if the tax were levied upon these deposits a blow would be struck directly at a class which ought not to be stricken and among whom thrift ought to be encouraged.

According to a statement made by Senator Allison in the senate, the change made by the committee on finance at its meeting Saturday, increasing the rate on cigars to $3.60 per thousand, applies to cigars weighing more than three pounds to the thousand and not to those weighing less.

MONDAY'S BALL GAMES.

That In St. Louis Replete With Errors and Sensational Hitting.

St. Louis, May 24.—Bostons won in a neck and neck finish with the browns yesterday in a game which was poorly played by both sides. Errors were plentiful and brilliant plays scarce, Harley being credited with the only one really of that description. This was in the fifth inning, when with no one out and Bergen on first base Klobedanz lined out what looked like a triple. Harley went after it from the rear, and after a hard chase managed to stop it, and after juggling it a few times to freeze to it.

The game despite the poor playing was one of the exciting variety, as it was not until the last man was out that the game was decided. Hughey and Klobedanz were the opposing pitchers. Neither covered himself with glory.

Four of the Boston's seven errors were made in the sixth inning, after two men were out, giving the browns a run. In the seventh inning Long and Harley collided at second base, and Long got all the worst of it, but was not hurt enough to have to leave the game.

Captain Duffy's two three-baggers assisted in the victory. Score:

The New Yorks batted hard and timely, while the Louisvilles could not bat when hits meant runs. Dowling, their pitcher, lasted but five innings. Score: 12 to 4.

The aggregation from Baltimore had two bad innings yesterday, and the Chicagos one, errors being followed by a bunching of hits. The Illinois team won, 6 to 5.

Hill of the Cincinnatis kept the Brooklyns' hits scattered well and pitched himself out of many tight places, so that his club won, 7 to 2.

Duggley of the Philadelphias was an easy mark for the Pittsburgs, and after he had lost the game in an inning and a half, Piatt was substituted. Only one short hit was made off him. Score: 3 to 1.

With two out in the ninth, Burkett's single drive brought in two runs, giving the Cleveland team the game after the Washingtons thought victory was sure. Score: 4 to 3.

The Newport team was weak at the bat at critical times in the game with the Brocktons. Hits were frequent, but the men died on bases for the sake of a strong batter. The score was close enough to keep up interest and the game was very well played at all points, save Clancy at short for the visitors. Score: 3 to 2.

The Pawtuckets won in a batting contest with the Tauntons, 7 to 4. Katall, who has been loaned by the Fall Rivers, was tried by the Tauntons, and pitched a steady game, the hits being well sprinkled through the innings. Pattee's decisions were frequently questioned

The Springfields appear to have the luck to be pitted against the Providences at a time when the Providence pitchers are vieing with each other in good work. Rudderham pitched a magnificent game, holding the Springfields down to scattered hits, and would have shut them out but for an error following Lush's hit in the eighth inning. Score: 8 to 1.

The Fall River team, with Flanagan on the slab, made easy work defeating the New Bedfords, 8 to 2. All that was needed was to get first base, and then the New Bedford players did the rest.

BULLET IN HIS BRAIN.

Pedler of Fruit Kills a Street Foreman In Boston.

Objected to a Reproof For Littering a Street.

Friends of the Murderer Blocked the Path of Pursuers.

Boston, May 24.—District Foreman James M. Ellis of the street cleaning division of the street department was murdered while in the discharge of his duties yesterday afternoon. He was shot in the brain, the bullet entering the right eye. The murderer was an Italian and the scene was Pitts street place, west end.

Mr. Ellis had absolutely no chance to defend himself, but was shot down in cold blood. Death was almost instantaneous.

Mr. Ellis went into the court and looked over the barrels. Most of the Italians in the place peddle fruit, and along on the left there were six or eight 2-wheeled fruit carts. At the nearest cart to the little swill house were two Italians with a half-cart load of strawberries and bananas. They were picking over the fruit and throwing the pits into the sewer opening; and once in a while one of them poured water over them to wash them down the sewer.

Mr. Ellis walked up to the Italian who was doing the pouring and told him to "stop immediately." He then began to remonstrate with him and went into the swill house. As the men came out the Italian struck the foreman in the back. From the suddenness of the blow Mr. Ellis staggered, and then turned toward his assailant.

The Italian whipped out a revolver, and fired. The bullet missed. Then before Mr. Ellis could move the pistol rang out again, and the foreman fell.

With the first shot Sanitary Inspector O'Donnell, who had been waiting at the entrance to Pitts street place, jumped into the court. He came around the bend in the place just in time to see Ellis fall from the second shot. The Italian turned and ran toward the inner end of the place. O'Donnell sprang after him, but before he had gone five feet he was literally surrounded by Italians, who seemed to spring from every side. Directly in front of him was a man with a knife. Realizing that it was folly to pursue, O'Donnell went back to where Ellis lay, to find him breathing his last.

The police were notified, but the denizens of the court pleaded ignorance of the murder and of the murderer. Ellis was 52 years old and leaves a widow.

Jealous Man's Crime.

Indianapolis, May 24.—Arthur A. Spoor, a traveling photographer from Syracuse, N. Y., went to the house where his wife was last night and shot her dead. He then went to a park and killed himself. Jealousy was the cause of the tragedy.

The New York Friends, at their annual meeting in keeping with their old-time ideas, protested against the war now going on between the United States and Spain. Reports known as "epistles" from yearly meetings of Friends in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Genesee were read.

Jockeys Snell, Gilmore, Heathersoll and Dugan were injured at the St. Louis fair grounds. The accident occurred just as the horses were turning into the home stretch, Dick Collins falling and bringing down several other horses. The state department has made a formal response to the Austrian government as to the Hungarians killed at Hazleton, Pa., in the riots of last fall. The governor of Pennsylvania sent a long report, supplemented by a strong argument to maintain the position taken by our government, that it was not responsible under the circumstances for the killing.

News of the Modern Athens.

Boston, May 24.—Governor Wolcott has appointed the four boiler inspectors to Chief Wade's department of the district police. These were authorized by the present legislature, and there are two of the number veterans of the civil war. They are the first two in the list. The appointments are as follows: Everett B. The W. C. T. union of this city has adopted a petition to Secretary Long of the navy department expressing abhorrence to the spirit of vengeance manifested in the warcry, "Remember the Maine," and asking him "to refuse to purchase goods of any kind bearing this motto, and in all ways to discountenance the use of this or any motto calculated to foster the spirit of savagery against which we are contending."

Lynched a Brutal Brakeman.

Paducha, Ky., May 24.—Joe Mitchell, colored, an Illinois Central brakeman, who lived here, was hanged by a mob at Rives, Tenn. Mitchell had shoven a white boy tramp off a moving train at Rives, and the boy fell on the track, having both legs cut off at the knees. He lived long enough to tell that Mitchell was his assailant. The brakeman was arrested, and, while being held at the depot to be taken to jail at Union City, Tenn., a crowd gathered and hanged him.

An artist has been instructed to make a copy of the famous picture, "The Battle of Yorktown," which is one of the treasures of the French national gallery at Versailles, to be sent to the embassy at Washington. Verdict of Guilty.

New York, May 24.—The jury in the case of Robert W. Fielding, ex-deputy commissioner of public works, Brooklyn, returned a verdict of guilty. The indictment charged him with conniving at the audit and passing of a fraudulent bill against the city for earth filling over a water main. It is claimed that he gave a contract for filling to Henry E. Finkle, whom he knew as a dummy of Daniel Doody; that there was no written contract as the law provided, and that 11 bills for the work, each just under $2000, were put in by Finkle and passed by Fielding. It is on the last of these bills that the indictment is based.

The Escape.

When a man has a chance to escape from prison he doesn't stop to argue about it; he breaks out as quickly as ever he can. He knows that every moment's delay may lessen his chances of escape; but when a man is sick he too often postpones his opportunity of getting well and says: "O, perhaps I'll be better next week" or "next month."

The weeks and months go on and every day his chance of escaping from the dungeon of disease grows smaller. The "Golden Medical Discovery" originated by Dr. R.V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., offers a certain means of rescue to every man and woman who is suffering from any form of weakness or disease due to imperfect nutrition. This marvelous "Discovery" creates good appetite, good digestion, good blood, good health. It gives solid flesh, muscular strength, steady nerves and keen wits. It helps you to think clearly and work successfully.

Mr. Frank A. Startz, of Fayetteville, Fayette Co., Texas, writes in a letter to Dr. Pierce: "It affords me pleasure to testify to the remarkable curative power of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I was severely afflicted with trouble in my lungs—spitting up blood, and was so weak I was unable to continue my work. I tried several remedies which gave me no relief, and I had commenced to think there was no hope for me. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was recommended to me so I tried it and began to improve at once, and was soon able to resume work. I consider it a wonderful medicine."

Every man who wants to save doctor's bills should send 21 one-cent stamps, the cost of mailing only, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a copy of his 1000-page illustrated book, "Common Sense Medical Adviser," in paper covers; or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

VOL. 10. No. 122. QUINCY, MASS., WEDNESDAY, MAY 25, 1898. PRICE 2 CENTS.

The Bulletin Face.

Have you noticed it on the faces of your friends lately. That sudden shifting of the eyes. That sort of an expectant, listening look; that quick, flashing, changing, joyous, wondering combination look? You have and didn't know what to make of it? That's the Bulletin Face. It's not an ingrowing affair or an incurable. It's just a look caused by trying to make out what is where and who is when; by trying to read the Bulletins down in Newspaper Row. He stands in front of the bulletin and reads, and reads, "San Juan has fallen." He does not know whether San Juan is a Spanish Hildago, a war ship or a town. But he hears someone say, "That is good!" so he smiles and wonders. Another bulletin says Cienfuegos has fallen. He hasn't any idea who Cienfuegos is, or where he worked before he got that way; but he knows it does not sound as if an American had surrendered, so he goes and drinks another and comes back to learn that Cavite and Admiral Cervera have sailed for Santiago de Martinique. That sounds well, so he goes and has another smile, and when he comes back he learns that Sampson has blown up 12 Spanish ships and but two American warships were disabled. He understands that and lets a war whoop that would drown the whistle on T. A. Whicher's shop. That's the cause of the new face you see on some of your friends.

When you see a man whose expression is just a settled smile, a continued "tickled to death" look, that's one of the Quincy Clothing Co.'s customers —Chestnuts! did you say? That's wrong, we do not deal in them. All our goods are new, stamped "1898." No, sir; it's no chestnut. But when you pick up a Boston newspaper and read of the "Great Receiver's Sale," "Bankrupt Sale," or "Dissolution Sale," you may well say chestnuts, for it is the same old story.

We have for this week some suits at $6.50 and $7.50 in Blues, Grays and Browns, that we want to sell you. With every suit is a guarantee from the manufacturers as to their wearing and durability, and if they do not give perfect satisfaction you get a new suit. No Boston clothing merchant can beat the pants we sell for $1.48. For $2.48 we have a child's suit that cannot be equalled in this city for $3.50. You can save from 5 to 25 per cent. on any article you buy, and if you are not satisfied you can get your money back.

Desirable House Lots.

WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. PRATT ESTATE, has been divided into building lots. Whitney Road, running through the property from Hancock street to Newcomb street, will be first-class in every particular, with sewer, water, gas and electric light—indeed all that goes to make a modern suburban road.

This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

For plans, prices and terms, apply to DR. N. S. HUNTING, 214 Hancock St., Quincy, or to MR. GEO. G. SAVILLE, 5 Greenleaf street, Quincy, and John Hancock Bldg., Devonshire St., Boston.

QUINCY, MAY 14, 1898.

GENERAL ORDER NO. 1.

COMRADES: Once more the solemn day is near when we place grateful garlands upon the graves of the honored dead, who fell in battle or perished since the war. Becoming it is that this day of tender memories, of tearful regrets, is appointed for this beautiful season of awakening nature. A season so full of instruction and consolation. When flower and leaf and bud are bursting into life and beauty around us, and when we behold on every hand so much that teaches by analogy that

There is nothing of us that doth fade,
But doth suffer a sure change
Into something rich and strange.

When we place the sweet flowers of spring symbols of hope and immortality on the graves of Comrades loved and lost, we testify to our faith in the immortal life of man. When we raise above their silent tents of green the colors in whose dear defence they fought and fell we renew our allegiance to all that the flag of our country symbolizes.

The coming Memorial Day should be an occasion of special significance for more than thirty peaceful years we have faithfully performed this ceremony, but now the drums' wild beat proclaims the advent of another war; again the bugle calls and throughout the land is heard the tread of freedom's sons, hurrying to answer the call of humanity, to bear the boon of liberty to a long oppressed race, and to avenge the insulted honor of the nation to the sailor on the deck, to the soldier in the field, to the statesman in the cabinet, to patriots everywhere there comes from the hallowed graves of the soldiers of the union, an inspiration to noble deeds, heroic sacrifices and unswerving loyalty to God, to country, and to mankind.

The memorial season furnishes an opportunity of impressing on the minds of the rising youth of our land that it is their duty to as nobly live as others have nobly died for the Republic. Let us gather around there sacred places and perform this beautiful and touching ceremony while a survivor of the war remains to honor the departed comrades.

Let us all pray that heaven may give our army and navy victory over Spain and over every enemy of our government and flag, and while war lasts that each and every American be loyal and true to the Government.

Memorial day demands that in our churches we return grateful thanks to the Almighty for the civil and religious liberty that the Republic guarantees to us all.

On Sunday, May 29,

the Post will assemble in full uniform at Headquarters at 9.45 A. M., for the purpose of attending Memorial Service at the Presbyterian Church, Rev. R. W. Peach; and the Post will assemble again at 7 P. M., to attend St. John's Church, to hear the oration preached by Rev. Julian E. Johnstone.

Francis L. Souther Camp, No. 27, Sons of Veterans, Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps, No. 103, and all soldiers and sailors are invited to be present at both services.

Contribution of food and flowers from our many friends will be gratefully received and can be left at the following residences: Mrs. F. P. Loud, Ward 1; Mrs. H. O. Souther, Ward 2; Mrs. Edward Richardson, Ward 3; Mrs. John Farrell, Ward 4; Mrs. G. A. Stokes, Ward 5; Mrs. Moore, Ward 6.

The principals and teachers of the schools are invited to request their pupils to bring flowers to the schoolhouse on the morning of May 28, when they will be collected for the purpose of decorating our Comrades' graves on Memorial Day. Bring flowers that no soldier's or sailor's grave may be unremembered by this beautiful tribute.

LIKE A LION READY TO LEAP.

Schley Reported at the Entrance to Santiago.

Spanish Squadron Still In the Harbor.

Feeling That Escape Therefrom Without a Battle Is Impossible.

Key West, May 25.—Schley was on guard in front of Santiago harbor all day yesterday, waiting like a lion to spring upon his prey. He must have arrived there some time Monday night, but it was evidently not until yesterday that he was able definitely to determine the presence of the hostile fleet.

The latter must either come out and fight or else be forced to remain in helpless imprisonment. Admiral Cervera must die like a rat in a trap or else he must make a bold dash for liberty. In either event the result will be the same. The Spanish fleet will go down before the storm of shot and shell which will be hurled upon it by the unerring marksmen of our fleet. Up to the present time Admiral Cervera has apparently not decided which fate he will choose.

It may be asked why he was not instantly attacked. It is not an easy thing to force him to give battle.

The entrance to the harbor, less than one-quarter of a mile wide, with a channel crooked and only 500 feet broad, makes it impossible, practically, for Sampson to go into the harbor after Cervera. Cervera holds the ingress to the harbor as completely as Sampson holds the egress from it.

The boldness of the coast here prevents either squadron from seeing the other; consequently they cannot shoot at each other with any measure of accuracy. To be sure the guns of the battleships, or of the monitors, if any are there, might be elevated so as to cast heavy shells over the cliffs, allowing them to fall in the vicinity of the ships or the city.

It would be all chance work, of course, and if the shells became too uncomfortable Cervera might be forced to come out and fight. In that case it would mean certain destruction for him. A sufficient United States fleet has already gathered about the entrance of the harbor to sink Cervera's ships as they appeared in view.

Notwithstanding the undeniable formidability of Cervera's four cruisers and his smaller but very dangerous destroyers, it is now believed by naval men that he is practically powerless because of a supposed inability of Cervera to secure a new supply of coal. Although numerous reports of the coaling of the squadron were circulated, it is not believed that the Spanish admiral secured coal enough at Martinique and Curacoa to anywhere near fill his almost depleted bunkers.

In fact, at Curacoa he was allowed to take only two ships into the harbor, and the amount of coal taken on board there was not more than sufficient to carry the squadron to Santiago. Spanish reports allege that there was plenty of coal at Santiago, but naval men say that this is not so. With empty bunkers the Spanish admiral is certainly in an almost helpless condition. Under these circumstances his running into a harbor like Santiago, which possesses almost impregnable natural defenses, is not difficult to understand. Cervera's only hope then is for aid from Spain in the shape of the Cadiz squadron. If it should cross the ocean, and should join with Cervera, the Spaniards would have a very respectable force. They would be able to make a big resistance. But the trouble is that Sampson's fleet would be able to intercept the Cadiz squadron and destroy it before Cervera would know anything about it.

If Cervera's fleet is in Santiago and Schley is patrolling the entrance to the harbor, no battle should be expected for a while yet. Sampson could not risk any of his ships into the harbor, for the terrible torpedo boat destroyers would be in their element, and then, if ever, they would get in their deadly work. A well directed torpedo would mean the destruction of our biggest ships. Admiral Sampson will therefore be obliged to take up his position off the harbor and wait.

There is evidence, circumstantial, it is true, but nevertheless entitled to some weight, to show that Admiral Sampson is now off Havana. The dispatches which were sent him yesterday from the navy department went to Key West and not to Cape Haytien. This would indicate that they were to be carried by dispatch boats across from Key West to Havana. In addition to this it is known that last Sunday night Admiral Sampson's squadron was keeping guard over the entrance to Havana harbor, there being at that time a possibility that Admiral Cervera had slipped out of Santiago harbor and was making for Havana.

The Sixth Massachusetts is settling down to the ways of camp life in its new military home in Virginia. All the accounts show that the bay state boys shine as a crack regiment in all the evolutions of drill. In equipment and perfection of movemen's they amply sustain the reputation that preceded them into the field. It is unfortunate that Camp Alger has so little to recommend it as a rendezvous for soldiers. It would not be surprising if the site were given up for some other better watered.

Out of all the doubt and hesitation or the last fortnight, one clear line of policy has at last appeared. No time is to be lost in completing the occupation of the Philippines, and troops are to be hurried across the Pacific without further delay. Moreover, General Merritt has been instructed to proclaim martial law in the islands just as soon as he arrives there with a sufficient American force. The significance of this is great. It means that the expedition to Manila is not for the purpose of relieving Dewey and enabling him to hold his own, but for the purpose of administering the government of the island, and such a step having once been taken it can hardly be retraced. Generar Merritt will have all the men he asks for to enable him to succeed in his mission; 4000 of these will be afloat by Saturday and 3000 more by the close of the next week. Merritt will need 20,000 at once, and it is intimated that a call for 35,000 may be made before the summer is over. The 20,000 will be sent probably within a fortnight.

Arrival of the Oregon.

Atlanta, Ga., May 25.—A special to The Constitution reports the safe arrival of the battleship Oregon at Jupiter, Fla.

Rioting In Manila.

Hong Kong, May 25.—A Japanese cruiser, which arrived here yesterday from Manila, reports that when she left there rioting had broken out and a number of houses had been burned. Food was daily becoming scarcer and horse flesh was sold at $1.50 a pound. The Spanish volunteers were making angry demands for pay and food which the Spaniards were utterly unable to satisfy.

The cruiser reports that Admiral Montojo is awaiting trial by court-martial for alleged incompetency during the engagement with the United States squadron under Commodore Dewey; while the captain of the Spanish revenue cutter Callao, captured by the American warships, is to be shot for not making resistance.

Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader, had a great reception on his arrival at the Philippines from Hong Kong. Rear Admiral Dewey supplied the insurgents with two guns and 300 rifles, and at the time the Japanese cruiser left Aguinaldo expected to make an immediate attack.

Wolseley on the Invasion.

London, May 25.—It is the opinion of Commander Wolsley that "the United States would make a mistake in attempting to invade Cuba with volunteers who are not fully drilled and disciplined, because they might meet heavy reverses when those troops encountered the trained Spanish troops on land. It would be a grave error," said Lord Wolsley,

LORD WOLSELEY.

"to underestimate the strength of the adversaries of the American troops. I would regret to see the Americans even temporarily beaten, as all my sympathies are with them. It is fortunate for the United States that this war is not with a first-class power, for it is evident that in such an encounter they would be badly beaten at the beginning, though I believe the Americans are able to defeat any nation in the long run."

Waters South of Cuba.

Jamaica, May 25.—The waters south of Cuba have suddenly become the scene of great naval activity. Commodore Schley, who left Key West last Thursday with the United States battleships Massachusetts and Texas, the armored cruiser Brooklyn and the armed yacht Scorpion, is believed to be cruising off Cienfuegos and Santiago de Cuba.

DISORDERS IN ITALIY.

"Fruit of Evil Seed Scattered With Impunity."

That Is the Way Pope Leo Refers to Them.

Says That the Church Teaches Men to Avoid Rioting.

Rome, May 25.—The Observer publishes a letter from the pope to Cardinal Andrea Ferrari, archbishop of Milan, expressing profound emotion because of the grave disorders in Italy. The pope says: "These disorders are the fruit of evil seed, scattered with impunity in Italy, which leads to the corruption of minds, the perversion of morals and the detriment of religion. We have seen that, instead of exhorting and calming wicked people, honest citizens have been guilty of disorders in a mistaken idea that they are devoting themselves to the interests of the church and the holy see, affecting to ignore the fact that the church teaches men to avoid rioting; but it was not the Catholics who provoked the disorders, the authors of which must be sought elsewhere."

The pope could have wished, he continues, that Cardinal Ferrari had been at Milan at the time of the rioting in order to pacify the people; and he declares that he has been greatly moved by the insults contained in the manifesto. It was not against the person of the cardinal, who has always exemplified great pastoral charity, that the attacks were directed, but against the principles he represented. It is impossible to understand whither such a campaign can lead when the social authority is shaken.

The pope declares, however, that he has derived great consolation from the evidences of devotion of which the archbishop has been the object and, concluding the letter, expresses his confidence that the Catholic clergy at Milan will remain under the influence of their affection for their pastor.

TENNEY'S BAD PLAY.

To That Is Ascribed the Ill Luck of the Bostons.

St. Louis, May 25.—That Mr. Willis is not the best pitcher in the world was apparently proven yesterday, when the browns made their debut as a band of sluggers. They have won a few games this season, principally through good pitching by Taylor and miserable fielding by the other side., but Tuesday a mixture of luck and heavy batting enabled them to win from Boston by a score of 12 to 10.

Tenney is principally responsible for Boston's defeat. In the seventh, with the score 8 to 6, and with one out, a grounder was sent to first. Tenney got it, but made a poor throw to Long in an attempt to make a double play. Had this been accomplished it would have retired the side and prevented the five runs which were scored afterwards. George Decker had a collision with Bergen in the first inning and was knocked out of the game. Score:

The Louisvilles could not hit Meekin, and the New Yorks won easily, 6 to 1. Grady of the winners was ordered off the field in the second inning for disputing a decision.

The Pittsburgs won their second game from the Philadelphias in a contest full of brilliant plays, 4 to 3. The fifth was fatal for the Quakers.

Evans was wild in yesterday's game and the Clevelands had an easy time defeating the Washingtons, 4 to 0.

The feature of the morning game in Toronto yesterday was the batting of Freeman. He made two home runs, a three-bagger and a two-bagger, bringing in eight of the 12 runs made by the Torontos against the Buffalos.

The Chicagos, in their game with the Baltimores, bunched nine hits for seven runs in the first and then went all to pieces. Both teams batted savagely. Score: 15 to 13.

BOMBARDMENT OF SAN JUAN.

Told by a Quincy Boy Who Was on the Flag Ship Iowa.

SEAGOING BATTLESHIP IOWA.

The Iowa is the navy's most formidable battleship. Her statistics are: Displacement, 11,410 tons; speed, 16 knots; horsepower, 11,000; cost, $3,010,000: armament, four 12 inch, eight 8 inch, six 4 inch guns and 28 guns of smaller caliber.

The following letter from a Quincy boy, who is aboard the Iowa, the flag ship at San Juan, will be read with interest, as it is the account of the engagement by an eye witness, written at the time when the events were fresh in his mind. W. W. Pray has nearly completed three years of service in the navy, serving on the Indiana, Columbia and the Iowa. His father and grandfather before him were also in the navy. The letter was written to Isaac M. Holt, the Ward One assessor, who is his guardian:

Off San Juan, Porto Rico,
May 12, 1898.

Well we met the Spaniards today and I tell you we gave them a hot time for four good hours. We have been a little over a week getting down here from Havana. It was reported that there was a big fleet of Spanish men of-war down here so we came down to pay them a visit, but when we got here we found that they suddenly had business somewhere else and would not [illegible] for. When we got here we found the fleet gone so Admiral Sampson said we will give them a lesson by bombarding San Juan. We opened fire at about half past five and I tell you we surprised them. The first time the Iowa went around they did not reply to our fire at all, but as the rest of the fleet followed in succession they started to shoot, and Oh, my, what shooting!

The second time we went around by ourselves and had it hot and heavy. They fired over ninety shot at a range of six hundred yards and we were only struck once, while we blew up two of their magazines and drove holes in their fort that you could drive a team of horses through.

After that the two monitors ran in and engaged the forts at short range. They were having a hot time for a little while but they soon silenced the water batteries and then came steaming out firing fast as they could.

After they came out we went in and the Iowa showed them a few new things in shooting. The first shot we fired took a big junk out of the extreme right of the castle and for five minutes the air was full of bricks, dirt and smoke. After a while we landed another one in a magazine and it went up with a bang. Then we started to do them up brown. We were driving holes in the main fort in great style and soon had them guessing. We then drew out and as we were right abreast of the fort let drive again and blew up another magazine setting the town on fire.

Then the Indiana took our place and kept a steady fire up all the time. About this time another magazine blew up and silenced a whole battery.

There was a small battery away up on the side of the hill that we could not reach. They kept up a steady fire on us but did very little damage.

The Detroit did more than good work. There were two gunboats in the harbor and they started to come out as soon as we started firing, but she soon drove them back again. Then she commenced firing on a small sand fort near the water. They had it hot and heavy for half an hour, or so, and then she steamed out to the rest of the fleet. We went around twice afterward and did considerable damage and then we drew off and left them.

Where we are laying now you can see the town still burning.

We will start for Key West tonight and it probably will take about five days to get back there, we will take on coal and amunition and start for Havana. I don't think they will care to have us back again, for if we did not silence them altogether it was no fault of ours. As it was we gave them an example of what we would do if they sent there fleet out to us. There were only three men wounded on this ship. Two of them got slight cuts from a ten inch shell that burst on deck, while the third one got his whole elbow shot away, and the doctor says he will lose his arm. There was one man killed on the New York, and one killed on the Detroit. A man dropped dead on the Amphitrite just before the fight. They say it was heart disease. In all, the fleet lost three men dead, and seven wounded, which I think was pretty good work.

Admiral Sampson made us his flagship and came over and stayed till the bombardment was over. Then he went back to the New York.

Ice Saving Refrigerators.

It has taken years of study and know-how ideas to produce Refrigerators worth the buying at prices fair to pay. The EDDY represents the most honest built refrigerators ever manufactured. Simple in construction with no hidden corners where disease germs can lurk, they are built to last a life time, and consume about half the ice required for the average refrigerators.

Yes, Eddy Refrigerators are built for service; prices from $5.20 up. A complete assortment to select from, and a catalogue for the asking.

The Q. & B. Won.

In the superior court at Dedham Tuesday, a verdict was rendered for the defendant in the cases of Dorley against the Quincy & Boston street railway. This suit arose from an accident on the Quincy Point line which happened some months ago. Dorley who runs a butcher wagon was driving along Washington street with his son. When the entrance to the Redding estate was reached a car approached and passed, upon which Dorley turned across the track directly in front of a second car which he did not see. The result was an accident. It was understood that at that time the railroad offered to repair damage done to Dorley's team, their claim being that he was negligent and at fault. This was refused and Dorley entered two suits one for himself and one for damages to his son, who it was claimed was injured.

The cases were heard some time ago in the lower court at Quincy which gave a verdict for the defendant upon the ground that Dorley did not use due care. The case was carried to the upper court which practically sustained the finding of the lower court.

Atlantic Memorial Church.

The pulpit of the Atlantic Memorial church on Sunday morning was occupied by Rev. Mr. Wright of the Atlantic Methodist church in exchange with Rev. Mr. Whitaker. In his sermon he clearly enunciated the necessity of filling one's soul with those things which will reflect the Christ light. There was a special song service in the evening in which Mrs. Folsom, contralto, of Jamaica Plain, Mr. Griggs, baritone, and Mr. Gillette, organist of the Shepard Memorial church, Cambridge, and the regular evening quartette, took part. The pastor preached an inspiring sermon bearing especially upon the needs of Atlantic. The whole service was exceedingly fine while the floral decorations were most beautiful the flowering dog-wood in great profusion gracefully massed, forming a marked feature in the adornment beside honeysuckle, narcissa, roses and Easter lilies. The audience filled the church.

WEYMOUTH.

Little Items of Interest About Town.

George De Witt, the popular conductor on the Braintree and Weymouth street railway company, has returned from a brief visit to his parents in North Easton.

A horse owned by J. F. Dwight caused a great deal of excitement Tuesday morning. He was standing in front of the Fore River fish market when he became frighted and dashed away at a terrific rate. Had it not been for Charles Willoby, he would have gone through the large plate glass window of Connell's drug store. After a struggle he was conquered and returned to his owner.

Friday evening, at the vestry of the Baptist church, the members of the class of '99, W. N. H. S., will give a reception to all the pupils and teachers of the school.

On account of the inclemency of the weather, the ball game between the North and South High was indefinitely postponed.

The South High will cross bats with the Braintree High at the Fair grounds, Thursday.

Secretary Surprised.

Mr. W. F. Hoehn, the genial general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and Mrs. Hoehn, were pleasantly surprised Tuesday evening at their new home on Presidents hill by the directors of the association and their wives, the visit being in the nature of a house-warming. Mr. Hoehn was expecting callers, but was unprepared for the large number he found in possession of his home upon his arrival there early in the evening. All were, however, soon made welcome and a very pleasant evening was passed in a social manner. Cook served a dainty lunch during the evening. Before the guests took their departure, Mr. A. D. Albee, president of the Association, in behalf of the directors, presented Mr. and Mrs. Hoehn with a purse of gold coin, to which Mr. Hoehn responded in a feeling and grateful manner.

"Facts And Fiction" Grew.

The most noteworthy example of the growth of western periodicals is Facts and Fiction, a monthly magazine published by The Dominion Company, Chicago. In less than three years it has attained a circulation exceeding 140,000 copies. No other western monthly legitimately circulated on its merits has ever reached this figure. The reasons for this phenominal growth are evident. The magazine is distinctly western and enjoys the patronage of all whose blood tingles with pride at the grand achievements of that part of our country lying west of the Alleghanies. Every number contains live, practical, entertaining and instructive matter, highly illustrated, that interests every member of the household. It seeks to be helpful and to make life cheerier. It stands always for the pure and the best in American manhood and womanhood The magazine costs but one dollar a year. To extend its usefulness still further the publisher offers for a brief time to send every new subscriber as a premium a copy of the great home book, "The Home Instructor," by Thos. W. Handford, D. D., a book made to sell for $2.75. This premium offer is regarded as the most extraordinarily liberal ever made by an American publisher. Being made for a brief time only, those who may wish to avail themselves of it should do so at once as it is likely to be withdrawn without notice.

Odd Fellows Memorial Day.

WE MUST TAKE HAWAII

Philippine Situation Makes the Action Unavoidable.

Coaling at the Islands Is a Breach of Neutrality.

Hawaiians Become Allies of Americans In Permitting It.

Washington, May 25.—The Philippines expedition is off in dead earnest. The sending of three ships will affect the Hawaiian question vitally. Like the Charleston, the transports must stop at Hawaii to replenish their bunkers from the great heaps of coal that Consul General Hayward has been piling up for months past. If the Hawaiians let us take this coal without the pretext that we are using it to make our way to the nearest home port, as is required by international law in such cases, they will stand convicted of a gross breach of neutrality that in the eyes of the law of nations allies them with the United States in hostility with Spain. The taking of coal by the American ships at Hawaii to make an extensive campaign against the Spanish possessions, it is believed here, will result in compelling the United States either to assume a protectorate over the islands, or to annex them.

An earnest effort will be made to secure American boats, but it is very plainly set forth by Mr. Meikeljohn that the officials will not lose further time, but will instead ask that American registry be given to foreign vessels, or else impress American steamers into service.

Island advices leave nothing to surmise on the disposition of the governing body. Members of the Hawaiian cabinet refuse to deny or affirm the rumor that their government has offered the island to the American government as a base of operations in the war. The draft of a bill having this object in view has been received and sent to the senate in secret session, but members object to the bill, saying that all the republic can do or offer to do is contained in the annexation treaty. To pass the bill or even to consider it would savor of over-anxiety, which would be very apt to defeat its own purposes. President Dole has no power to cede the islands without ratification by the Hawaiian legislature, In the meantime the American troops will be allowed openly by the government all the freedom of the port. They will be sold all the food supplies and coal they can carry off, and will be given all the assistance lying within the power of the people.

"We have not secured any new ships, but are still negotiating for the Colon and China," said Assistant Secretary Meikeljohn. The difficulty with these ships has been the question of price, the owners of them and the department officials being unable to agree upon the rates to be paid. Mr. Meikeljohn has not yet put into execution his threat to impress some of the ships on the Pacific coast into the service of the United States, and he hopes this will not be necessary, but that the companies will offer their vessels to the government at reasonable rates. It is believed to be likely, however, that a recommendation will be made to congress granting an American registry to the Tacoma, Victoria and Argyll of the Northern Pacific steamship line so that they may be fitted out for use as transports as promptly as possible.

A large number of ships have been offered to the department at reasonable rates, but they were in such condition that the officials refused them on the ground that it would not be safe to send troops in them. Should the government decide to ask that an American registry be given to all six vessels of the Northern Pacific Steamship company and they be secured for transport purposes, these, with the five ships already secured and the China, Colon and Ohio, would furnish accommodations, it is believed, for between 15,000 and 17,000 men—just about the number which the war department will send to Admiral Dewey.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The body of an elderly woman supposed to be Mrs. McKay of East Boston was found floating at Gloucester last evening.

The dry goods store of L. & S. Myers of Exeter, N. H., was damaged by fire to the amount of $2000, while there was about $1000 damage to the building.

Adjutant Butler of the Sixth Massachusetts has been named as engineer of the corps. His appointment has been submitted to General Graham of Camp Alger.

Romigno Jimenez, one of the passengers on the Panama, which was seized three weeks ago, was arrested on the vessel yesterday in Key West on suspicion of being a spy.

Ex-Senator William F. Ray of Franklin, Mass., died suddenly of heart failure on his arrival home from Boston yesterday. He served two terms as senator in '93 and '94, and was a prominent Republican.

The pall-bearers at the funeral of Mr. Gladstone will be the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Marquis of Salisbury, the Earl of Kimberley, the Earl of Rosebery, the archbishop of Canterbury, A. J. Balfour and Sir William Vernon-Harcourt.

The Fanita, a 400-ton Cuban expedition steamer, dropped down the ship channel from Mobile yesterday, bound probably to Tampa, but no one knows precisely her destination. Four carloads of material were taken on the vessel, consisting of ammunition, guns and stores.

The secretary of war sent to the house an estimate of $5,000,000 deficiency in the current appropriation for subsistence of the army. It will be included in the general deficiency bill, making a total of $91,000,000 for the army so far received for this measure.

The body of Henry Cory of Fisherville, Mass., who was killed on the railroad about a quarter of a mile south of Chippewanoxette station, R. I., was found yesterday. His skull was fractured and legs and arms were crushed when the locomotive struck him.

TAX ON CORPORATIONS.

Opposition to the Proposition Heard From In the Senate.

Washington, May 25.—Mr. Platt of Connecticut declared his belief that the war revenue bill would raise a sufficient amount without the corporation tax. It was an excess of caution, he thought, that had prompted the chairman of the ways and means committee of the house to underestimate the amount which the bill probably would raise. Mr. Platt thought the bond feature proposed by the minority of the finance committee was eminently fair. It was perfectly proper that the burdens of the war should be distributed over a period of years. The burdens were thus made easier to carry. The tax on corporations was unjust for many reasons, and he was satisfied it was illegal and unconstitutional. It was notably unjust because it discriminated between persons in the same lines of business. He realized, he said, the sentiment of the present day against corporations and the desire on the part of many to get at them through taxation. The pending feature of the bill was a special excise tax on corporations, purely as such, and it is the first time it has ever been tried in this country.

Mr. Lindsay of Kentucky, in the course of a legal argument upon the corporation tax feature, said it was impossible for the government to levy taxes of this kind except on consumption and on industry. No man pretended to insist that corporate property ought not to be taxed, if taxation were necessary, but the question here presented was whether the tax proposed to be levied was fair and equitable. He maintained that it was the part of wisdom for congress to enact only such legislation as would be beyond controversy in the courts.

Mr. Frye declared that the proposed tax on corporations was a good scheme to encourage enlistment in the United States army. "I fully and firmly believe," said he, "that if this feature of the bill be enacted into law 1,000,000 of men will be out of work." Mr. Frye maintained that the burden of the tax would fall upon the men and women who work in the mills, for it was perfectly evident that, in the event the tax is levied, the mills must either close entirely, or reduce wages. In either event strikes and misery would result in industrial centers. Mr. Frye objected, too, to the tax on bank deposits because of the burden placed upon deposits in savings banks. He did not believe, he said, that senators from the south had any proper conception of the savings bank as it was known in New England. It was really a philanthropic institution.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 25.—Governor Wolcott sent to the senate yesterday a brief message, significant in light of recent bank troubles in the state. He asks if it is not desidable to limit more strictly the connection in locality or in the personnel of their officers, of savings banks and other money institutions. He further says: "The commonwealth has in some degree assumed the position of a guardian of the savings of her industrious and frugal citizens of moderate means, and as experience may from time to time indicate that new safeguards are reasonable and necessary it becomes, in my opinion, the duty of the legislature to remove causes of danger or distrust."

Governor Wolcott was sustained in his veto of the Boston aldermanic bill. Far from obtaining a two-thirds vote, the friends of the bill in the house could not even get a majority, the vote on passing over the veto being 62 yeas to 98 nays.

The bill to prevent a continuance of the practice of so-called "coinsurance" on mercantile risks was refused a third reading in the senate by a vote of 9 to 17.

The Omaha junket was disapproved of by the house.

The senate discussed the bill on using the national emblem for advertising purposes without reaching a vote.

Friction Over Fisheries.

St. Johns, May 25.—Owing to the action of the colonial cabinet in enforcing the law prohibiting the export of bait from our waters to the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, the French fishery on the Grand banks this season is practically ruined. The French in retaliation demand that the colonial cabinet shall forbid nomadic Newfoundland vessels from fishing on the treaty coast, where the French have fishery rights.

The British colonial office wired asking the Newfoundland colonial ministry to frame resolutions to that effect, fearing to provoke trouble between France and Great Britain. The Newfoundland cabinet declines to interfere, contending that this is a matter for inquiry by the royal commission recently appointed to investigate the colony's affairs. It is expected that the cabinet's decision will lead to severe friction between the French and English warships along the treaty coast this season.

Doings of Commoners.

London, May 25.—In the house of commons yesterday the Irish local government bill passed the committee stage. Sir Charles Dilke, with others, vainly tried to get the government to fix a day for the discussion of the recent Birmingham speech of Mr. Chamberlain on the subject of an Anglo-Saxon alliance and the foreign policy of the government. The chancellor of the exchequer and Mr. Chamberlain both expressed their readiness for such a discussion, but only on a proper resolution representing a large section of the house.

May Remove Van Wyck.

New York, May 25.—Governor Black has returned to his home in Troy and is now in a position to give due attention to any charges against Mayor Van Wyck that may be laid before him. That he fully appreciates the importance of the matter is shown by what he said to a reporter: "This question is a momentous one, and is second in importance only to that of the war." The governor says he will act if charges are laid before him, but he will not now forecast what his action may be.

Tank Exploded.

St. Louis, May 25.—A gasoline tank at the American steel foundry at Granite City, Ills., exploded yesterday, fatally burning Charles Kuhns and slightly injuring 14 other persons, mostly negroes. Mr. Kuhns was the chemist for the company and was directing the removal of a huge tank of gasoline. The employes were engaged in the work when the tank burst. The damage is estimated at $15,000.

LIKE A LION READY TO LEAP.

When the Dandy left Key West last Friday morning Admiral Sampson was still there. It was the opinion of naval officers that he would sail for Cienfuegos soon by the eastern route, the two fleets completing the circle of Cuba.

The battleship Iowa followed Commodore Schley on Friday, but was overtaken off Cape San Antonio Saturday by the Dupont with secret instructions. The battleship immediately increased her speed to the limit, and when last seen was guarding the entrance to the passage between the Isle of Pines and Cuba. The Dupont rushed on to Cienfuegos.

Spanish Trick at Martinique.

St. Pierre, May 25.—The Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror is being coaled by the Alicante, which lies at the mouth of the Fort de France harbor. It was all along supposed that she was a hospital ship; but there is no doubt that she carries a cargo of coal for the Spanish warships. Her pretensions to be a hospital ship were obviously put forward as a blind.

The United States consul has cautioned the French officials of the port not to allow the Terror to take coal in excess of the quantity necessary to carry it to the nearest Spanish port.

At Chickamauga Camp.

Chickamauga, National Park, May 25.—There are nod 35,000 men in the voulnteer army under tents at this point, and the officers of the army expect that by Saturday night there will be 44,000. The Third Tennessee regiment and the First Vermont have been assigned to the First brigade of the First division of the corps.

General Breckinridge and staff continued the inspection of the divisions of the First corps in detail. He found the hospital facilities inadequate, but fortunately there are very few sick, and they are being cared for at St. Vincent's hospital of the sisters of charity. He states that very soon the hospital department will be in good condition.

Too Zealous Consul.

Kingston, Jamaica, May 25.—The Spanish consul, acting under the neutrality proclamation, asks of the colonial authorities the right to search the Adula when she arrives from Cienfuegos tonight with Americans or other persons who may have taken advantage of her to leave that city. He is in search of dispatches from the American blockading fleet to the navy department and of communications from spies. He avers that on her previous trip fom Cienfuegos the Adula brought mail from the Marblehead; and he cites the British neutrality clause declaring that official dispatches are contraband.

The colonial authorities, after inquiry, replied that no proof existed of the existence of official dispatches from the Marblehead, but only of the personal letters of the officers and men which were accepted as an act of courtesy for mailing here.

The Spanish consul, persisting in his demand for the privilege to search all packages sealed or unsealed, and the persons of passengers, the colonial government replied that such a thing could not be allowed without proof of reasonable probability. The colonial authorities are understood to have inquired of London for advice. They are reluctant to do anything displeasing to the United States, and yet are determined to enforce neutrality.

Nothing Is Disclosed.

Madrid, May 25.—A mysterious silence reigns in official circles. The government discloses nothing from the seat of war. A local paper observes: "An unexplained feeling of despondency is noticeable. As no bad news has been received, we can only suggest that this feeling is caused by fears of a prolongation of the war."

The national subscription to increase the strength of the Spanish naval forces has now reached 12,000,000 pesetas.

Physical Ills of Cubans.

Des Moines, Ia., May 25.—The United States consul at Matanzas, A. G. Brice of Bedford, Ia., in an interview yesterday said: "I wish to assure the volunteers in the different states that there is little danger of the United States soldiers falling victims to disease in Cuba. I speak from experience in the province of Matanzas, where there has been the greatest suffering among the reconcentrados. The physical ills of the Cubans and Spaniards in the armies result from deplorable sanitary conditions. Field operations are perfectly practicable during the rainy season, if there is a proper observance of the ordinary rules of health."

Finances of Spain.

Madrid, May 25.—In the chamber of deputies Tuesday Mr. Puigcerver, minister of finance, replying to the criticisms of Marquis Villaverde, Conservative, with respect to the financial policy of the government, repudiated the charge of want of foresight, and answered that Spain's finances were in a "satisfactory condition," assuring the payment of all the expenses of the war. In view of the impossibility of negotiating loans abroad, there was no means of raising funds to continue the war except by an extension of the bank of Spain's note issue, which, however, did not imply a forced paper currency. He proposed to convert the treasury's floating debt, now nearly 500,000,000 pesetas, into small denomination treasury bonds. He explained the proposed conversion of the external debt, but avoided any allusion to the proposed tax on the national debt. Puigcerver affirmed the necessity of a 20 percent increase in all taxation, including that on agriculture.

Ready to Sail.

San Francisco, May 25.—Brigadier General Anderson and his staff are quartered on board the Australia and will not again leave the vessel until she reaches Honolulu. General Anderson has made a final inspection of the troops under his command, and says that everything is as well as could be expected. The men are happy and, beyond a little crowding on the City of Peking, there is no complaint heard. Colonel Hale of the Colorado volunteers has received instructions to have his men ready for embarkation on Thursday for Manila. This regiment is fully equipped.

The California state auxiliary to the Red Cross society of America was formally organized yesterday. A motion was carried allowing 25 cents per capita to the departing Oregon volunteers, the money to be put at the disposal of the medical corps. The San Francisco Produce Exchange subscribed $1200 to the fund.

The first Manila expedition comprises 2600 men. When the last soldier had embarked and the vessels drew away from the dock all the whistles and bells in the city announced the farewell and godspeed of San Francisco to the boys in blue.

Against an Alliance.

Chicago, May 25.—The united Irish societies, at a big meeting presided over by John M. Smyth, a prominent merchant, adopted resolutions emphatically condemning the suggested alliance between the United States and Great Britain. The resolutions denounce the alliance as uncalled for and nationally degrading—at variance with American tradition and the sentiment of a majority of the American people who are not of British birth or ancestry. It is declared that such an alliance would result in a European combination against us and would make us partners in crimes of the British empire against weak states and defenseless peoples. The resolutions "call upon the American government, executive and legislative, to repudiate a policy so suicidal that it could not fail to fill with disgust millions of loyal American citizens."

The principal speaker, John Finerty, said: "We will fight this alliance on the platform and at the polls. We are willing and eager to fight for America, but we will never fire a shot or lose a single drop of blood for England."

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 25.—According to The Post "one of the remarkable things about this war is the development of problems. They come faster than battles and are at least equally momentous. When they come we face them with a sort of surprise."

"With the expiration of the present war," The Advertiser thinks that "the United States is likely to enter upon a remarkable era of prosperity and of commercial and industrial development."

"Nothing ca nsave Cervera and his ships if they are once caught in the deadly trap at Santiago," says The Journal. "A battle there might not be so immediately decisive as a combat of fleet against fleet at sea."

"Between the extremes of hesitancy and of rashness there is a safe middle ground in war as in all other ventures," The Globe remarks. "Undoubtedly these two extremes have been striving for mastery in our counsels in this war, but when we can find the happy mean let up adopt it."

Swell Dayton Bicycles.

They're built right from start to finish; skilled mechanics alone are employed in their construction. Every piece of steel is filed and accurately guaged. The finest materials in the world are used in their construction.

Three-point bearings reduce the friction one-fourth, and make Dayton Bicycles alone 25 per cent. easier running than any other bicycle manufactured.

Facts are stubborn things, and Dayton facts appeal to critical riders who want the best, and they keep the Dayton factories running night and day to meet the demands.

TO OCCUPY PORTO RICO.

Ten Thousand Soldiers to Be Landed on the Island.

Belief That Movement May Be Made Safely.

Sampson Watching Havana and Schley at Santiago.

Washington, May 26.—Cuba is to be invaded at once.

No danger threatens the moving of troops upon the sea. The Spanish fleet, caged in Santiago harbor, is helpless. It is threatened from without by Schley's fighting squadron and will soon be hemmed in on the land side by soldiers wearing the uniform of the United States. Troops may already have left Tampa for Key West, the advance guard of the invading army.

Simultaneously, perhaps, with the movement upon Cuba will come the seizure and military occupation of Porto Rico.

This plan is now under serious consideration. General Miles favors it, and pressure in the same direction is being brought to bear upon the president by leading senators. There are only 13,000 Spanish troops on the island. A force of 15,000 American soldiers could easily defeat them. Over the island the American flag would then float proudly.

The problem of transportation has been greatly simplified by the trapping of the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Santiago. There were rumors yesterday to the effect that Admiral Cervera might not be in Santiago, and two or three of the cable officers did not hesitate to express some skepticism as to the Spanish admiral's presence there. It is known, however, that Schley has reported that he has the enemy safely caged. It is hardly likely that he has sent this information of his personal knowledge, for the miniature mountains which rise between the inner basin of the harbor and the sea prevent an actual sight of the ships.

There is a general belief that Cervera hopes to soon hear of the arrival of reinforcements from Cadiz. His maneuvers have indicated that he is awaiting reinforcements, and it is believed that the need of economizing his coal supply, which he has found difficulty in replenishing, necessitated his seeking a harbor of refuge, where he could enjoy comparative immunity from attack until reinforcements, accompanied by transports, should arrive to join him. It required too great a risk for him to attempt to reach Cienfuegos, and he was then left to choose between Santiago de Cuba and San Juan, Porto Rico.

As soon as a sufficient army is landed in Cuba to hold the Spanish in check at every point and to warrant aggressive operations, there will be an attack by land forces upon Santiago de Cuba, which could speedily be compelled to surrender. The occupation of Santiago de Cuba by our troops and the blockading of the entrance to the harbor by our fleet would leave the Spanish fleet utterly without support or escape, and the Spanish admiral would either have to surrender or have his fleet destroyed.

The same plan contemplates the bombardment of Havana and a general attack upon the Spanish forces at all quarters.

Rear Admiral Sampson, with a strong naval force, is lying off the northern coast of Cuba, prepared to bombard Havana the moment the military invasion begins. While the ships attached to Commodore Schley's squadron are subject to the orders of Rear Admiral Sampson, the latter officer assigned to the commander of the flying squadron the duty of preventing the departure of the Spanish fleet from the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, while he directed the operations against Havana and gave protection to the blockading men-of-war and the Atlantic and gulf coasts of the United States.

The call for 75,000 additional volunteers which was issued Wednesday makes it clear that the president expects the war with Spain to continue for some time. It has been recently demonstrated that the untrained volunteer soldier will require from three to six months' constant drill and instruction to bring him up to the requisite standard of efficiency, and the authorities believe that the sooner the new men are put into camp, and under training, the sooner they will be ready for service.

It is understood the new volunteers will form a reserve force, so that such regiments as may become depleted through sickness or disaster can be recruited to their former strength by reserves from their own states. The desire, apparently, is to escape the disastrous experience of the civil war, when depleted regiments of seasoned men were used to fill the ranks of raw and untrained volunteers. It is believed the department may avoid calling for the state quotas in regiments. The drafts on the states will be made in round numbers, and the men thrown directly into camps of instruction under the charge of the government.

The Transports Off.

San Francisco, May 26.—At 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon Brigadier General Anderson signaled from the Australia, directing the City of Peking and the City of Sydney to get under way. The signal was seen from the shore, and the waiting crowds commenced to cheer wildly. The noise made by patriotic citizens on sea and shore was something terrific. Every steam whistle in the city appeared to be blowing, cannon were fired and the din lasted for fully an hour. As the Australia passed Alcatras island, in the lead of the other ships, the battery of United States artillery stationed there fired a salute to General Anderson. The colors were dipped in recognition.

What London Editors Suggest.

London, May 26.—In face of the conflicting reports as to the whereabouts and doings of the American and Spanish fleets, the London morning papers consider it idle to speculate. The Times, nowever, suggests that the United States government might land an expeditionary force in the vicinity of Santiago, which could thus be invested by land and sea and could not hold out long. Such an enterprise The Times thinks, if successful, might put not only the Spanish vessels, but the cable station into American hands.

The Daily News says: "The bold course of a rush into the harbor would be most consistent with Rear Admiral Sampson's character for dash and daring, and the most likely to produce a decisive result; but it must be done quickly, lest other Spanish ships may be drawing near enough to relieve Admiral Cervera. If the latter knew that such relief were coming, he could probably easily slip out of Santiago harbor under cover of darkness. Admiral Hornby showed how this could be done when, in 1885, he took a whole fleet out of Bantry bay, unseen by the cruisers that were watching for SHERIFF POWERLESS.

Jail In Key West Invaded by Sailors and Marines.

Inflamed by the Report of a Murder.

Intense Feeling Aroused Against the Colored Population.

Key West, May 26.—What threatened to develop into an ugly affair, if not a lynching, occurred last night. A report was circulated that a marine had been shot and killed by a negro from a second story window. Nobody seemed to know what had become of the victim or perpetrator, but the report reached the sailors and marines, the latter of whom were enjoying their first day's liberty since arriving here, and they formed into two battalions and marched on the jail with loaded revolvers.

Sheriff Knight met them at the door and parleyed, assuring them that the negro was not in custody. The invaders drew off a short distance and selected two bluejackets and one marine to go through the jail. The sheriff was powerless to resist. Twelve negroes were found in the jail, but as the identity of the supposed murderer was a mystery the party was halted. Some of the more turbulent spirits suggested a lynching of a negro on principle, but upon the sheriff's promising to find and produce the assailant, if the story were true, the party left and scoured the town in the hope of coming upon their man.

While returning from the jail the party met another jackie, who thought he could identify the supposed murderer. Another march on the jail followed, and the man looked over the colored prisoners, but failed to identify. There were cool heads among the marchers, and they advised giving the sheriff a chance to get Kitchen and two other suspected negroes named Kidd and Spencer. The party eventually dispersed at a late hour without further trouble, although determined to avenge the assaults and indignities from negroes.

The feeling among the jackies and the marines against the negro population is intense, aggravated by the affray of Tuesday night, when Charles Kitchen, a negro, shot and wounded two seamen. Their revenge will be quite as well satisfied if Kitchen can be located.

At a late hour squads of marines were out patrolling the streets, gathering in the marines and the sailors. A guard of more than 70 armed soldiers was placed around the jail. It is currently reported that martial law will be declared before another nightfall.

Jiminez' Cipher Letter.

Key West, May 26.—The investigation of the case of the suspected Spanish spy, Remigro Jiminez, brought out new facts yesterday. A search of Jiminez's effects revealed a cipher letter, which turned out to be the key to 59 charts of the Atlantic coast from Maine to Florida, particular minuteness being shown as to the vicinity of Norfolk, New York, Boston and Providence harbors, and the inlets around Tampa. All the Florida keys and the Tortugas are also explained in detail. The bill for these charts is made out in the name of M. Rapurta. Under examination Jiminez at first asserted that he had shipped them to Rapurta at some South American point on April 18, but later he contradicted himself, and eventually declared that he had made them in New York. Other papers found on him apparently verify his showing that he had bought the charts from a New York firm on April 19 for $27.25 and sold them for $60. A rigorous search failed to locate the charts. Jiminez swears that he was an engineer in the Spanish navy in Cuban waters, but ran away in 1890, since which time he has lived in New York. An old sword and a pair of new epaulettes found in his trunk were a part of his equipment.

Passengers on the Panama say they recognize Jiminez as a lieutenant of the Spanish navy. Letters from a nephew and other relatives seem to fix his name as given. The officials are inclined to the belief that others on the Panama are associated with Jiminez in whatever scheme he may be engineering, and for this reason the prisoner was taken off the steamer and placed under guard on a smack as a prisoner of war. Several persons claimed to recognize in the suspect Lieutenant Sobral, former naval attache of the Spanish legation in Washington, but there is nothing to warrant such a theory.

Brockton, Mass., May 26.—The Fletcher Webster post, G. A. R., at a meeting to act upon the proposed changing of the department constitution so as to eliminate the provision which allowed past department commanders to sit in the convention as life delegates, voted 86 to 1 in favor of the change. The provision has given rise for two years to the contention in the department popularly termed as a fight against the "house of lords."

Cut Off His Arm.

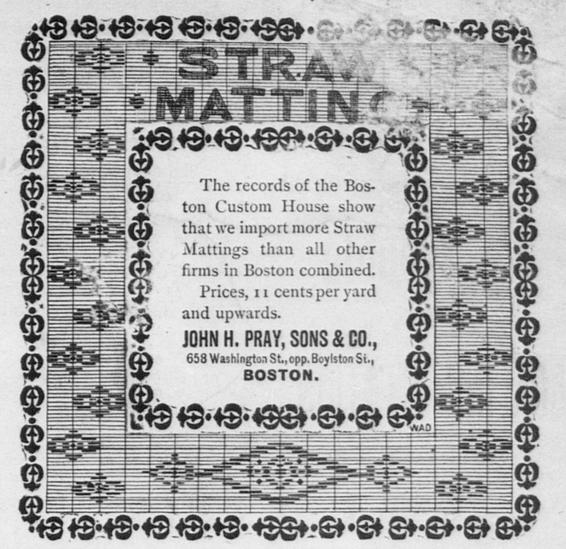

Woonsocket, R. I., May 26.—Alvin Niles of Bennington, Vt., now living at Sayles Hill, four miles from this city, for some unknown reason laid his left arm on a chopping block and severed it below the elbow with an ax. He lies in a critical condition from loss of blood.

The Bulletin Face.

Have you noticed it on the faces of your friends lately. That sudden shifting of the eyes. That sort of an expectant, listening look; that quick, flashing, changing, joyous, wondering combination look? You have and didn't know what to make of it? That's the Bulletin Face. It's not an ingrowing affair or an incurable. It's just a look caused by trying to make out what is where and who is when; by trying to read the Bulletins down in Newspaper Row. He stands in front of the bulletin and reads, and reads, "San Juan has fallen." He does not know whether San Juan is a Spanish Hildago, a war ship or a town. But he hears someone say, "That is good!" so he smiles and wonders. Another bulletin says Cienfuegos has fallen. He hasn't any idea who Cienfuegos is, or where he worked before he got that way; but he knows it does not sound as if an American had surrendered, so he goes and drinks another and comes back to learn that Cavite and Admiral Cervera have sailed for Santiago de Martinique. That sounds well, so he goes and has another smile, and when he comes back he learns that Sampson has blown up 12 Spanish ships and but two American warships were disabled. He understands that and lets a war whoop that would drown the whistle on T. A. Whicher's shop. That's the cause of the new face you see on some of your friends.

When you see a man whose expression is just a settled smile, a continued "tickled to death" look, that's one of the Quincy Clothing Co.'s customers.—Chestnuts! did you say? That's wrong, we do not deal in them. All our goods are new, stamped "1898." No, sir; it's no chestnut. But when you pick up a Boston newspaper and read of the "Great Receiver's Sale," "Bankrupt Sale," or "Dissolution Sale," you may well say chestnuts, for it is the same old story.

We have for this week some suits at $6.50 and $7.50 in Blues, Grays and Browns, that we want to sell you. No Boston clothing merchant can beat the pants we sell for $1.48. For $2.48 we have a child's suit that cannot be equalled in this city for $3.50. Searching Quincy.

Officers Maguire and Hickey of Boston visited Quincy Wednesday and accompanied by Chief Litchfield, and Officers Ferguson, McKay, Bradley and Morrissey made a tour of the Italian district in search of Antonio Di Blasi, the murderer of James M. Ellis, and Di Blasi's wife. It was known that Di Blasi's wife came to Quincy Tuesday night and it was thought that she might be here now and would possibly know of her husband's whereabouts. It was however ascertained that while she came to Quincy Tuesday night she returned to Boston on the next train. No trace of the murderer was found here.

GOOD WORK OF WOLLASTON SCHOOL.

Shown at an Exhibition Last Evening—Reception to Parents.

A pleasing event in educational as well as in social circles on Wednesday evening was the reception tendered by Mr. Charles E. Finch, Jr., the master of the Wollaston school, to the parents of the pupils and the friends of the school.

Mr. and Mrs. Finch, assisted by Superintendent and Mrs. H. W. Lull received the guests in the large assembly hall of the school.

The hall was appropriately decorated for the occasion with a liberal display of flags and bunting, cut and potted plants. Around the four sides of the hall long tables were set, upon which were exhibited specimens of the pupils' work. The hall was brilliantly illuminated with banquet lamps.

It is said that poets are born, not made; and the same is true of teachers especially, it would seem after viewing last evening's exhibition of the Wollaston teachers. The one thing which makes the true teacher and distinguishes him from the mechanical pedagogue is the faculty of interesting himself in the single pupil — seeing watching, aiding the development of the individual mind. In looking over the work of the various grades this was peculiarly apparent. The proficiency exhibited by all of the pupils in not only reading, writing and arithmetic but in drawing, in botany, in natural history and in various art features.

MR. C. E. FINCH, JR.

The exhibition has a deep significance, it shatters the old-fashioned idea that a poor knowledge of the rudiments of reading, writing, and arithmetic constitutes in itself an education. Nowadays the two chief ends for which puplis attend schools are knowledge and training.

For example, color having been accepted by the leading educators as an important means of mental development, it has been introduced into the lowest grade of which Miss Thayer is the teacher. In the same grade the children show remarkable proficiency in writing, as well as in nature work, —which developes the perspective faculties, the imaginative and reflective powers of these children of but six and seven years of age.

At Miss Cameron's table (Grade II), the salient features of the exhibit were the original stories about pictures; the stories about pets, such as dogs, cats; color work borders; neat arithmetic papers, and science papers.

Grade III, which was in charge of Miss Otis, was well shown by the language paper; drawing, literature, vertical writing, drawing of flowers from nature, and especially by the paper "Our School Leaflet." An article regarding this line of work appeared in a recent number of "Primary Education" and Ledger.

Miss Crane of Grade IV, was unable to be present owing to an attack of the grip, but she was most ably represented by her substitute, Miss Edith Howe. The principal feature of this table was the interest which the puplis of this grade have evinced in historical research of contemporaneous, as well as ancient Quincy history. There were some very good papers upon the interpretation of the seal of the city, and also several photographs of historical interest.

At Miss Bates' table (Grade V) the pupils besides excelling in the regular school work, have shown great aptitude with their scrap book, and in constructing charts of head and tail pieces and historic ornaments clipped from contemporary periodicals.

The best work which was shown by Miss Marden's grade (VI) was the envelopes containing papers from all branches of work. There was also an abundant display of art sheets illustrating historic ornament, fancy initials, head pieces, and original book-cover designs, some of which were very striking and showed great originality. There was also shown at this table artists' books containing pictures of famous artists.

Miss Ridley (Grade (VII) exhibited sketch books combining history, literature and drawing; scrap books in history and geography. There was also a beautiful display of moths and butterflies which the children had raised from caterpillars.

At Mr. Finch's table there was a general resume on a finished scale of all the previous work. One noticable feature is the "Wollaston Semi-Weekly Journal" which is published by the pupils of that grade. It is a minature newspaper with all the bad features of sensational journalism eliminated. The design for cloth (prints) handkerchief orders and book-covers were well executed. The drawings of the American flags on the blackboard were executed by one of the pupils of Grade VIII, Walter G. Thomas.

It is apparent from this exhibition that our boys and girls are receiving an education that will best fit them for careers upon which the vast majority will enter when they are graduated from the public schools. The pupils are not only well grounded in reading, grammar, writing, arithmetic, spelling, business correspondence and single entry bookkeeping, but in other branches, all of which are of a character to confer the greatest practical educational benefit upon the masses who cannot hope to enjoy advantages of education other than those offered by the public schools.

The instrumental and vocal music by the pupils was well rendered. The programme:

Violin solo, by Ray Weston.
Duet, by Jessie Ray and Margaret Sibley.
Songs, by the Eighth grade.
Violin duet, by Ray Weston and Morris Litchfield.
Piano duet, by Bessie Drew and Blanche Rhodes.
Songs, by grade Eight.
Piano solo, by Carrie Miller.
Songs, by grade Eight, accompaniest, Ernest Arnold.

Pierre Loti Offers His Sword to Spain.

Lieutenant Viaud of the French navy, retired, who under the pseudonym of Pierre Loti has given to the world some charming novels, is in Madrid, where he has offered his sword to the queen regent. Concerning his journey there Le Figaro says, "This is not only a tribute of sympathy which he will carry to the Spanish nation, but is a truly French act, which will be appreciated by the proud Spanish people." Lieutenant Viaud, who is a member of the French academy and a Protestant, was retired from the French navy about a month ago at the robust age of 48 for no other apparent reason than that he wanted to devote his entire time to literature.

TO STOP THE WAR.

French Minister Urging International Action.

London, May 26—The Star claims to have information that the French minister of foreign affairs is urging the government to stop the war. He is also using his endeavors to have Russia, Austria and France try and enduce Germany and Italy to join in a representation to President McKinley that the powers will endeavor to secure the independence of Cuba. Should America refuse, it is said that the powers would send an armed fleet to Cuba and place it under international rule. This, however, is not regarded seriously in London.

The Pall Mall Gazette calls it all moonshine, and does not believe that France or any other power wants to burn its fingers with Spanish chestnuts.

Pronouncing Spanish.

A Quincy gentleman who has made a study of the Spanish language, and who has travelled in Spain has kindly come to the relief of Ledger readers. He says a good deal of the difficulty many people meet with in pronouncing the Spanish names of persons and places, which occur so frequently in the papers nowadays will be obviated if they will only remember the following simple rules in respect to the Spanish language:

A is pronounced like ah.
E like eh.
I like ee.
O like oh.
U like oo.
Y like ee.

The consonants are pronounced almost as in English excepting the following:

C before e or i, is pronounced like th in then—hence the Spanish admiral now so much sought after, should be call Thervera.

Elsewhere c is pronounced like k.

D at the end of a word has a faint sound like th in than.

G before e or i has the sound of ch in the word loch, but before a, o, u, like g in got.

Gu before e or i sounds like g in got.

H is never pronounced.

J has the gutteral sound of the German ch in the word Mach-en.

Ll is pronunced like lli in million.

N is pronounced like ni in companion.

Qu is pronounced like r.

R at beginning of word or after l, n, r, s, is burred us in Ireland or Scotland.

S is never pronounced like our z.

Z is pronounced like th in then.

If a word ends in a consonant the accent is on the last syllable; ending in a vowel the stress falls on the next to last syllable.

Every vowel must be distinctly sounded.

Y before a vowel is considered as a consonant.

Suppose Quincy was a Spanish city how should it be pronounced?

Army and Navy Record.

More Quincy young men have enlisted for the war than most people imagine. It is the desire of the editor of the Daily Ledger to keep a record of all these, and he will esteem it a favor if parents and friends will forward names, with information as to warship, regiment, company, etc; also age, years of service, names of parents, etc. We desire to include also former residents and relatives of Quincy people. When letters of public interest, relative to engagements, are received, the Ledger would be pleased to publish them in full or in part. The people of Quincy will take more interest in the engagements of the New York, the Massachusetts, the Iowa, the Indiana, the Cincinnati and other battleships, if they are aware that a Quincy boy is among the heroes.

June Magazines.

The complete novel in the June issue of LIPPINCOTT'S, "Mere Folly," is of somewhat unusual length for the Magazine and of a high order of merit. Its well-known author, Marie Louise Pool, has done nothing better, either in story-telling or character-drawing. The two heroines are strongly contrasted, and the hero's vacilations between them make most of the plot. Henry Holcomb Bennett's article, "In Time of Peace," is of special interest just now, for it describes the National Guard and the high degree of efficiency to which it has been raised of late.

NEW LIFE AT TAMPA.

PROSPERITY HAS REACHED IT WITH THE INFLUX OF TROOPS.

Contrast of War and Peace—Concert and Dances Given to Entertain the Military Visitors—Charms of the Cuban Refugee Women—Some Revolutionary Soldiers.

The Spanish proverb—if one may quote anything Spanish in these warlike days—that it is an ill wind that blows no one any good, was never better illustrated than by the present flourishing condition of Tampa. It had recently closed its season of prosperity; its great hostelry had barred up its door; its winter guests had fled before the approach of tropical heat; the usual cloud of white, ashlike dust had settled down over every green thing, and the little city had shrunk into its summer insignifiance. Then war came, and the trumpet blast that sent a shiver of discouragement throughout the land woke Tampa into new life.

The great inn has opened its doors again, soldiers are making their small purchases where rich northern visitors lavished their thousands a few weeks before, business men have foregone their summer vacation, and the city has settled down to driving one of the most prosperous trades that any community of its size ever made out of war or peace. Every one here appreciates this great opportunity. Congressmen have availed themselves of the temporary importance of the port to have it transformed into a permanent military post; the railways have utilized the occasion by rushing trains into and out of the city bearing troops, arms, military stores and crowds of curious persons, and the shops, having already sold out all their stock of articles, have emptied into this little place the larger supply of Jacksonville and Savannah and are now drawing upon the north and west. Real estate is also feeling the impetus, and if the war continues along present lines of peaceful blockades and long encampments Tampa bids fair to be the commercial metropolis of Florida within a few months.

There is present always the sharp contrast between war and peace and half an effort to thrust war aside for the moment in order that the thousands who have assembled here may taste some of the pleasures of tranquillity before the struggle begins in dreadful earnest. Tampa's war season was opened by a ball, just as Waterloo was preceded by the Byronic "sound of revelry by night." A faint effort has been made ever since to keep up this semblance of gayety. Concerts or dances are given nightly, and the military bands and musical Cuban women entertain the martial and civilian throng that has flowed into and deluged the city. Now and then a concert is given by the feminine members of the community of Cuban refugees here, and a small admission charge is made to collect money for the revolutionary forces.

The Cuban refugees are rendering their country one great service—they are dispelling any doubts that existed in the minds of our people as to their worthiness and that of their cause. Letters and editorials about "mulattoes," "half breeds" and an "unworthy race" could never have been written by any one who had seen the charming and refined women who have had to flee from Cuba to find a haven in our country. Many women in the Cuban colony here would be remarked for their culture and refinement in any fashionable circle in the United States or in any court of the old world. They are proving by their own excellence the worth of the people in whose behalf we are marshaling our armies and for the freedom of whose country we are preparing to offer a sacrifice of life and treasure.

I recently returned from the inspection of the 700 Cubans who have volunteered for service under General Lacret Morlot. These troops were reviewed by Lieutenant Meiley of General Shafter's staff at their headquarters in Huespedes hall in West Tampa. They have been victualed for several days by our army and will be armed and equipped as soon as they are got aboard the transports. A large percentage of them are negroes, possibly one in every five. They are quite small men, and apparently not strong enough to undergo a long or arduous campaign. Most of them seem to be unfit for service, and if it were not for the consciousness that they have behind them the supporting arm of the United States one would feel as if they were marching to certain destruction. If their compatriots in Cuba are no stronger or hardier, the quality of their Spanish adversaries can readily be inferred. Such troops could never drive Spain from Cuba, although they might wage a guerrilla war for a century, handing down their rifles and machetes from father to son, and maintain a sort of government in the mountain fastnesses. Courage could not make amends for their lack of the physical qualities necessary for the soldier.

They make a sorry contrast to our own troops. The latter are seasoned fighters, admirably drilled and handled, and every man of the 6,000 is physically qualified for a long campaign of the hardest and fiercest kind of fighting. A company of them would be equal now to a regiment of these unseasoned and untrained Cubans. It is possible, however, that under the skill and experience of General Lacret Morlot they will rapidly become serviceable troops. Both Morlot and Nunez have had plenty of experience in the field, and the former at least is a fine disciplinarian. They are also officered by young men who have seen some service in Cuba. General Sanguily will, it is thought, organize an entirely different body, which will follow the present expedition, or accompany it if his soldiers can be got together in time. The forces here and at Port Tampa are in excellent health and spirits. All are fully equipped and ready to move at once.—Stanhope Sams in New York Times.

Flowers are the poetry of the earth; babies the sonnets of humanity. Banish the smiles, the dimples and the laughter of childhood and the world would become a barren wilderness, inhabited by savages. Woman's ultimate mission, duty and joy on earth are comprised in the one word, "Motherhood." Multitudes of women fail of this mission because of weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism. They do not understand that disorders of this description unfit them for wifehood and motherhood, and as a consequence are careless and neglectful of their health in a womanly way. Others who realize the truth, shrink from the "examinations" and "local treatments" insisted upon by the average physician. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does away with the necessity for these obnoxious examinations and local treatments. It acts directly and only on the delicate and important organs that are the vestibule of human life and makes them strong, healthy, vigorous, virile and elastic. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It banishes the annoyances of the uncomfortable period preceding maternity and makes baby's arrival in the world easy and nearly painless. All the dangers of maternity vanish under its beneficent influence. Its use during the period of anticipation is a guarantee of the little stranger's health and an ample supply of natural nourishment. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits. All medicine stores sell it. Accept no substitute that may be represented as "just as good."

"For ten years I suffered untold misery," writes Mrs. Carline King, of New Boston, Scioto Co., Ohio. "I then took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and eleven months later presented my husband with a twelve-pound boy. My health is good."

WHITNEY ROAD.

The property on Hancock street known as the E. B. This places upon the market the very best building lots in Quincy. These lots of about 7,000 square feet, are close to the centre of the city, railroad station, electric cars, schools, churches, etc., and while having all the advantages of a central location, are sufficiently removed from the main highway to avoid its noise and dust.

Restrictions have been placed on each lot to insure the character of the property.

EXPOSITION IN PARIS.

Matter of Boycotting It Discussed Seriously.

French Feeling For Spain the Reason.

Dictates of Diplomacy Against Display of National Resentment.

Washington, May 26.—While the provision in the sundry civil appropriation bill for the proper representation of this country at the Paris exposition, which was inserted by the senate, has not yet been taken up in a formal way by the conference committee which is considering the bill, the subject has had more or less attention from the members of the committee as individuals. They appreciate the delicacy of the situation, realizing that they are acting largely in a diplomatic capacity in dealing with this subject, and accordingly they are impressed with the necessity of proceeding with caution.

Their attention has been called to both sides of the question, and the fact has developed that there is an element in this country quite opposed to making any appropriation because of the alleged partiality of France toward Spain in the present war. The fact has also developed that at least one member of the committee is of the opinion that no appropriation should be made under the circumstances. The indications are, however, quite strong that this view will not prevail unless some act of hostility should be committed by the French people, and so long as the French government continues to declare its good will the prevailing opinion among the committeemen seems to be that the wise and proper policy is to proceed in the matter just as would be done if there were no war on.

Some of the house conferrees are of the opinion that the senate provision looking to the ultimate expenditure of about $750,000 on the exposition is too liberal and that it would be at any time more than this country would be justified in expending upon a foreign exhibition. They are advocating a reduction to the extent of a third of that amount, placing the limit at $500,000, and it appears probable that this change may be made.

However, this is not decided upon, nor is anything in connection with the provision. All that can be said definitely now is that the committee as a whole is favorably disposed to make provision for an exhibition of American products in Paris that will do credit to our country and be an earnest of our good will toward France. Some members of the committee even feel that the diplomatic situation is such as to render it more expedient than ordinarily would be the case to act liberally in the matter now and it is understood that the administration has quietly presented this view. There is a feeling that the appropriation should be made, and if subsequent developments should prove its expenditure unwise the president can be trusted to act in accordance with the best interests of the country.

Question of Annexation.

Washington, May 26.—The active opponents of Hawaiian annexation in the senate, it is learned, agreed to the arrangement for daily sessions of the senate beginning at 11 o'clock only after an understanding with a number of Republican senators that the question should not be earnestly pressed in any form at this session. Democratic senators were appealed to to expedite consideration of the revenue bill, and as a counter proposition they asked that annexation be dropped.

No party arrangement resulted from these propositions, the Republicans being disinclined as a party to leave the Hawaiian issue go over, but a number gave assurance that such legislation should not be seriously pressed at this session. These assurances, Democratic senators hostile to annexation say, are sufficiently numerous to warrant them in believing an adjournment of congress will be taken without action by the senate on Hawaii.

The course of the house on Hawaiian annexation is a matter of considerable doubt. A sufficient number of members for calling a caucus subscribed to a paper now in the hands of Representative Grosvenor of Ohio, chairman of the caucus, asking that a meeting be convoked at once, but the understanding is that nothing will be done until next week, when it is possible that the subject will get before the house.

Mr. Teller Objected.

Washington, May 26.—When debate on the revenue bill was resumed Wednesday, Mr. Allen said that he felt humiliated because both branches of congress were controlled by the money power and that the voice of the people was almost stifled, or treated with contempt if heard at all. We were rapidly drifting from a republic to an offensive aristocracy. Discussing the war, Mr. Allen said that the very purpose for which it was begun had evidently been abandoned. The poor people of Cuba were starving by the hundreds every day, yet not an ounce of food or medicine had been conveyed to them. He would vote every dollar and every man necessary to conduct the war. He had served his country in one war, and would shoulder a musket again if necessary. Mr. Allen took strong ground against any proposed alliance between this country and Great Britain, declaring that he would oppose it with all his power until England should give to Ireland what the United States gave its people—home rule.

Mr. Allison asked unanimous consent that debate on the bill be completed Saturday next before the adjournment of the senate. Mr. Teller objected. Mr. Jones of Arkansas had no doubt that the bill could be completed this week, but he deemed it wise not to hamper the senate by a definite agreement.

Mr. Daniel did not believe the bill could be completed this week. If certain provisions were stricken out, he had other amendments which would certainly lead to some debate. He did not think necessity for haste existed. If the news that the Spanish fleet was bottled up at Santiago should prove true, Mr. Daniel thought it might be unnecessary to plunge the nation into a great debt.

Mr. Teller said he had no disposition unduly to delay a vote upon the bill, but he was not to be moved "by the insane clamor for haste." The government would get all the money it needed, and get it in plenty of time.

No Caucus This Week.

Washington, May 26.— General Grosvenor, chairman of the Republican caucus of the house, states that no caucus on the Hawaiian question will be held this week. "Many of the members have social engagements for Thursday evening," he said, "and are opposed to a meeting then. Friday night is set apart for private pension legislation. Saturday night is impracticable for a caucus. Monday is Memorial day. Hence, you see there is no time at which we could conveniently get together before next Tuesday. By that time, we may get together, and it is possible that no caucus will be necessary."

Previous to making this statement General Grosvenor had been presented with a formal request, signed by the necessary number of Republican members, that a caucus be called for this afternoon or night. Chairman Hitt and others of the foreign affairs committee have had several interviews with Speaker Reed in behalf of a rule and represented the strong majority of the house in its favor, but while not making a definite refusal, Mr. Reed has not indicated his assent.

The members of the foreign affairs committee are not disposed to join in the movement, but they assert their belief, though not entire confidence, that a rule will shortly be forthcoming, and pending that they are not inclined to force matters. The indications are that the question will be delayed long enough to get the revenue bill out of the senate in accordance with the understanding in that body.

BASEBALL IN ST. LOUIS.

Beaneaters Favored by Fortune In Wednesday's Game.

St. Louis, May 26.—The champions snatched victory from the jaws of defeat in the seventh inning yesterday. Up to that time both teams played a beautiful game, with the advantage on the side of the browns for both steadiness and brilliancy. Taylor was in fine fettle, and, although the Boston boys found him, it was with little effect. Then his home run and his throwout of Hamilton at first were enough to make him the idol of the 2000 spectators.

The browns batted Nichols freely, but were unable to bunch their hits. In the second, with three two-base hits in sequence, they only made two runs. The Score:

The Washingtons played in very hard luck in Cleveland, and they were, furthermore, very careless. Cleveland's playing was clean and spirited. Score: 5 to 4.

Fraser outpitched Rusie and but for the errors of the Louisvilles the New Yorks would have been beaten. Score: 8 to 4.

Hawley won his eighth game for the Cincinnatis, although he was hit harder than usual. Dunn of the Brooklyns was batted much harder than the score shows. Score: 5 to 4.

Hanlon's western "phenom," Kittson, was badly exploded yesterday, when every Chicagoan scored and made at least one hit off him. Score: 20 to 4.

Donohue of the Philadelphias was an easy mark for the Pittsburgs, while Rhines kept the hits widely scattered. Ganzell of the Philadelphias, in running to second base, collided with Ely, injuring his foot, and had to retire. Score: 8 to 3.

The finest game of ball ever played on Colby's campus in Waterville, Me., took place between Bates and Colby the former winning, 3 to 2.

The Princetons defeated the Browns in the best game of the season, 4 to 1. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland occupied seats in the grandstand.

Bay State's Sixth.

Boston, May 26.—A special to The Herald from Falls Church, Va., says that the men in the Sixth regiment, Massachusetts volunteers, were examined for vaccination yesterday, and those inoculated as a precautionary measure numbered 115, divided as follows: A, 8; B, 15; C, 4; D, 8; F, 11; G, 4; H, 6; I, 10; K, 21; L, 9; M, 15.

SAMUEL W. M'CALL.

First Lieutenant C. E. Walton of company A has been appointed assistant quartermaster general of the Second brigade, and will serve on Acting Brigadier General Foster's staff.

The Sixth had a flagraising yesterday afternoon, the flag being the gift of Congressman Sprague. Congressman McCall made a patriotic address. Cheers were heartily given at the close of the exercises.

The men of company C of Lowell have sent home for supplies, and 154 pairs of shoes, underwear and other articles are expected in a few days.

Prospect of Peace.

Madrid, May 26.—The newspapers urge the government to construct batteries on the heights dominating Gibraltar; but it is asserted semi-officially that the government will not commit an unfriendly act against England so long as there is no proof of an Anglo-American alliance. If, however, such an alliance should become an accomplished fact the government would be constrained to adopt measures to secure the country against the dangers of invasion.

In reply to a question respecting the prospects of peace, Premier Sagasta said yesterday: "Such a question can be better answered in America than here. America is the aggressor. Spain is only maintaining the right of national existence, which she will continue to maintain to the last."

Shafter a Martinet.

Tampa, Fla., May 26.—An order was issued yesterday by order of General Shafter requiring every newspaper correspondent at Tampa to furnish headquarters with a copy of the paper which the correspondent represents. A strict watch will be kept on all matter printed under a Tampa date, and any prohibited statements will result in a refusal by the censor to pass upon matter written for the offending newspaper.

Court Martial For Montijo.

New York, May 26.—A cablegram from Manila bay via Hong Kong says: General Agunilado and 12 other insurgents who came from Hong Kong in the McCulloch landed at Cavite Tuesday. They tell me the rebels have taken possession of Subig and have 30,000 men ready to fight against the Spaniards as soon as they can get arms. A report was brought to the flagship that the rebels had attacked the Spanish outposts of Manila. The Spaniards were found to have turned the guns of their shore batteries landward for protection against the insurgents, and the rebels made nothing more than a reconnaisance in force.

It is also reported that the lieutenant who commanded the Callao here has been shot after a trial by a summary court-martial, and that Admiral Montijo has also been sentenced by court-martial. These rumors come through the crews of merchant vessels still here, but I do not have much confidence in the accuracy of the reports.

Extracts Cold Comfort.

London, May 26.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says: "The Spanish embassy has issued the following statement: 'The truth is the Americans have only achieved one success which led to nothing, Manila. All the rest is false. They also relied on disturbances which might occur in Spain. There were some troubles, owing to the dearness of bread, but these completely disappeared as soon as the government forbade the exportation of corn.'

"The French government is carefully pursuing its policy; but public opinion is as warmly enlisted as ever on the side of Spain."

Heavy Artillery Required.

New York, May 6.—With Commodore Schley and Admiral Sampson guarding the entrance to the harbor of Santiago, the Cuban junta believes that the entrapping of Admiral Cervera will necessitate the sending to Cuba of heavy artillery. This, Mr. Rubens, legal adviser of the junta, said, will have to be conveyed to and planted in the hills behind Santiago, from which vantage point Admiral Cervera will be forced into a sea battle on the outside. Should Cervera be forced into an encounter on sea outside the port with Commodore Schley or Admiral Sampson, the guns on the fortifications, Mr. Rubens asserted, would practically be of no assistance to the Spanish commander, as they are trained only for harbor protection.

Strength of the Military.

Washington, May 26.—Adjutant General Corbin has prepared a statement showing the strength of the military forces of the United States when organized in accordance with the plans now under way as follows: Regular army, 62,000 men; volunteers from states (first call), 125,000 men; three cavalry regiments at large, 3000 men; 10 infantry regiments United States volunteers (immunes), 10,000; engineers at large, 3500; volunteers called for, 75,000, a total of 278,500 men.

Orders to the Ninth.

South Framingham, Mass., May 26.—After receiving orders from Washington to move the regiment in three detachments to Rhode Island points, Colonel Bogan of the Ninth was surprised in getting another order which, while not countermanding the first, nevertheless instructed him to do nothing about moving until further orders.

The first order was supplemented by another, directing the regiment to report to Captain Hyde of the quartermaster's department in Boston for transportation, and the following companies were detailed to the three new points: Companies A, B, E and H of Boston, F of Lawrence, and G of Worcester to Fort Adams; M of Lowell, K of Clinton and C and I of Boston to the Rhode Island state camp at Quonsett, and D of Clinton and L of Natick to Dutch Island, Narragansett bay.

Photographing of Defenses.

Washington, May 26.—Secretary Alger sent to the house yesterday a communication enclosing a letter from a prominent publishing house in Philadelphia in which a correspondent was urged to adopt means to get photographs of the defenses despite the prohibition. The concern stated it had been refused permission to make photographs of the League island navy yard and Fort Mifflin, but the next day it hired a tugboat, and its photographer, stopping in front of the yard, took several views. It urged its agents to secure photographs of all fortifications by these or similar means.

REAR ADMIRAL SICARD.

Rear Admiral Sicard, president of the war board, to whom the letter was referred, recommends that the publication and exposing for sale of views of the navy yards, fortifications, new ships and other government structures for military or naval service should be forbidden by law during the war. Chief of Engineers Wilson adds a recommendation for an act making photographs of fortifications or publications of descriptions of works of defense a penal offense.

Senator Proctor's Bill.

Washington, May 26.—Senator Proctor has introduced a bill authorizing the president to accept services for the present war of volunteer military organizations furnished by the different states in such numbers as he may deem necessary, and also of independent volunteer military organizations formed according to the laws of the regular army. The officers of the state organizations are to be appointed by the governors of their respective states, and of the independent troops by the president.

Allen's Colored Company.

Boston, May 26.—Ex-Councilor Isaac B. Allen called on Inspector General Carter yesterday to procure blanks for a petition for a company in the provisional militia. He states that he intends to raise the company himself among the colored men of the city, saying that he could easily enroll twice the 61 men required for a company without going outside Boston.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 26.—The Journal advises: "Let our coast guards be patient. They may all get their chance to go south and do some fighting later."

"All that the people ask," observes The Advertiser, "is that, as soon as possible the decisive blow shall be struck and that it shall carry with it a vigor and directness that will make it practically irresistible. It looks as if the administration had the same desire."

"President McKinley gave Spain 48 hours to get out of Cuba, but she seems to linger yet. She ought to have been kicked out at the start instead of ordered out," is The Globe's opinion.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 26.—The bill to prohibit the desecration of the flag of the United States by names of organizations or other lettering came up as unfinished business in the senate, and all amendments offered were withdrawn. Senator Chamberlin of Plymouth then moved an amendment to exempt only the militia and organizations of veterans of the war of the rebellion from the prohibition as to printing names of organizations on the flag. The amendment was adopted and the bill ordered to a third reading.

In the house the committee on the judiciary reported a bill to prohibit the giving of trading stamps or coupons as an inducement for trade. Existing contracts are not to be affected by the act.

The hottest fight the lower branch of the legislature has had this session took place yesterday on the resolve for a representation of the state government at the trans-Mississippi exposition at Omaha, the advocates winning, 88 to 80.

When that familiar friend, the bill to prevent the purchase or sale of stocks, etc., on margins, came up, a number of amendments were offered, and in order that the senators might have time to read and understand the amendments suggested, the bill was laid over until next Wednesday.

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it will wear them away. WHAT MAY TRANSPIRE

Cuban Expedition Likely to Start Next Week.

Seizure of Porto Rico Part of the New Program.

Bombardment of Havana's Formidable Promontory Included.

Washington, May 27.—There is a strong probability that shells from American guns will batter Morro castle into ruins next week. At the same time an army of 75,000 American soldiers will be landed on Cuban soil.

While the fortifications at Havana are crumbling into dust an expedition will proceed against Porto Rico and will gather that island beneath the spreading folds of the American flag. In the meantime all possible haste is to be shown in sending more troops to the Philippines.

Three military and naval movements are to be in progress at the same time. They are to be directed against the Philippines, Cuba and Porto Rico. The expedition to the Philippines is already under way. Cuba is now to be invaded, and Porto Rico must fall. This is the program.

Admiral Cervera is safe in Santiago harbor, beyond the shadow of a doubt, and the talk of danger from another fleet is laughed at by the war board. The decision to toss Porto Rico into Uncle Sam's game bag was definitely reached yesterday at the most important war council which has been held since the war began.

According to the present understanding, it is not intended to land troops at San Juan, but they will be placed ashore at some unfortified place on the island, and will attack the city from the land side, a bombardment taking place simultaneously from the sea. Military operations against Santiago have also been fully considered.

It has been discovered, however, that the topography back of that place offers some obstacles to operations of a land force. The country is most mountainous, and it is dubtful whether our troops would be able to make rapid progress towards the city. It is probable, therefore, that for the present the administration will content itself with holding Cervera in check in the harbor, fully aware that he cannot escape and also knowing that the city is hemmed about by insurgent forces, thus placing it in a situation of blockade.

With Havana taken, and the invading army encamped on healthy ground on the surrounding hills, supplies can be sent to the starving Cubans, and operations against the Spanish garrisons in the interior cities can be delayed until the close of the rainy season, if it is deemed advisable. In the meantime steps can be taken for combined land and sea operations against Santiago de Cuba, if Admiral Cervera has not yet been dislodged by Commodore Schley, and Porto Rico can also be wrested from Spain. Upon Admiral Sampson and his armorclads will devolve the duty of convoying 25,000 or 30,000 troops to Porto Rico, and assisting them in taking San Juan, just as he is to assist General Shafter's army in taking Havana.

Weary of the Heat.

Naval officers are turning their attention to inquiries whether it is possible for Admiral Cervera to get out of Santiago harbor. They hold that this manoeuvre is impossible, and that being the case, the career of the Spanish admiral is at an end, so far as it constitutes a menace against our ships. The British comment that Admiral Hornby in 1855 escaped with his entire fleet from a harbor under similar conditions, and that Admiral Cervera should be able to make his escape when he gets ready to do so is not accepted.

The naval view here is just to the contrary. It is pointed out that Admiral Hornby escaped from an open bay, while Admiral Cervera must come through a narrow channel about 300 feet wide, on which the American searchlights will play continually. It is stated that this is not mere opinion, but naval manoeuvres were carried on at Key West and Tortugas a few months ago which furnish a positive demonstration that Cervera cannot make an exit without being discovered.

An officer who was on board one of the American ships during the Tortugas movement says a sham night attack of torpedo boats was made upon the big battleships and cruisers. The latter were given no notice of the projected attact, and there was no extra guard such as the American ships now maintain. Every torpedo boat was discovered long before it was withfn striking distance of the cruisers and battleships. The pilot of one of the attacking boats was so bewildered by searchlights that he nearly ran into a cruiser. The lesson drawn from this attack was that a night sally by an enemy was impossible owing to the methods of discovering an approach. It had shown also that the attacking fleet could not get within range, although they had come within range of the guns on the ships attacked.

It is said that these manoeuvres at Tortugas and Key West practically represent the situation before Santiago. If Cervera sent out his torpedo boats as scouts, they would be detected before they could do damage and destroyed by the small guns of such cruisers as the Montgomery. The American ships would have the advantage of concentrating their entire fire upon one small passage, about 300 feet wide. A night battle is quite unusual in naval annals, but it has occurred. The Constellation fought the Revenge at night, the engagement continuing for six hours in the darkness, during which time the mainmast of the Constellation was carried away and the ship crippled. It is believed that if Admiral Cervera attempts to escape he will choose the night for this movement.

On the other hand naval officials are discussing the means the American commander may adopt to make exit impossible. In the blockade of Charleston, barges full of stones were sunk at the channel entrance, cutting off ingress and egress. A few old hulks would serve the same purpose in this case. There is difficulty in getting such craft, and the sinking of the derelict in the proper point in the channel would be attended with great danger. It must be towed to position, subjecting those in charge to the danger of mines and torpedoes. There are also the guns from Morro castle to be guarded against. It is understood, however, that the castle has no searchlights, so that a night operation of this character could be executed without the Spaniards being made aware of it. Taking everything into account, naval officers feel that Admiral Cervera committed a fatal blunder in being trapped at Santiago, and that there is no fear the trap will prove inadequate to hold him.

In the rush of military preparations the war officials have not been able to give much attention to the preparation of the regulations for the procurement of the additional 75,000 volunteers. It is still uncertain just how far the national authorities will go towards recruiting these forces themselves, nor is it positively known that independent organizations, companies, battalions and regiments raised by individuals will be accepted in blocks,if by so doing the deparment is required to accept the officers with the men. Indeed, it is now questioned whether under the law the department could, if it would, accept the services of officers under such conditions, as the governors of the states appear to be the only persons authorized to issue commissions below the regimental grade. There are other vexatious questions to be settled before the regulations can be promulgated, but fortunately, in the judgment of the department officials, due notice having been given to the people of a desire for more troops by the government, there is no occasion for haste in deciding upon details, in view of the fact that the full draft of men called for under the first call has not been secured. The department officials were engaged yesterday largely in considering the new law providing for the organization of certain independent forces, with the result that the department was able to announce regulations governing the examination of applicants for commissions in the engineer regiments and the organization of the immune regiments.

Undecided Problem.

Key West, May 27.—The great problem is that relating to the movement of the troops. Naval men are in the dark as to what the administration will do, and army men certainly find the naval tactics strange and mysterious. At Tampa there are now about 15,000 regulars and many thousands of volunteers. There are daily arrivals of troops at Tampa Port Tampa and Lakeland, but some of the volunteer regiments have not yet received their complete accoutrements though the latter will soon be forthcoming.

The southern portion of Florida is beginning to realize how difficult a matter it is to supply this great army of new residents with necessaries and comforts. Here, at Key West, after a dry season of five months, the rain has come at last and renewed the drinking water supply. This, at least, was an opportune visitation of providence, and with it all, the soldiers are making merry. At Tampa they are tenting in the sand hills about the town, strictly disciplined, kept closely to regulation diet, with not much amusement, anxiously waiting for the order to move on Cuba. This, it is generally believed by army men, will not be received at any early date.

Oregon Did Not Lag.

Key West, May 27.—The Oregon's 25 officers and 425 seamen were well and happy when the battleship cast anchor off Sand Key lighthouse Thursday. The cruise through the straits of Magellan was most interesting. It was at this far point of the American hemisphere that the crew expected to receive a visit

TWO HEROES AT A FIRE.

Daring Rescue of Three by a Policeman and a Fireman.

Fire Fighter Held by Ankles on a Roof.

Deathlike Stillness Among the Observers During the Perilous Work.

Boston, May 27.—Officer Kelly and Fireman Hogan last night proved to the entire satisfaction of 4000 people that they were in no wise lacking in the attributes which go to make up the true hero when they took two frightened women and an infant from a third-story window during the progress of a fire. The rescued people are Mary Rosenthal, 25 years old, her child Rachel, 7 months, and Rose Locke, 20, whose hands were badly cut by breaking glass.

In company with Kelly, Hogan tried to get up the stairs, and, finding this impossible, the two men rushed to the roof of the adjoining structure, which they found to be 20 feet higher than the roof of the burning building. Without pausing a moment, both jumped down, Kelly slightly spraining his ankle; and then, Hogan lying down, the policeman grasped him by the ankles and slid him over the edge, where he was enabled to reach the endangered ones, and, after hanging in midair some moments, draw them up.

In the meantime the ladders had arrived, and were soon hoisted to the roof, when, amid the cheers of the gathered thousands, the men descended with the rescued ones. Then it was found that Miss Locke had badly cut both her hands while breaking glass in the third-story in order to get air. During the progress of the rescue a death-like stillness prevailed in the throng in the streets, but after it had been effected the cheering continued for fully 10 minutes, many of the spectators trying to break through the police lines in order to carry Kelly and Hogan on their shoulders.

TROUNCED THE COLONELS.

Splendid Exhibition of How Not to Play the National Game.

Louisville, May 27.—The Louisville players could not bat Lewis' delivery yesterday, while the champions found Ehret's curves exactly to their liking and pounded out 11 hits, one a double and the other a triple, and some of Clark's men gave a splendid exhibition of how not to play the national game. After the first inning the Bostons did not try to play ball. They moved around listlessly with "I don't care what happens" expressions on their faces, but continued to lace out the ball simply in order to fatten their individual batting averages.

The game was devoid of sensational plays of any description. Wilson's bad work behind the bat for Louisville was about the only feature outside of the Bostons' batting. The visitors ran bases with impunity on the Louisville backstop and did not seem to care whether they reached their bases or not. The batting of Tenney, Long and Lowe was very fine, each securing three safe drives.

Costly errors by McJames and McGraw lost yesterday's game in Cleveland for the orioles. Cleveland's one error did not count. Score: 5 to 4.

Seymour of the New Yorks was pounded for 11 hits and as many runs in three innings in Cincinnati. Getting did much better. Breitenstein was hit hard, but the Ohioans won, 12 to 6.

One clean drive, two scratchs and three very bad errors gave the Philadelphia-Chicago game to the latter, 7 to 1.

The Brooklyns succeeded in winning from St. Louis team in the ninth inning, when Hall failed to hold Griffin's liner. Score: 4 to 2.

The Washingtons won in Pittsburg in a game so amateurish that it was interesting. Leever was put in for the Pittsburgs in the last half of the first. He did good work until the seventh, when six hits brought in four runs. Score: 11 to 7.

There was a big shakeup in the Buffalo ball club yesterday afternoon, First Baseman Fields, Pitchers Cochran and Mains and Outfielder Gilboy being released.

At the Thomas Crane public library in this city there is an exhibit of 100 views which many will enjoy. Quincy is favored, that it is the place to exhibit these views, which comprise photographs taken for the Boston and Maine Railroad, and kindly loaned to the Library Art club which includes the Quincy Library and nineteen others.

The photographs are uniform in size, being mounted on cards 15 by 13. As the Boston and Maine is an extensive railroad system traversing Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine, from seashore to country and mountains there is a great variety to the pictures. Prominent are views taken among the White Mountains, in the Pemigewasset valley, the Franconia Notch, at Bethehem, the Fabyans, the Crawford and North Conway. There are views on Lake Winnepesaukee and Lake Sunapee, at York Beach and Old Orchard, and many of the picturesque and charming summer resorts of New Hampshire and Vermont. Those interested in the views may obtain descriptions of them by sending for the summer publications issued by the Passenger department of the Boston and Maine. The exhibit will stay in Quincy but two weeks.

THE DEPOT FLAG.

Grand Demonstration at the Raising Tomorrow Night.

Public interest in the flag raising at the depot on Saturday evening increases each day and if the man who has charge of the weather will only switch the rain to some other section of the coutry there will be a grand time. Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., has accepted an invitation to be present and it is probable that Francis L. Souther camp, Sons of Veterans, who have also been invited, will be present.

These two organizations will be met at Grand Army headquatrters by the City band and escorted to the depot, where the exercises will take place. A large platform will be erected in the depot yard upon which will be seated the invited guests, among whom are Mayor Sears, ex-Mayors Porter and Hodges, Brooks Adams, John O. Hall and others. Ex-Councilman Luther S. Anderson, who is superintendent of the Quincy Quarry railroad, will represent the railroad boys and will preside. Mr. Walter Hersey and Mr. Henry French will have charge of the musical part of the programme.

Among the selections to be played by the band will be the new patriotic song composed by James C. Dunn, entitled "Old Glory Holds the Bay, or Dewey's Victory at Manila." In order that all who desire may join in the sinigng of this song the words are appended.

We've heard of Dewey's vict'ry o'er the ocean,
Joyful tidings from old Glory in the bay.
We'll unite Anglo Saxon for protection,—
With six vessels Dewey's heroes won the day.
Are the noble race destined to save the people—
We'll drive the cruel Spaniards from the sea.
Yet remember some are in the dungeon sleeping—
With a cannon ball chained to them waiting thee. Chorus.
When Yankees climb the turrets of proud "Morro"
When the Ricos meet our Sampson and our Schley,
When loved ones come to tell the joyful story,—
How brave Dewey gave them dew drops in the bay.
They'll get no aid while shot and shell are fallen—
McKinley says my Cuba shall be free.
When the sweet re-call resounds through every nation—
With old Glory they'll come marching home to thee.

CHORUS.

Call thy people in from all the cruel nations,
Bid the heathen and the slave come into thee,
We've Sampson, Schley and Dewey, Lord to lead them,
Drive the tyrants from the Antilles of the sea.

It is the desire of those in charge of the celebration to have some red fire and fireworks and this part of the programme will depend upon how well subscriptions for it come in. All who desire to contribute their mite toward fireworks can hand it to Agent Coffin or Baggage Master Moran at the depot.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

The following advertisement appeared recently in a London paper: "Wanted—An organist and a boy to blow the same."

Vesta Tilley's earnings this season are said to be $50,000. She got $750 per week, but her share of the gross made the money.

As Mr. Pinero refuses to permit the adaptation of his play, "The Magistrate" as presented in Paris is a literal translation.

The London success of "The Belle of New York" exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the managements concerned.

According to Henry Irving, the theaters and music halls of London give employment to 100,000 people and represent a capital of £3,000,000.

Richard Golden (Old Jed Prouty) is at work upon a new play. He has secured the assistance of William Gill. It will be known as "Senator Prouty."

Arthur Sullivan's new opera is called "The Beauty Stone." The piece is described as a combination of romantic play and musical drama. The book is by Pinero and Carr.

A. H. Canby intends to produce next season "Little Miss Nobody," by Henry Graham and Arthur Godfrey, with Fritz Williams, M. A. Kennedy and Jessie Merrillees in the cast.

The number of playhouses in London today is 62. Excluding the smaller places in the suburbs, there are 24 first class theaters, at which good plays are to be seen every night in the year.

On the stage they have had "The Prodigal Son," "The Prodigal Father," "The Prodigal Daughter" and various other examples of family profligacy, but the latest thing is "The Prodigal Parson."

ANIMAL ODDITIES.

Most spiders have eight eyes, although some species have only six.

The horse when grazing is guided entirely by the nostrils in the choice of proper food, and blind horses are never known to make mistakes in their diet.

Among birds there are few better fighters than a goose, or a gander more particularly. The ragged white Russian geese bite ferociously. It is no mere peck with them; they bite and hang on with all the tenacity of a bulldog.

The tongues of the cat family are covered with recurving spines. In the common domestic cat these are small, but sufficiently well developed to give the tongue a feeling of roughness. But in the lion and tiger the spines are strong enough to enable the animal to tear away the skin of a man's hand merely by licking it.

—The less real war news there is, the bigger the type some of our dailies use. Well may we read between the lines, would we learn the truth of war matters.—Boston Courier.

Municipal Government.

An address by Mayor Quincy of Boston was the attraction at the meeting of the Quincy Teachers' Association Thursday evening at the High school building and a large number braved the inclement weather. A charming solo by Miss White opened the programme.

Mr. F. A. Tupper, the president, then introduced Hon. Josiah Quincy who spoke on "Municipal Government." Such a subject in the hands of many might be uninteresting, but Mayor Quincy is progressive and did not confine his talk to government laws, etc., considered the relation of city government to the social and educational life. He noted the very large expenditure of Boston for her public schools and the difficulty in providing for all. The primary grades should receive first consideration, as the higher grades were a luxury. He would raise the standard of the higher grades. Mr. Quincy would not throw children of cities into the streets during the summer months. He favored more public playgrounds, baths, gymnasiums, etc. Band concerts were necessary and to secure better music he had secured the appointment of a Music Commission. The speaker favored unpaid boards in cities, and the appointment of women thereon.

TODAY'S COURT.

The liquor seized from Daniel Horgan of Weymouth was forfeited.

James Hefferan was fined $5 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The Bulletin Face.

Have you noticed it on the faces of your friends lately. That sudden shifting of the eyes. That sort of an expectant, listening look; that quick, flashing, changing, joyous, wondering combination look? You have and didn't know what to make of it? That's the Bulletin Face. It's not an ingrowing affair or an incurable. It's just a look caused by trying to make out what is where and who is when; by trying to read the Bulletins down in Newspaper Row. He stands in front of the bulletin and reads, and reads, "San Juan has fallen." He does not know whether San Juan is a Spanish Hildago, a war ship or a town. But he hears someone say, "That is good!" so he smiles and wonders. Another bulletin says Cienfuegos has fallen. He hasn't any idea who Cienfuegos is, or where he worked before he got that way; but he knows it does not sound as if an American had surrendered, so he goes and drinks another and comes back to learn that Cavite and Admiral Cervera have sailed for Santiago de Martinique. That sounds well, so he goes and has another smile, and when he comes back he learns that Sampson has blown up 12 Spanish ships and but two American warships were disabled. He understands that and lets a war whoop that would drown the whistle on T. A. Whicher's shop. That's the cause of the new face you see on some of your friends.

When you see a man whose expression is just a settled smile, a continued "tickled to death" look, that's one of the Quincy Clothing Co.'s customers.—Chestnuts! did you say? That's wrong, we do not deal in them. All our goods are new, stamped "1898." No, sir; it's no chestnut. But when you pick up a Boston newspaper and read of the "Great Receiver's Sale," "Bankrupt Sale," or "Dissolution Sale," you may well say chestnuts, for it is the same old story.

We have for this week some suits at $6.50 and $7.50 in Blues, Grays and Browns, that we want to sell you. With every suit is a guarantee from the manufacturers as to their wearing and durability, and if they do not give perfect satisfaction you get a new suit. No Boston clothing merchant can beat the pants we sell for $1.48. For $2.48 we have a child's suit that cannot be equalled in this city for $3.50. You can save from 5 to 25 per cent. on any article you buy, and if you are not satisfied you can get your money back.

QUINCY CLOTHING COMPANY, CUT PRICE CLOTHIERS AND FURNISHERS. MUSIC HALL BLOCK, QUINCY.

MILTON.

Many of the friends of Miss Emily F. Baxter attended a vocal recital given by the pupils of Mrs. J. H. Long at Association hall, Boston, on Tuesday evening, in which she took a prominent part.

There will be a very fine service appropriate to Memorial Day at the Congregational church, East Milton, on Sunday evening. Special musical programme is being prepared.

News has been received this week of the death of Miss Emery of Andover. She will be pleasantly remembered by the older residents of East Milton as having taught in the Intermediate school for a number of years.

Richard Pierce who is employed at the Granite Railway had his foot crushed Tuesday by getting caught in the machinery.

William Clark the Patriot and Ledger agent at East Milton has a large flag suspended over the entrance to his store.

Nearly four hundred men are at work upon the new boulevard.

Arrangements are being made for a grand flag raising to be held Wednesday evening, June 8. There will be music, fireworks and patriotic speeches. The flag will be suspended across Adams street in front of the Rugby block.

A union service will be held at the Baptist church Sunday morning.

Sunday evening there will be special services at the Congregational church, which will be attended by the G. A. R. post.

There will be special music and a special sermon by the pastor, Rev. A. S. Gilbert.

The Grand Army Post will attend Memorial serivces Sunday morning at the Unitarian church.

East Milton people are indignant at the article that appeared in the Milton News of last week and say it is simply spite on the part of the editor.

No Lords Wanted.

Paul Revere Post was unanimous Thursday evening in its opposition to the "House of Lords' in National and State conventions, the vote being 40 to 1. The one is said to have been a mistake. Warren Stetson of Middleboro, the assistant adjutant of Massachusetts was present, and said other posts of the State were taking similar action.

There was a big crowd at the Quincy Yacht club's vandeville entertainment which was given at the club house on Thursday evening. Lem Wells, the musical tramp; Ed. Kelly, the black face comedian; Tom Killoen, the Irish comedian, and Geo. Woodward, the pianist, were all good and kept the crowd in a roar of laughter for nearly two hours.

Following are the extracts from a letter sent out by the pastors of the Evangelical churches of Tampa, Fla. We regret that we have not space to publish it in full.

We, the undersigned ministers of the churches of Tampa, Fla., appeal to you to help us in doing religious work amougst the soldiers of the United States Army. There are now about 10,000 "regulars" stationed in and about Tampa, and the voluteers begin coming in this week. The opportunity for doing religious work will never be surpassed, and should be promptly acted upon by the Christians of the United States.

The ministers of Tampa have done what they could in holding religious services and disturbing literature. Four thousand books have just been sent by Mr. Moody for gratuitous distribution and the American Bible Society has sent 2500 Testaments. The work already done is beginning to bear fruit. Sixty or seventy persons have expressed publicly their interest on the subject of religion. Dr. A. C. Dixon of New York, comes this week to carry on evangelistic services amongst them.

We are preparing to carry on religious work of every kind possible, and need, and must employ religious workers.

We will have a tabernacle completed this week for the work We need contributions in the shape of money, religious literature and earnest Christian workers.

We sincerely hope that some of the Young Men's Christian Associations will send some of their best workers with camping tents.

The saloon men and beer men are furnishing every accommodations possible to debauch them. The church surely should not be less attentive.

APPEALED FOR PEACE.

Communication Addressed to the Queen Regent.

Was Asked to Send Message to America.

Abortive Undertaking of the Universal Peace Union.

Philadelphia, May 27.—The Universal Peace union, through its president, Alfred H. Love of this city, has mailed to the queen regent of Spain and Premier Sagasta an appeal asking that government to acknowledge the independence of Cuba in the interests of peace. The appeal was sent April 21, four days before this country declared that a state of war existed between Spain and the United States. It was held up, however, in New York, and after two weeks had expired it was again in President Love's hands with the seal unbroken and stamped with a government notice that no mail was permitted to go to Spain.

Ex-Governor Hoyt of Wyoming then took the communication to Washington and laid it before the state department in the hope that it might be permitted to go, and also to assure the government of its contents. It was not allowed to go through the mails direct to Spain, however, but it was suggested that it might be sent to one of the European bureaus of the union. As a result it was sent to Berne, Switzerland, for transmission, and is now en route.

After referring to the union as representing many thousands of friends of peace in all parts of the world, the appeal indicates that all the pending difficulties could be disposed of by peaceful means. Continuing, it says: "Our President McKinley, we have reason to believe, has been forced into his present attitude. You know he is the executive of this government. The Peace union is cosmopolitan. We have, we believe, still in your senate one of our vice presidents, Arthur Marcorto."

Referring to the union's sincerity, the appeal states: "We would do what we now suggest for you to grant," and, continuing, reads: "Oh, how you would elevate your nation. What a contribution to the age of intelligence, if you would send a message to America: 'For the sake of peace, humanity and your friendship we will hear terms for the independence of Cuba.' This would open the way for three plans the Universal Peace union is now suggesting—first, a commission to visit you; second, purchase and the Maine matter somehow considered; third, international arbitration and international mediation.

"Is it too late? If there is a lull, if there be a check, if any way be open, we can say in all frankness, for your good and for the good of all, that the feeling here is opposed to war and against the annexation of your possessions. There is a deep, earnest desire for the freedom of Cuba. Now, will not Cuba be worth more to you free than as a colony? If you hold it, it will always be restless, expensive and a trouble to you."

The remaining portions of the appeal are solicitous of Spain's feelings in the existing difficulties, and state that the union is actuated entirely by a desire to bring about peace. In one portion it states: "We have appreciated your several concessions in this Cuban trouble." President Love explains these to mean the withdrawal of Weyler; the submission to the United States' refusal to withdraw General Lee; the feeding of reconcentrados by this country; the autonomy scheme, and, last of all, the declaration of an armistice. Speaking of the efforts of the union to bring this latter about, President Love said that on April 9 the union cabled to the queen requesting her to grant an unconditional armistice, and also telegraphed to Cardinal Gibbons to have the pope use his endeavors to bring about that result. "Two days later," Mr. Love said, "the armistice was granted." He also stated that he was still hopeful that peace might yet be assured, and was awaiting some reply from Spain to the appeal.

Army and Navy Record.

More Quincy young men have enlisted for the war than most people imagine. It is the desire of the editor of the Daily Ledger to keep a record of all these, and he will esteem it a favor if parents and friends will forward names, with information as to warship, regiment, company, etc; also age, years of service, names of parents, etc. We desire to include also former residents and relatives of Quincy people. When letters of public interest, relative to engagements, are received, the Ledger would be pleased to publish them in full or in part. The people of Quincy will take more interest in the engagements of the New York, the Massachusetts, the Iowa, the Indiana, the Cincinnati and other battleships, if they are aware that a Quincy boy is among the heroes.

Who will add to this list?

KING'S DAUGHTERS.

Entertain the Older Friends of Bethany Church.

There was an enjoyable occasion Thursday afternoon and evening at the Bethany chapel when the King's Daughters gave a reception to the older friends of the church. Nearly 100 were invited but the inclement weat her greatly reduced the attendance. At 4 o'clock there was a reception at which Miss A. L. Tupper, Mrs. Percival Sears and Mrs. E. V. Fitts received. At 5.30 there was a supper at which salads, strawberries, cake, etc., were served. At each plate was placed a May basket of peppermints. During the supper hours Mrs. Hayward presided at the piano. There was an entertainment at 7 o'clock, including piano solo by Mrs. O tho Hayward, remarks by Rev. Mr. Hardy, vocal duet by Mrs. Fred Drake and Mrs. E. V. Fitts, reading by Miss Sherman, solo by Miss Isaac, reading by Miss Sherman, solo by Mrs. Henry Tirrell, goodnight drill.

The most notable guest was Mrs. George Whiting who has not been out of doors for seven years. She and her husband had their 64th marriage anniversary last week.

Among the guests were: Mr. and Mr. Elbridge Clapp, Mr. R. D. Chase, Miss Judith Spear, Mr. and Mrs. George Whiting, Mr. and Mrs. James Baxter, Mrs. Lydia Trask, Mrs. E. A. Beckford, Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Badger, Mrs. M. L. Kingman, Miss Emeline Hewins, Mrs. French Sharon, Miss Ellen Hersey, Mrs. Dunbar, Mrs. M. Willis, Mrs. Levi Wihte, Miss Amelia Bumpus, Mr. H. H. Faxon, Mrs. Bradford.

Among the senior members of the King's Daughters present were: Mrs. Mary Taber, Mrs. H. F. Fitts, Mrs. George Hitchcock, Rev. and Mrs. Hardy, Mr. and Mrs. King, Miss Lucy Jillson, Mrs. S. P. Savory and Mrs. L. K. Wales.

Musical Recital.

A large and appreciative audience composed of people from Brockton, Quincy, Wollaston, Dorchester and other neighboring places as well as from Atlantic, greeted Miss Bessie Drew at Music hall, Atlantic, Tuesday evening, on the occasion of her annual musical recital.

Miss Drew was assisted by these artists, Mr. Walter D. Macdonald, baritone, Miss Adelaide Thomas, violinist, and Mrs. Edwin S. Bennett of Wollaston, accompanist.

Miss Drew sang from the Messiah "Oh Thou That Tellest Good Tidings," "Kiss Me Sweetheart," by Weil, with violin obligato by Miss Thomas, a duet with Mr. Macdonald, "Ave Maria" by Schultz and three gorups of four songs each. In the first group were "Fair Springtime" by Saint Saens, "Thou Gray Birdling"—Feilitz, "Springtide's Sweetheart"—Schloz, "The Night"—Reimann. The second group were musical compositions of Chadwick's, "Sweet Wind That Blows," "Maiden and the Butterfly," "Thou Art So Like a Flower," and "Allah." "My Little Love" by Hawley, "Sun and Moon" by Newcomb, "Sweetheart," by Lynes, and "Spring" by Beach were the last group.

Miss Drew sang with sweetness of tone and clearness of utterance and with an ease and freedom from all mannerism that made it delightful to be a listener, and reflected great credit upon her teacher, Miss Lincoln of Boston, from whom she has received her musical instruction.

Mr. Macdonald's repertoire, besides the duet with Miss Drew, consisted of "Il Balen" from "Il Trovatore," by Verdi, and a group of four songs, "Die Beiden Grenadiere" by Schumann, "Sands o' Dee" by Clay, "O for a Breath o the Moorlands," by N. A. Fisher, and "The Ould Plaid Shawl" by Haynes.

Mr. Macdonald's rich, clear, musical voice with fine range, just captivated the audience, while the same ease of manner as in Miss Drew's singing seemed a characteristic, traceable, no doubt, to the same source, Miss Lincoln as instructor. Mr. Macdonald was enthusiastically applauded and responded to encores, as did also Miss Drew.

Beside the obligato solo, Miss Adelaide Thomas played on the violin "Legende" by Wieniawski, and "Mazurka de Concert" by Musin, and to say that her music was highly appreciated would be but a slight testimony to the universal pleasure her playing inspired in the minds and hearts of her hearers. The soul Miss Thomas weaves into her musical strains and her evidently losing all knowledge of self in the work she interprets, constitute a charm that brings the audience closely in sympathy with the composer and reveals to all that Miss Thomas is a true aritst.

Mrs. Bennetts accompaniments were played with rare excellence and expression showing great ability in time and excution.

The whole recital was a charming affair and Miss Drew is to be congratulated on her success and that of her assistants in so choice an entertainment.

SUEZ CANAL ROUTE.

ALL WAR VESSELS HAVE FREE ACCESS TO IT.

If Spain Desires to Send More Ships to Manilla, There Is Nothing to Hinder Her Taking That Route—United States Can Do the Same.

"If Spain desires to send a fleet to the Philippines to attack Admiral Dewey's forces, she is at perfect liberty to send it through the Suez canal," was the statement made to me the other day by a high official of the state department.

"Of course," he continued, "the serious question of coal supply would greatly harass her, but if the American vessels can find dealers willing to take the risk of violating the neutrality laws of the nation in which their coal piles are located they will probably be willing to do the same thing for the Spaniards, provided the latter pay the necessary cash.

"I doubt very much if this government would direct Admiral Dewey's force to leave Manilla and proceed to the Mediterranean for the purpose of harassing Spanish commerce in that sea and of attacking Spanish ports which lie upon it, but it would be possible for American men-of-war to reach the Mediterranean through the Suez canal if they were ordered to do so.

"There is a great deal of popular ignorance on this point. As a matter of fact, the Suez canal is open to belligerents.

"The principle of the neutralization of the Suez canal was applied by the convention of Oct. 29, 1888, which was signed by the six great powers, by Turkey, Spain and the Netherlands. Strictly speaking, their action does not bind the powers that were not parties to the convention; but, as none is of any importance except the United States and all have distinctly acquiesced in what was done, the pracitcal result is much the same as if the whole body of civilized nations had formally expressed their adhesion to it.

"The convention declares that the canal is to be open in time of war as well as in time of peace to all ships, whether merchantmen or vessels of war, whether belligerent or neutral, but no acts of hostility are to be committed either in the canal itself or in the sea to a distance of three miles from either end of it.

"The entrances are not to be blockaded. The stay of belligerent vessels of war or their prizes within the ports at either end is not to exceed 24 hours, and belligerents are not to embark troops or munitions of war within the canal or its ports.

"By using the Suez canal Spain's vessels will be compelled to go only 7,200 miles to reach Manilla. The steaming radius of the Almirante Oquendo, Vizcaya and Infanta Maria Teresa is 9,700 miles, going at the rate of ten knots, and they therefore could go the entire distance without recoaling. If necessary, they could take colliers along. None of Commodore Dewey's vessels has such a great steaming radius, and if they should be sent to the Mediterranean they would have to take colliers along and might be caught without coal in that sea."

None of the members of the war board believes for an instant that Spain will attempt to retake the Philippines, notwithstanding the Suez canal is open to her fleets. It was pointed out by an expert with whom I talked that the withdrawal of a sufficient force from the Atlantic to attempt the recapture of the Philippines would place not only Cuba and Puerto Rico, but the Canaries and Spain itself, at the mercy of the American warships on this coast.

It was more probable, he said, that the United States would send ships from the Pacific through the Suez canal to the Mediterranean to attack Spain's coast than it would be for the Madrid government to order its ships to retake the Philippines, but either contingency he thought decidedly remote.—New York Telegram.

KEEPING WELL IN CUBA.

Insurgent Veteran's Ten Rules For American Soldiers In the Field.

1. Keep the body always clean.
2. Change underclothing as often as possible.
3. Keep in the shade whenever you can.
4. Don't eat fruit that has just been subject to the rays of the sun. Let it cool off first.
5. Don't drink water until it has been boiled, and then add a few drops of brandy.
6. Don't sleep on the ground.
7. Don't sleep without covering, no matter how warm you may be. The nights in Cuba are chilly.
8. Rest in the middle of the day and march early in the morning and after 4 p. m.
9. Take some medicine along that will keep the system clear.
10. Remember it will be a long time before you are thoroughly acclimated. Don't think you have yellow fever every time you have a headache. The radical change in the climate will cause trouble, but the chances are ten to one if you take care of yourself that it will not amount to more than a short headache or temporary indigestion.—Colonel Perez Cardo in New York World.

Song of Roosevelt's Riders.

We thud, thud, thud down the dusky pike.
We jingle across the plain.
We cut and thrust, and we lunge and strike.
We throttle the sons of Spain!
Our chief has never a tremor shown;
He's grit cinched up in a belt.
Oh, they must be for their courage known
Who ride with Roosevelt!
We gallop along the gloomy vale.
We bustle a-down the lane.
We leap the stream and the toppling rail.
We burst on the men of Spain!
It's rattle and clash—the sabers flash,
The Spaniard host doth melt.
It's bluff and grit, and it's all things vast
To ride with Roosevelt!

Royal Arcanum Assessments.

Cleveland, O., May 27.—A new method of levying assessments was adopted yesterday by the supreme chapter of the Royal Arcanum. It provides for an emergency fund of about $500,000 a year and does away with the cutting down of certificates in amount year by year after the holders reach the age of 60 years. Each of the 196,000 members will also pay a yearly assessment of 80 cents to meet the running expenses. It was voted not to legislate in any manner against applicants for membership who are likely to see service in the war with Spain

The present officers were re-elected with a few exceptions. Henry Goodwin of Boston declined re-election as grand chaplain, and E. A. Dew of Wisconsin was chosen for the office.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 27.—The motion to reconsider the vote by which the senate refused to order to a third reading the bill limiting to 58 hours the time during which women and minors can be employed in mercantile establishments in one week was lost.

The bill providing for the appointment of probation officers in the superior court was ordered to a third reading, with the understanding that it is to be amended at the next stage.

The bill to prohibit the desecration of the United States or state flag was under consideration when the senate adjourned.

The committee on ways and means reported unanimously in favor of the bill embodying the Torrens system of land transfer.

The house discussed the proposed new street railway law for the greater part of the session yesterday, and adjourned without taking a vote.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 27.—"If we are to have a short war, we must have fighting, we must have action by our own forces," The Post urges. "We cannot trust to blockades, peaceable or not, and to starvation—for we cannot starve Spain out of fertile Cuba."

The Journal resolves a grave doubt thus: "Admiral Cervera's squadron, caught in the Santiago cul-de-sac, is, to all intents and purposes, dead as an aggressive factor in this war."

"We have bottled up the Spanish fleet. Now let us drive down the cork," The Globe advises.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, SATURDAY, MAY 28.
Sun rises—4:12; sets, 7:11.
Moon sets—morning.
High water—4:15 a. m; 4:45 p. m.

Unsettled conditions continue to develop on the middle Atlantic coast, causing rain to continue over New England, but there is now a probability of clearing weather by Saturday morning, and the day, at this time, promises to be fair and warmer, with variable winds. Fair weather also seems most probable for Sunday.

the clouds on either side. Moreover, they were in the land of icy winter. For more than a month they had been sailing under tropical skies, and now the blasts of December whistled among the crags above them, and the ice at night lay on the decks. But the Oregon did not lag. Captain Clark had no idea of giving the Spaniards, if they were there, a chance to catch him napping. If the great battleship was to be caught it should be a catch on the wing. The engines were warmed up to their best work, and wherever it was safe and possible the Oregon bowled along at 15 knots an hour. The machinery worked well, and on occasions the speed was increased three knots in a few minutes.

News of the Fleet.

Key West, May 27.—Definite news from the American squadrons operating in Cuban waters has been received here, fully confirming the general situation outlined in dispatches. Commodore Schley is believed to be off Santiago and definite information as to the exact situation insofar as it affects Admiral Cervera's squadron may be expected today. Rear Admiral Sampson is in a position to proceed quickly to the assistance of Commodore Schley with any or all of his ships on receipt of definite word, and at the same time he remains within striking distance of Havana. If however, Commodore Schley reports that Admiral Cervera is bottled up at Santiago, the naval view is that he will be permitted to finish the business at that point with the ships now under his direct command.

Hanging In the Balance.

Madrid, May 27.—In regard to the indications of a crisis, the Liberal remarks: "The sovereignty, perhaps the independence, of the nation is hanging in the balance. Enemies menace it everywhere abroad, and there is famine at home. A solution of the problem cannot be foreseen. Industry, commerce and agriculture are dead. The flower of Spanish youth is giving its lifeblood to the war, and weakened mothers are nursing a new generation amidst this accumulation of evils. Patriotism demands our silent inactivity, while the rival partisans of the liberal party squabble over petty questions, depriving the nation of a strong, united government capable of facing the present struggles. The country may wait while the government arranges its differences with party politics, but Dewey, Sampson, McKinley and Salisbury are not likely to wait."

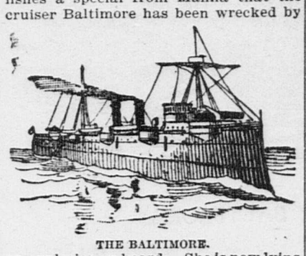

The minister of marine, Captain Aunon, was asked yesterday if it was true that the Americans were blockading Santiago de Cuba, and he replied: "It is to be presumed that the Americans will try to hinder our ships from leaving Santiago de Cuba, but I am not certain whether the Americans arrived in time to do so. The latest dispatch from Admiral Cervera on Tuesday said that all his vessels were loading coal." The general impression here is that Admiral Cervera has left Santiago de Cuba.

Sickness on the San Francisco.

Boston, May 27.—The San Francisco came into port yesterday afternoon from patrol duty off Cape Cod with Assistant Engineer Cooper and 12 seamen in the sick bay. The men were transferred to the naval hospital in Chelsea. Cooper is suffering with a severe attack of the grip and threatened with pneumonia. Most of the seamen are also afflicted with the grip, while the balance have the measles. Twelve men from the Wabash were taken to the San Francisco to replace the sick men. The San Francisco will probably sail early today.

an explosion on board. She is now lying on the mud at Macabulos.

Estimate of Deficiencies.

Washington, May 27.—The secretary of war sent to congress an estimate of deficiencies in appropriations for the quartermaster's department for the fiscal year ending June 30 and available until Jan. 1, 1899, amounting to $11,400,000. The items of the estimate are given as follows: Regular supplies, $1,000,000; incidental expenses, $200,000; barracks and quarters, $200,000; horses for cavalry and artillery, $1,000,000; army transportation, $9,000,000. This increases the total amount appropriated and asked for to date on account of war to $312,285,000.

Mr. Astor's Battery.

New York, May 27.—The battery offered to the government by John Jacob Astor when hostilities first broke out has been accepted. Lieutenant March of the Fifth United States artillery telegraphed to Mr. Astor's representative here as follows: "Organization been allowed for, 102 men."

JOHN JACOB ASTOR.

Lieutenant March has been detailed to command the battery, and he will come here from Washington to superintend the enlistment of recruits. The new battery will be on the order of what is called a mountain battery. It can be used in mountainous regions or in jungles, where a field battery would be of little use. The gun carriage and guns are detachable and are packed on the backs of mules for transportation. The battery will be made up of six 12-pound Hotchkiss rapid-fire guns. Applications have already been received from Columbia and Harvard men, and also from a number of Seventh regiment men.

Exchange of Prisoners.

Key West, May 27.—Colonel Vincent Cortijo, former commander at Cabanas fortress and understood to be a brother-in-law of General Weyler; Surgeon Major Garcia Julian and two private soldiers who were captured on the Argonauta, and who have been confined at Fort McPherson, Atlanta, arrived here yesterday on the City of Key West. They were immediately taken in a small boat to a revenue cutter, where they will remain until exchanged for Hayden Jones and Charles Thrall, American newspaper correspondents, who landed in Cuba recently and were captured.

Maine Troops Called.

Augusta Me., May 27.—The order for the First Maine volunteers to proceed at once to Chickamauga was received by Colonel Kendall Thursday afternoon, and the soldiers of the regiment went wild with joy. They departed this afternoon in a special train of three sections, each containing 13 cars. The entire trip will be made by rail and will occupy about 60 hours. Previous to departure, four days rations were issued to the men together with 20 rounds of ammunition.

One of Many Canards.

City of Mexico, May 27.—Telegrams have been received here by Spaniards announcing a naval battle in which the Spanish fleet won and the Americans lost every ship and Admiral Sampson was killed.

Stand of Colors.

Washington, May 27.—Congressman Fitzgerald called at the war department to request Secretary Alger to allow the Ninth Massachusetts regiment to remain at South Framingham until after Sunday next. He said that the Irish societies desired to present the regiment with a stand of colors, and that the presentation had been arranged for Sunday.

Adjutant General Corbin promptly issued instructions to the commanding officer at Camp Dewey to hold the Ninth at that point until further orders.

Would Increase Pay.

Washington, May 27.—Representative Acheson of Pennsylvania has introduced a bill increasing the pay of the enlisted men who in time of war serve outside the territorial limits of the United States 100 percent of the rate as fixed by law during the period of such service.

Did Spain Seek Peace?

Boston, May 27.—The Globe prints a dispatch to the effect that one of the ambassadors, acting for Spain, sued for peace in behalf of that nation, but that the request was denied.

It was intimated that Spain would be willing to withdraw her troops from the island of Cuba if the United States surrendered all further claims to the Philippines and would abandon the proposed seizure of Porto Rico.

Mail For Soldiers.

Washington, May 27.—Hereafter second and third class mail will be forwarded to soldiers in the same manner as letters. Only first class mail under the general rule can be forwarded when mail as originally addressed does not reach the person to whom it is sent. Hereafter, however, papers and packages will be forwarded from place to place until they reach the soldier.

Officials of the war department conferred with Assistant Postmaster General Heath with a view to having soldiers paid a portion of their salaries by check instead of money orders when they wish to send money home. This would save the cost of the money order fee and facilitate the business of the postoffice department. The postoffice department has under consideration a proposition to prepare a money order office at Manila, Philippine islands, for the convenience of soldiers and sailors who desire to send money home. As the United States has not yet occupied the islands, it was suggested that the money order office may be established at first on board a transport.

Bill Being Discussed.

Washington, May 27.—No substantial progress was made by the senate yesterday towards the disposition of the war revenue measure, although it was under consideration for three hours. Speeches were delivered by Mr. White and Mr. Teller. The former opposed the issue of bonds and strongly advocated the coinage of the silver seigniorage and the tax upon corporations. In his discussion of the last feature Mr. White drew out the fact that an amendment was to be offered to the bill by Mr. Gorman, placing a tax of one-half of 1 percent upon certain large corporations.

Mr. Teller defended the policy of levying an income tax. He read extracts of an income tax. He read extracts of speeches delivered more than 25 years ago in the house by Mr. Hale and others who are now members of the senate. He mentioned among others Mr. Cullom.

"I am in favor of an income tax now," retorted Mr. Cullom.

Mr. Teller—Well, I'm glad to hear it.

Before Mr. Teller had concluded his speech the bill was laid aside that the senate might take up the eulogies upon Senator Walthall of Mississippi.

In a long session yesterday the house passed few bills, but the discussion involved a wide range of subjects. After a brush over civil service brought on by a paragraph in the deficiency pension bill providing for some temporary clerks in the war department, the house considered a bill to amend the internal revenue laws.

Rich From Shoplifting.

Boston, May 27.—There is no longer any mystery connected with Mary Malloy, the shoplifter arrested several days ago and in whose dress skirt money and securities to the amount of $9000 were found. The secret which she so carefully guarded has been found out and her life history laid bare. Her identity was fully established yesterday by the police. The woman's right name is Catherine McCann. What home she has is in Fall River. The large amount of money found on her, the police say, is the proceeds of years' of of thieving.

The police told Judge Burke the story of the woman's life, and the judge sentenced her to prison for eight months. She appealed and may get a trial in a higher court, although the police doubt if she is ever tried there. They fear that she will get bail ($500 is the amount) and disappear, but others interested in her say she has no such intention.

Inspector Shea of the Fall River police department is the person who told the secrets which the prisoner kept back from the police. Years ago, he said, she lived in Fall River, but the police raided her home for liquor and made it so warm for her that she had to change her place of abode. Since then he said that she had been dividing her time between Providnce and other places. That she had been stealing in all of these places was a well known fact.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

G. Y. Newhall of New Haven, a clerk in a hardware store, attempted suicide by taking chloroform in Hartford. He was found in an insensible condition, but recovered when taken to the hospital.

Adjutant General Corbin announced last night that the number of volunteers so far reported mustered was 118,000, and that enough were prepared for muster to swell the number to between 121,000 and 122,000.

Harry Ray, 21 years old, was killed near his home in Parkville, Conn. He stumbled while crossing the track, and his death was caused by electricity. This is the first death of this kind that has taken place on the third rail.

Edward Eastment, paymaster and cashier in the department of city works of Brooklyn borough, was arrested yesterday. He is said to have been implicated in fraudulent transactions by which ex-Brooklyn officials got over $10,000.

Preparations are making at Camp Alger for a review of the Second army corps by President McKinley, Secretary Alger and other officials Saturday. Orders were issued fixing hours for camp duties and forbidding soldiers to go beyond one mile from camp.

By the close of the afternoon session yesterday 15 witnesses for the government had been examined in the Hatch case in Ossipee, N. H., but the evidence lacked what appeared to be strong points for the prosecution. Expert testimony began today, and in all 14 more witnesses will be called.

The pupils of Madam Long gave a recital at Association hall, Boston, on Tuesday evening which was attended by Milton and Quincy people. Miss Emily Baxter of Milton and Miss Caroline Asbrand sang two duets, "The Wanderer" and "The Angel" by Rubinstein, which received flattering encores. The twenty numbers given reflected great credit on the teaching and every selection was much enjoyed and heartily applauded. At the end of the recital the front of the stage its entire length was banked with flowers, the singers receiving more bouquet than they could hold easily. It was a pretty sight, the abundance of flowers and the handsome gowns of delicate colorings worn by the young ladies, who were all seated on the stage throughout the evening.

PATRIOTISM AT THE WOODWARD.

Songs and Readings in Observance of Memorial Day. Flag Presented.

Few schools observed Memorial Day with more patriotic exercises than those of last evening at the Woodward. Flags were everywhere and red, white and blue were the predominant colors worn by the pupils, several of the young ladies wearing large red neckties, white shirt waists and blue skirts. Over the picture of Dr. Woodward, the founder, was drapped a beautiful large new flag which was later presented to the school, and will hereafter fly from a new flag staff on the building.

The friends of the school were seated so as to form a hollow square in the centre of the hall, where the gymnasium exhibits took place. The excellent porgramme was as follows:

Chorus, "Father all Glorious!" School
Reading, "The Founders of Our Republic," Mary G. Dolliver.
Club Swinging, First and Second Classes
Chorus, "Marching thro' Georgia," School
Reading, "Gen. Sherman's Idea of War," Georgiana Shea.
Chorus, "Just Before the Battle, Mother," School
Solo by Ethel Rinn.
Reading, "Patriotism the Great School Lesson" Helen Claflin.
Chorus, "Battle Hymn of the Republic," School
Reading, "What Mr. Robinson Thinks," May Sullivan.
Chorus, "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground," School
Solo by Edna Miller.
Wand and Dumb-bell Drill, Third and Fourth Classes.
Quotations, "War and Peace," 25 girls
Chorus, "Tenting Tonight," School
Solo by Alice O'Neil.
Essay, "The Man Without a Country," Lucretia Duffield.
Chorus, "Hail Columbia," School
Fancy Marching,
Address by Hon. Russell A. Sears, Mayor of Quincy.
Reply by Miss Small, the principal,
Chorus, "The Star-Spangled Banner," School
America.

The patriotic songs were a pleasing part of the programme. Aside from their appropriateness to Memorial Day and these war times, they showed good work of the school under the new music teacher, Prof. Buckingham.

Miss Blackwell's instructions in the gymnasium department also showed to good advantage. The pupils marched well as they entered the hall, the club swinging of the first and second classes was in excellent time and many movements difficult. The wand and dumbbell drill by the third and fourth classes showed the younger pupils to make satisfactory progress, while the fancy marching was admired and frequently applauded.

The literary part of the programme was well arranged, and with the introductions by the principal were fully appreciated. Miss Dolliver, who was down for the first reading was excused because of sickness. Each of the others gave their numbers clearly and in sympathy with the selection and won the applause of the audience.

Miss Duffield's essay possessed literary merit and was a valuable lesson in patriotism. The quotations numbered twenty-five, and as the pupils in turn recited them, the sentiments of some were applauded.

Mayor Sear's address was in touch with the exercises and was well received. We take pleasure in giving a shorthand report:

If there is anything which causes the heart to throb faster it is to listen to patriotic music in the time of war.

And at this time I feel that I cannot be out of place if I take occasion to pay my humble tribute to those who laying aside all things, leaving their wives their children, friends and business went to the front at the call of their country. And some of them staid there.

I feel that we cannot have too many demonstrations of this kind. The memory of the old soldiers cannot be kept too bright or dear. England loves the memories of the heroes of Waterloo and Sabastapol. France will ever hold sacred the honor of her heroes of the Napoleonic wars, and so with every civilized nation that owes its preservationn to her soldiery. So, too, it is with us and at least in this respect it cannot be said that Republics are ungrateful.

In the present days it seems almost impossible that one section of this country could be arrayed against another; that the flag could be divided against itself. With the unity of action we see today, it seems impossible that political or other opinions could have been so strong as to result in as terrible a war as history brings to us. Yet it was true, and now we find the past conflicting sections of the country bound with ties of love and respect; the citizens marching shoulder to shoulder to repel or conquer their common enemy.

If the Spartan who was born for war—if the Roman who was educated for warlike strife—if the professional soldiery of Europe of the last two centuries have received the admiration and praise of historians, what shall history say of the grand achievements of the citizen soldiery of the United States?

So long as the Republic lives their deeds will be cherished. So long as the human race shall endure the accomplishments of such people will be treasured by mankind.

And now, Miss Small, it is my pleasant duty, I should say my honor,

The Bulletin Face.

Have you noticed it on the faces of your friends lately. That sudden shifting of the eyes. That sort of an expectant, listening look; that quick, flashing, changing, joyous, wondering combination look? You have and didn't know what to make of it? That's the Bulletin Face. It's not an ingrowing affair or an incurable. It's just a look caused by trying to make out what is where and who is when; by trying to read the Bulletins down in Newspaper Row. He stands in front of the bulletin and reads, and reads, "San Juan has fallen." He does not know whether San Juan is a Spanish Hildago, a war ship or a town. But he hears someone say, "That is good!" so he smiles and wonders. Another bulletin says Cienfuegos has fallen. He hasn't any idea who Cienfuegos is, or where he worked before he got that way; but he knows it does not sound as if an American had surrendered, so he goes and drinks another and comes back to learn that Cavite and Admiral Cervera have sailed for Santiago de Martinique. That sounds well, so he goes and has another smile, and when he comes back he learns that Sampson has blown up 12 Spanish ships and but two American warships were disabled. He understands that and lets a war whoop that would drown the whistle on T. A. Whicher's shop. That's the cause of the new face you see on some of your friends.

When you see a man whose expression is just a settled smile, a continued "tickled to death" look, that's one of the Quincy Clothing Co.'s customers.—Chestnuts! did you say? That's wrong, we do not deal in them. All our goods are new, stamped "1898." No, sir; it's no chestnut. But when you pick up a Boston newspaper and read of the "Great Receiver's Sale," "Bankrupt Sale," or "Dissolution Sale," you may well say chestnuts, for it is the same old story.

We have for this week some suits at $6.50 and $7.50 in Blues, Grays and Browns, that we want to sell you. With every suit is a guarantee from the manufacturers as to their wearing and durability, and if they do not give perfect satisfaction you get a new suit. No Boston clothing merchant can beat the pants we sell for $1.48. For $2.48 we have a child's suit that cannot be equalled in this city for $3.50. You can save from 5 to 25 per cent. on any article you buy, and if you are not satisfied you can get your money back.

GAME OF HANDYDANDY

Cunning Cervera Continues to Confuse the Planners.

Some Doubt Felt as to His Whereabouts.

Cuban Invasion Proves a Bugaboo to the Administration.

Washington, May 28.—The administration is still waiting for positive reports from Commodore Schley that Admiral Cervera is in Santiago harbor. The advance on Cuba and Porto Rico cannot begin until it comes, for the sea must be clear of hostile ships, although every day of delay improves the preparations, and will be a gain in the long run.

Spain's opportunity to make peace by the surrender of Cuba is fast slipping away, yet she has made no motion toward availing herself of it, nor has any ambassador or other representative of a foreign power sounded the administration as to what terms of peace would be granted her, and therefore it is not true, as reported, that to such an inquiry the administration replied that peace would not be made until we had occupied Porto Rico and the Philippines.

It was stated by an officer of the navy last night that not only was the Spanish admiral bottled up in Santiago harbor, but that he would remain there some time. The department anticipates a long siege before the Spanish fleet can be dislodged from its stronghold and captured or destroyed. One thing is assured. No course will be undertaken which will in any way expose our ships or men needlessly.

Porto Rico is becoming the focus of attention in the southern waters. Conviction is crystallizing that the first expedition to start from Tampa will have Porto Rico as its objective point. It is asserted that the president is thoroughly impressed with the plan which contemplates first the occupation of this island. General Miles and other officers high in the administration advocate such a course, and their counsel has weight with the executive.

Cuban invasion has become a bugaboo to the administration. With the heads of the army opposing any active campaign on Cuban soil until fall, and members of the official family backing up their arguments, it will not be surprising should this counsel prevail.

The occupation of Porto Rico will be undertaken to appease the public clamor for action. Climatic conditions which render the invasion of Cuba a nightmare will be escaped in subjecting the sister isle. With no sinister climatic conditions to overcome, with a force to operate against which is poorly equipped and unprepared for war, the conquest of Porto Rico will be a task scarcely to be dreaded by the American arms.

Unless the navy department secures direct and official information respecting the Spanish and American fleets through the aid of the West Indian cables, it will resort to the use of dispatch boats. It can be again affirmed on the highest authority that at the close of the day the department had nothing more than a belief, founded on unofficial advices, that the Spanish squadron was lying in Santiago harbor, and no news as to Commodore Schley's whereabouts. However, the great majority of the officials of the navy department entertain no doubt that Cervera is within Santiago harbor, and they have impressed this belief upon the president and the cabinet. The reports from the newspaper boats as to the movements of Sampson's and Schley's squadrons during the past week are very mystifying even to the naval officers here, and one of them called attention to a statement coming from the West Indies that 12 war vessels were seen for a short time off Cienfuegos Wednesday. This, he thought, was Schley's flying squadron, and in that case the commodore could scarcely have covered the distance between Cienfuegos and Santiago, with a slow-moving fleet of iron-clads, in less than two days, in which case Schley would not have been due off Santiago until yesterday. All this is speculative, but it shows that there is still an element of doubt in the department's calculations as to the whereabouts of the fleets.

Holland, the inventor of the submarine torpedo boat of that name, is to discuss with Captain O'Neill, chief of ordnance, the feasibility of using that novel craft in an attack upon the Spanish squadron at Santiago, if the vessels are still there. The officials are supposed to receive in a kindly spirit any suggestion that might prove to be valuable in this line, and they will talk with Mr. Holland over the details of his scheme, probably on the basis of a compensation to be paid to him for each Spanish vessel destroyed.

An important phase of the military program is the war department's decision not to take up the details of organizing the new force of 75,000 volunteers for at least a week or 10 days. No conclusion has been reached as to whether a portion of the volunteers will be used to recruit the regiments still remaining unfilled under the first call for 125,000.

One of the main purposes of issuing the second call was to establish a second reserve, made up of men who could be drilled and equipped at leisure and called upon some months hence if circumstances required; but if 40,000 of them are put at once into the regiments of the first call, they will go to the front, and the second reserve will be reduced to about 35,000 men, or a little more than one army corps.

The department is anxious to obtain the views of the governors of the states and territories in regard to filling to their maximum strength the regiments already furnished by them under the first call of the president. Adjutant General Corbin has sent telegrams asking several governors to make recommendations to the department on this subject.

A number of minor points coming up constantly in relation to the second call for volunteers are being passed upon in a general way at this time. For instance the question arose as to whether colored officers, as well as colored troops, would be taken as a part of the organizations offered. General Alger decided that if a colored company had efficient colored officers they were as much entitled to recognition and acceptance in the military service as were the troops themselves. He made this known in a dispatch to the governor of Indiana, who had asked for information, and he stated the same thing to Representative Hull of Iowa, who has an organization of colored men with colored officers in his district. It has also developed that colored men are being considered for some of the staff appointments, and the surgeon general of the army has accepted a colored man as a surgeon, with the rank of captain. The colored surgeon will be assigned to a colored regiment, and colored troops and colored officers will be kept together as far as possible.

Reserves Have a Chance.

Washington, May 28.—Assistant Secretary Allen gave out an interesting statement last night relative to the naval militia. Under the provisions of the recent act of congress the naval reserves are to be used in connection with the auxiliary defence measure. Mr. Allen says: "The patriotic young men who have been awaiting the chance to enlist will now have the opportunity. A circular letter has been addressed to the adjutant general of each of the states having a naval militia, advising him that, under the terms of the bill, a number of men—up to 3000—can be enlisted in the navy for one year, unless sooner discharged. Also that these men will be rendezvoused in their respective states, and will there be examined by a board, and those who are accepted will at once be mustered and ordered to receiving ships and other convenient stations, from whence they will be detailed to such vessels and such duty as the service requires."

CHARLES HERBERT ALLEN.

Disposition of Prisoners.

Key West, Fla., May 28.—Of the 446 persons reported captured on all the prizes of war 444 attached to the Spanish navy in various capacities will be held as prisoners under instructions from the attorney general. The others will probably be paroled. All are to be treated with the fullest consideration and accorded every possible privilege.

E. P. Knight, the correspondent of the London Times, who, when seven miles off Havana, was lowered over the bow of a dispatch boat and rowed ashore alone in a 10-foot skiff, was heard from yesterday. He is now in the Cabanas fortress, and the British consul has instituted proceedings for his release.

To Go to Manila.

Washington, May 28.—Three of the brigadier generals appointed by the president yesterday will be officially designated to command troops in the Philippines. The generals selected for the Philippine expedition are George A. Garretson of Cleveland, Francis V. Greene of New York and Charles King of Wisconsin. General Merritt, who is to be military governor of the Philippines, wired Adjutant General Corbin requesting that General King be sent with him to the Philippines. The request was approved and forwarded to General King, and so becomes to all intents and purposes a command. General King is the well-known novelist and ex-officer of the United States army. General Garretson and Greene have already signified to the war department their acceptance of the orders to proceed to Manila. Both are experienced officers of marked ability.

CAPTAIN CHARLES KING.

Provisions Landed at San Juan.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 28.—The latest advices from Porto Rico say that freighters recently landed at San Juan considerable provisions. From the same authority it apears that war preparations continue.

It is reported that after the bombardment Spain offered to send warships to Porto Rico from Martinique, but the offer was refused because of the confidence of the military that they could successfully repulse the American fleet. The Spaniards at San Juan declare that they will burn the city before they will surrender. It is impossible to assert which cable or cables the St. Louis cut.

Orders For the Ninth.

South Framingham, Mass., May 28.—Peculiar conditions existed last night upon the receipt of two different orders for the Ninth regiment. One was from Brigadier General Frank for the men to move to the different places in Rhode Island according to the previous order. This was received while the men were on dress parade, and had not become generally known when a second order was received from Adjutant General Corbin that the command report at Dunnloring, near Washington.

The entire command is jubilant over the prospect of leaving camp, and the men at once set to work getting their effects into the least possible compass.

When the Cadiz Squadron Arrives.

London, May 28.—A dispatch to The Financial News from Kingston, Jam., says the master of a fishing schooner picked up a yawl containing two reconcentrados who had escaped from Santiago. They told him that Admiral Cervera's squadron was in the harbor; that the vessels were coaled and victualled and were ready to sail "when the Cadiz squadron arrives next week and breaks the blockade."

Ordered to Be Sold.

Key West, May 28.—Decision in the prize cases was rendered yesterday as follows: The Catalina and Miguel Jover were released, both vessels and cargoes. The Pedro and Guido were condemned and forfeited, and ordered sold. The Buena Ventura and the Panama were condemned and forfeited. The cargo of the Buena Ventura, being neutral property, is to be restored to its owners, as it is protected by the president's proclamation. The question of the Panama's cargo is taken under advisement.

In the cases of the Pedro, Guido, Buena Ventura and Panama, the owners, through their attorneys, filed notice of appeal. In the cases of the Miguel Jover and Catalina an appeal will be taken by the United States.

Flag to Volunteers.

Old Orchard, Me., May 28.—The First regiment of Maine volunteers stopped 20 minutes here last night on its way south to Chickamauga. Several thousand people from Saco, Biddeford and adjoining towns were at the station when the three specials came in, and witnessed the ceremony of presenting the regiment with a national flag. Judge B. F. Cleaves made the speech in behalf of the Biddeford citizens. The state banner is not yet ready and will be forwarded to the regiment at Chickamauga. It is of regulation size and bears the inscription in yellow silk, "First regiment infantry, Maine volunteers."

Preparing a Reception.

San Francisco, May 28.—The citizens of Honolulu held a mass meeting on the evening of the 16th instant, and made arrangements to entertain the United States troops when they pass through. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one. Stirring speeches were made by United States Minister Sewall, United States Consul General Harwood, William O. Smith, attorney general for Hawaii, and others. A committee of 100 prominent men was appointed to handle the affair.

HAROLD M. SEWALL.

The government has tendered the use of the large drill shed and the grounds surrounding the executive buildings; a sumptuous spread will be prepared for Uncle Sam's defenders under the direction of the ladies of Honolulu, and over $5000 will be subscribed for the entertainment.

To Go to Cuba.

Lakeland, Fla., May 28.—Word came yesterday afternoon that the Seco. 1 Massachusetts had been made a part of General Shafter's Fifth army corps, and 10 minutes after the reception of the news the whole regiment knew that its chances of seeing active service had been greatly enhanced. The question now is, When will Shafter start?

Days of Sensations.

Fall River, May 28.—A stranger of striking appearance, unusual whiskers, tall hat and foreign accent, endeavored to employ a local investigator last Tuesday. He wanted information of government works, buildings, ships and coal pockets and of the local friends of Spain, and confessed under pledge of secrecy that his purpose was to ultimately destroy the New York boats and other property. Registering at the Mellen house, he remained half a day and disappeared. Two women, who avoided publicity, registered at the Wilbur house and were in communication with him. The local detective was informed that they had made a study of Newport, New Bedford and Taunton, as well as Hereshoff's works in Bristol, R. I. The women left on Wednesday morning, after having reported to the mysterious man, as is supposed.

The offer was declined by the local detective, who was thereupon asked to designate a shrewd person who had eyes and ears, but a still tongue and needed employment. In the evening the stranger met such a man, apparently by appointment, near the center of the city, and both went off toward the wharves.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 28.—It is not regarded by The Advertiser as "likely that the president will make any unreasonable demands, although it is to be taken for granted that the price which Spain will have to pay for peace will be much higher than the price at which peace could have been purchased a few months ago:"

"In the present war," remarks The Post, "Hawaii must either be neutral or an ally of the United States; and if the Hawaiians are our allies, to give us aid and comfort, these islands are as open to attack by Spain as are any parts of our own territory."

"It is as true now as it was before our fruitless diplomacy was abandoned," argues The Globe, "that war alone can bring us peace, but the hint is plainly given from Madrid that a very little of it may suffice."

GOLF CLUB FINANCIERING.

A Frank Statement of One Association's Use For City Members.

Some of the New Yorkers who recently joined a suburban golf and tennis club for the summer months were surprised by discovering that the rules required them to pay dues now for a period of six months and again on July 1 for a second six months. In view of the fact that they joined the club merely for the summer months and are not likely to use it in the early spring or the late autumn, it seemed that some arrangement might have been made by which the dues could be paid on April 1 for the following six months instead of compelling them to pay for a whole year when they were to use the club only during the summer. After several men had discussed the peculiarity of the arrangement one of them wrote to the friend who had proposed him to find out if a somewhat different plan could not be followed. After a few days he received from his friend this discouraging answer:

MY DEAR WILL—I think your case might be taken before the board of governors, and possibly they would make some exceptional rule by which you could be allowed to pay half dues or maybe postpone the payment of any until the 1st of July. But that action would be very exceptional. That rule was made for the use of just such persons as you. The club is young and needs money. We think that as much as possible ought to be got out of the city members, so we passed that rule which requires the city members to pay full yearly dues if they want to use the grounds in the early spring at the time they are most in demand. That is why a suburban club takes in New York members. But I think possibly the governors might be persuaded to do what they can to help you out.

The city member did not want to be helped so ostentatiously, and he declined his friend's offer. But he has his ideas now about the treatment of city members in suburban clubs.—New York Sun.

ALL SORTS OF SPORTS.

Keene Fitzpatrick, the Yale trainer, thinks highly of H. P. Smith, 1900, a sprinter of great speed if properly developed.

New Yorkers say that L. W. Sullivan of New Haven is a scorching half mile runner and only requires training to become a champion.

Captain Potter of the Princeton track team has sent the following men to the training table: Palmer, Jones, Rush, Carroll, Wheeler, Bottger, Ripley and Creegan.

Miss Freda Kuagen of Christiania recently won the title of "Queen of Skiers" at Holmenkollen, by clearing the distance of 103½ feet at a single jump, beating the highest previous record 16½ feet.

Efforts are being made to arrange a tricornered double shell race between Edward Hanlon, Ten Eyck and James B. Juvenal; James A. Ten Eyck and George W. Van Vielt, and Edward Hedley and Fred Cresser.

The Hartford Golf club has adopted the age system for a series of team matches, one team to be composed of men over 45 years, another of those between 30 and 45, and the third of all members under 30 years of age.

There is a strong feeling of expectation at the University of Pennsylvania that the sprinter Tewsbury will prove to be a faster man than Rush of Princeton and fast enough to make Wefers travel in record time to win this year's intercollegiate championship 100 and 220 yards runs.

Emil Jarrow, the "Brooklyn Strong Boy," has returned from Buffalo, after a successful campaign at "finger pulling." The other night he issued a challenge to meet Yousouf or any other in a match at this game for $500 or $1,000 a side. He claims that Nat Fenton of Buffalo will back him for this amount.

Golfing Accidents.

A golf ball is not usually classed in the list of dangerous missiles, but nevertheless it may often inflict painful injury when driven from the tee. The wonder is in crowded tournaments that accidents do not happen more frequently. In the intercollegiate tournament last Friday Cornelius Fellowes, Jr., one of the Columbia team, was knocked unconscious by a ball driven by Roderick Terry, Jr. Although he recovered in a few moments, the accident illustrates the injury which a solid sphere of rubber even as small as a golf ball can do. The London Field is authority for the statement that at the North Berwick links last Christmas day Mr. Ramsey of the Islay Golf club hit a flying gull in the head with a full brassey shot, the impact of the ball killing the bird instantly. Those who have felt the effect of a well driven shot need not be told of the stinging blow that may be administered in this way. In large tournaments, and especially where there are many spectators, considerable care is necessary to avoid such accidents.—New York Tribune.

Increase of Lacrosse.

More lacrosse matches are scheduled this year than for any season in the last decade. The game has much to commend it. It requires skill and endurance, and even in the oldest clubs near New York the players of the first class can be counted on the fingers of one hand. Lacrosse teams which attempt to get along without competent coachers will find that they are making a serious mistake. A good lacrosse team cannot be developed in a single season. Among the colleges now playing the game are Harvard, Stevens, Lehigh, Swarthmore, Johns Hopkins, Columbia, New York university and the University of the City of New York. Princeton dropped the game after turning out several fair teams in previous years. Yale could never see anything in it and has always steadfastly refused to take it up. Baltimore and Brooklyn turn out the fastest athletic club teams. This year there will be a new suburban athletic club team representing Montclair.—New York Sun.

FIGHTING UNCLE SAM'S BATTLE-SHIPS—IN ACTION—"LOAD!" FROM HARPER'S WEEKLY. AFTER A DRAWING BY T. DE THULSTRUP.

Reproduced from Harper's Weekly. By Permission. Copyright, 1898, by Harper & Brothers.

The men who win the fight aboard a battle-ship today are the men who serve the guns. Upon their energy, determination, and skill depends the ultimate issue of the conflict. Of course, in the wonderfully perfect and economical organization of the ship's company no man is wasted, and every one contributes his share to the strength of the mighty combination. From the sharp-shooters, turning the Maxim guns in the dizzy, swaying, fighting top, to the stokers who feed the furnaces in the black depths below, from the captain on the bridge to the messenger at his side, ready to carry the word when bell and speaking-tube are shot away—all have their important work to do, and the failure or faltering of any one of them would mar in greater or less degree the effectiveness of the great machine. But without the constant an well-directed fire of her heavy guns in a battle, a ship could not stay afloat just as a man in a fist fight, however strong and clever a boxer he may be cannot keep his feet unless his blows strike home. The old naval maxim is as true today as it was in the time of Nelson—"The ship must win whose crew stands longest by the guns."

It is man's work to stand by the guns on a modern battle-ship. The scene is well represented in the stirring illustration from Harper's Weekly, reproduced today. The smoke and sulphurous gases smother the breath and blind the eyes, the terrific heat tortures the half-naked bodies, the thunderous crashes of the guns deafen the ears and numb the senses. But the gun crews know that their comrades, from "the old man" down, are looking to them to do the fighting, and wounds and death and their shipmates falling striken about them are forgotten in the storm of the contest. It is the final test of years of training, and the men move like clockwork at the word of command. Perhaps to some of them comes a dim picture of their last gunnery practice on summer seas of the Roads, but the familiar voice of the officer of the gun now rings out the orders with a strange hard note of battle in it, and they pray that they have learned their lesson well, and that nothing goes amiss. Through the port they sometimes catch a glimpse of the havoc done on the enemy by a well-directed shot, and they cheer as well as they can in the stiffling smoke and heat, and bend to their work again with renewed determination to carry to victory the flag of their ship floating proudly from the topmost point of the iron mast.

The marksmanship of our gunners long since aroused the envy of foreign navies, and now the Yankee sailors are proving that for discipline and devotion to duty they are no less to be admired and imitated.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning May 29. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Christian growth.—Ps. xcii, 7-15; Eph. iv, 11-16.

The true Christian must grow. He cannot stand still, for that is impossible. He must not turn to the right hand or left hand, for that is dangerous. He dare not turn back, for that is treason to Christ. Christ emphatically declares that one who puts his hand to the plow and looks back is not worthy of Him. God intended that we should grow and develop. He has placed the elements of growth within and without us. He has placed high ideals before us and calls upon us to strive to attain to them. Christ's intention and purpose toward us is that we should grow. "Ye have not chosen Me," He says, "but I have chosen you and ordained you that you should go and bring forth fruit and that your fruit should remain." "Grow in grace," says the apostle Peter. Grow in the graces that adorn and beautify Christ and Christianity.

Christian growth is compared to that of the palm tree and the cedar of Lebanon (Ps. xlii, 7-15.) "The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree; he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon." The leading characteristics of the date palm and the cedar are their stately loveliness, fruitfulness, undecaying vigor and perpetuity. Nothing in all the world of nature is more stately than the cedar. The palm is ever green, "in the winter's cold as in the summer's heat. Not by years, but by centuries, is the cedar's age reckoned." "The wicked spring as the grass," which soon withers and dies, but the righteous are ever green and fruitful. "They that are planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God. They shall still bring forth fruit in their old age; they shall be fat and flourishing." The fruitfulness of the date palm in old age is remarkable. It has been said that when it reaches its maturity it produces 300 or 400 pounds weight of food and even as much as 600 pounds. May our Christian growth be like the palm and cedar, beautiful, constant, producing a fruitfulness that will redound to the honor and glory of God.

The Christian's growth is to be toward perfect manhood in Christ Jesus, Eph. iv, 6-11. This is the high ideal that Paul sets before us. Christ, he says, "gave some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers, for the perfecting of the saints * * * till we all come in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ." Perfection in Christ is the ideal that is set before us, and how well we know that this cannot be attained in a day or at a single bound, but by the steady, gradual growth of months and of years, as steadily and gradually the cedar attains to its stately height and spreading beauty. Let us take this as our ideal and strive each day to come one step nearer to it.

Sabbath Catechism.

Here is a catechism on the Sabbath, fortified with Bible references. It is the work of Miss Catherine Copley, the junior superintendent of Riverside, Cal.:

When does He say we may work? Ex. xx, 9.
Whose day is it? Exodus xx, 10; Mark ii, 28.
May we work on the Sabbath? Ex. xx, 10.
May your son or daughter? Ex. xx, 10.
Or hired man or cook? Ex. xx, 10.
Or horses or your visitors? May any one? Ex. xx, 10.
What else are we forbidden to do on the Sabbath? Isa. lviii, 13.
When ought we to prepare for Sunday? Ex. xvi, 23.
When God prepared food for the children of Israel, did He prepare any on Sunday? Ex. xvi, 27.
What resolve did the Jews of Nehemiah's day make? Neh. x, 31.
What effect did it have? Neh. xiii, 15-21.
The breaking of the Fourth Commandment had what effect? Jer. xvii, 27; Neh. xiii, 18.
What about the man who keeps the Sabbath? Isa. lvi, 2; lviii, 13, 14.
Is it possible to keep it right as we think and still displease God? Isa. i, 13.
How shall we keep it? Luke vi, 7-10; Ps. xcv, 6; Heb. x, 25.

—Christian Endeavor World.

Going Without Religion.

The worst kind of religion is no religion at all, and these men living in ease and luxury, indulging themselves in the amusement of going without religion, may be thankful that they live in lands where the gospel they neglect has tamed the beastliness and ferocity of the men who, but for Christianity, might long ago have eaten their carcasses like the South Sea islanders, or cut off their heads and tanned their hides like the monsters of the French revolution.—James Russell Lowell.

Will Power Necessary.

Will power should be behind our asking. Sentiment is all right if it has resolution and execution to give it body and activity. Emotional supplication must be animated with the practical spirit. Many plead earnestly and do very little toward making their prayers a reality. The grace supplicated must come into the heart and go out into the life.—Presbyterian.

The Second Coming of Christ.

The signs appear to point to the near approach of the blessed day of Christ's second coming. The world, with all its sorrows and unrest, anticipates a change of some kind, and soon we who look for Him shall see the coming glory and share in the bliss of His everlasting kingdom.—Episcopal Recorder.

To Them That Love Him.

All things work together for good to them that love God, because love is always the gainer by being tested.—Episcopal Recorder.

VICTORIES OF REASON.

Common Sense Asserting Itself In Cycle Construction and Equipment.

The substitution of the modern type for the old fashioned high wheel was a victory of reason, and such improvements as have taken place since the first crude "safeties" appeared have been dictated by the reasonable necessities of the rider. Two years ago, for instance, it developed that the rider was entitled to some consideration from the manufacturer with respect to handle bars. The riders of the present day sit their wheels according to the dictates of reason, if they choose to do so. If they choose to bend far over, they may, but those who elect to sit upright find the dealer ready to advise and furnish an appropriate outfit. Formerly it was a common thing for the dealer to insist that scorcher bars were the correct and proper thing, no matter what the rider's preferences.

It is also to be noted that within the past year the dealer has ceased from dictating on the subject of saddles. The customer is asked what kind of a saddle he prefers, whether large or small, hard or soft, with springs or without, and he is forthwith furnished with the article he desires. Here is another victory of reason and a triumph of hygiene and natural law.

Once more, agents are less commanding in their assertions that tires should always be pumped hard. If the cyclist considers it well to take the benefit of the pneumatic quality of the tire instead of subjecting himself to constant and hard vibration, he may indulge his preference without suffering the annoyance of jejune criticism. The agent's position that hard tires will last longer than soft ones is sound, but the average rider has gained sufficient knowledge to make allowances, and if he prefers to use his tires soft the maker of them does not suffer in reputation because they do not last indefinitely. Neither does the dealer.—American Cyclist.

CYCLE RACING.

It is said that Tom Cooper is anxious to meet Jaap Eden, the Dutch champion, in a series of one mile match races.

Jimmy Michael has been compelled to give a bond for $5,000 to guarantee the fulfillment of his part of the contract with the American Cycle Racing association.

August Lehr, paced by an electric triplet, made a new German record for three kilometers (1 mile 1,521 yards) in 3:30 2-5. Stocks' world's figures for the same distance are 3:28 1-5.

Arrangements have been concluded for a 15 mile match race between Jimmy Michael and Eddie McDuffee. The race, which will be for $1,500, will be decided at Charles River park, Boston, July 2.

In distance racing especially it is necessary to be put through the mill, as the mere sitting on a machine for six or 12 hours at a stretch is alone a specialty without taking into consideration speed and judgment.

The Seine track of Paris exacts the following fees from racing men: Subscription for training, with right of entrance to spectators' stand on race days, $12; special price for members of the Riders' syndicate, $8; multiple machine pacemakers, $4; manager's ticket, $4; training cabin for one person, $8; for two, $12; for three, $15.

The electric triplet ridden by the Jallu brothers, now in America, weighs, with its accouterments, 300 pounds, and with the riders up it tips the scales at 650 pounds. When hurled round the track at a speed of 1:21 to the mile, its record on a small five lap track, something would happen to the riders were anything to go suddenly wrong or should the forks break under them.

How to succeed on the bicycle racing path cannot be taught by books. A rider learns more by riding in one race than he does by reading half a dozen books. There can be no set rules in training, as what suits one man may practically kill another. Therefore the best advice for riders is to get plenty of experience in the class of race which suits them and in which they intend to compete. Thus they are enabled to find out their weak points and also their strong ones.

"One of the noticeable things of latter day cycle racing," says a wheelman, "is that there is no rider who stands head and shoulders over his fellows, as did Zimmerman or Osmond, and that the cycle racing world is longing for such riders again. Now it is an impossible task to separate half a dozen of the leading cracks of each country and say which one is entitled to hold premier position over the others. So much now depends upon the pacemaking that the crack rider behind pace loses much of his individuality, the admiration being shared by pacers as well as paced."

Bourotte, the French middle distance star, whose arrival in this country last Sunday more than complicated middle distance possibilities for the season, speaks no English but "Very good." On the boat coming over he could not read the English bill of fare; neither could he speak to the English waiter. Pointing to something on the bill, he would wait until the waiter spoke its name, and then would ejaculate, "Very good." If asked any question in English, his reply always is "Very good." If he asked a question and received a reply which he did not understand, his reply came back, "Very good."

High Gear Means Hard Work.

High geared wheels are good things on certain occasions, but for general use they are not to be thought of. A gear higher than 66, or 60 to 63 for women, is a great mistake, for it turns a pleasure into a toil. Many a rider with a high geared wheel has found to his cost on the day after a ride against a strong wind aching bones and stiffened muscles, due almost entirely to pushing his wheel at top speed against a gale.—New York Post.

Holiday Notice.

No Ledger will be issued on Monday, Memorial Day. Tuesday's paper, with the news of three days will be unusually entertaining and it may be necessary to print eight pages.

Good Afternoon.

The war prospects continue wholly assuring and suggest the probability of its early successful conclusion. The Spanish fleet on this side the Atlantic is not only placed where it cannot harm us but is where it must ultimately fall into our hands. Should Spain send out a second fleet to relieve Cervera its fate at the hands of our three squadrons would be, in all reasonable probability, foredoomed. If, instead, she sends a squadron to eject Admiral Dewey from Manila bay, her success, in a naval sense, would be far from certain, and Cuba and Porto Rico would fall into our hands beyond all question. Turn which way Spain may, the same result awaits her, the defeat of her fleets, the loss of her territory and a humiliating unqualified surrender.

A New York banking house says, the Spanish war is consigned to a secondary place as a factor in the stock market. No one now has any misgivings as to the outcome of the struggle; and hence other influences predominate, such as the unprecedentedly favorable condition of our foreign trade, the prosperity of the railroads as as indicated by their continued large earnings, the extremely favorable crop outlook, and last but not least the superabundance of money and the constantly lower rates prevailing, the competition now being with loaners and not with borrowers.

The Q. Y. C. Addition.

The plans for the addition to the Quincy Yacht club house, which were prepared by Mr. Howland Jones, call for a structure containing either thirteen or twenty lockers, each six by six feet in size. The executive committee has bids on these two sets of plans but before proceeding to build the committee prefer that at least twelve lockers should be engaged by the members through the secretary. The committee does not feel warranted in asking the club to spend several hundred dollars for lockers unless there is a positive demand for them. Unless twelve are spoken for by June 15 the building will not be erected this season. It now remains with the members as to whether the lockers shall be put in.

Memorial Day.

The Grand Army will observe Memorial Day after the usual programme. Details will decorate the graves in different cemeteries early in the morning. At 9.30 A. M. the Post will form to go to West Quincy, and at 2 P. M. to march to Mount Wollaston.

Tomorrow the Post will attend service at the First Presbyterian church on Water street at 10.30 A. M. and again at 7 P. M. at St. John's church.

—The price of grain in Europe is said to be higher at the present moment than at any previous time for twenty years. Once most of the grain consumed in Europe was obtained from Russia, but now this country is relied upon, and owing to the war with S ain and the consequent increase of freight and insurance rates, the price of imported grain has gone up too such an extent as to place the masses in such countries as Spain, Italy and France face to face with starvation.—Boston Home Journal.

Army and Navy Record.

More Quincy young men have enlisted for the war than most people imagine. It is the desire of the editor of the Daily Ledger to keep a record of all these, and he will esteem it a favor if parents and friends will forward names, with information as to warship, regiment, company, etc; also age, years of service, names of parents, etc. We desire to include also former residents and relatives of Quincy people. When letters of public interest, relative to engagements, are received, the Ledger would be pleased to publish them in full or in part. The people of Quincy will take more interest in the engagements of the New York, the Massachusetts, the Iowa, the Indiana, the Cincinnati and other battleships, if they are aware that a Quincy boy is among the heroes.

Who will add to this list?

W. W. Dunn, U. S. S. Cincinnati.

—The condition of the cellar is far more important than that of the parlor. In light rooms dirt is comparatively harmless. In dark places it is a lurking danger. No old wood, no vegetable, no rubbish of any kind, should be allowed to cumber the cellar.

—It is said that the New Bedford banks have removed their securities to Worcester as a matter of safety against a possible visit by a Spanish cruiser.

WOLLASTON FLAG.

A Tempest Over the Location of Flag Staff.

There is a tempest in a tea pot at Wollaston. It's a pretty hot one too. The flag-staff which is to be dedicated on Monday is the cause of the trouble.

At the meeting which was held at Brasee's hall a short time ago to raise the money for the staff the audience was given to understand so it is claimed that it was to be erected in the square near the fountain. A committee was appointed by the meeting with full powers to purchase the staff and to locate it. After viewing the square and taking all things into consideration of the multiplicity of trolley, telephone and fire alarm wires which centre at that joint, and the excavating for the sewer, the committee deemed that it was inexpedient to locate the pole there. Wholly unconscious of the storm which would break over their heads, the committee chose the next most available sight, the corner of Park street and Grand View avenue on First Hill. The sight is but 325 feet from the fountain with an elevation of 60 feet above it. It is sightly, the truck of the staff being 220 feet above the sea level.

The committee claims that if the staff had been erected in the square it would have been impossible to have raised the flag in a wind as it would have got tangled in the wires and been damaged. A view of the place seems to bear out their view of the case.

On the other hand a large number of the subscribers claim that they gave the money with the understanding that the staff was to be erected in the square and that nothing was said or intimated about erecting it at any other place They supposed, so they affirm, that those in charge of the matter had viewed the square and had determined it as the proper place. A few days after the meeting they learned that the staff was to be located at the corner of the Park and Grand View avenue, on what is virtually private property.

It would seem as though the committee had done the best it could under the circumstances and had discharged its trust in a conscientious manner.

The Rev. Preston Gurney will deliver the address at the dedication on Monday morning.

PATRIOTIC NOTES.

A Budget of Locals which is Full of Inspiration.

Pleasant at last.

No Ledger next Monday.

About five more weeks of school.

Friday was not a very good day to govern the weather of June.

Catharine M. Lapham has been granted a pension of $8 per month.

A large platform is being erected at the depot for the grand flag raising tonight.

On Adams Field Friday afternoon, the Dewey Reds defeated the South Quincy juniors, 17 to 5.

George J. Richards has been elected a director of the Mt. Wollaston National bank to fill vacancy.

It is an item worthy of note that the sun came out just before noon after being hid nearly a week.

A case of glanders was reported to the Board of Health this mnorning. The horse will probably be killed.

Mr. J. L. Whiton, Jr.'s picture of the Princeps at the Quincy Yacht club house attracts a good deal of attention.

The Adams-Thayer athletic games to have been held this afternoon have been postponed because of the weather.

The grounds of the Universalist church are being graded and beautified and when done will be a credit both to the society and the city.

Posters were printed this morning postponing the Adams-Thayer dual games this afternoon, but they were withdrawn and the games are now on.

Attention is called to the notice of the Managers of Public Burial Places in relation to the Memorial Day regulations at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The two flag raisings tonight,—at the central fire station at 5.30, and at the Quincy railroad depot at 7.30, will furnish enough enthusiasm for one night.

The hours of the Quincy post-office on Monday, Memorial Day, will be from 6.30 to 10 A. M., and from 5 to 7 P. M. One collection and one delivery will be made in the morning.

The Wollaston golf team again defeated the Allston team on Thursday by a score of 11 to 0. Each of the home team won from his opponent. The score of the two matches is: Wollaston, 29; Allston 23.

Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows has been invited to witness the third degree work of Electric lodge of Brockton, and a delegation will go to the Shoe city next Tuesday evening on the 7.19 train.

H. P. Kittredge heard again last evening from W. W. Dunn of the Cincinnati, which cruised all last week in search of the Spanish fleet. It was mailed at Key West Tuesday. He writes of great sport fishing for sharks, large ones being caught.

At the Wollaston Congregational church next Sabbath there will be patriotic services through the day. In the morning the sermon will be for Memorial Day, and in the evening there will be an informal address upon "The Civil War and the Present War." There will also be appropriate music.

The new law establishing a justice of the peace in Quincy with power to take bail and issue warrants in criminal cases for the East Norfolk District, went into effect today. Mr. W. M. Marden is the officer appointed by Governor Wolcott and he is all ready to perform the duties with which he is empowered by that law.

Mr. C. Verry Starrett of Wollaston had quite an exciting experience on his bicycle last evening. While riding down Brook street he lost control over his machine and plunged into a tree. The wheel was pretty well demolished. Outside of spoiling his bicycle suit, Mr. Starrett escaped without any material injury.

Chief Litchfield will assign a squad of officers for duty at Mt. Wollaston cemetery Monday to see that the rules are enforced and to preserve order. This year no fakirs will be permitted to carry on their business on the streets surrounding the cemetery, either at Mt. Wollaston or at West Quincy, as the police will be instructed to make them move on.

Following is a list of those who have successfully passed the civil servie examination for inspectors in the sewer department: Percival A. Hall, Henry W. French, John M. O'Brien, Walter H. Hersey, Francis E. Hall, James W. Young, George T. Westland, Roderick W. McDonald and William C. Seelye. Of this number Francis E. Hall and William C. Seelye are veterans and according to the civil service rules they must be the first two appointed if they so desire.

—Brockton has a pawn shop opened this year. Liquor license is on there too. Now is there any coincidence, asks the Old Colony Memorial, in the facts?

Braintree Schools.

Memorial Day was observed in all our public schools yesterday.

In the hall of the Monatiquot school, pupils were present from the High, Monatiquot and Pond schools. The following programme was rendered, the music being furnished by all the pupils.

Singing, Star Spangled Banner.

Reading, Memorial Day, Gertrude Young.

Singing, Dewey, Dewey, Miss Brook's class, Pond school.

Singng, Red, White and Blue, All.

Rectation, Decoration Day, Harold Faxon.

Singing, Flag of the Free, All.

Reading, No Flowers on Papa's Grave, Olive Caron.

Singing, America, All.

A number of the parents were present to enjoy the exercises.

The pupils of the Monatiquot school are making a study of tree, plant and and bird life and in their interest in the subject have thought of the many in the crowded streets of Boston who do not see the wild-flowers. They will send next week a large box of the various kinds of flowers to one of the grammar schools of Boston for classuse and afterwards for distribution among the pupils. There is much today that breeds selfishness in children; could all but see the enthusiasm of the children in their proposed work of gladening the lives of the less fortunate, it would have to be acknowledged that our schools were to some extent at least fostering the feeling of regard for the happiness of others.

At the Jonas Perkins school a long and interesting programme was given by the pupils.

The Grand Army Post was represented by Captain Whitman and Comrades B. J. Loring, Morris Gurney, John Griffin, Mr. Allen, Mr. Barker; and they were escorted to the platform by a delegation from the school and the school drum corps.

After three cheers for the veterans, Mrs. Loring announced the following:

THE WOODWARD.

to present for the pupils, through you, to the school, this flag. I may say that the picture which it enfolds is one especially fitting at this time—for he who gives to education, gives to the defence of his country.

When this flag is hoisted aloft on the building, I trust the pupils will find inspiration in the sight of the colors; that they may appreciate the lofty ideals which the flag represents.

Miss Small in acceptance spoke of the patriotic influence of the flag. It reminded us that we were living with men who make history. We were longing for peace, and the tendency was to peace although the country is now at war. She said it was the first opportunity the pupils of the Woodward had had to salute a flag of their own, and at her request they did it loyally.

Miss Small then proposed a noble sentiment to the flag, and the school followed with the singing of "Star Spangled Banner."

By request all united in singing "America," and then the pupils marched out. Many congratulated Miss Small and her teachers on the success of the evening, and some inspected the well appointed school building.

BRAINTREE.

The First church reunion and supper took place Thursday evening, and in spite of the rain the chapel was well filled, and after a half hour of social intercourse the large party sat down to a bountiful and elaborate spread which had been prepared by the ladies.

County President James O'Dowd and suite organized a military division of the A. O. H. at Avery's hall, East Braintree Thursday evening. Notwithstanding the inclement weather large delegations were present from Weymouth, East Weymouth, Quincy, South Braintree, Randolph, Cohasset and surrounding towns, as considerable interest was manifested in the ceremony it being the only military division at present in Norfolk County.

Mr. Walter Brown, a brakeman on the double iron freight, fell from a car while shifting in the South Braintree yard, Wednesday morning, and one of his legs was severed below the knee. He was taken to the Massachusetts General hospital where his case was considered serious.

Rev. C. F. H. Crathern spoke before the neighborhood conference at Weymouth, Wednesday, upon "Church Machinery."

A large flag was raised over the car house of the Quincy & Boston street railway by the employes of that company on Monday afternoon.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to Division No. 12, A. O. H., held an entertainment and dance in Red Men's hall Tuesday evening. A large number was present. An excellent concert was given, consisting of readings, singing and instrumental music. Cuff's orchestra discoursed sweet music during the evening.

The Selectmen have notified A. S. Morrison and brothers and others, who it is claimed have placed poles in the highway without authority from the town to remove the same.

At the town meeting held Thursday evening Mr. John V. Scollard was elected moderator, and upon motion of Mr. George D. Willis it was voted: That the committee appointed under the resolution presented by John V. Scollard at our last annual meeting, which was unaniously adopted, are hereby empowered to procure and cause s to be placed upon the town grounds, a suitable staff and flag, and that the same be appropriately dedicated at such time as the committee may designate. All details to be left to the descretion of said committee. The meeting adjourned at 8.10.

THE SILENT MARCH.

Not with the clash of the sabers, not with the roll of the drums
Or the cheers that greet the hero when home from the battle he comes,
Not to the sound of the bugle, mellow and clear and sweet,
Do they pass on the homeward march, with never returning feet,
But into the dim, deep stillness, where never-more strife may come,
With never a footfall sounding, the soldiers are marching home.

Side by side, the line unbroken, as 'twas in the years ago,
When they went with flying banners to meet the ranks of the foe.
These were the youthful heroes who fought for the nation then,
These who march to silent music, scarred and gray, like ghosts of men.
For them no bayonets flashing in the tide of the noonday sun,
For them the echoless silence, long since were their battles won.

Now are the batteries silent that breathed their murderous breath,
That laid like grain of the harvest the long, dark swath of death.
Gone is the smoke of battle that hung o'er the far drawn line
Till the sky was hid at noonday and the sun forgot to shine,
And where the tide of carnage surged over the trodden plain
No whisper comes to grass or flower of all its crimson stain.

There were tears and hours of longing for those who come no more,
For the voices hushed to silence and the footstep on the floor.
In those far days of battle, those days of bit-
terest strife,
When a man for his country's glory set no
price upon his life,
But guarded that nation's honor down to his latest breath,
The soldier brave who knew no fear, who par-
leyed not with death.

And ever since the wartime, when love and home were sweet,
Have the soldiers joined the silent march,
with never returning feet.
Out from the door of the cottage, from palace of wealth, they came,
And the path led on in silence, the way was ever the same,
And still the silent army is marching away,
away,
And the last recruit will join the ranks and be mustered in some day.

—Buffalo News.

A Tale of Love And Loyalty.

Though it was Memorial day and Mrs. Knowlton was a distinctively patriotic woman she was not celebrating the occasion.

It was her invariable custom to participate in one form or another and in fervent spirit always in every recognition of her country's red letter days.

Today she was debating how she could best bring the Memorial day spirit into her own home. Her favorite niece, Elsie Kilburn, was her guest, and by especial invitation Elsie's best friend and college chum, Marie Gay, had accompanied her.

"I will first tell them the story of Ruth Bryant's memorial days," she resolved. "It will be good for them to know such an ideal tale of love and loyalty in these times of half hearted patriotism and flimsy summer engagements."

Just then the girl guests fluttered into their hostess' boudoir.

"I have a plan for your approbation, girls," she said. "Presently I would like to take you to a private memorial ground, though I can't surely promise you a view of the decorations."

"Cui bono, then?" laughed Marie. "I never did care much for 'Hamlet' with Hamlet left out."

"In this case it is something to see the environments. It forms the shrine for one of Cambridge's quaint, fadeless romances."

"How lovely!" exclaimed Elsie. "I dote upon fadeless romances. There's an aroma about the very term."

"You would appreciate the sweetness of this one all the more," said Mrs. Knowlton, "if you knew—as you presently shall—the woman whom it concerns."

"I'll sketch her here and now," said Marie, "if you'll give the points."

"Take her, then, as I knew her in our school days, when we two were inseparable. Ruth Bryant was taller than you—a graceful, stately girl, with a sweetly winning face, yet with a certain well defined firmness and pride in its lines. The eyes were the feature that held and reassured one against the determination of the mouth and chin. They were dark, unfathomable eyes, wistful and tender. Many a man has gained his first real conception of what soul is from a chance look into the depths of Ruth Bryant's eyes.

"It is the story of a wartime wooing and parting," continued Mrs. Knowlton, with the air of a Scheherezade. "Its hero, Roger Morgan, had loved this fair Ruth all her life, but as she grew up in her beauty and maiden stateliness he held himself aloof. He was of a peculiarly sensitive nature, and he had come to believe that Ruth looked with especial favor upon one Harvey Chase, his fellow townsman.

"Harvey was entirely responsible for this delusion, for he haunted Ruth like her shadow, but she had no sentiment whatever toward him. She had given him plainly to understand as much, but he would not be rebuffed."

"Good stuff in him," remarked Marie.

"Not so very good, or at least it was neutralized by baser elements. He had given Roger to understand that Ruth encouraged his attentions, and had made matters by so much the worse.

"I chanced to know who really was the hero of her dreams, and I finally had the satisfaction of removing the delusion from Roger Morgan's mind."

"How delightful!" exclaimed Elsie. "How—and when?"

"He stopped, in passing, one evening just at early twilight, to speak to me as I stood in our old fashioned garden enjoying the spring bloom. I spoke at once of the current rumors that he was about to enlist for the war.

"It was quite true, he said, he was to enroll his name with the recruits.

"Then I said outright, 'Have you told Ruth about it?'

"He started and I saw his hand tremble.

"'I could not flatter myself,' he said, 'that it would concern her.'

"I didn't want to betray Ruth, but I was persuaded that he loved her, and that gave me courage.

"'Don't do another thing until you have told Ruth that, and anything else that you have to tell her,' I said desperately. 'Go to her at once.'

"He looked at me a moment with all his soul in his face, but I only said:

"'She must speak for herself,' and then, all in a moment, he was gone."

"You blessed matchmaker," said Marie. "Have you outgrown those admirable proclivities?"

"Don't interrupt Roger," said Elsie. "Did he tell her then and there?"

"I had it from the best authority that he did. Ruth confided it all to me afterward, when she scolded and thanked me for my intervention. He came upon her like a ghost, she being also in the garden. It was so long ago that it can hardly be a profanation to repeat her confidence."

"Repeat it by all means," cried the girls. "Verbatim," added Marie.

"I wasn't there, remember. Ruth lived then where she does now—near my early home, a half hour's walk from here. Thirty years have now greatly changed the place. The tree embowered house is a little more old fashioned, and the trees are grown, but it is as idyllic now as then."

"But the romance," urged Marie. "He found her in the garden."

"I'm wandering among old memories. Yes, she was in the garden, and they walked to the place in the rear of the great yard, where a pair of twin maple trees still grow from a single root.

"Then, without the least preliminary, Roger said:

"'You know I love you, Ruth, with my whole heart. Is there the slightest hope for me?'

"Of course Ruth was completely overwhelmed, but there could be but one answer, and he read it in her eyes.

"It was nearly dark, and the discreet old maples never told a word about the scene of the betrothal.

"But it was a bittersweet hour. Roger told her at once of his determination to enlist, so the shadow of parting was over their first rapture. Ruth did not so much as suggest that he stay for her sake. She was every inch a patriot, and she was proud to bear the pain of parting from her hero.

"So they vowed eternal constancy there by the twin maples. Roger lingered in town as long as possible without interfering with his purpose, and one day he carved their initials in the trunk of one of the trees, with the date of their betrothal, May 2, 1862."

"I'd give anything to see them!" cried Marie.

"Bide your time," said her entertainer. "They are still legible. Time has been allowed to efface nothing relating to those golden days. All through the years that spot has been a shrine to Ruth."

"I wish it had all turned out happily," sighed Elsie. "This half of your story must be much the happier."

"It is," said her Aunt Louise, "for Roger went all too soon, and, according to Shakespeare's test, he need not be 'recreant' in war, for he was certainly in love heart and soul.

"Ruth's only comfort lay in their correspondence, which was carried on most faithfully. They came fully to know the richness of each other's natures and their individual capacity for affection and to grow closer and closer into each other's hearts."

"Where in the meantime was Harvey Chase?"

"I should have told you that he enlisted when Roger did. I always believed that he had waited, dreading to leave Roger in the home field. But the engagement was currently reported, and he thought best to keep an eye on the victor.

"Affairs went as wartime affairs did go until Roger had been away a year. He had had no furlough, and the lovers had enjoyed only the letters and what we should term telepathic communication.

"Then came the terrible battle of Chancellorsville, which took place on the 2d of May, 1863, exactly one year from the date carved on the maple tree.

"The Union army lost the day, and as the enemy held possession of the field it was impossible for them to recover all the Union dead.

"Roger Morgan's name came out in that dreadful list of the killed. Harvey Chase was taken prisoner, and a deadly havoc was made among our troops."

"Oh, say that Roger wasn't really killed!" said Elsie dolefully.

"Unhappily the report was but too true. Ruth was so deathly still when she heard the news that no one could fathom her grief. We were all puzzled and alarmed. But after a time she said to me, with her eyes at their deepest:

"'The parting is to be longer than we thought, but time and death cannot touch such love as ours.'

"Did Harvey Chase come back?"

"By a strange irony of fate he did in June of the following year. He was strong in the conviction that the only obstacle between him and Ruth had been removed. He lost no time in pleading his case, and when Ruth told him in grieved surprise that her heart had been given once for all to Roger Morgan he grew desperate.

"His dead rival should be dethroned at any cost, so he told her hotly that she was cherishing the memory of a coward who was shot while skulking to the rear of the line to escape fire.

"I can imagine how perfectly grand Ruth was in her scorn and indignation. She knew Roger Morgan's soul, and Harvey Chase never sought her presence again."

"Good for Ruth!" cried Marie.

"She had been keeping Memorial day on her own account ever since the news came of Roger's death. The idea was her own of decorating the shrine that stood for his grave on the 2d of every month.

"She chose his memorial ground there by the twin maples. She made garlands of the sweetest blossoms and wound them round the tree trunk where Roger had carved the date of their betrothal, little dreaming that a day so blessed to them was to become their fatal day.

"After Harvey slunk away before her wrath Ruth went in a state of lofty enthusiasm—as if she had just heard of a national victory—and garlanded all her shrine with laurel leaf and blossom. She scattered the same emblematic leaves and flowers thickly over the spot where in her poetic fancy she had located this grave."

"Was she so realistic?"

"Idealistic, rather. You will notice the space all myrtle grown. Its evergreen leaves are conspicuous in all seasons."

"Wasn't she grand to use the laurel, in the face of Harvey's slander?" said Marie.

"She was loyal in every vein and fiber, and her loyalty was justified."

"Oh, did people find out the falsehood?"

"Few needed to be reassured, but the refutation came. One John Solger, who had enlisted from Cambridge, drifted back to the town at the close of the war. He was full of reminiscences, and some one who had talked with him sent him to Ruth.

"He was beside Roger Morgan when he was shot through the heart. He had just caught the flag that had been shot from the hands of the color bearer, when a sharpshooter marked him and took fatal aim.

"Roger never spoke after he was hit. Solger took his letters and Ruth's picture from the body, but before he could send them to her he was captured and they were taken from him.

"After his release he found few Cambridge survivors, but Harvey Chase was with him in prison and knew the truth about Roger Morgan. Solger raved over his disloyalty to his dead comrade.

"Ruth did not value the testimony in itself. Her faith had never faltered, but she called upon Solger to make Harvey Chase retract his slander—which he did in the craven style that might have been expected. But Roger's shrine was very beautiful that day!"

"I wonder if he knows," said Elsie dreamily, "or is all this sentiment and devotion merely for love's relief?"

"We can only wonder," said her aunt. "Perhaps in a deeper sense than Mrs. Browning implied—

"Folded eyes see brighter colors than the open ever do.

"Be that as it may, Ruth Bryant has kept faith with a singleness of heart that is as inspiring as it is unusual."

"Why not?" said Marie. "If such offerings mean love and remembrance, why shouldn't they continue while love and remembrance last?"

"It's an idyl anyway," said Elsie—"that retired nook in the garden, the old trees, the faithful sweetheart speaking her devotion in the only way she can, while the old gardener, who was young when the lovers were, fills out the scene."

"But doesn't she make it a sort of idolatry?" asked Marie.

"I cannot think so. Ruth Bryant does a world of good in her quiet, efficient way. This is merely the expression of her life's love. She cannot make home beautiful for her 'heart's dearest,' so she keeps this shrine for love's sake."

"I like it!" cried Elsie. "It's not only tender, it's patriotic."—Selected.

THEY DIED NOT IN VAIN.

Out of the Furrowed Battlefields Sprang a Reunited Nation.

A victory is always worth the cost, however large the loss of human life and the expenditure of treasure, when that victory establishes and perpetuates a great principle such as our civil war has demonstrated to the civilized world at such a terrible sacrifice.

In what other way could the curse of slavery have been so completely blotted out from this fair land of ours? Heroic treatment was the only alternative, and who of the "boys in blue," who will shortly pay their yearly floral tribute to the memory of their former comrades in the field who have passed on to join "the silent majority," will for a moment hesitate to indorse the language of that eminent southern statesman who in his tribute to both the blue and the gray who died on the battlefield said:

"They did not die in vain. The power, the divine power, which furrowed the land with battlefields, sowing it deep and broadcast with sorrow, will reap for us and for the ages a nation truly divine, a nation of freedom and of freemen."

Who shall say that the war is not worth what it cost?—Charles F. Adams.

Our Soldiers.

Pause, O nation, reunited—
Pause and shed a tear today
To the mem'ry of the soldiers
Dead for many and many a May!

Dead and dust, perchance it may be—
Dead and dust, but long ago
Marched away in flush of manhood,
Glory girt—this dust below.

Marched away as brave men, hearing
Call of country, yours and mine,
From the hillside and the valley,
From the hemlock and the pine.

Hearts aleap and pulses bounding,
Loyal, whether gray or blue;
Loyal, whether cross or crescent;
Duty—that was all they knew.

Oh, the glory of their story!
Oh, the graves that dot the plain!
Oh, the mournful tale of battles!
Oh, the partings and the pain!

Years and years the grass has blossomed,
Faded, died, their graves upon;
Years and years, yet not forgotten.
Mem'ries such as theirs live on.

And upon fame's sacred altar,
Writ 'mid deeds of heroes, glow
Names of these, our soldiers, sleeping;
"Soldiers," neither "friend" nor "foe."

And as soldiers weave them garlands,
Rose and lily o'er them spread;
Love and tears—a nation's tribute
To a nation's glorious dead.

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

A TROUBLESOME INSECT.

The Rose Bug Distinctively a Grape Pest, but Will Eat Any Green Thing.

With the blooming of the grape, an awkward, long legged, light brown beetle about one-third of an inch in length frequently appears in enormous swarms, at first devouring the blossoms, then the leaves, reducing them frequently to mere skeletons, and later attacking the young fruit. By the end of July these unwelcome visitors disappear as suddenly as they come.

Though now distinctively a grape pest, it was first known as an enemy of the rose, whence its name, "rose bug," or rose chafer. It attacks also the blossoms of all other fruit trees and of many ornamental trees and shrubs, and, in fact, in periods of great abundance stops at nothing—garden vegetables, grasses, cereals or any green thing. At such times plants appear a living mass of sprawling beetles clustering on every leaf, blossom or fruit.

From a bulletin by C. L. Marlatt of the department of agriculture it is learned that the beetle thus described occurs from Canada southward to Virginia and Tennessee and westward to Colorado, but is particularly destructive in the eastern and central portions of its range, notably in New Jersey, Delaware, and to a less extent in New England and the central states.

As remedies the arsenicals are available only when the beetles are not very numerous. Otherwise their ranks are constantly recruited by newcomers, and under these circumstances all insecticides, however effective ordinarily, are unavailable. When this is the case, the only hope is in collecting the beetles or in covering and protecting plants with netting or later in bagging grapes. Advantage may be taken of their great fondness for the bloom of spiræa, and rows of these flowering shrubs may be planted about the vineyard to lure them and facilitate their collection.

They may be gathered from these trap plants, or the grapes themselves in large hand beating nets, or by jarring into large funnel shaped collectors on the plan of an inverted umbrella. The latter apparatus should have a vessel containing kerosene and water at the bottom to wet and kill the beetles.

Bisulphide of Carbon For Melon Lice.

One dram of bisulphide of carbon evaporated in one cubic foot of space will kill every melon louse in about an hour. A dram may be roughly measured as a teaspoonful, and it should be evaporated in a shallow receptacle placed upon the surface of the ground, but it should not be poured upon the soil. The vapor of the bisulphide is heavy and sinks. First of all, then, it is important that whatever cover is put upon the hill should be forced a little into the soil to prevent the vapor flowing out underneath before it fills the space. A clam shell makes an excellent evaporating dish and has the advantage of being very cheap.

As to the form of the covers, it does not much matter; they may be square, oblong or dome shaped, though the last is preferable. Paper hay caps are very satisfactory, or the paperware tubs that are sometimes seen. It is possible to make an equally effective cap out of heavy paper or duckcloth. Melon vines lie close to the surface of the ground, and it is difficult, even with an underspray nozzle, to reach all parts. The vapor of the bisulphide penetrates everywhere and reaches every plant louse, no matter how well protected.—J. B. Smith, New Jersey Agricultural College.

Mealy Bug on Oleander.

Mealy bug is not easily overcome when once established. For a badly infested plant The Rural New Yorker recommends a hard syringing or hosing with clear water to dislodge as many of the insects as possible, and then rub off all the remainder with a wet sponge. A decoction of pyrethrum in alcohol (one part, by weight, of powder to three parts of alcohol), allowed to stand for a week and then filtered, may be used with an atomizer with good results. It is hard to injure the mealy bug, because it wears a waterproof; when it has been effectually reached, the insect turns brown and must be rubbed off if it still adheres to the plant. Dipping the plant in a whale oil soap solution, dilute fir tree oil or lemon oil are other remedies for this trouble.

Summer Flowers For Cutting.

Iris in variety, montbretias, gladioli in variety, Lilium auratum, L. speciosum album and rubrum, asters, sweet peas, marigolds, dahlias, helianthus (several) and calliopsis. The list may be prolonged yet by the score, but the above will furnish long stemmed good keeping flowers.—American Gardening.

White Ostrich Feathers

"White ostrich feathers are easily cleaned by soaking five minutes in warm suds made from Fairy Soap. Draw them lightly through the hand, rinse in warm, clear water, and dry by shaking over the stove. Re-curl by drawing each little barb over the dull edge of a knife or scissors."

BANK TELLER SOUGHT.

Federal Judge Issued a Warrant For His Arrest.

Alleged to Have Been False to His Trust.

A Large Discrepancy Covered Up by Wrong Entries.

Boston, May 28.—Until Tuesday last, F. T. Moore was employed as paying teller in the National Bank of Commerce; today another person is discharging the duties. When he failed to appear that day his excellent standing precluded any comment concerning his absence, and it was assumed that he was sick at his home. Another clerk was delegated to take care of his desk and books. Inquiry was made after the health of the missing employe, but the information obtained at Mr. Moore's residence was not as satisfactory as the officials desired, and it is believed that an investigation which was then begun led to the acceptance of the unwelcome truth that Mr. Moore was absent for other causes than sickness.

It is known that the investigation revealed false entries and that the bank people secured a warrant for Moore. Just how the money which is said to be missing was taken is not known. The bank is not sure of this itself, nor is the amount of the shortage known. So far as can be ascertained, the shortage is between $30,000 and $50,000, but it may far exceed this sum, for a complete checking of innumerable entries will be necessary to obtain the accurate amount of the deficit.

The bank officers maintain the greatest reticence about the whole matter, and will not even admit that Mr. Moore has gone. But the bank has arranged for an expert to go through the books which were under Mr. Moore's charge, and the length of time the irregularities have extended and the amount of the shortage will be known in a very few days.

The cause of Moore's difficulties is not hard to find when it is said that he invested in speculative stocks. He was a frequent visitor and customer at bucket shops, and an unexpected break in leading stocks is said to account for his plight. It is the old story with the name changed, of the man who goes against the market with other people's money, only to get constantly deeper in, until he is finally submerged.

BUNCHING OF ERRORS.

Cause of the Bostons' Defeat In the Louisville Game.

Louisville, May 28.—The Bostons bunched errors yesterday and the Louisvilles bunched hits. That is why Selee's men were so badly trounced. For all that had been done to them on the day before the Bourbonites took full revenge. Klobedanz was forced to give way before them, and Jack Stivetts, who essayed to check the tide of defeat, was hammered at will. Added to this was the poorest exhibition of field work Boston ever put up on the Louisville grounds. Most of the errors were costly. One let in three runs, another two, while there was not one that did not affect the run column of Clarke's team. Dowling was a puzzle to them.

When Klobedanz went out of the game in the fifth inning Herman Long went with him. He was hit on the tip of a finger during the early part of the game, and was afraid to take any chances,

The Providences outplayed the Syracuses at all points and had a merry time with Malarkey, who in the past has had them at his mercy every time they met. The stars made only three scattered hits off Egan up to the eighth inning and then bunched a lot for four runs, losing by 9 to 4.

The Clevelands played a stiff, steady game, and the Baltimores did the same in all innings except the first, which lost the game. Score: 4 to 1.

The New Yorks played miserable ball yesterday. Hartman's fielding for the New Yorks and a wonderful catch of a line fly by Corcoran of the Cincinnatis were the only features. Score: 13 to 4.

The contest in Pittsburg yesterday with the Washingtons was a splendid exhibition of how miserably the national game can be played by professionals, the miners winning, 8 to 3.

Swung Into Eternity.

Brockton, Mass., May 28.—Sophia Anderson, 34 years old, a domestic employed by Miles Pearson of Campello, committed suicide by hanging. The body was found suspended from a beam in the cellar of the house. She was recently engaged from a Boston employment agency, and her relatives are unknown.

OUR WEEKLY FASHION PALTE.

FRENCH GOWN OF DOTTED VEILING FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

Among the new important models in summer costumes is a novel gown of voile with shirred waist and skirt, the front of the skirt forming a slender apron. These charming voiles are made up over taffeta linings, usually varying in color from poppy red to pale rose, and from Wilhelmina orange to dull yellow. The coloring of the model is palest heliotrope patterned with tiny silk dots in light yellow, over a foundation skirt of a deeper tint. The apron is of grass linen in the natural ecru color, and contrasts prettily with the veiling, while an additional harmony is its trimmidg—tiny velvet ribbons in graduated shades of old-yellow and brown. The plain sleeves of unlined linen are banded a the wrist with the sam velvet. The skirt is shir in eseveral lines abou[illegible]ed the hips, with the fulnesshanging to the ground, and gathered closely in th[illegible] back at the waist line, producing the sweeping folds now in vogue. Its width is four and one half yards.

The grass linen part of the back of the waist is open in the centre, and trimmed vertically with clusters of the narrow yellow velvet ribbons. The high collar is elightly draphd.

The proper cut of this gown can be obtained only from the cut paper patterns published by Harper's Bazar, where it appears.

The hat worn with this gown is of open-work straw braid. It has a moderate brim, under which, at the back, is a half-wreath of wall-flowers in shades of yellow and brown. Long curling ostrich plumes form an effective decoration around the crown.

☞ Approximate quantity of material for gown—voile, 6 1-2 yards; grass linen, 2 1-2 yards.

NATIONAL SENATE.

Strong Words In Characterizing the Decision on the Income Tax.

Washington, May 28.—In concluding an argument in favor of an income tax, Mr. Teller said yesterday that if the proposition were submitted to the senate he would vote for it, despite the decision of the supreme court against the law of 1894. Such a tax, he said, was supported by five decisions of the court prior to that upon the law of 1894. "I have every reason to suppose," said he, "that the court may yet return to its former decisions."

Mr. Cockrell avowed his intention to support the government in the prosecution of the war, yet he must be his own judge of what was necessary. He contended that the bill, as reported, including provisions for the coinage of the seigniorage and the issuance of treasury notes and the elimination of the bonds, would provide sufficient revenue for the conduct of the war. He said that the idea of sending the bonds to the post-offices in order that they might appear to be a popular loan was a fraud on the very face of it. The bonds would be paid for in gold, and the necessary gold was not in the hands of the people, but in those of the capitalists, and capitalists would control the issue.

Mr. Gorman said that it had been declared during the debate that the corporation tax, if enacted into law, might be decided by the supreme court to be unconstitutional, thus reiterating a decision as infamous as that on the income tax law. "Now is the time," he declared, "while we are engaged in war, to test the supreme court upon the corporation tax question. A decision against it will not destroy our financial structure, but it would destroy the court. The people would amend the constitution so that in time of war taxes might be levied upon all interests justly and equitably." Mr. Gorman then presented and advocated his amendment to the bill, providing for a tax upon corporations. As to the proposed coinage of the silver seigniorage, Mr. Gorman held that it would be fruitless to attempt to force that question to the front while the country had the Spanish army and navy to confront. That question ought to be settled in a time of peace. Mr. Gorman advocated an issue of bonds. He declared that if the bond provision proposed should not be enacted into law, the crisis would come, perhaps within 20 days, and the president would be forced to issue bonds under the act of 1875.

Senator Quay's Pension Bill.

Washington, May 28.—Senator Quay has introduced a bill that the pensions of all the soldiers who served in the war of the rebellion which have been cut down shall be restored, and declaring that no pension to a soldier should be less than $12 per month.

Senator Pettigrew will offer amendments to the war revenue bill. One of them provides for the abrogation of the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty and the other for a tax of 5 percent on all articles manufactured by trusts.

The committee on interstate and foreign commerce reported a bill authorizing such lifesaving stations on the Atlantic and gulf coasts to be kept open during June and July as the secretary of the treasury may deem advisable.

A bill was introduced in the house granting a pension of $40 a month to Adaline W. Bagley of North Carolina, mother of Ensign Bagley, who was killed in the bombardment of Cardenas.

Senator Pettigrew wants a regiment of frontier men for the war to be used as scouts, to be distinguished for bravery and marksmanship.

The general deficiency appropriation bill to be passed at this session of congress will carry the largest appropriation of any deficiency bill for years, if not in the history of the government. It will carry at least $200,000,000.

Athletes of Colleges.

New York, May 28.—The 23rd annual field, track and bicycle meeting of the Intercollegiate association began yesterday. The weather during the forenoon was anything but pleasant, but not a drop of rain fell during the progress of the games, and the contestants were not very heavily handicapped by the soggy condition of cinder track and infield.

McCracken of Pennsylvania sent his 16-pound hammer a distance of 149 feet 5 inches, which excelled the previous record held by Woodruff of the same university by 13 feet 2 inches.

Myer Prinstein of Syracuse and A. C. Kraenslein of Pennsylvania beat the former record in the trials at the broad jump. Prinstein jumped 21 feet 1¾ inches, and Kraenslein was only a quarter of an inch behind him.

Street Row at Lowell.

Lowell, Mass., May 28.—Henry Hayden and Gustav Carlson were stabbed in a street row last night. The former has three wounds and the latter has one. The men failed to notify the police, but the officers learned of the assault about midnight. According to the story, the men told the police they were talking to two ladies when two Armenians or Greeks came along and picked a quarrel. In the melee both men were stabbed. Carlson in the stomach and Hayden on the back and right leg.

THE TRADE SITUATION.

Satisfactory In Most Sections of the Country.

Maximum Volume of Business Shown by Reports.

Excess of Moisture Having a Somewhat Discouraging Effect.

New York, May 28.—A total volume of business fully proportioned to or in excess of that usually noted at this season of the year is indicated by reports to Bradstreet's this week. The exceptions are generally where weather conditions have made for irregularity and perhaps dullness. In most sections of the country the situation generally remains satisfactory. The volume of bank clearings shows the contraction usual toward the close of May, but with few exceptions the crop situation, the volume of railway earnings and the reports from a number of leading industries point to a maximum volume of business doing in most parts of the country.

Signs accumulate that the long looked for improvement in the wool trade is nearer realization, rather more business being reported at most eastern markets, both in domestic and foreign grades of wool. This is in part a result of good buying against contracts for government work, partly also an outcome of the firmer tone and slightly increased activity at western markets, where prices are reported firmer. Little improvement is noted in manufactures of men's and women's wear woolens, but an encouraging feature in the textile trade is the better tone of cotton goods, particularly print cloths, which are slightly higher on the week and ⅛ cent above the lowest point reached. A rather better demand for southern cottons has been noted for some time past, and there is less tendency to make concessions on the part of holders of printed and woven dress goods.

An excess of moisture in the middle Atlantic states, there being only 16 out of 88 days of clear weather since the first of March, has discouraged trade in spring and summer fabrics and hurt building operations. A steady trade in boots and shoes is reported at eastern manufacturing centers, and hides and leather hold their full advance. Anthracite coal production continues restricted, but the competition of bituminous grades renders demand for the former light. Manufacturers of tobacco are reported sold ahead, as the result of the effort on the part of dealers to escape expected revenue charges. A rather more cheerful tone is reported at Boston, but demand as yet is not up to expectations, and general distribution at New York is hurt by wet and cold weather.

Business failures in the United States this week number 231, an increase of 20 over last week, but compared with 257 in this week a year ago, 227 in 1896 and 183 in the corresponding weeks of 1895 and 1894.

The contraction in bank clearings usual at this time of the year is reflected in a total for the week of $1,189,000,000, 10 percent smaller than last week, but 30 percent larger than in the corresponding weeks of last year and of 1896, while as compared with 1890 the decrease is only about 3 percent.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, May 28.—In the house yesterday a bill governing the street railways of the state was passed to a third reading after a long debate. All hostile amendments were rejected save the amendments that the street railway companies shall be compelled to clear their tracks of snow, and for special fares for workingmen between 5 and 7 o'clock morning and evening.

Mr. Allen of Westfield gave notice of a substitute bill for the adverse report of the committee on insurance on the bill to prevent over-insurance. The new bill provides that in case of total loss by fire the sum of insurance shall be taken to be the value of the insurer's interest therein.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Marquis Hoyos, the Spanish ambassador to Austria-Hungary, will be succeeded by Polo Bernabe, late Spanish minister to the United States.

The report that the commander of the Spanish gunboat Callao was tried by court-martial in Manila and shot for not firing on the American ship which captured the Callao is untrue.

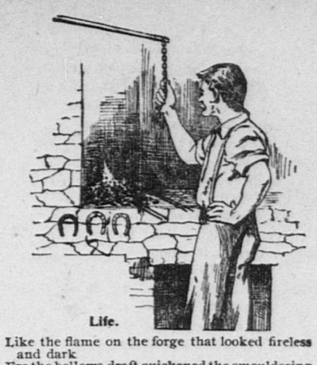

W. F. Bechel, ex-auditor of the Pacific Express company, and Thomas K. Sudborough, his chief clerk, have been arrested in Omaha on charges of embezzlement. The men assert their innocence. They gave bond. The amount alleged to be involved is variously stated, going as high as $150,000.

The quartermaster's department has contracted for 30,000 of the canvas suits designed especially for the use of troops in tropical countries, and they are being shipped rapidly to the mobilizing points. A thorough trial of them will be made to determine their value from every standpoint before further orders are given.

William C. Todd of Atkinson, N. H., who gave a sum sufficient to equip the newspaper reading room of the Boston public library, has given $500 to the New Hampshire Historical society, the income of which, together with that from a previous gift of the same amount, is to be used for the purchase of town histories and genealogies.

Volunteers to the number of 120,544 have been mustered into the United States service. This number includes some cavalry in addition to the first call for troops. There is yet a shortage in the call from the various states of 5633 men, distributed as follows: Alabama, 1355; Iowa, 1640; Kentucky, 1238; Mississippi, 1000; North Carolina, 400.

The New York Universal Peace union does not indorse the stand taken by President Love of the national organization in his letter to the queen regent of Spain, but insists that peace can come only with "a guarantee of protection and freedom for the defenseless noncombatants, women and children, Spain has so ruthlessly starved and tortured, in total disregard of all laws of nations and humanity."

Life.

Like the flame on the forge that looked fireless and dark
Ere the bellows-draft quickened the smouldering spark—
So life is a spark; and life is a fire;
And life is a flame rising higher and higher.
One free breath of nature ere hope dies in men,
And the fast-fading embers will waken again.

Thousands of people die of wasting weakening diseases every year who by all rules of nature and reason ought to be restored to health and strength. The medicines they receive from the average doctor according to regulation, stereotyped practice are mere temporary palliatives; they do not reach down deep into the vital organism where the spark of life lies dormant waiting to be awakened.

In numberless cases where every other remedy absolutely fails Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery breathes its strong vitalizing power upon the slumbering forces of life and wakens them into active energy. It quickens the digestive and blood-making glands and empowers them to supply fresh rich nourishment to all the organs and tissues; imbues the heart and lungs with vitality; destroying and excreting naturally from the system the bile-poisoned dregs which lurk in the circulation, thus building up new constitutional vigor and activity.

"I took a severe cold which settled on my lungs and chest, and I suffered intensely," writes Mr. Harrison Smith, of Gapcreek, Ky. "I tried several of our best physicians, and they gave up all hope of my recovery; they said I had consumption and could not live more than a few weeks. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and am sound and well today. I feel better than I have in ten years."

Keith's Theatre.

James Horne, who has achieved reputation throughout the country for clever work on the stage as a light comedian, comes to Keith's the week of May 30, supported by Justin Acams, Charlotte Dean, and Ella Craven, in a condensed version of the amusing one-act farce-comedy, "A Regular Fix." Monday next will also be the beginning of the tenth and last week of Papinta, the dancing star, whose engagement has been the longest for a similar act on record at this house. Those who have thus far failed to see her in the new dances, should not miss the opportunity. Other attractions will be: Morrissey and Rich, comedy sketch: Salerno, juggler: Frobel and Ruge, aerialists; Deredena and Breen, double club juggling; the Quaker City Quartette, vocalists and comedians; Gardner brothers, instrumentalists; the Biograph pictures and Prof. Gies' war views. A new feature will take the place of the songsheet, in the form of a camp scene, in which Prof. Tyler, the silver-toned vocalist, will sing a camp song, with a chorus of forty-five voices. Special scenery is being painted for this act, which will be one of the most attractive ever put on the stage.

Castle Square Theatre.

For the coming week at the Castle Square theatre the attraction announced is the clever modern version of Pygmalion and Galatea by the Paulton's, called "Niobe" which had its Boston production at the Boston Museum in the summer of '91 immediately following its first performances in London. The authors have treated the old story in a way that is vastly amusing and the fact that it had a run of nine weeks in midsummer at the Boston Museum best shows the estimate put upon the work. The cast will be as follows: Peter Amos Dunn, Horace Lewis; Cornelius Griffin, Charles Mackay; Phineas Innings, Tony Cummings; Jefferson Tompkins, J. L. Seeley; Parker G. Silox, Lindsay Morison; Helen Griffin, Miss Lizzie Morgan; Caroline Dunn, Miss Frances Drake; Hattie Griffin, Miss Mary Sanders; Beatrice Silox, Miss Marian Chapman; Mary, Miss Rose Morison; Madeline Mifton, Miss Florence Baker; Niobe, Miss Lillian Lawrence. "Niobe" will be followed on Monday, June 6th, by the romantic drama "An Enemy to the King" which was played by the Sothern Company at the Hollis street theatre three seasons ago. Souvenir portraits of Rear Admiral Dewey will be presented to every adult patron at next week's matinees.

SANTIAGO THE POINT.

American Troops to Invest That Province at Once.

Further Suspension of Aggression Improbable.

President Desirous That Cervera's Vessels Shall Be Taken Intact.

Washington, May 31.—Before the end of the week the American troops will be on their way to Cuba and Porto Rico. Assured that Cervera is helpless at Santiago the United States forces will attempt the destruction of the enemy's fleet and the capture of the sheltering fortifications. The war problem is simplifying; it is being solved by events. New plans, which for the past seven days have been held in abeyance pending further news from Schley as to the location of the Spanish fleet, will now be put into operation at once. Santiago will be the immediate point, with San Juan the tangent.

From Tampa and Key West troops under the command of General Miles are to be sent to co-operate with Schley. Even now preparations are being rushed at these southern points, and it is confidently expected the expedition will be able to start on Thursday. General Miles and staff left Washington last night and will proceed direct to Tampa. The tour of inspection of the federal camps has been abandoned by the general commanding. If taken up again it will doubtless be when Cuba is free, Porto Rico is ours, and the war is at an end.

Santiago and Spain's finest fleet are doomed. The American forces to be pitted against them are invincible. To the aid of Schley and his formidable fleet will be sent Sampson with a stronger. To the aid of Sampson and Schley will go a large force of troops for land operations. Santiago will be invested both from land and from the sea.

It is a sail of 760 miles or more from Key West to Santiago. This distance cannot be traveled by the transports in less than 72 hours. It will be Friday afternoon before the army will be opposite Santiago. In the meantime Schley will do nothing. He cannot attack the Spanish fleet until the shore batteries have been destroyed, and they are either out of the range, owing to the tortuous character of the channel, or else they are too high upon the hills for his guns to be effectively trained upon them.

The troops will therefore be landed on some nearby point to Santiago on the coast and will attack the batteries, carrying them by storm. They will clear the way for Schley, who will then sail in to meet the fleet. The location of the latter is accurately known. Two armored cruisers and two torpedo boats lie hidden behind Smith island, about half a mile within the harbor and around a shelving promontory. The other two armored cruisers are in the basin directly in front of the city.

The president wants Admiral Cervera's fleet captured, and not blockaded. To blockade it would mean much inconvenience to our ships, and much danger when the hurricanes of the rainy season begin, but the president's principal reason is his desire to end the war as speedily as possible. If Admiral Cervera's fleet could be compelled to surrender without the ships being injured, either by our guns or by Admiral Cervera's own acts, that achievement, of itself, would go far toward terminating the war, and if it were followed by the seizure of San Juan, and so of Porto Rico, which could be accomplished by the same troops and ships, Havana would probably surrender much more quickly.

Although the success of the expeditions, and the surrender of Spain in the West Indies, is anticipated, the president has not underestimated the work yet to be done, or the apparent indisposition of the Spanish government to ask for peace until it is actually beaten. This is why the president, feeling that he could not rely on the Cuban army, has been saying that an army of 100,000 men must be ready to go to Cuba before its general invasion can begin. As it would take several weeks, according to the closest estimates, for the transportation of so large a number of men, with the artillery, animals, ammunition and supplies—and the 100,000 men are not yet ready—it is evident that Havana cannot be taken immediately, even if the first detachment of the army of invasion should be started at once.

Before the entire force which it is proposed to use in Cuba can be landed, the transports must make four voyages across the straits. Arrangements have been made to utilize the services of the insurgents to the largest possible extent. The government already has sent expeditions to a large number of points on the island and landed arms for the insurgents. Most of the parties succeeded perfectly in their object, and it is said at the war department that a sufficient number of the insurgents have been armed to constitute a very effective support for the troops as they land.

Chief reliance will be placed at the outset on the regulars, most of whom are centered in Florida, and in such volunteer regiments as are thoroughly equipped and reasonably well seasoned for service. Although the officials will not state how many troops are available for immediate service, it is roughly estimated that there are about 20,000 regulars and 13,000 volunteers at Tampa. These include 17 regiments of regular infantry and 14 regiments of volunteer infantry, 12 battalions of artillery and five regiments of regular cavalry. The infantry force, regular and volunteer, is about 28,000 men, the cavalry about 1000, the artillery about 1200. How many of these have been or will be dispatched to any given point or to several points is not disclosed.

Back of this force are other available regiments at Mobile, New Orleans and other points easily accessible to Tampa. Still further back is the large volunteer camp at Chickamauga, comprising about 40,000 infantry volunteers, 1000 cavalry volunteers and three regiments of artillery volunteers. It is understood to be the plan to have the troops at Chickamauga take the place of those at Florida ports as fast as the latter leave for active service, thus keeping a large force all ready for embarkation from Florida. Aside from the troops already specified, there are the 18,000 men at Camp Alger, near Washington, and lesser bodies of troops on Long island and in the various states. The 75,000 volunteers under the recently issued second call constitute still another reserve, which, however, is yet to be organized and equipped.

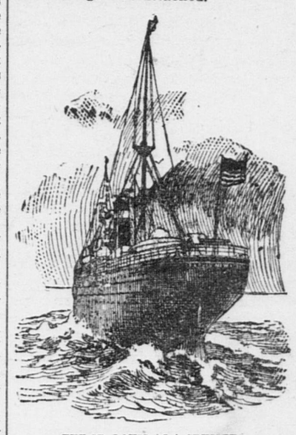

For Transporting Invalids.

Washington, May 31.—With the consent of Secretary Alger, Surgeon General Sternberg has taken the initiatory steps for securing a hospital train for the transportation of the invalid troops from the front. This train is to be in charge of a corps of medical officers and attendants. There will be accommodations for 400 men. The latter will be taken from Tampa or Miami, Fla., as the conditions warrant, for transportation to the nearest available hospital.

Four general hospitals are now ready for the reception of the sick, viz., Key West, Fort McPherson, Ga.; Fort Thomas, Ky., and Fort Myer, Va. They are capable of caring for 2000 men. The hospital ship will accompany the troops embarked for the West Indies, ready to return at any time with sick and wounded to the United States. A report received by the surgeon general from the physician in charge at Key West reports that last week there were in the hospital there 75 men from the navy and one from the army.

Strike on the St. Louis.

New York, May 31.—The auxiliary cruiser, St. Louis, sailed from the American line pier at 3:30 yesterday. When the ship was about 100 feet from shore, a boy rushed up with a sealed message to be delivered to Captain Sands. A hawser was thrown from the ship and the message was attached.

THE ST. LOUIS AS A CRUISER.

The strike of coal passers, firemen and trimmers which threatened to delay the vessel's sailing was adjusted about half an hour before sailing. Deputy Commissioner Harrigan appealed to the strikers to return to duty, saying that if they refused, they would be counted as cowards and deserters. Out of the 360 strikers, all but 41 returned to duty. The places of the men who refused to return were filled from the many who stood on the pier anxious to serve. The strikers contended that their cruise terminated on Saturday when the ship made port, and, consequently they were entitled to their wages. They charged that they were treated harshly in the stoke holes by their superiors' forcing them while in southern waters to work harder. They also alleged that the food served was not only insufficient, but unwholsome, and that they were not permitted to purchase soap from steam tenders in southern waters.

Dewey Losing Men.

London, May 31.—A dispatch from Manila, dated May 26, via Hong Kong, says: Rear Admiral Dewey is losing men from disease almost daily. Smallpox and dysentery are said to be rife in the American squadron.

Aguinaldo, the insurgent chief, reached Cavite from the interior, and soon after his arrival went on board one of the warships. He is working hard to gain over the rebels to the side of the Americans with a view to active co-operation when Admiral Dewey's reinforcement arrives.

Capture of the Restormel.

Key West, May 31.—Light is thrown on Admiral Cervera's plans by the log of the British steamer Restormel, captured by Sigsbee's St. Paul while trying to make Santiago with coal for the Spanish. She sailed for San Juan, where the Spaniards expected to coal. San Juan being deemed unsafe, Curacao was selected, but the collier failed to connect with the fleet there and was ordered to Santiago. Owing to a leak she did not reach Santiago in time; the Spaniards remained in port short of coal and so were caught.

About 5 o'clock last Wednesday morning the St. Paul, while scouting off Santiago harbor, sighted the Restormel 12 miles away, apparently heading for the port. She was going in openly and honestly, and not skulking along the shore. The St. Paul took a course to cut her off, and when within hailing distance, fired a blank shot. The pursued steamer paid no attention; but she hove too immediately when a solid shot was fired across her bows. She was leaking badly and her boilers were out of order. In fact, according to her captain's account, she had been leaking for 20 days because of a sprung plate, and the leakage was increasing. The capture was made less than four miles from Morro castle, but the forts were silent. The leak grew worse constantly, and all hands manned the three pumps night and day, crew, marines and officers, until this port was reached.

Bay State Man Dead.

Chickamauga, May 31.—Another Massachusetts boy, Private Clarence L. Bartol of C company, Eighth Massachusetts volunteers, has answered his final rollcall, and by midnight his body will be speeding northward to his home in Marblehead, Mass. He died late Sunday night of what the surgeons who have examined the body declared to be heart failure induced by depression, following the death of his friend, Private Burnham of Lynn.

Bartol attended the funeral services of Burnham, and it was remarked that he showed more grief than many of the dead man's messmates. After the services he could not seem to get his mind off the matter and discussed it with everyone with whom he talked. At supper he ate little and complained of not feeling well. After supper he grew rapidly worse, and at 10 o'clock he died. His brother, who is a member of the company, was with him to the end.

The Bulletin Face.

Have you noticed it on the faces of your friends lately. That sudden shifting of the eyes. That sort of an expectant, listening look; that quick, flashing, changing, joyous, wondering combination look? You have and didn't know what to make of it? That's the Bulletin Face. It's not an ingrowing affair or an incurable. It's just a look caused by trying to make out what is where and who is when; by trying to read the Bulletins down in Newspaper Row. He stands in front of the bulletin and reads, and reads, "San Juan has fallen." He does not know whether San Juan is a Spanish Hildago, a war ship or a town. But he hears someone say, "That is good!" so he smiles and wonders. Another bulletin says Cienfuegos has fallen. He hasn't any idea who Cienfuegos is, or where he worked before he got that way; but he knows it does not sound as if an American had surrendered, so he goes and drinks another and comes back to learn that Cavite and Admiral Cervera have sailed for Santiago de Martinique. That sounds well, so he goes and has another smile, and when he comes back he learns that Sampson has blown up 12 Spanish ships and but two American warships were disabled. He understands that and lets a war whoop that would drown the whistle on T. A. Whicher's shop. That's the cause of the new face you see on some of your friends.

When you see a man whose expression is just a settled smile, a continued "tickled to death" look, that's one of the Quincy Clothing Co.'s customers.—Chestnuts! did you say? That's wrong, we do not deal in them. All our goods are new, stamped "1898." No, sir; it's no chestnut. But when you pick up a Boston newspaper and read of the "Great Receiver's Sale," "Bankrupt Sale," or "Dissolution Sale," you may well say chestnuts, for it is the same old story.

We have for this week some suits at $6.50 and $7.50 in Blues, Grays and Browns, that we want to sell you. With every suit is a guarantee from the manufacturers as to their wearing and durability, and if they do not give perfect satisfaction you get a new suit. No Boston clothing merchant can beat the pants we sell for $1.48. For $2.48 we have a child's suit that cannot be equalled in this city for $3.50. You can save from 5 to 25 per cent. on any article you buy, and if you are not satisfied you can get your money back.

His First Warrant.

Mr. Marden, the special justice of the peace empowered to issue criminal warrants, was called upon Saturday night for the first time, since the law creating his office went into effect by Chief Litchfield for a search warrant. Armed with this the Chief, accompanied by his officers Ferguson, Bradley, Barry, Murray, Morrissay and O'Brien made a call upon James E. Quigley who resides on Crescent street under Forrester's hall. Mr. Quigley was at home, and when the officers went in he thought some of his friends were giving him a party, and it was of the surprise kind. The officers made known their business and seized two kegs containing bottles of beer and six quarts of whiskey. Quigley was also arrested for keeping a liquor nuisance.

Injured on Electrics.

Burchsted and Bennett, two Adams Academy boys, had a narrow escape from a serious accident Saturday afternoon. They were on their way to Quincy Point to participate in the dual games and instead of riding in the car they rode on the rear fender, although it is said the conductor requested them to board the car. Following this car was a special Braintree car also on the way to the grove. The first car stopped just below North street and while at a stand still the Braintree car ran into it. Bennett jumped and saved himself but Allie Burchsted of Wollaston had his right foot caught. It was at first thought that his ankle had been broken but Dr. Jones who was called found that no bones were broken, but it had been jammed. The injury is very painful.

MEMORIAL DAY.

A Larger Number Than Usual Interested.

Thousands Attend Services at Mount Wollaston.

Mayor Sears and Others Speak at the Monument.

In accordance with time honored custom the members of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., observed Memorial Day by the sacred duty of decorating with flowers the graves of those with whom they had marched shoulder to shoulder in the stirring days of 1861 to 1864 in the defense of the Union but who had since answered the call to the commander on high, and had gone to join the ranks of that ever increasing mighty host of loyal sons.

The observance this year had an unusual significance from the fact that after a lapse of more than thirty peaceful years the wild beat of the drum and the hurried movement of hundreds, yea thousands of freedom's sons, is again heard as they hasten to the front to meet and vanquish a common enemy, and to give to the sorely oppressed people of Cuba the blessedness of the freedom we of the United States enjoy.

Thus the observance of Memorial Day can be said this year to be of a two fold purpose, that of a reminder of the past and of the duty we today owe to the flag of one people and one government.

To one who has for years watched the veterans perform their sacred duty the gradual thinning of the ranks is noticed, some face that was there last year is missed this year and the step that was once firm now totters, and the form that was once erect is now bent with age, and soon there will be but a few of that Grand Army left, and they will have to relinquish their sacred duty to the new veterans.

As a whole the day was fine.

During the morning hours there were a few showers and the sky at times looked cloudy, but in the afternoon the sun came forth in all its glory and the weather was all that could be desired.

The Post assembled at headquarters at 7 o'clock, details visited the graves of comrades who lie buried out of town and at the National Sailors' Home, a detail also visited Mt. Wollaston cemetery and decorated the graves of comrades resting there.

AT WEST QUINCY.

At 9.30, the Post formed in front of headquarters under command of Commander William H. Warner, and headed by the City band, and escorted by Francis L. Souther Camp 27, S. of V., Capt. W. C. Hart marched to the junction of School and Franklin streets, where barges were taken for West Quincy.

At the junction of Crescent and Copeland streets the line was reformed and a street march taken to the Hall cemetery where the Post assembled around the Willard monument. Rev. C. W. Wilder offered prayer and the Commander gave a brief address, the exercises closing with a salute by the color guard.

The graves in the cemetery were then decorated. Then the command entered St. Mary's cemetery where services were conducted by Rev. F. A. Frigugli-etti. The graves of heroes buried here were also decorated, after which the command returned to headquarters for lunch which was served in Hancock hall, by the Woman's Relief Corps, assisted by Edward Richardson and others.

AT MOUNT WOLLASTON.

The Grand Army was favored with grand weather in the afternoon, a warm sun shining forth, but with just enough clouds and wind to keep the temperature down.

Promptly at 2. P. M. the following command moved over the route from headquarters to Mt. Wollaston: Hancock through City Square to Greenleaf street, to Valley street to Sea street, to cemetery.

Large Squad of Police.

Barouche with Rev. Robert Westly Peach and others.

Electric cars with school children.

All along the route especially in City Square there were crowds of people, and thousands assembled at the cemetery. Reaching the gates, drums were muffled, and arms reversed, and to a dirge by the band the procession moved to the soldiers' monument, where the Grand Army, Sons of Veterans, Relief Corps and school children formed a hollow square with the officers and guests in the centre.

The exercises included a prayer by Chaplain Wilder, selection by City band, address by Commander Warner, "Nearer My God to Thee" by band, "Red, White and Blue" by children, patriotic addresses by Mayor Sears with appreciation for the services of the Grand Army, selection by band, address by City Auditor Hall on wars of the past and present, prayer by James F. Merrill, depositing the emblematic wreaths by the officers of the Post, salute by the guard, singing of "America" by all, and benediction by Rev. Mr. Wilder.

Mayor Sears spoke as follows:

Mr. Commander: I thank God for this opportunity to voice my heart's thanks to the defenders of the Union. The present generation who live to enjoy the peace bought by the blood and lives of their fathers are doubly appreciative of their sacrifice. And when future generations congregate in this consecrated gronnd to do you honor, even they cannot call to mind with greater admiration and love the deeds of the ancestry. But a few short years and you and we shall be called unto the God of Battles—to the God of Peace—but your memory cannot fade veterans, for all of you the sun of life has reached the zenith, for some it is descending the western sky. Your sons and the sons of your comrades, stand here in the flush and strength of manhood to do you honor. Honored has been your past. Honored and happy may your days be as you face westward until the light of the morning shows through the dim haze of memory! But happier even than the old days will be the new ones when following still westward, you suddenly come to the gates of the east and the morning once more, and there beyond the purple hills in the dawn of the day that is endless, you shall find your lost youth, its comrades, and its loved ones, to lose it and them never more.

Proceeding to the grave of Francis L. Souther, the first Quincy soldier to die in the Civil war exercises were conducted by the Sons of Veterans, Commander Hart spoke briefly, and was followed by the chaplain in prayer, and a stirring address by Rev. R. W. Peach. The commander then deposited a wreath, the guard fired a salute, and Rev. Mr. Peach offered benediction.

At the "Unknown Lot" prayer was offered by Rev. E. N. Hardy, "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung by Relief Corps and school children to band accompaniment, and then the W. R. C. service was preformed by the officers of the corps. Prayer was offered by the chaplain, and the school children sang "Star Spangled Banner." Wreaths were deposited by the president and vice president and flowers by the corps. All united in singing "America," the guard of the G. A.R. fired a salute to the flag, and Rev. Mr. Hardy pronounced the benediction.

The route to headquarters was via Sea street, Coddington street, Washington street, City Square and Hancock street.

Again the Woman's Relief Corps provided bountifully for all organizations, the guests and school children. There were sandwiches, ice cream and cake; and cigars. This concluded the observance of the day.

JOTTINGS.

The clergy of the city were well represented at the services at Mount Wollaston, viz. Revs. Hardy, Wilder, Preble and Peach.

There were many favorable comments on the good appearance of Chief Litchfield and his large squad of police.

Although we are frequently reminded that the veterans are passing away, Paul Revere Post has seldom turned out in recent years with fuller ranks.

It took twenty gallons of ice cream for the dinner and supper at headquarters.

The speech of the day was made by City Auditor Hall, but that of Mayor Sears was much admired.

MEMORIAL SUNDAY.

The Grand Army Attends Two Religious Services.

In accordance with its usual custom Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., accompanied by Francis L. Souther Camp 27, S. of V., and Paul Revere, W. R. C., attended divine services on Sunday. In the morning at the First Presbyterian church, where they listened to an able sermon by Rev. Robert Westly Peach.

The edifice was crowded and the audience followed with the closest attention the words of the speaker, who took for his text the first two chapters of Amos and the fourth verse of the fifth chapter of Amos—"For thus saith the Lord unto the house of Israel: seek ye the Lord and ye shall live."

Within twelve miles of Jerusalem there lived a shepherd named Amos. He was not a prophet or a son of a prophet but to him there came a vision from on high and said these sacred words: "Thus saith the Lord." He assed on perhaps to Bethel and there began to preach. The Israelites were pleased when he preached unto the people of Damascus, Gaza, Tyrus, Edom, Ammon, Moab and Judah, "Thus saith the Lord: For three transgressions and for four I will not turn away the punishment thereof." Then he came to Israel and told them of their sin. It was a lesson for modern prophets. We may speak of sins of people away from us but the greatest directness must be used when we deal with sins at home.

The speaker then told of the persecution of Russia; the lust of France; the great military establishment of Germany; the international dissensions of Austria; the atheistic tendency of Italy; the long record of cruelty, bloodthirsty oppression of Spain and the overridden promises of Great Britain who folded its arms and let the Armenians die. Then came America; God will not turn away ponishment unless we repent.

There was no man who had lived, the speaker held so dear as Abraham Lincoln. He not only loved his fellow men, but in the power of his heart and wisdom was one of earth's greatest men in all her ages. The darkest stain upon our land was slavery, and unless we had repented of it God would have punished us and our Union might have crumbled. The noble purpose that sent the men to the front in the sixties was liberty for the oppressed, and the deep purpose of the present war is to free the people of Cuba and give them the liberty we enjoy.

Another sin as black as slavery and far more widespread is the curse of legalized drink. Shall we see ten thousands of our best blood going down and do nothing to stop it? Unless we do stop it God will still hold in store a punishment for this nation. Other sins were the greed for money, but by this he did not mean thrift; and political corruption and unless we rise up against these things God will disown us. Every state that is down trodden by political corruption, tears off a white star from our flag and puts on a soiled one. If we would have a pure glorious flag we must put on it none but white stars. The closing thought was: "Seek ye Him who is the light and truth, then as ye find Him God will turn away your transgressions."

AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

The post, camp and corps turned out even larger numbers Sunday evening and attended services at St. John's church. Among the invited guests were: Mayor and Mrs. Sears, City Solicitor McAnarney and wife, Chief Litchfield and wife, City Treasurer Gray, City Clerk Cleaves, Assessors Perkins and Field and Frank F. Prescott of the Ledger. There was a very large congregation.

Patriotic songs were sung and music was a feature of the service.

Rev. F. A. Friguglietti officiated, and was assisted by Rev. Fr. Cuffe and Rev. Fr. Purcell. The address was by Rev. Fr. Johnstone and was patriotic and inspiring. He said Memorial Day was a sad day yet a glad day. The nation was glad to pay tribute to her defenders. He took great pleasure in addressing the Grand Army, and pleased to welcome in name of the pastor.

A greater glory was their lot than was given those who had been with Napoleon or in the wars of the Old World. You fought for high ends, for the emancipation of slaves, for liberty.

Much as I deprecate war, war is at times justifiable, yes demanded often, sacred and glorious. So it was with the Revolution and so it was with the the Civil war.

Republicanism is fonuded on the granite rock of religion. With it a State is a tower of strength. It stands for free schools, free religious thought, free rights, but religion is above all. It is the very parent of law. Liberty is another basic principle which the church has guarded. Free schooling is fostered, as education and evangelization go hand in hand. Public libraries and High schools follow. Authority refers its sanction to the church, for a good citizen must be a good christian. The attitude of the church to the soldier was as at all times of usefulness. Fr. Johnstone closed his twenty minutes' address with a quotation from one high in the church in memory of the soldier.

CHILDREN ASSIST

In Dedicatory Exercises of the Wollaston Flag.

The dedication of the flag-staff at Wollaston was an occasion which will long be remembered, especially by the pupils of the Wollaston school, who took part in a body in the dedicatory exercises.

Promptly at half after seven o'clock on Monday morning Chairman Bryant of the committee mounted the impromptu nostrum and announced that the exercises would begin with music by the Columbus band and in a brief address he turned the flag-staff and flag over to the people of Wollaston.

The Rev. Preston Gurney made a few remarks. They were very good, witty and right to the point.

The band played again and the flag was unfurled, the school children singing as its graceful folds were flung to the breeze. The flag was run up to the truck and then half-masted.

Great credit is due to the committee, Mr. Charles M. Bryant, Mr. Al. Williams, Mr. E. E. Jameson, Mr. E. H. Sprague and Mr. Charles R. Sherman, as well as to Mr. Charles E. Finch, Jr., for the excellent manner in which the programme was carried out.

The staff is 104 feet high, and the flag is 30 by 20 feet. It is on a sightly location at the corner of Park street and Grand View avenue, and is visible from all parts of the lower harbor and surrounding country.

Fire Laddies' Flag.

Chief Engineer Packard, firemen from all parts of the city, city officials, and others assembled at the central fire station on Quincy avenue Saturday evening at a flag raising. In the absence of Mayor Sears, City Clerk Cleaves assisted Engineman Costa in hoisting "Old Glory," and then there were salutes by James E. Maxim, cannon crackers, and other demonstrations, concluding with three cheers.

THE FLAG RAISING.

Quincy Turned Out for Grand Demonstration.

It was a grand flag raising that took place at the Quincy depot Saturday night, one that called forth a large gathering of citizens and was resplendent with red fire, the boom of cannon patriotic music and still more patriotic speeches. It was a flag raising such as Quincy has not seen for many a long day and great credit is due to Mr. A. G. Coffin and Mr. Peter Moran, the two gentlemen who engineered the affair so successfully.

Shortly after 7 o'clock a line was formed in front of the Grand Army headquarters on Hancock street, and a march was taken to the depot the formation of the procession being:

Chief A. L. Litchfield.
Squad of Police
City Band.
Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R.
Francis L. Souther camp 27, S. of V.
Barouche containing Mayor Sears, City Solicitor McAnarney, Mr. Luther S. Anderson and Mr. A. G. Coffin.

Meanwhile the invited guests were assembling on a raised platform at the depot, among whom were: Brooks Adams, Tax Collector A. L. Baker, City Auditor John O. Hall, ex-Mayor H. O. Fairbanks, R. F. Claflin, ex-Councilman H. W. Phillips, Councilmen Hultman and Swithin, W. W. Adams, W. H. Cobb, Lewis Bass, Jr., John F. Merrill, D. E. Wadsworth, Geo. W. Prescott, Elbridge Porter, Rev. E. W. Preble, Rev. J. P. Cuffe, Rev. E. N. Hardy, John R. Graham, C. A. Foster Andrew Milne, Dr. A. H. Gilson, Dr. J. A. Gordon, Dr. F. L. Jones Dr. J. H. Gilbert, Dr. H. C. Hallowell, Edwin W. Newcomb, A. G. Doliver, Commissioner Knowlton, City Clerk Cleaves, Edward Marsh, Overseer of the Poor Bass, C. T. Baker and others.

The procession arriving at the depot, the first thing on the programme was the unfurling of a large and handsome flag which fell appropriately to a veteran of the Grand Army mid patriotic music by the band the boom of cannon and the burning of red fire.

Mr. Luther S. Anderson presided and in a few words introduced Mayor Sears, who spoke enthusiastically of our country, the flag, and the unity of the North and South in the present war.

Mayor Sear's speech was received with prolonged applause and was followed by brief remarks by ex-Mayor H. O. Fairbanks. Mr. Brooks Adams said we are all here for one purpose that is to support the government. I am a Democrat, says Mr. Adams, but I intend to support McKinley in this war; now three cheers for Dewey. They were given with a will.

Following Mr. Adams came Rev. J. P. Cuffe, John O. Hall, Rev. E. W. Preble, John R. Graham, City Solicitor McAnarney and Charles A. Foster. Ex-Councilman Hiram W. Phillips, read the following original poem:

Our Country's flag, our nation's pride,
What hopes, what trusts, in thee abide;
Thou spangled ensing surpassing fair,
Cherished symbol, beyond compare.

First in the name of justice reared,
For freedom's cause thou art revered,
Nor ever yet throughout the world
Was fairer banner e'er unfurled.

Thou flag for which our kindred fought,
With sacred memories thou art fraught,
O! treasured boon, devoutly prized,
Thou wert with precious blood baptized.

Not by impassioned strifes alone
Have been thy fadeless triumphs shown,
Whilst thou hast swayed in blessed peace,
Columbia's fame hath so increased.

In all that makes a nation grand,
In happy homes throughout our land,
That not of other lands, nor age,
Does history bear so bright a page.

O! glorious emblem of the free,
How grand indeed thy destiny,
There's naught by which thy worth to guage
Thou art a priceless heritage.

We pledge allegiance e'er to thee,
Unsullied may thee ever be,
Thine every star more brightly glow,
Each stripe increasing lustre know.

We'll ever for thine honor stand,
In thought, in deed, with heart and hand,
Lay down our lives if need there be,
Our country's flag, in love for thee.

Aye! thou shalt wave O standard great,
Above our schools and Halls of State,
Wave not alone because of might,
But praise to God, because of right.

The remarks of the above gentlemen were interspersed with music by the band. The celebration closed with "America," which was sung by the audience. The Grand Army and Sons of Veterans were then escorted back to headquarters by the band.

KEEPS THE BANNER.

The Dual Games Result in a Grand Victory for Adams.

The third annual contest in track and field sports between Adams Academy and Thayer Academy was held at the New Downer Landing on Saturday. In the morning it seemed best to those in authority to postpone the games, and this was done. Later in the day the decided change in the weather led to a change of plans, and the public were notified by Ledger bulletins and by as wide a notice as possible that the games would be held. The result of the contest was a splendid victory for Adams Academy, and as this is the second year that this school has held the banner it becomes the permanent possessor of the trophy. The victory won on Satudray was somewhat of a surprise to the Adams boys and their friends, and well it might be, for they had seven contestants to battle against Thayer Academy's nineteen. But we imgaine that most of the surprise was felt by the Thayer Academy boys, for if ever a crowd was confident of victory, it was the team from Braintree.

Adams Academy had nine men on the programme to balance the long list of nineteen Thayer men. The unfortunate accident on the way to the games, in which Burchsted, who was to run for Adams in the hurdle race and the mile-run, had his foot crushed by a collision of electric cars, reduced the number still more; and Bennett, who was with Burchsted, and himself had a narrow escape was so much affected by the occurence that he did not take part in the games. Thus only seven were left to do all the wok for Adams. These went into the games almost against the advice of their teachers, and though they were much affected by their companion's painful injury, they were determined that Thayer should not have a walk-over. The boys used good judgment in saving their strength where Thayer seemed likely to win and in putting all their energy into other contests. Manning, Kent, and Taylor carried off all the points for Adams but Cilley's magnificent run in the relay race no doubt contributed much to the victory in this event, which virtually decided the meet. The others who contested are all to be congratulated for their efforts, and all could see the making of a long-distance runner in little Anderson, who pluckily finished the mile though he had to take three steps to the Thayer men's one, to do it.

Though the Thayer men showed superiority in the high jump and the long distance runs, events for which the advantage that they have in their gymnasium for winter training goes a great ways, it was evident that their team contained fewer all round athletes than the Adams team.

Friends of the Adams Academy boys cannot give too much praise to Cilley, Kent, Lyons Manning, Taylor, Hatch and Anderson, who won this meet and brought back the banner after its year's absence at Thayer Academy.

Below is a summary of the events, and the points won by each side:

100-yard dash: First heat won by Kent, of Adams, time 11 1-2 seconds; second heat won by Manning of Adams, 11 3-4 seconds; final heat won by Taylor, Kent and Manning, time 10 3-4 seconds; giving Adams, 9 points.

Running high jump won by Thayer team, Kent being the only contestant for Adams. This gave Thayer 9 points and evened up the score.

220-yard dash, won by Taylor, Manning and Kent, of Adams, time 25 seconds. Score, Adams, 18; Thayer, 9.

Half mile run, won by Brigham, Queeny and McDowell, of Thayer, time 3 minutes, 25 3-5 seconds. Score, Adams, 18; Thayer, 18.

Putting 16-pound shot, won by Manning, of Adams, Loud of Thayer and Taylor of Adams, distance 30 feet, 2 inches. Score, Adams, 24; Thayer, 21.

Mile run, won by Nixon, W. Gallagher and Plumer, all of Thayer, time, 5 min., 36 sec. Score, Thayer, 30; Adams, 24.

120-yard hurdle: First heat won by Manning, of Adams, time 17 1-2 seconds; second heat won by Taylor, of Adams, time 18 seconds; final heat won by Manning and Taylor, of Adams, and Loud, of Thayer; time, 17 seconds. Score, Adams, 32; Thayer, 31.

Running broad jump, won by Perry, of Thayer, Taylor and Kent, of Adams, distance 19 feet, 7 inches. Score, Adams, 36; Thayer, 36.

Throwing 12-pound hammer, won by Manning of Adams, McLeod and Waterman of Thayer, distance, 101 feet, 11 inches. Score, Adams, 41; Thayer, 39.

The last event was the mile relay race and as this would determine the winner, the excitement was intense. Adams' team was composed of Manning, Lyons, Cilley, Kent and Taylor. Thayers' team of Brigham, Perry, Plumer, Waterman and Nixon. Adams easily won out, securing six points, which gave the final totals, Adams, 47; Thayer, 40.

Mr. Lawrence Cook of Boston was referee; Mr. Kent starter, Messrs. Burnham and Holden, timers.

Burchsted is reported to be more comfortable this morning, and his foot seems to be doing well.

MEMORIAL DAY SPORTS

Bostons Took Two Games From the Chicagos.

Owners of the Fall River Club Cannot Stand Losing.

French Champion on the Wheel a Winner In a Philadelphia Match.

Boston, May 31.—Two large and enthusiastic crowds of baseball devotees greeted the home-coming of the Boston champion baseball team yesterday. Over 12,000 people entered the field, where the Chicago battalion under Manager Tom Burns' guidance went down in two successive engagements, morning and afternoon.

Winning two games in one day after the long western tour was great "Dewey" doings for Manager Selee's lads, but that was what they accomplished by the fastest kind of play, and they never seemed to lag when the pinch came. The afternoon game was the closest seen at the grounds this season.

There was baseball of the most brilliant tinge in both games, but as the disparity of scores shows the thoroughly entertaining denouements looked for on holidays were concentrated in the latter. Three to two is close enough for almost anybody, and it did look like Chicago's game before sundown, when they spurted in the ninth; but Captain Hugh Duffy was there, and James J. Collins of Buffalo also was on hand, and "Tim" Donohue's parting injunction to "Go at them hard" found only a losing response on the part of the windy city youths.

Nichols found the sultry air congenial and he had remarkable speed, command and all his former skill, and only Lange and Mertes found him at all to their liking. Callahan had two men gone in the second inning of the first game with no runs scored when Bergen's little one down the third base line was lost by McCormick, and the rest came easy. It was one of those Boston spurts when they burn all bridges behind them and cut loose right in the heart of the enemies' territory, and base hits and runs of all kinds come wafting homewards.

The first game resulted 11 to 2. The score of the second:

The Washingons won from the St. Louis team by long and timely hitting, 5 to 3.

The Browns won yesterday's game with the Yales and with it the series. It was a close, interesting match in which the Browns' neat bunching of hits brought about the result.

The Cincinnatis won the morning game from the Brooklyns in a walk. The Brooklyns were unable to bunch their hits in the afternoon game, while the Cincinnatis in the first inning earned three runs, which lead was never overcome.

There were three games in Providence with the Wilkesbarre team, two of which the home team won.

The Philadelphias defeated the Louisvilles in the morning principally through the good pitching of Piatt. Both teams played well in the field. The afternoon game was replete with pretty bits of fielding. The Phillies bunched their hits and won.

The morning game in Pittsburg was a great pitcher's battle. The Baltimores won in the ninth inning on two hits and a flagrant error by Eagan. The afternoon game was an even thing until the eighth, when errors, together with five hits, netted six runs and disheartened the home team.

Pitcher McDougal won two games Monday for the Tauntons, who defeated the Newports in the morning and the Pawtuckets in the afternoon.

Two defeats were sustained in Syracuse by the Springfields.

Four scattered hits were all the Clevelands could get in the first game in New York. Seymour, while wild at times, was effective at critical moments. The giants pulled the second game out of the fire in the ninth inning by a streak of batting and good running.

In both games yesterday the Brocktons were successful, beating the Pawtuckets in the morning and the Newports in the afternoon.

Manager Doe of the New Bedfords received a diamond ring during the progress of the game with the Fall Rivers in the morning, which his team won by one run. In the afternoon contest between the same teams, he was benched with a baseman for talking too much. The Fall Rivers were victorious.

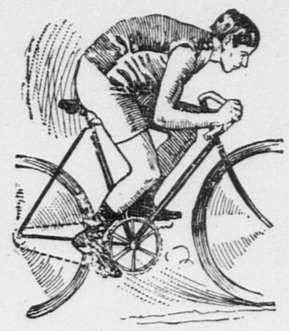

Six thousand persons saw the Holy Cross team defeat the Dartmouths on the college grounds in South Worcester by a score of 10 to 4. The visitors played a loose game in the field, and could not bunch their hits.

Retiring From Control.

Fall River, Mass., May 31.—The Fall River baseball management has decided to retire from control of the team, turning over the effects to the league. The reason for the action is that, while the team is playing winning ball, the public is not supporting it fully, and the management has lost money steadily. President Murnane and Secretary J. C. Morse expect to complete arrangements to keep the team in the race. John Smith will take charge June 1. What plan will be adopted is not decided.

The Champion of France.

Philadelphia, May 31.—Edward Taylore, champion of France, defeated Joseph Vernier of Philadelphia in a match race for 20 miles. Vernier held close to his pace teams and led at the second and third miles, being then a lap ahead of Taylore. This position was maintained until after the 10th mile, Vernier crossing first at each mile. While on the back stretch of the first lap of the 11th mile, a quad pacing Vernier made a bad spill, upsetting Vernier.

EDOURDE TAYLORE.

This gave Taylore a big advantage, and he closed the gap between him and Vernier, and went ahead. The Philadelphia boy got himself together and went after Taylore, but was unable to catch him, the Frenchman steadily increasing his lead until he crossed the finish line one and one-half laps ahead of the local rider. Taylore's time for the 20 miles was 37 minutes and 13 seconds. New records were established at the third, fourth and sixth miles, the time being, respectively, 5:24 2-5; 7:08 3-5; 10:45 1-5.

Rode a Fine Race.

Bridgeport, May 31.—Over 2000 people attended the bicycle races under the auspices of the Bridgeport Cycle club. The event of the day was the 10-mile multicycle paced match race between Edward McDuffie of Cambridge and Fred C. Hoyt of Bridgeport. Hoyt took the lead at the start and held it for two miles, but poor work on the part of his pacemakers caused him to fall behind, and McDuffie held the lead from then on.

McDuffie rode a fine race and, after the three-mile mark had been passed, was never in danger of losing. Hoyt frequently outstripped his pacemakers, but could not overtake the fleet McDuffie, who rode with great confidence from start to finish and won by over a lap. McDuffie's time for the 10 miles was 18 minutes, 48¾ seconds.

Hammer Throwing Record.

Bayonne, N. J. May 31.—Two thousand persons gathered at the grounds of the New Jersey Athletic club to witness the club's carnival of sports. A feature was the throwing of the 16-pound hammer, in which John Flannagan of the New York Athletic club, the holder of the world's record, was defeated by his only competitor, J. C. McCracken of the university of Pennsylvania. McCracken made a new world's record of 153 feet 8 inches, which beats the record by one inch.

Champion Ten Eyck Won.

New York, May 31.—In the senior single scull race on the Harlem Monday, E. H. Ten Eyck, the champion, had as his opponents Juvenal of Philadelphia and Mackey of New York. These men are not in the champion's class, although Juvenal was expected to give him a better race. The three kept together for a dozen strokes, when Mackey fell behind. Juvenal stayed with Ten Eyck for about a quarter, and then the champion increased his speed with such effect that at the half he led Juvenal by at least 10 lengths. After that it was simply a procession.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

ALMANAC, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1.
Sun rises—4:10; sets, 7:14.
Moon sets—1:34 a. m.
High water—7:45 a. m; 8:15 p. m.

Though the conditions are somewhat unsettled on the south Atlantic coast and in the west, the chances are most in favor of a period of fair and pleasant weather with seasonable temperatures and light winds, continuing at least through Wednesday and probably longer.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Lynn police refused to allow the O'Brien-Byer fight last night.

The total number of volunteers mustered into the United States service is 122,120.

A sail boat with 15 men on board capsized yesterday near Seul Coix Point, Ont., four being drowned.

At the Suburban Columbia cemetery in Cincinnati the memorial platform gave way, precipitating 100 people, mostly children. Many suffered slight injuries.

The erection shop, foundry and machine shop of the Watsontown, Pa., Car Manufacturing company were destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss, $60,000; insurance, $37,000.

Philip McCarthy, at one time an insurance agent, shot and almost instantly killed himself at his home in Springfield, Mass., last night. He had been on a protracted spree.

The Gaelic football championship of Massachusetts is yet undecided, as the Emmet and Garryowen teams played a draw, two each, in Everett. The championship was at stake.

The British government, according to the statement of a London news agency, has sent a friendly protest to Spain with respect to the latter's strengthening of the fortifications opposite Gibraltar.

The United States marshal in Guthrie, Ok., has under arrest a young Seminole named Kinder H. Harrison, who has confessed to being the murderer of Mrs. Laird, for whose death young Sampson and McGeisey were burned to death by a white mob near Newark, I. T., last January.

In a letter to the governor of Virginia, the president said: "The splendid patriotism exhibited in every part of our common country exalts the American name, and the spectacle of the north and south marching under the old flag, at the nation's call, fills all hearts with pride and gratitude."

Maine Men Arrive.

Chickamauga National Park, May 31.—The greatest excitement prevailed in Camp Thomas yesterday over a rumor that a general order had been issued to all troops to proceed at once to Tampa. The rumor proved to be only partly true, only eight regiments being affected. The regiments going away number 6000. The First Maine infantry, 1021 officers and men, arrived yesterday, and was assigned to the Third brigade of the third division of the Third corps.

To Recruit the Ninth.

South Framingham, Mass., May 31.—The Ninth regiment spent its last day in camp in drills both morning and afternoon and the usual parade and review at sundown. Another large crowd thronged the field and the company streets all day, and leave takings were numerous. Major P. J. Grady has been designated as recruiting officer, with headquarters in Boston. In order to recruit the regiment up to its full strength as required by the recent order of the secretary of war, it will be necessary to take in 348 men. The men left camp supplied with a great many conveniences.

Boston Opinion.

Boston, May 31.—"One great trouble with the Spanish people during the present century, and even earlier in their history," declares The Advertiser, "is that they have been so thoroughly content with their own systems, customs and manners of life, that they have not striven for national improvement in education, in business methods, in everything that makes a nation great. Possibly the war may arouse them to new effort."

"Sagasta," in The Globe's opinion, "seems to be sparring for time, although he must realize how visionary the Spanish hopes of European intervention must be."

"It may be questioned," says The Post, "whether the risk taken in smashing Cervera's fleet inside Santiago harbor is at all comparable with that involved in the invasion of Cuba with unacclimated troops at the opening of the rainy season."

That Alleged Compact.

Washington, May 31.—Careful inquiry at the state department and at the British embassy fails to develop a substantial basis for the supposition that negotiations are afoot looking to a close compact between the United States and Great Britain that would amount to an alliance, offensive and defensive, to the end that Great Britain may enjoy in peace her Asiatic possessions, while the United States will have a share of the trade in that quarter and will be secure also in the application of the Monroe doctrine. So far as the Nicaraguan canal is concerned, it is pointed out that if the United States contemplates joint use of that means of communication there would be no necessity for including such a provision in a treaty, as the same result would be obtained by a simple affirmation that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty is still in force. The trade relations are even now being adjusted on a new basis.

As to the talk of a union on an interpretation of the Monroe doctrine, there is the best authority for saying that the subject has not been broached in the diplomatic exchanges of the two governments since the celebrated passage between Secretary Olney and the Marquis of Salisbury during the negotiations that led up to the Venezuelan arbitration agreement. In his last note, while conceding the propriety of arbitration, the British premier nowhere admitted any application of the Monroe doctrine to the boundary question, and so far as is known there has been no change in British sentiment on that point.

When a young woman starts out in married life with a modest home containing just the bare necessities, she pictures herself in the future the mistress of a stately mansion, containing the comforts and luxuries of life. In that dreamland of the future there will be rich carpets on the floors, fine paintings on the walls, a magnificent sideboard loaded with silver and dainty tableware in the dining room, musical instruments, books and all that the heart of a sybarite could yearn for, and—a baby.

To either man or woman, all the comforts and all the luxuries of life and all the wealth in the world soon become a bore and a weariness, unless there is a baby for whom they can both contrive and plan and work. A woman who, through ignorance or neglect, suffers from weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood, blasts all these hopes. Either she will be childless, or will lose her own life in the struggle of maternity, or her babies will be born puny, sickly and peevish and unable to withstand the ordinary ailments of childhood. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription surely and completely cures all these delicate complaints. It is the discovery of one of the most eminent living specialists in women's diseases,—Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. The "Favorite Prescription" acts directly upon the sensitive organism concerned. It imparts to it health, strength, vigor, virility and elasticity. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. It robs maternity of its perils and insures a healthy, robust child.
